In completing the work to which we were assigned by the higher indicatories of the two great branches of Episcopal Methodism in the United States, we pour forth our united prayer for these kindred churches in the language which inspiration has prepared for us, and say: May the Lord of peace himself give you peace always, by all means.

Now unto him that is able to keep us from falling, and to present us faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy; to the only wise God, our Savior, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

In the bonds of the gospel of peace your Brethren and Servants:

BADGES AND MEDALS.—Societies, clubs, and individuals wishing to order the above articles would do well to note the advertisement of John F. Luther on this page. Mr. Luther manufactures the presentation medals for Masonic and all other societies, besides doing engraving, hair work, regalias, etc. Last articles made to order much cheaper than ever before, and estimates furnished on application. Goods sent C. O. D., to orders by mail or express, as directed. Address Mr. Luther's establishment, 79 Nassau street, N. Y.

THE handsome advertisement of the United States Corset Company will be found on the last page of this paper. The corsets made by this company are moved, and are said to be much superior to the usual corset. The company have a large factory and turn out over four hundred dozen a day, which is sufficient evidence of the popularity of the article manufactured by them. The corsets can be purchased from any dealer, and letters may be addressed to the house in New York.

GROVER'S PORTER GYMNASIUM. We have never seen this in use, but from the illustrations in the regular which has been sent us we are of the opinion that it is a valuable to the much benefit to any one who will use it persistently. It is highly spoken of by many and we have no doubt that it will soon be much more generally used by those of sedentary habits, for whom it was originally designed. See advertisement.

We call attention to the advertisement of Mr. J. A. Braselman, successor to the well known dry goods house of Braselman & Adams. Our friends in the country who favor this house with their orders can rest assured that Mr. Braselman will follow the system which made them do a wholesale business, that of giving satisfaction to all buyers.

CENTENARY FEMALE COLLEGE is ably conducted by Rev. A. P. McVoy and corps of assistants, at Summerfield, Ala., in a healthy, pleasant portion of the state. The terms are very reasonable, and altogether the college offers inducements that should bring it liberal patronage. See advertisement.

PRINTING INKS.—We have thought for years from Sheldon Collins & Co., 26 Frankfort street, New York, we have yet to find the least fault with it. They make good inks, and are clever, pleasant gentlemen to deal with. Printers will note their advertisement on this page.

NOTICE.—On this page see the notice of President Warren Depree, of Martha Washington College.

ELECTRO AND STEREOTYPE FOUNDRY.—Messrs. Ogden, Campbell & Co., whose advertisement occurs elsewhere, are, as their card indicates, engaged in electrotyping, stereotyping, wood engraving and printing. They are practical workmen, having been connected with the largest houses in the Eastern cities, they employ a large number of workmen, and are spoken of in complimentary terms by the trade.

FOR LADIES ONLY. See the advertisement headed as above. In our transactions with Mme. Gidiwolt we have always found her prompt and reliable in business matters, and we recommend her to our friends who may favor us in order to purchase the articles she offers for sale.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, located at Chapel Hill, N. C., is one in its old hundred and [illegible] The society of Chapel Hill is proverbial for its intelligence and refinement. The university has a well-reputation, maintained for more than a half century, and is entitled to the confidence of those who wish to give their sons first-class advantages at reasonable rates.

MEMPHIS CONFEDERATE FEMALE INSTITUTE.—We wish to call the attention of our readers interested in the education of daughters, to the fact that the above named most excellent institution will commence its fall session on the first Monday in September. For circulars apply to Rev. A. W. Ames.

CERTIFICATE OF MAGNESIA.—Messrs. Arthur Rogers & Sons, N. Y., manufacture the above medicine. It has been before the public for a number of years, and its reputation is established. We have only to say that we would believe any medicine manufactured by Rogers & Sons to be good. See advertisement on this page.

We call attention to the improved house trap, advertised on this page. This will help house-keepers materially in getting rid of those pests which infest to a greater or less extent every building. The trade will be supplied by Shaffer, Macready & Co., New Orleans.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE.—The next session of this noble institution, located at Ashland, Va., will be opened for the admission of students on the twenty-first of September next. See advertisement in our advertising columns.

VISITORS to the city would do well to inspect Navra & Offner's really fine stock of China and glassware. See advertisement.

ONE of the best places to buy dry goods in New Orleans is at Levy Bros., 53 Magazine street.

THE readers of the ADVOCATE who may chance to have occasion to visit Boston will look us for reminding them that the American House is more than ever the well-conducted institution it is one of the best hotels of New England. Particular attention is paid to the comfort of guests, and a desire to please is apparent in all parts of the house. Put the American down in your list to look out for there when in Boston.

I HAVE USED several bottles of Simmons Liver Regulator, and you may record me as one that say from my own observation that I can truthfully say that it is the best medicine I have been for years past. I have suffered four years and am grateful for relief. J. Rayberry, Petrolia store, 1300 Market st., Philadelphia.

THE GRAND HOTEL, of New York, is without doubt the most central house in the city. Its location is most desirable, and the appointments unrivaled. The house is well kept, with a full regard to strict elegance, comfort, and refinement.

A STRING OF PEARLS!

Extract of a letter from Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872:

Personally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator with good effect. It is mild and suits me better than more active remedies.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens has greatly improved in health of late. The State Lines Post, Red Oak, Ga.

Testimony of the Chief Justice of Georgia.

I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement in the liver—at least such has been in my personal experience in the use of it.—Hiram Warner, Chief Justice of Georgia.

Opinion of the Clergy.

Simmons' Liver Regulator is certainly a specific for that class of complaints which originate in costiveness. Many of our fellow-beings are suffering from [illegible] disorders, and have [illegible] in relation to the efficacy of this [illegible] preparation, we can only refer them to the simple and candid [illegible] gathered of Philip to Nathaniel. "Come, and see." Try the proposed remedy, and then you can judge for yourselves.—Rev. David Wills, D.D., of the Presbyterian Church in Macon, Ga.

Always Keep It On Hand.

I have used Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator myself, and in my family for years, and pronounce it one of the most satisfactory medicines that can be used. Nothing will induce me to be without it, and I recommend all my friends to use it. I never want to secure health, to always keep it on hand.—R. L. Wolff, Columbus, Ga. Congressman.

CAUTION!

The Highland Hardy Raspberry.

A correspondent of the Practical Farmer thus speaks of this comparatively new variety of raspberry:

They seem adapted to nearly all kinds of soil where corn can usually be grown, with the exception of clay flats, of low, poorly drained fields. For the purpose of experimenting, I have planted them on a diversity of soils, and find that they can be grown with profit, even upon quite a heavy clay loam, if well drained, either naturally or artificially, though the best success is obtained on a gravely soil or light loam.

The berry is bright red in color, and unusually firm, which makes it of great value for shipping to distant markets; flavor very good, comparing very favorably with other kinds; size of fruit medium to large, surpassed in this respect by Herstine, Brandywine, or Antwerp raspberries. The plants ripen their fruit considerably earlier than most of the red varieties, coming into market or upon the table a little before the late varieties of strawberries disappear.

The Highland Hardy is unusually productive, giving with fair culture from forty to sixty bushels to the acre, the crop selling in New York at from $400 to $600 per acre. Under very favorable circumstances the fruit from small plots has sold at the rate of from $1,500 to $2,000 per acre. These latter figures are rare exceptions, but still they show what success has been reached.

As to their cultivation, the ground should first be well plowed, giving land a good coat of stable manure. After harrowing, the ground can be marked out with a plow, or otherwise, placing the plants four feet apart each way, or by making the rows seven feet apart, and the plants two and a half or three feet distant in the rows. The first method permits of better culture, though the yield does not differ materially either way.

The ground should be kept well cultivated, except when the fruit is ripening. Manure them well late in the fall or in the spring of each year, but not too liberally if the soil is naturally very rich. Plantations may be made during the fall or spring. The second season from planting will generally give a paying crop, though full returns should not be expected until another year.

Food of Fowls.

We believe that feed, a liberal, varied, and regular supply, is indispensable to the highest success. The free production of eggs is supposed to be a heavy drain on the fowl system. Great layers, like great milkers, are proverbially thin in flesh, yet large consumers. The more they eat, the more they shell out, and there have been cases where exhausted nature surrendered to overproduction. The large Asiatic fowls are more likely to be sterile, through fatness, than the smaller Spanish Leghorns, and consequently different varieties should have different treatment. Corn alone may be too stimulating for some sluggish fowls, and hence bulky food, like bran and potatoes, should be occasionally given. Scraps, fresh meat, pulverized bones and oyster shells, the refuse of the kitchen, mixtures of meal and bran, whole grains, clean water, a dusting and a scratching place, and a comfortable roost are some of the leading persuasives to this egg-active life. The summer and winter food of fowls may reasonably vary, conforming to nature's rules. A successful breeder of Spanish fowls uses meal and bran mixtures in summer, and whole corn and wheat screenings in winter. We do not believe in keeping a supply of food constantly before fowls or any other creature. It is doubtless better for all to have each day a fresh supply, with an interval between. In matters of appetite all the world is kin.

We have observed a marked difference in the color and flavor of eggs. It is doubtless attributable somewhat to feed. The style of living shows itself even here. Fowls fed on garbage, onions, and manure heaps will very likely have these flavors in their eggs, and those fed on sound grain and clean grass or hay will have the better flavors. Generally, the richer the food the higher the color of the fruit. Buckwheat is said to make eggs colorless, and wheat and corn give them the best color. Hens love hay, and the nearer it approaches to tender grass the better. A poulterer with two hundred fowls chaffs and steams hay occasionally for them, and finds that they love it.—Scientific Farmer.

VANILLINE FROM PINE SAP.—At a late meeting of the Paris Academy of Sciences Dr. Hoffmann announced that his two students, Tiemann and Haarmann, who had obtained vanillin, the aromatic principle of the vanilla bean, from pine sap, propose to manufacture the substance on a large scale. The sap of a tree of medium height gives vanillone to the value of one hundred francs, and the wood is not injured by the extraction of the sap. This will be the second vegetable product manufactured by purely chemical methods.

Persons who are not successful in propagating vines by cuttings should try their hand at making layers. Any shoot of one year's growth which can be bent down and covered with earth can be used for this purpose. Strong and vigorous plants may be produced the first season by layering, which is not always true of cuttings.

COOKIES.—Put into a teacup one egg, two tablespoonsful of sweet cream, one teaspoonful of soda, and fill up with sugar; add one teaspoonful of butter, caraways, or coriander seed.

Heaven is a state of entire acquiescence in the will of God, and perfect sympathy with his purposes.

OILS, LAMPS, ETC.

ILLUMINATING OILS

AND

AT

REDUCED PRICES.

THE

PUROLINE AND PORTABLE

GAS LIGHT CO.

Offer to the trade, at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES, the following list of their superior and popular brands:

INSURANCE OIL.

The Insurance Oil is the best Family Safety Oil, and is urgently recommended by all our Insurance Companies as a substitute for common Coal Oil or Kerosene. It may be used in ordinary lamps Without Change of Burner.

THE NEW ORLEANS BOARD OF UNDERWRITERS SAY:

"It is our opinion that the general use of the Insurance Oil would greatly reduce the number of lamp fires and explosions, and lessen the risk of destruction of life and property."

It will not explode or ignite in a lamp, and the price has been so reduced as to place it within the reach of all classes of consumers, and make it the great FAMILY SAFETY OIL.

As an Illuminating Oil for family use, or for general use in ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil lamps, the Insurance Oil has the indorsement of the New Orleans Board of Health, the Fire Commissioners, and all the American and European Insurance Agencies, as PERFECTLY SAFE.

Refined Carbon or Coal Oil.

THE WELL-KNOWN CROWN BRAND.—This is a pure, high fire test Kerosene or Coal Oil, generally known as the Crown Oil, and recommended to the trade, and to consumers who buy CHEAP OIL, as the best and safest of all the LOW-PRICED ILLUMINATING OILS in market. In five years' experience no accident from its use has ever occurred. The Puroline and Portable Gas Light Company have the exclusive agency of the Crown Oil for the States of Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

PUROLINE FLUID.

Pf. Metallic Gas Lamps and Portable Gas Burners Manufactured and sold only by the Puroline and Portable Gas Light Co. and by their Agents.

This celebrated Fluid, prepared by a process known only to the proprietors, is the best and most reliable of all the products of Petroleum for use in Metallic Portable Gas Lamps and Lanterns. It burns clear and bright, is free from smoke or unpleasant odor, and does not char the wick or gum the burner. No other fluid or oil should be used in Portable Gas Lamps or Lanterns.

Puroline is especially recommended for use in Portable Gas Lamps and Chandeliers, in Street Lanterns, Sugar-House Lamps, Cane Shed Lanterns, and in Torches and Gas Burners for Steamboat Landings, Moonlight Parades and Street Processions. Giving a light equal to the best city Coal Gas, it enables the people of the remotest villages to illuminate their Stores, Warehouses, Saloons, Hotels, Porches, Streets and Gardens as brilliantly as the favored residents of a great metropolis.

Gasoline for Gas Machines.

Distilled expressly for the Paroline and Portable Gas Light Company, and with peculiar regard for the changes of temperature, so common in this climate. Unequalled for generating gas, or for carbureting coal gas.

Proprietors, patentees and owners of Gas Machines cannot overestimate the importance of having their Gasoline of reliable gravity and quality as success depends so much on these conditions.

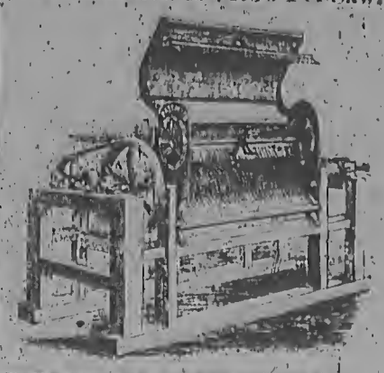
DANIEL PRATT'S IMPROVED
"Revolving Head" Cotton Gin.
PATENTED JULY 13, 1875.
Price Reduced to $4.50 Per Saw.



THIS GIN has been in use for the past three seasons, and several recent improvements have been added. It obviates all friction at the ends of the cotton box, prevents the roll from breaking, and gives a Larger Yield of Lint from the Same Amount of Seed than any other Gin in use. The Revolving Head lightens the draft and causes the Gin to run faster with less driving power, thus doing a great deal more work within the same time, while economizing steam or animal power, than any other Gin. The seed being ginned very close, the length of the staple is increased, producing cotton on this account of a greater market value. This improved value, given by length of staple, with extra production of lint, added to increased amount of work done, more than covers the cost of the Gin in every dozen bales ginned. Testimonials sent by mail on application.

New Orleans Markets.

ADVOCATE OFFICE,
New Orleans, Tuesday, Sept. 5, 1876.

As we have just entered upon another commercial year, it is but natural that we should look back and compare our status with that of twelve months since, so that we may know whether we are progressing or declining. Our limited space forbids a statistical exhibition or full comments on each of the numerous articles which makes up a city's wealth and trade, but we will give briefly our views. The evidences or failure of success, we think, can be best discerned by noticing the movements of different classes of merchants, who from time to time show their opinions by their acts more than by words. The writer has been a careful observer of commercial matters during the past years, and in spite of many and serious impediments thrown in our way by designing and artful enemies, we are slowly but certainly emerging from the clouds of difficulties that have well-nigh crushed us. Our people have struggled nobly and patiently—often disappointed, no doubt, many have felt like abandoning their calling, but bright hope let fall some cheering rays upon us, inducing one more manful effort, and so has it ever proved that success crowns the labors of persevering energy, as is shown by the fact that we have raised during the past season

1,601,441 bales of cotton, worth	$84,500,000
1,363,400 sacks cotton seed, worth	600,000
129,501 hogsheads of sugar, worth	11,400,000
238,361 barrels of molasses, worth	4,100,000
158,761 barrels of rice, worth	1,600,000
Making a total of	$101,700,000

received for only five classes of products.

It is true we are not receiving the trade we should; and large orders have been filled in the West for plantation supplies that were formerly procured here, which causes a reduction in the provision and breadstuff trade; but if it proves to be more economical for the planter, is he not wise to do so, and is it not good policy to cheapen the cost of production by all means within his control if he saves 15 or 20 per cent. in his expenses per year? Is it not that much made for the South? So while we lose in one way we gain in another. But we can regain this trade by making it to the interest of buyers to try our market, and this many of our leading firms are doing—by offering goods at very low figures. We are learning to do business on a more economical scale and a narrower margin of profits. But another point is being noticed—that is, cheap rates of freight and passage to and from the interior. We know it is a difficult problem to solve, but thinking men have the matter in mind, and soon this difficulty will be removed.

The great railroad enterprises that are before the people, whose construction are of momentous importance, must be pushed to completion; the great Pacific, under the able management of Mr. E. B. Wheelock; is being steadily and perseveringly driven ahead—every dollar being used as far as paid in. There is too much already invested by our citizens to permit it to stop short of Alexandria. The lower route, as it is termed, can at so small a cost be built that ere long we will be able to follow the iron-horse across the swamps of Louisiana into the fertile prairies of Texas. Remember it takes time to accomplish great undertakings like these. Make haste slowly is a good old maxim not yet worn out. Our business men are alive watching cautiously all that effects our interests both at home and abroad.

Another evidence of prosperity and increased confidence shown by resident capitalists is their investments in real estate and manufacturing enterprises. As one travels around the Garden District he finds here and there the carpenter and brick-layer busy with trowel and plane, constructing some noble mansion or comfortable home for the abode of merchant, prince, or less pretentious clerk. Were you to pass up Jackson street you would see the fine large dwelling of Mr. Jules Weis, of the firm of Myer, Weis & Co., which has cost somewhere about $60,000; again on Carondelet, corner of St. Andrew street, Capt. Tom Leathers has erected two fine brick residences, but we have not time or space to enumerate the improvement in this direction; suffice it to say, that thousands of dollars are being spent in building new and repairing old dwellings, while in the business portion of the city there is the magnificent building erected by Lehman, Abraham & Co., for their office, which may be found on the first floor, while the spacious and well-arranged offices on the second floor are occupied by Messrs. Allen, Nugent & Co. Mr. A. Chapsky has built a fine brick store on the corner of Poydras and Magazine streets. Messrs. C. A Whitney & Co. have given their commodious steamship office a thorough renovation, and many more are being prepared for the winter's business. In the manufacturing department still more hopeful signs are presented, such as the ice-making establishment, constructed according to the patent of Nevada Jones (as the gentleman is usually called.) The large addition made by Mr. J. H. Keller to his famous soap works. Messrs. A. A. Maginnis & Sons are also improving and enlarging their extensive oil, mill and soap works. C. G Johnsen has with his usual enterprise started a large foundery, and has several other important schemes and enterprises moving forward toward completion. Messrs. J. B. Laitte & Co. have about completed their new press, as have also Messrs. Fatman, Ranger & Co., while Mr. Ewing, having bought the property on which his press was located, shows his determination to stay among us, and squeeze the ponderous bale to hand-breadth thickness by his powerful hydraulic cotton-press; and we learn a patent has been recently issued for a machine to tighten the iron bands around the bale, and hold it down to the size the press forces it. The inventor is a native of our State, Mr. J. F. Randolph.

THE Healing Springs camp meeting, in the Bladon Springs circuit, Alabama Conference, will commence on Friday, September 8 1876. Persons from Mobile, and along the line of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, will get off at Buckatunna station, where they will find hacks to take them to the camp ground, fourteen miles distant. Ministers carried free from this station.

During the meeting the proprietor of the springs will reduce board to the following rates: Board per day, including lodging, $1.50; single meals, fifty cents; lodging, fifty cents.

The third quarterly meeting for the Bladon Springs circuit will be held at the camp ground.

W. H. WILD, P. C.

THE Choctaw camp meeting, on the Butler circuit, Alabama Conference, will commence on the fifteenth of September, embracing the third Sunday. The preachers are respectfully invited to attend. The meeting will be held on the self-sustaining plan. We ask the prayers of the church. D. J. WRIGHT, P. C.

THE CAMP MEETING on the Rapides circuit, seven miles east of Plaueville, La., will begin on Wednesday before the fourth Sunday in September. Ministers are especially invited. J. L. P. SHEPPARD, P. C.

THE SPRING CREEK camp meeting will commence on Wednesday night before the second Sunday in October. There will be a good public boarding-tent for the accommodation of strangers, a good lot and feed for stock. Ministers will be cared for, and are especially invited to come.

P. S.—We extend our invitation to the Editor and Publisher of the New Orleans ADVOCATE. "Come to the Macedonian cry!"

J. M. JOHNSTON, P. C.

They have male missionaries, 60; native helpers, 160; scholars, 1,078. Besides these they have large fields of home Missions. Their income approaches $800,000 annually.

Other Methodist Churches in Europe have: male missionaries, 10; female missionaries, 10; native helpers, 22; members, 5,500, with a large number of children at school. In Canada our brethren are doing a great work.

Total of Methodist Missions as above reported: males, 695; females, 654; helpers, 2,160. Total, 3,509. Members, 79,213; scholars, 144,875. Their annual income will reach at least two million dollars. To these must be added the Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The society of this Church, now called a "Board," was formally organized in 1845. Up to that period, and before the division, we were all one society, and worked together under one Board of Managers.

In 1860 the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, had missionaries in China, among the Indians of the West, and especially were they called to preach the gospel to the colored people of the South. In 1860 they had over two hundred thousand colored people in their communion.

We now have missionaries in China, in Brazil, in Mexico, among the Cubans at Key West, among the Indians of the West, on the frontier, extending to Washington Territory, Oregon, California, and many other points in the West and South-west.

There are calls for many more. We have the men if we could collect the means.

The following table, showing results in Mission-fields, has been prepared with care. It is imperfect, but is exact as far as it goes:

NEW HOPE SCHOOL, CHOCTAW NATION, INDIAN MISSION CONFERENCE.

This school has fifty Indian girls boarding in the institution. They are taught the English language, as well as all the work necessary to qualify them for housekeepers. They are advanced to different grades from beginners to a qualification which would enable them to enter any collegiate institution in the States. This school was established some thirty years ago, and has been supported jointly by the Mission Board of our Church and the Choctaw Nation. Throughout the Nation can be found women who were the pupils of this school in former years. Almost all of the responsible and honorable positions of the Nation are filled by those who received what education they have from the different mission schools within their bounds. The children hear the word attentively, and many of them govern their lives accordingly. The gospel, preached through these schools, has restrained these Indians, and they have never committed such outrages as are charged upon other tribes. We are frequently discouraged because they do not advance more rapidly, but a brighter and more encouraging view is given when we compare them with other tribes, or when we compare them with what they were a century ago. They desire Christian officers. Almost every prominent officer in the Nation is a Christian.

E. R. SHAFAUD.

THE MORAVIANS.

The first Moravian congregation in America was organized in 1736, and there are now thirty-four congregations and twenty-seven Mission-stations. The first Moravian congregation in Great Britain was organized in London in 1742, and there are now thirty-eight congregations—one of which is in Ayr—and about the same number of Mission-stations.

The constitution of the Moravian Church seems to be closely allied to Presbyterianism. There are bishops, but these have no administrative authority; and the continuance of the office seems designed chiefly for the purpose of keeping up the episcopal succession. The creed of the Moravian Church is very brief, consisting of only six doctrines, which are deemed most essential to salvation:

"1. The doctrine of the total depravity of human nature.

"2. The doctrine of the love of God the Father.

"3. The doctrine of the real Godhead and the real manhood of Jesus Christ.

"4. The doctrine of the atonement and satisfaction of Jesus Christ for us.

"5. The doctrine of the Holy Ghost and the operations of his grace.

"6. The doctrine of the fruits of faith."

The Moravian Church began very early to send forth missionaries to the heathen—the first being in 1733 to Greenland. Since then Missions have been established in Labrador—for the North American Indians—West Indies, Mosquito Coast, South Africa, Australia, and Thibet.

FOREIGN AND EVANGELICAL WORK.

At a missionary meeting recently held in London, Dr. Arthur, the distinguished author of The Tongue of Fire, used the following language when pleading for the Indian Missions:

"Think of every land where Satan has his seat, and give to them all a part of your prayers; but O! think long on the land whose Emperor has heathen subjects outnumbering more than twelvefold the entire population of the British Isles. Think that yonder a third of Adam's children dwell! Take a little leisure, and say, of every three infants one first sees the light there: to what instruction is it born? Of every three brides one offers her vows there: to what affection is she destined? Of every three families one spreads its table there: what love unites their circle? Of every three widows one is lamenting there: what consolation will soothe her? Of every three orphan girls one is wandering there: what charities will protect her? Of every three men that die one is departing there: what shore is in his eye? Of this mighty people it is estimated that every day thirty-three thousand, every month one million, pass into the eternal world. In the nine provinces of China where missionaries connected with American, Continental, and British societies are stationed, there are nearly a million of Chinese to each missionary. In the other nine provinces of China there are one hundred and fifty millions without a single resident Protestant missionary, and this eighteen hundred years after the Saviour's command to preach the gospel to every creature.

"After long centuries of isolation this remarkable country, larger and more densely peopled than all Europe, has been thrown open to commercial intercourse, to European ideas and influence, to Western culture and enterprise; and to the comity of nations. The trade already existing with it employs fifty or sixty millions of English capital, and yields to the British and Indian exchequers an annual produce of twelve or more millions, or one-eighth of their total revenues. Its population—beside which every other (India alone excepted) dwindles into littleness—its history, running back into immemorial antiquity and ages unrecorded, in comparison of which every other, India again being the solitary exception, however ancient, is youthful and recent—a thing of yesterday—all strengthen its claim on our attention and help. When Greece was in its palmy days, 600 B.C., and the rest of the inhabitants of Europe little better than wandering freebooters and pirates, or painted savages, China was in a comparatively high state of civilization; gunpowder and the mariner's compass were known to them; they could boast industrial arts unknown to the polished Greek, porcelain and enamel, and silk fabrics for which a Roman senator would have given their weight in gold. Their moral condition appeals to our tenderest sympathy; they are overshadowed by a superstition which throws a chill and cloud of darkness over half the world; the mightiest creation of evil that ever afflicted and oppressed mankind holds them with unconquerable tenacity in its giant grasp; they read no promise that inspires consolation, or imparts belief; they pour their prayer into the ear of no God that pities their complaint; they have stupid peace without true happiness, industry without improvement, and public order without public morality. Now is the time, the fullness of the time, to go up and possess this great land. O that we may prove worthy of the opportunity, and faithful to the vocation!

CHINAMEN TO REDEEM CHINA.

As Lord Clive, with native soldiers, conquered India for Great Britain, so by means of native Christians will not simply India, but every heathen land, be won for Christ. With a few English soldiers to set the example of endurance and daring, and with English officers to command, the Sepoys, inspired by the courage of Clive, established British rule in India. How heartily they were enlisted in the cause was apparent during the siege of Arcot, when they voluntarily gave the gruel to the famishing European soldiers, and were themselves content with the thin gruel that was strained from the rice. But for the avarice and temporizing policy of England, the Sepoy rebellion would never have occurred; and it is very significant that not a single native Christian was found among the mutineers. They were willing to die for those who had won their hearts for Christ. In 1872 there were already in British India 273,178 native Christians, and 3,190 native pastors, preachers, and catechists, with only 551 foreign missionaries. While during the ten years previous there had been an increase of only 10 in the number of foreign missionaries, there was an increase of 1,231 in the number of native helpers, and of 60,290 native Christians.

This fact presents a hopeful outlook, and demonstrates that the whole world may be won for Christ. Thus up to 1872, the entire number of ordained missionaries laboring in foreign fields was only 2,115; while there were 9,851 native pastors, preachers, and catechists, to say nothing of 360,189 scholars, large numbers of whom are being trained for Christian labor, and the yet vaster army of native Christians who are workers for Christ. Thus already whole nations have been Christianized—the Greenlanders, the Karens in Burmah, the Sandwich Islanders, and the Fiji Islanders. They not only all support religious worship among themselves, but give literally to send the gospel to their heathen neighbors. The Baptists alone, with only 49 ordained missionaries, have 865 native helpers, and 26,180 native Church members.

Dr. Angus proposes 50,000 foreign missionaries for ten years, with $75,000,000 a year for their support, and the gospel can be repeatedly preached to every man, woman, and child on earth. This vast sum is only a dollar and a half each for the members of the evangelical Churches in Europe and America. But we doubt whether this is the best plan. The money we need, and many of the men, but God gives each nation a large share in the work of its own redemption. China's 500,000,000 will be converted largely in the same way. Already Chinese Christians are craving the privilege of extensive labors for Christ among their countrymen. The Methodist Episcopal East China Mission, with only 6 missionaries, has 68 native preachers, and 1,725 Church-members. Self-support has already begun. The outlook for this Mission is so encouraging, because it has been so well sustained. The value of its Mission property is $50,000, while over $20,000 is annually appropriated to carry on the work of the Mission, supplement the salaries of the native preachers on charges that are not entirely self-supporting, erect chapels, etc.

With liberal support our own Mission in China will soon compare favorably with the best. Already with three missionaries we have, including Bible-women, fifteen native helpers. Our native Church-members there contribute liberally toward the enterprises of the Church, and the pupils in our schools will in due time recruit the ranks of the native preachers. But we greatly need more missionaries to lead and train these native preachers, and more means for their support. Some have had to go to other Churches, because of the inability of the Board to employ them. Let us but do our duty, either to go or to send, and God will give us great honor in the work of raising up and training Chinese preachers for the redemption of China.

E. K. HENDRIX.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 26, 1876.

BRAZIL.

Will the Virginia and Holston Conferences furnish the support for two additional missionaries to Brazil this fall? Brother Ransom is now able to speak the language, and we expect to need at once two more men for that field. At the last session of the two above-mentioned Conferences societies were formed to send a missionary each. We hope the funds will be in hand. The Rev. J. E. Newman, in a recent letter, says:

"By the time this reaches you Brother Ransom will have made sufficient progress in Portuguese to be able to converse with facility, and it would be very desirable that you make provision for him to travel a little in this Province, and likewise go to Rio de Janeiro, and look out for suitable points for Mission work. One hundred and fifty dollars expended thus would be as good an investment as you can make in any way. This would pay his expenses to Rio by the Northern Railroad from San Paulo, and he could stop at some of the principal towns on that road, and learn about the chances for Mission work. This Northern Railroad runs through as fine a country as can be found in all South America, and very populous. It is down the valley of the Parahyba River.

"The Province of San Paulo is now being fast supplied with railroads, and the facilities for travel will soon be excellent, and especially along the great central railroad, leading into the interior Provinces of the Empire. We should try to have some points occupied at an early day—an emigrant man located on this road at some eligible point could be very useful.

"One thing to be borne in mind, a single man cannot get suitable board in a private family among Brazilians, nor can he have access to the women, perhaps no more here than in China. A married man, whose wife is a good housekeeper, can rent a house and live as cheap here as a single man can board, and she can have access to the women, and may be useful among them. Again, this is a very healthy country—no part of the States can compare with it—and the climate, none can surpass it.

"Brother Ransom wrote you three months ago about appropriations for this Mission. I trust you received his letters. I will only say here, he will need money, it is indispensable if he stays at R.—will need it until he can get a good school, which may be six months or more from the time of his going there.

"The three Provinces of San Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, and Minas, contain at least 3,500,000 inhabitants, and embrace about as much territory as is included in the States of North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and Mississippi, and they have in all, Northern and Southern, Presbyterian ministers from the States, ten or eleven, and about as many more native preachers, several of whom have charge of small Churches, and are ordained, and with both their missionary boards greatly in debt, so much so that they are unable to send another man here at present, and it is only because some of their men who are here have private resources of their own that they are able to continue in the work. Several of those persons have generously and freely contributed from their private funds to keep up the work they already have in hand.

"I would earnestly and strongly recommend that you take steps at once to establish a Mission in Rio de Janeiro, or in Nictheroy, which is the Provincial capital of the Province of Rio de Janeiro, and is just across the "Bay" from Rio three miles, and has a population of 25,000 or 30,000. The city of Rio has 400,000 or more inhabitants, and there are only two Protestant Churches for preaching in Portuguese in the city, and none in Nictheroy. So great is the field open here for evangelical preaching that I wish very much that there could be some plan devised by which Northern and Southern Methodists could work together; it is so with the Presbyterians, sent here by two Boards, they work together as one, and so I think Methodists would; hence I do hope you will be able to have friendly correspondence with their Board, and that you may cooperate here.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

No wonder Old Virginia Conference leads in missionary contributions, when her District Conferences show the devotion to the cause indicated in the following resolutions taken from the report of the Norfolk District Conference:

Resolved, 1. That we will not limit our efforts to the securement of our missionary assessments, but we pledge ourselves to renewed zeal in our efforts to raise the largest possible amount to supply the destitute with the word of life.

Resolved, 2. That we recommend all our Sunday-schools be organized into missionary societies, and thus train the young to contribute to the cause of Missions.

* No report from any of the Arkansas Conferences or North Texas, and several other Conferences made very imperfect reports as to the number of members.

† A portion of this money expended for church-building and rents.

PAUL'S TWO RULES.

To the Christian who acknowledges the inspiration of St. Paul, his life is the best possible commentary on the command of the Master: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." If we had this life through the medium of profane history, his individual inspiration would secure for it unquestioned authority; but receiving it, as we do, as a part of the inspired canon, it has given it the double emphasis of two inspired sanctions—that of the actor, and that of the historian. While the election of his apostolic career for record by the Spirit of God rather than that of any other of the apostles brings the conviction that in whatever they departed from him they are less accurate exponents of the spirit and purpose of the Master. Allowing for that freedom which the Master has given to the Church to adjust itself to the surroundings and necessities of each age and nation, discarding all mere imitation of the details of methods in the apostolic age, or the times immediately succeeding thereto. We claim for the general principles which underlay Paul's methods an expository and binding force which is decisive for the Church of all ages. If we have succeeded in impressing upon the reader the authoritative character of the record of the life and methods of St. Paul, and the principles which governed them, the task which we have undertaken becomes easy enough.

Every Bible-reader is familiar with Paul's first rule of labor, announced Romans xv. 20. "So have I strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build on another man's foundation." A rule to which he often refers. In the practice of this rule we find him passing on three distinct missionary journeys, pausing only in cities which were centers of influence—not tarrying for the conversion of the masses, but only long enough to give all the opportunity of hearing. To Paul the paramount obligation upon the Christian preacher is to give the gospel first to the man who has never had the means of hearing. Not by the slow process of adding to the Church until the widening waves of influence may come in due process to those who have never heard, but by going beyond the borders of Church influence, and by leaps and often long journeyings, erecting the light of the cross in the midst of regions before utterly dark. No preacher ought to doubt that Paul's practice is a divinely-inspired exposition of the duties to which the commission of the Master calls him.

Paul's second rule is one less familiar to cursory readers—one a formal statement of which the writer acknowledges he has himself only recently discovered: "Not boasting of things without our measure, that is, of other men's labors; but having hope, when your faith is increased, that we shall be enlarged by you according to our rule abundantly, to preach the gospel in the regions beyond you, and not to boast in another man's line of things made ready to our hand." (2 Cor. x. 15, 16.)

The expositors have usually missed the purport of the statement here given this rule—intimating that the enlargement which the apostle desired to receive of the Corinthians was that of spiritual communion. Certainly the apostle had no such rule as that of seeking spiritual enlargement from Churches of his own planting before he advanced into regions beyond them. This mistake has grown perhaps to an extent out of the fact that the apostle had refused to allow the Church at Corinth to contribute toward his support while engaged in preaching to them; from this the presumption has grown that he would not call upon them to aid in his support while preaching to others. Yet a recognition of the full scope of the context, collated with parallel passages in which the apostle declares that he received aid from other and distant Churches at the very time when he declined aid from the people to whom he was preaching, gives to us the clear and distinct rule, that while his apostolic duty called him to build on no other man's foundation, his apostolic authority demanded pecuniary aid from those who had heard, to aid in giving the gospel to those who had not heard. A little study of Paul's life gives to this rule a distinctness and importance which makes it superlatively binding. St. Paul distinctly states in 1 Cor. ix. 14, and elsewhere, the right of the preacher to a support from the people whom he serves; but in his own case, in some instances, for reasons of a practical nature, he refuses to allow the discharge of this duty on the part of the Church. Yet we find him claiming from this same Church contributions which were to go to the benefit of others.

Declaring positively the duty of the home support of the minister, he still claims the right to deny the exercise of that duty to absolve them from its claims—but of so much more binding and imperative nature is his claim to aid in his missionary work that from that he does not feel at liberty to absolve them; ay, for their own sake he dare not absolve them. Thus the apostle not only assumes that the first duty of the preacher is to go to those who have never heard, but the first duty of the Church is to make contribution to this end.

The missionary contribution is placed higher in importance than the salary of the pastor, in Paul's esteem. Was he right? Does the Church of to-day so practice? To show that we have not strained this scripture so as to apply it otherwise than the apostle intended, the reader is referred to 2 Cor. xi. 9, where those of Macedonia are represented as supplying his wants at the time that he, as preacher at Corinth, was refusing pecuniary aid from the people whom he served. (Phil. iv. 10-17). Where he recognizes help from the Church at Philippi on more than one occasion, but especially while he was engaged in preaching at Thessalonica, where he refused support from the people to whom he preached. In verse 17 he gives the reason for desiring these contributions. "Not because I desire a gift; but I desire fruit that may abound to your account." In 2 Cor. ix. the apostle makes an elaborate statement of plans, principles, and reasons for contributing for the benefit of those removed from us by distance. The immediate collection referred to is for the benefit of the poor saints at Jerusalem, but it stands directly connected with the object of the apostle's approaching visit, included in which was his purpose of using them to aid in carrying the gospel to the regions beyond, while the whole statement is of so general a character as to apply equally well to both purposes. To this chapter we refer the reader whose Christian conscience truly awakened asks for inspired help to fight the battle with the demon of covetousness.

DARE WE ATTEMPT TO EXCUSE OURSELVES?

BY J. E. EDWARDS, D.D.

Too many of our Church members attempt to excuse themselves for not giving to the objects of Church benevolence and enterprise because of the multiplicity of those objects. The Bible cause is a standing claimant. The Sunday-school is always at the door. Our educational institutions have their demands. The support of the ministry cannot be overlooked. The widows and orphans of deceased preachers must be remembered. The superannuated preachers have a claim that we should blush to ignore. Home Evangelization must be sustained. The Foreign Mission cause is ever knocking at the door, and crying, "Come over and help us." Now and then we find a Church-member who considers them all, and contributes to each in its turn, according to his ability. But the thousands stand by, looking on with their hands in their pockets, and doing nothing, or next to nothing, for any of these several objects. Their time is spent in framing petty pretexts to justify their neglect. One says, "I can't give to all," and there he compromises the matter by giving to none. Another complains that the calls are so numerous that he must consider the subject, and make a just discrimination; and, in the end, gives a few pennies to some object to quiet his conscience, and dismisses the rest to take care of themselves. An agent for Randolph Macon College once solicited a contribution from a well-to-do Church-member. The man was polite, and expressed interest in the object, but excused himself by saying that he had so many calls for charity that he could give the agent nothing—then added, "Now, Mr. R., you are the fourth or fifth person who has applied to me to-day for aid in the support of some benevolent enterprise." To which the agent slowly and quietly replied: "Well, sir, if you have not done better for any of them than you have for me you have not taxed your charity very heavily." The fact was, he had given to none. It was an evasive pretext, as discreditable to his veracity as it was to his charity. Too many of our Church-members make these compromises with conscience, by evasions and pretexts that approximate falsehood. Be honest. Cease this equivocal parley. In your heart and conscience before God, you know that all these objects have claims upon you. Take them in detail. "Give a portion to seven, and also to eight." Just now, if you please, consider the claims of the foreign missionary cause. Suppose you have already given to seven, give "also to eight." You know not "what evil shall be upon the earth." To-morrow you may be stripped of your possessions, and be unable to give. Lay up something in God's treasury while you have it. The foreign missionary work has its recognized claims on you. It has its demands on your faith as well as on your liberality. "Cast your bread on the waters," and be content to find it "after many days." Do not stop to cavil and debate the question. If you do, your selfishness and short sighted policy will get the better of you. "Walk by faith, not by sight." Give to God; leave it in his hands. Pray God's blessing on your donation. "Thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good." One heathen saved in twenty years is worth more than millions of money. "Let us not be weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." Work and wait. Our missionaries are at their posts of duty. They are breaking the ground and sowing the seed. The harvest will come. Are you content to let them suffer for the lack of support, or to abandon their work and come home? Have you no sympathy with them in their privations, sacrifices, and toils? Have you no concern for the salvation of the heathen, who are perishing for the bread of life? Think how necessary the gospel is to their well-being in time, to say nothing of their fortunes in the world to come. Think of the present condition of females without the gospel. Faith in Christ is the condition of salvation, wherever the subject is capable of exercising it. But faith comes by hearing. "How shall they hear without a preacher; and how shall they preach except they be sent?" Who is to send the living preacher? The Church, unquestionably. You, my reader, are a member of that Church. A part of the duty rests on you. Will you do your duty? Don't try to excuse yourself. The last analysis of your futile quibbling will show a base residuum of cupidity, avarice, sordid selfishness, and dishonesty at the bottom. Don't add the sin of hypocrisy to the sin of malfeasance in the management of the trust God has committed to your hands. "Go, or send." Give something to the foreign missionary cause. Give according to your ability. Give without delay. Just now our Church, in all its extent, is pleading for this cause. Don't put in the thin pretext so often pleaded: "The heathen are at the door," backed by the threadbare aphorism, "Charity begins at home." You know that you are as ready to parry appeals for Home Evangelization as you are for the Foreign Mission work. Give something to Foreign Missions. If it is but little, give it cheerfully. You are a tenant at will. You are a steward only. The time is short in which you are to use your Lord's money. "Give an account of thy stewardship!" will soon thunder in your startled ears. "It is high time for us all to wake out of our sleep." All other Churches are moving around us in missionary work. It is a shame to Southern Methodism that she does no more in the foreign field. We could do more. We ought to do more. God helping us, we will do more. Let us begin at once. Now! To-day!

THE WESTERN CONFERENCE.—The Rev. J. King, an old worker in Kansas, says, in a communication to the St. Louis Christian Advocate: "The success of the M. E. Church, South, within the bounds of the Western Conference has been doubted and questioned time after time; and yet, sir, she still lives, and hundreds are being brought to Christ through her instrumentality. Every charge does not enjoy the ingathering at the same time, but what of this? 'When one member is honored all the members rejoice with it.' There are quite a number of charges within the bounds of this Conference that have enjoyed (this year) 'times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord.' It was the writer's privilege to enjoy one of these precious occasions on the Paola Circuit, in the Council Grove District, July 23. It was an old-time camp-meeting, in connection with the quarterly meeting. It has been some time since we were permitted to see so many Southern Methodists together in one place. Then, they were full of 'faith and good works,' enjoying the 'love of God shed abroad in the heart by the Holy Ghost given unto them.' They were showing their faith by their works. In the Quarterly Conference the pastor reported the Conference collections 'all full.' They were a little behind with their pastor's salary, but fully expected to pay up, or nearly so. I need not tell you that they were all happy together. God had blessed them, and they were showing their gratitude to him not only by faith, but by 'faith and works.' On Sabbath not less than five hundred people gave earnest attention to the word of life, and many felt it was good to be there. In the love-feast, and on the sacramental occasion, God especially manifested himself with his people. This people have no doubts of success. Indeed, it seems to be the feeling of the entire district that the Western Conference must be sustained."

MISSIONARIES WANTED. — Several single preachers, who are willing to work as missionaries in the Indian Mission Conference, would be gladly received for that field the ensuing year. Send your names to Bishop McTyeire.

THE CENTURY OF MISSIONS.

THE Foreign Mission work, says The Independent, of July 27, 1876, is one of the distinctive features of our century. Never since the days of the apostles have Missions been carried on with such evangelical spirit and on so wide a scale as in the age to which we belong. Future generations will count it as having been the Mission century. One hundred years ago the evangelical forces engaged among the heathen could be very quickly enumerated. The Moravian brethren had already shown by their labors, sacrifices, and successes in Greenland, West Indies, and South Africa, what could be accomplished among the lowest heathen. German missionaries of the Halle school, chief of whom was Schwartz, were rendering noble though transient service in Danish Tranquebar, and in the adjacent region of India. Otherwise the Protestant Church was dead to the duty of evangelizing the heathen world. Old Dr. Ryland well expressed the sentiment of Christians generally when, in rebuke of Carey's missionary zeal, he said: "Young man, sit down. When God pleases to convert the heathen, he will do it without your aid or mine." Now it has become a laborious task to chronicle all that is being wrought among the heathen for Christ. It is as difficult in 1876 to find a Church not engaged in foreign missionary enterprise as to have found one in 1776 which was so engaged. From more than one thousand five hundred main stations, and from a vastly greater number of out-stations, the gospel light is now radiated into the darkness of surrounding heathenism. Every continent is dotted with these centers of saving influence; almost every island group is hearing the message of salvation. The missionary is rapidly following in the footsteps of the explorer, as he advances into Central Africa; while on the island continent of New Guinea the missionary has largely anticipated the explorer, in his zeal to preach the gospel to every creature. Among some of the minor races of the earth missionary labor has already reached that first stage of completion where evangelization is exchanged for some slower process of Christian training, which gradually lifts the generations of older Christendom to higher spiritual attainment. Greenland, where Moravian missionaries waited for five years to gain the first Esquimau convert, has now, under the combined influence of Moravian and Lutheran missionaries, become a Christian country. At the end of the last century the inhabitants of the Pacific Island groups sadly disproved the assertions of the advocates of natural religion by their cannibalism, to say nothing of other crimes. Now the most of these groups may be regarded as Christianized. Their languages have been reduced to writing, and most of their inhabitants can read the Bible in their native tongues. The Churches are becoming self-supporting, and are sending forth their own missionaries to other and still heathen islands. When, a year ago, the British Resident expostulated with the Fiji teachers who had volunteered to begin a Mission among the cannibals of New Britain and New Ireland, their replies evinced a Christian heroism like that of St. Paul. What has been wrought on these islands of the Pacific is best illustrated by the Mission-history of their chief group, the Hawaiian Islands. In 1820 Mr. Bingham and his companions of the American Board needed a strong faith to believe that the beastly Hawaiian were sufficiently human to respond to the word of the cross. In 1825 the work of grace began, in the course of which thousands of converts were gathered in. In 1863 the American Board was able to regard its work finished. The Hawaiian kingdom had been substantially Christianized, its Churches had become self-sustaining, and its missionary society, in conjunction with the parent association, was ready to undertake new and successful work in far-off Micronesia. The regret we feel in view of the gradual extinction of these Christianized races of the Pacific Islands is not commingled with our pleasure over similar results as quickly attained among a more vigorous Asiatic people, the Karens of Burmah. Not quite fifty years have passed since Dr. Judson first came into contact with this, at that time, almost unknown race of forest dwellers among the Karens. After less than half a century the Church of Christ has come to number more than sixty thousand souls. Nor have these converts been mere hearers. A host of noble native workers has been raised up, to guide the Churches, to teach the schools, to seek out their heathen countrymen through pathless forests, and to make Christianity the national religion of the Karen race. More surprising still is the transformation which the gospel has effected on the Island of Madagascar. A little more than fifty years ago missionaries of the London Society penetrated through the great forest of Madagascar, on their way to the highland capital of the founder of the Hova dynasty, Radama I. Their efforts met with a speedy reward in numerous conversions. Then persecution drove them from the island, and for more than a generation the infant Malagasy Church was hid from the world, enveloped in the smoke of its fiery trial. Never has the saying proved more true, "The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church," for when, ten years ago, the persecution finally ceased, Christianity was found to be the religion of the land, and the Bible to be the book of the Malagasy race. The promise that the Church shall call the unknown races of the earth is at the present time being fulfilled among the populous jungle tribes of India. The Kols, in Western Bengal, have so zealously received the gospel that within a few years twenty thousand converts have been gathered. Still more recent and equally promising is the movement which bids fair to make the Santhals a Christian race, intrenched in their native jungles, amid the heathen millions of Bengal. Thus far we have seen the speedy results attained among some of the lesser peoples of the earth. THE GERMANS—OUR MISSION.

MR. EDITOR: Of all nations represented in the United States, the Germans are the most pliable, and most readily yield to American usages and views of life. Everywhere away from home, the French are stolidly French. The same is the case with the Spaniards, Italians, Irish, etc. But, in about twenty years after their arrival here all the peculiarly German protuberances of the Germans have been rubbed off, and you find them almost fully Americanized. Of course there are some fossiliferous exceptions, who, like the Chinese, retain their "cue" as long as they live. They will continue to spend their evenings away from their families at the beer-house, talk vociferously, without any one specially listening, against Christianity and its advocates, and denounce all things sacred to the pious heart as pernicious superstition. But, on the whole, the Germans are decidedly cosmopolitan, and readily conform to the habits and customs of the nations with whom they mingle.

The Methodist Church has done much to encourage the speedy conflux of the different national streams into one peculiarly American river. Because of its Anglo-American origin and tendency, you will find that those foreigners who fully embrace Methodism are at the same time more or less nationally changed.

The Southern Methodist Church especially has been aware of this, and has acted in accordance therewith. Our German Missions were not called into life in order to perpetuate Germanism. The German language had to be employed in order to reach those who understood no other, but our design has always been, as soon as our members should be sufficiently Americanized and understand the English language, so as to feel at home in our American Churches, to turn them over to them. If I mistake not, and in case immigration should continue to decrease, it will be necessary, in less than ten years, to have English preaching in most of our German Churches, for awhile at least, once every Sabbath.

This accounts for the comparatively little success of some of our German Missions. They are designed to be nothing more than a "hopper" to the general Church-mill. A considerable proportion of the membership in our American Churches are the fruit of our German missionary operations. Much more could have been accomplished in this respect if our American preachers had deemed it worth while to pay special attention to our German work, and if our Board of Missions had had the means to send German missionaries to every city and town in the Southern States where Germans have settled.

The Northern Methodist Church has not altogether worked on this plan, and I have suffered ill at their hands because I have advocated with pen and speech the submersion of our German Missions into the American work as soon as practicable. The Northern German Methodists are decidedly German, and their leading men seem to do all in their power to establish and perpetuate a German Methodist ecclesiasticism. I suppose their Western Book Concern has stereotype plates for German books amounting to at least $100,000 in value. They clamor for a German Bishop. Their English Sunday-school literature is hardly ever mentioned in their official German organ, much less recommended to be introduced in connection with their German periodicals. In short, they do their best to perpetuate Germanism among them. Hence their herculean efforts to disintegrate and absorb our German Churches in the South. They fear that our German Churches possibly might be lost to their cherished German Methodism.

Will not our American brethren continue to extend aid and comfort to the German missionaries of the Church, South?

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS.

THE forthcoming Minutes will show a net increase of 18,590 members in the M. E. Church, South, for the year 1875, and a total of members and ministers of 731,355. Now, is it unreasonable to ask these seven hundred and thirty-one thousand three hundred and fifty-five to give one hundred thousand dollars to the cause of Foreign Missions? Could the Board, before the Master, and in view of the wants of the world, ask for less? And shall we fail to receive the whole of this small amount?

PLEASE do not destroy this Supplement. It has cost the Secretaries time and labor, and the Board money, to prepare it and send it abroad. It contains much valuable information, and the paper should be filed, or handed round to be read by those who do not take our Church-journals.

THE Conference will soon be here. Preacher, are you ready with all your collections?

FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND.

AT the last May meeting, when the subject of Foreign Missions came up, Dr. Duff said: "There were those present as members of the Assembly, who could remember when the Foreign Mission consisted of a single agent, without a school, without a pupil, male or female, and without a convert. . . . Formerly the British Government frowned upon Missions; they now get from it nearly £7,000 in grants-in-aid. For years education had to be given gratis; books had to be supplied; in India, girls had to be paid for coming; in Africa, boys and girls and their parents had to be bribed with beads and other trinkets, but now the Missions receive between £6,000 and £8,000 in fees. He urged that Missions should find a place in ordinary class-books and works of geography, that a missionary map of the world, representing the different religions and superstitions by distinctive colors, should be hung up in all our Sabbath-schools and week-day schools—ay, and why not behind every pulpit in the land, encircled with the words, 'Go ye into all the world,' etc., that old and young might be taught impressively how small a portion of the world has yet been evangelized. Let us," he said, "arise and resolve to leave no means untried, till it be made to pervade the thoughts, the feelings, the desires, the plans and purposes of all our Church-members; give a hue and complexion of unearthly grandeur to the development of their character; enter into the staple and care of their private, domestic, and public devotions; run like a golden thread through the texture and frame-work of our pulpit ministrations, as it assuredly runs through the texture and frame-work of the Bible itself from Genesis to Revelation; introduce a mellowing, sanctifying, elevating, soul-invigorating element into the discussions and deliberations of our Kirk-sessions, Presbyteries, Synods, and General Assemblies."

The Free Church raised last year £55,790 5s. 11d. for Missions. It has 90 central and branch stations, and 369 Christian Agents in its foreign fields, with a membership in full communion numbering 2,649, and other baptized adherents, 2,025. Since the commencement of its Missions 4,380 persons have been admitted to membership on profession of faith. It has now 7,870 male and 3,351 female scholars, making a total of 11,221 under instruction.

THE COMING PEOPLE.

THE extent and growing importance of the foreign element in our population, and consequently of our home work, says the Missionary Advocate, is but seldom realized. In 1850, out of an entire population of 23,191,876, there were 2,244,602 foreigners. In 1860, of the entire population of 31,443,321, there were 4,138,699 foreigners—nearly double the number of the ten years before. In 1870, our last census, of the entire population of 38,558,371, there were 5,567,229 foreigners—that is to say, in 1870 one person out of every seven was a foreigner. In 1870, out of the whole population of 38,558,371, there were 10,892,015 born of parents of foreign birth—that is to say, more than one fourth of all the people were the children of foreigners.

The relative numbers of these different nationalities, in 1870, were:

Germans	1,761,387
French	122,705
Norwegians	104,219
Swedes	97,327
Hollanders	46,802
Danes	39,107
Bohemians	40,257
Italians	17,157

Chinese, 62,674; now (1876) supposed to be 150,000, chiefly to be found in the Pacific States and Territories.

OPPOSED TO FOREIGN MISSIONS.—The superintendent of a flourishing Sunday-school, a liberal man and a devout Christian, was opposed to Foreign Missions till he heard the sermon on Missions by Brother ———. He yielded the point, and said he would send a contribution from the Sunday-school, and give himself. He is an honest man. Many others of like character need convincing. Show them this Supplement.

THE Japanese Government has abolished the old national holiday, which was every fifth day, and has ordered the observance of the European Sunday as a day of rest. Whatever may have been the motive that led to this remarkable change, it will in many ways be a great help to the missionaries.

MISSIONARY COLLECTIONS.—Where these have not been taken, let there be no further delay; we will need every dollar assessed. No brother can afford to come up deficient.

READER, show this Supplement to your brother over the way, and ask him for a contribution to the cause of Christ in foreign lands.

FROM ITALY.

IN a business letter, Dr. Vernon writes thus: "In general terms, I may say our work is going on nicely. In Rome, at both St. Paul's and in the Military Church, we are making constant progress. During Easter-week five were received into full connection at St. Paul's, and forty in the Military Church. In Naples, too, we are having very gratifying success. Fourteen have recently been received into full connection but little after the close of our first six months there, and there are some sixty-five or more probationers, also good congregations. A plot, instigated by a priest, to maltreat and probably kill Brother Ravi there, was discovered before the first blow was struck by the fifteen rogues confederate, and no harm was done. At Perugia we have begun very well, and have very good prospects. The most learned professor in their university has been converted, and he and his wife have joined us. Another professor or two advise, publicly, their students to attend our services for religious instruction. We have large congregations, for Italy. I have sent Dr. Caporali there. At Florence, also, we are going on prosperously and very hopefully. At Bologna we advance surely and safely, though not very rapidly; and so may I say, also, of Porti. We are becoming well established in each of these places.

"At Milan Brother Mill is working very hard and faithfully, but the city is very material, rationalistic, brilliant, and indifferent to religion, and we do not see great results. Something is, however, being done, but the fruits come slowly. At Ravenna our work has not reached a very large number. A few fair cases, however, of conversion soothe the anxious heart of our faithful preacher. At Bresello the work goes on quietly, with hopeful success."—Miss. Adv.

THE WAR IN BULGARIA.

THE whole district of the American Board of Bulgarian Mission is disturbed, so that the brethren at Constantinople had not been able to get any news of their missionaries for the past few weeks. In our Mission-field the only place that got disturbed till now was a village near Tirnava, but the movement was suppressed, as we hear. Brother Lounsbury has not yet left for this, his new field. Although fear and anxiety is upon the mind of almost everybody, even in our field, yet, thank God, until to-day no disturbance has taken place in any of the places where we have appointments. As we do not know what may happen in the next hour, all our brethren have to be very careful of what they say, especially our native brethren.

The movement at Constantinople, as you will have seen from the Levant Herald, has evidently some extraordinary man somehow connected with it; who it is no one knows. The victory of the "Softas" is the first one in the history of Turkey; and I am fully convinced that, having gained so much, they will not stop here. Great things may be looked for in a short time, and of an altogether different character from what Europe expected. We trust that God will direct all and every thing to the glory of his name and the advancement of his kingdom in this land.—Miss. Adv.

THE LORD'S POCKET-BOOK.

"Whose pocket-book is that which you carry?" said a friend to a business man, as he drew a well-filled wallet from his pocket.

"Why, my own, of course. Whose else could it be?" was the prompt reply.

"To whom the pocket-book belongs depends on another question. If you belong to the Lord, I guess the purse is his also."

"Well," said the man, thoughtfully, "I hope I do belong to the Lord, but your remark throws a new light on this subject. It never impressed me before, as it does just now, that I am to carry and use this pocket-book, 'My pocket-book,' as my Lord directs. I must think this matter out, for I confess honestly I never have looked at it in the light in which you place it."—The Christian Giver.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

BROTHER K., of W. Station, Tennessee Conference, says, having failed to secure the services of the Secretary, he went to work and has raised and will collect considerably over his assessment for the cause of Missions. He tells us how it was done. "First," he says, "I prayed for it. 2. I preached for it. 3. I talked for it. 4. I expected it and asked for it. Lastly, I got it." Reader, try this plan.

"A PENNY A WEEK AND A SHILLING A QUARTER."—This old Wesleyan maxim has wrought wonders for the missionary cause in England. It will work wonders here. Two cents a week and a dollar a year must be our motto. We must provide systematically for the frequent collection of small sums. This was recommended by the committee at General Conference.—Miss. Adv.

HOW TO DO GOOD.

DR. JOHNSON wisely said, "He who waits to do a great deal of good at once, will never do any thing." Life is made up of little things. It is but once in an age that occasion is offered for doing a great deed. True greatness consists in being great in little things. How are railroads built? By one shovelful of dirt after another; one shovelful at a time. Thus drops make the ocean. Hence we should be willing to do a little good at a time, and never "wait to do a great deal of good at once." If we would do much good in the world, we must be willing to do good in little things, little acts, one after another; speaking a word here, giving a tract there, and setting a good example all the time; we must do the first thing we can, and the next, and then the next, and so keep on doing good. This is the way to accomplish any thing. Thus only shall we do all the good in our power.—O. S. Presbyterian.

THE DIFFERENCE.

AT the District Conference the other week, Brother A. reported that all his collections for Missions, foreign and domestic, had been lifted; he had taken the Bishops' collection, and had his Widows' and Orphans' Fund provided for.

"How was it done, Brother A.?"

"I began in time, and never ceased till all was done."

Brother B. reported that as yet he had done very little, owing to the "hard times," but he hoped to come up all right at Conference. Their circuits lie side by side. See the difference.

Brother C. No collections for Missions; no collections for the Conference, one dollar for the Bishops; but our Sunday-school in my charge don't take our Church-literature; two Advocates taken in our bounds.

Comment unnecessary.

IT is the treaty lately concluded between Russia and Japan, by which Saghalien was ceded to the former and the Kurile Islands to the latter country, it was stipulated that the Russians and others in the Kurile Islands should enjoy complete religious liberty after having become the subjects of Japan. It is thought that this treaty provision will be the entering wedge for larger liberty of conscience throughout Japan, and that ere long the government will legally tolerate the Christianity which it now tacitly permits.

SAD, BUT TRUE.—Dr. Yates, of Shanghai, in a recent address let fall an observation which is verified the world over. Residents at Mission-stations, and visitors to them, inflict severe wounds by want of sympathy with the missionaries and their work. The Doctor complained of the coldness of European and American residents in regard to Mission-work. He said, that during the thirty years in which he had labored in Shanghai no foreigner had ever called on him to inquire after the welfare of his native work.

LIVINGSTONE'S explorations are already bearing fruit. The Presbyterians in Scotland have established a Mission on Lake Nyassa; the English Church Missionary Society purposes to occupy the Victoria Nyanza, and now the London Missionary Society, Dr. Mullens, Secretary, is moving to fix a Mission at Ujiji and Lake Tanganika. Mr. Arttington, of Leeds, offers $25,000 toward purchasing a steamer for the Mission on the Lake.

THE Rhenish Missionary Society is engaged in the following fields: Cape Colony, Namaqua, and Herero Land, in Africa; Borneo, Sumatra, with Nias, in the Indian Archipelago, and China. It employs sixty-one missionaries, and has eighteen thousand four hundred baptized adherents.

THE Misses Woolston, under date of July 3d, say: "Our school in Foo Chow is prospering, so are all of our day-schools, one excepted." They report all the missionaries well except Mrs. Edgell, whose poor health has threatened to necessitate the return to this country of herself and husband.

"How many members in your charge pay nothing to the support of the gospel, or to the cause of Missions?" To this question the answer was, "Two-thirds pay nothing." To such let a sermon be preached on the text: "To do good and communicate forget not."

THE Conference is near at hand. Reader, have you paid your missionary money?

PHILADELPHIA, August, 1876.

WOMEN WANTED.

Mrs. Lambuth, from our Mission at Shanghai, China, is earnestly desirous of an immediate addition to our Mission there, of a highly-educated Christian woman, young enough to be able to learn the language with facility, yet fixed in her purpose of devoting her life to Christ as an unmarried woman.

Brothers Newman and Ransom both desire us, at an early day, to send two such young women to teach in a school which they desire to have established in Brazil. For more than forty years single women in schools, in Mission fields, have been found both an economical and powerful means of propagating the gospel. Not only from the North, but from the South, these godly women have gone forth to their labor, and from these fields have entered into their reward. Our Church has not, as yet, availed itself of this agency, but the time has come when, in our providential work, this agency is called for. The Board is in possession neither of the women nor of the funds. The object of this paragraph is to suggest to godly women, in the Church, that they take this work immediately in hand. There are two methods of operation: Organize Women Societies, secure a pledge of the necessary funds, and report to us. When a number of such reports have reached us—sufficient to guarantee the support of the missionary—we shall be able to find the right person to go. Or, if there should be a heart already on fire with missionary zeal, ready to go, we are now ready to consider her shitedness to the work. When she is accepted, she may be able, by correspondence or otherwise, to do much toward organizing Women's Societies for her own support. Many applicants may be disappointed, for the utmost care must govern our movements in this direction. We ask the women of our beloved Church to take this subject under prayerful consideration, and let us have prompt and persistent action. The late Mrs. Susan B. Thomas, a saintly octogenarian, a woman of high intellectual endowments, was deeply interested in this work; she had for years supported a girl in Mrs. Lambuth's school, in China—and the number of such women is, we hope, on the increase in our Church. We replace what more we had purposed to say by an article from the pen of the Rev. E. R. Hendrix.

WHAT THE WOMEN ARE DOING FOR MISSIONS.

A letter comes to us from the Secretary of the Woman's Bible Mission, of Nashville, Tenn., requesting that, while in heathen countries, we note and communicate the character and results of the labors of female missionaries, giving such facts and statistics as will be encouraging and inspiring to our women's Societies at home. The letter continues: "Our Southern women ought to be as efficient workers as those of the North, but they are not posted on these points. They will not read the able missionary reports of either their own or other Churches; but interesting facts constantly recurring on a long tour, and written to Secretaries of Societies, and read by them in their meetings, will excite attention and awaken interest. Our beloved M. E. Church, South, seems scarcely yet awakened to the importance and effectiveness of this branch of Mission work.

"The Society in Nashville, though yet in its infancy, organized but little over two years ago, has contributed over $1,400, and has now over $300 in the treasury."

It will be a great pleasure to comply with this request. In the meantime let us see what is being done for Missions by the women at home. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, for the year ending May, 1873, contributed for the support of missionaries sent out by them, $51,920 32. At that time their missionaries were confined to India, China, and Mexico. In 1875 they had twenty-three missionaries in foreign lands, distributed as follows: Nine in India, eight in China, three in Mexico, two in South America, and one in Japan. Their contributions have, of course, increased in the same proportion, and we greatly regret having no later figures. Thus it will be seen that the amount raised by the women of the M. E. Church exceeds the entire amount raised last year by the whole M. E. Church, South, which, including bequests and all, amounted to only $81,674 11.

We may learn also from their methods. The Society has seven branches—the New England, New York, Northwestern, St. Louis, Central, Cincinnati, and Baltimore; and each branch, with its distinct organization, has specific missionary work of its own, supporting some one or more missionaries, employing Bible-women, erecting school houses, or orphanages, or hospitals. A very heavy work is divided between two or more branches, and an executive committee of the General Society, deciding all doubtful questions, prevents any conflict in their work. Moreover, each branch becomes responsible, at the beginning of each fiscal year, for a certain amount of money, appropriated for that year for special objects. They have, besides, a home treasurer, one in every district in heathen lands where they operate, and thus secure the satisfactory disbursement of their funds.

The Baptists, also—whose great success in missionary fields is largely owing to the fact that each Association is responsible for the support of one or more missionaries, and is thus brought into immediate sympathy with the work—have learned the lesson of enlisting the women in the work of sending out and supporting missionaries of their own. In South Carolina alone the Baptists have sixty-eight female missionary Societies engaged in some special foreign missionary work.

Brother Lambuth recently made an earnest appeal for female missionaries for China. There is the same need for women there to direct the labors of the native Bible-women, and to teach them in the schools, that there is for men to direct the work of the native preachers and to preach. The wives of our missionaries do nobly, but the work is too great for them alone. What is needed is single women who will devote their life to this work. The twenty-three sent out by the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church are all single. Their rule is, "The age of the candidate should not exceed thirty, or be under twenty-two, and she must declare her intention to give at least five years of continuous work as a single woman to the Mission-work assigned her, unless prevented by ill-health." As it is, they have more applicants than they can employ. Who will respond to Brother Lambuth's call? What charges in Missouri will organize women's missionary societies and become responsible for their support? Already there are such societies in Nashville, Baltimore, St. Joseph, and Arkansas, which employ three Bible-women in China, and are educating seven Chinese girls. But there is a work to be done among the women of China, something like the Zenana work in India, that can only be done by Christian women. Would that our Church could be represented there by such laborers.

As we write we are reminded of a noble woman in the wilds of Africa, the widowed daughter of an eminent physician, Dr. Millard Parker, of New York. When her husband and child fell by disease she refused her father's invitation to return to a home of wealth and luxury, declaring her intention to devote her life to the work for which her husband had sacrificed his. There, loved and respected by the natives, she labors cheerfully and successfully for Christ. Her example is an inspiration to the whole Presbyterian Church. We need yet more of the inspiration of woman's devotion in our own Church. Female volunteers for work in China would kindle and spread the missionary fire, not among the women only, but the whole Church.

E. R. H.

WOMAN'S FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The General Executive Committee of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society met in the Metropolitan Church, Washington, D. C., May 10. Mrs. Dr. Hibbard, of Clifton Springs, N. Y., was elected President, and Mrs. Dr. Warren, of Boston, Secretary, with Mrs A. T. Gracey, of Clifton Springs, and Mrs. Gov. C. A. L. Beveridge, of Illinois, Assistant Secretaries.

According to an able report, read by Mrs. Dr. Warren at the anniversary meeting of the Society, there are now 1,952 auxiliary societies, with an annual membership of 50,000, and a permanent membership of 1,746 honorary patrons, managers, and life-members. The amount collected in the several branches, during the past year, is $76,787 72, of which:

New England Branch raised	$13,838 93
New York	15,066 39
North-western	10,412 03
Western	6,518 46
Cincinnati	12,143 71
Philadelphia	6,635 32
Baltimore	6,182 88

This Society employs, in foreign fields, twenty-one women missionaries; six of these are in India, two as physicians and four as teachers; nine are in China, three of whom are physicians and six as teachers; three are in Mexico as teachers; two in South America and one in Japan, as teachers. Three of the whole number were sent out during the past year: Miss Campbell, to Peking, Miss Ogden, to Mexico; Miss Green, M D, to India, to relieve Miss Swain, M D.—the first medical woman ever sent from a Christian land to Asia. This Society supports 120 day-schools, 126 native teachers and assistants, two orphanages in India, one in Mexico, and boarding schools in Lucknow, Moradabad, Foochow, Peking, Kiukiang, and Japan.

A large number of distinguished visitors have been in attendance from time to time: among these were the Rev. Mr. Ohlinger, of our Mission in China, and the Rev. Mr. Ritchie, Mission of English Presbyterian Church, in Formosa, Japan.

The next meeting of this committee is to be held within the bounds of the Western Branch of the Society. The appropriations for the next year reach an aggregate of $83,000.

N. E.	$11,500 00
New York	11,471 40
Philadelphia	7,557 60
Cincinnati	16,629 80
South west	19,107 60
Western	7,802 40
Baltimore	5,937 00
	$83,119 20

Miss Howard, M.D., and Miss Blake, M. D., and Miss Swaney, of the Mount Vernon Seminary, Washington, D. C., were accepted to be assigned to foreign fields. Several others were conditionally accepted.—Northern C. Adv.

OUR BIBLE-WOMEN IN CHINA.

Some interesting facts are culled from a letter written by Mrs. J. W. Lambuth, our missionary in Shanghai, China, to the President of the Woman's Bible Mission of Nashville. She writes as follows:

"The attendance upon preaching and prayer-meetings, as well as Sunday-schools, is greatly increased. We cannot help feeling that more seed than formerly is being sown, and in the future there must come a great harvest for the Master.

"I often wish that you might see and hear your Bible-woman. There are so many little incidents connected with her every-day life that would interest you, and which for want of time must remain untold. Here is one: On last Sabbath morning she came in from her home to attend Sunday-school; and being quite warm, took off some of her outside jackets, and hung them up in the girl's kitchen, thinking them safe there. When preaching was over she went to get them, when, behold! not one was left. Some thief had slipped in and stolen them all, together with a good umbrella belonging to another Bible-woman. The good old lady did not become angry, but said, very quietly, 'It certainly is not convenient to have my clothes stolen in that way. If they had asked me for them I would certainly have loaned, or given a part of what I had. I shall pray God to show the thief his or her sin, and help them to become good.' A few tears were shed, but, as I remarked, no words of anger escaped her lips. I could not help from saying to myself, 'Surely this is a lesson for Christians even;' and so I promised that some at least of the garments should be made good to her.

"On yesterday there was a terrible wind blowing, and perfect sheets of rain falling. In the midst of it all the old lady's fence around her home was in great danger of falling to the ground. She called a man to come with ropes and tie it up; and as often as the wind lulled a little, she was out talking to the workman, trying to lead his mind toward the Heavenly Father, who overrules all things for good, and who would keep them from harm. She has been in just now, and says she could not sleep last night, but prayed God to have mercy upon all around her, and that to-day the sun shines, and all nature seems rejoicing under the love of God.

"On yesterday morning we had a very pleasant Sunday-school in the Christmas Chapel. There must have been seventy-five persons present; and what, with the newly translated hymns and lessons from 'Our Little People,' and various questions suggested to our minds, and the recitations of the children, I do not know that I ever enjoyed a Chinese Sunday-school so much.

"The congregation at 11 o'clock was a good one, too, and we all enjoyed the service. I played the harmonium at Sunday-school, and will do so at Church hereafter. At 3 o'clock Willie and I went to English Sunday-school, and at 5 I find another Chinese class to hear. Preaching again at 7 o'clock. The woman's prayer-meeting comes off this P. M., and if you were here how much you would enjoy it!"

May Heaven's richest blessings crown the efforts of these patient toilers in a far-off land!

WHO WILL HELP?

To answer a great many letters we give the following schedule of what is needed to support workers in the various Mission fields: A single missionary in China, $750; in Mexico or Brazil, $500; a native preacher or teacher in China, $100; a Bible-woman, $60; a boy or girl in either of our boarding-schools in China, $50; in Mexico a native preacher or teachers from $30 to $50 per month. In case a Conference, or District, Sunday-school, or individual, undertakes the support of either of the above-mentioned parties, reports are sent directly to them. Seventeen Sunday-schools and individuals are now supporting as many different pupils in our Chinese schools. We can establish additional day-schools at any desirable points at an expense of $100.

The Rev. J. L. Futrell, of the North Mississippi Conference, says: "I think, too, the missionary spirit is better in my charge. The Sunday-school is now organized into a Missionary Society, and though only working since February, we have collected twelve or fifteen times as much as was collected from the Church last year. I tell you what we need—at least one thing—is system. In our school the children are taking a good interest, and are doing much."

Rise early, plow deep, while sluggards sleep,
And you will have corn to sell and to keep.

So with industrious preachers who rise soon and go early to work, and cultivate well; they will be fed themselves and have food to sustain others.

Secretaries Dashiel and Reid, of the M. E. Church, reported, at the last monthly meeting of the Board, some four or five legacies of the value respectively of $400 to $15,000, and in one case possibly $25,000.

THREESCORE-AND-TEN TO THE CHILDREN.

THE TESTIMONY OF ONE FROM THE MOUNTAINS OF EAST TENNESSEE ON THE MISSIONARY FEELING.

When a little girl, missionary pamphlets came from the North monthly to my father's house. All that my childish mind could take in was drawn from those old well-remembered blue and green-backed Heralds, telling of missionaries in foreign heathen lands, discoursing of Jesus and his salvation. We often lodged the missionaries on their way to the Cherokee Indians, not far from the Tennessee river. Kingsbury, a reel-footed man—Presbyterian preacher, and superintendent of the Mission—was often a welcome guest in our family. The charm of the man was the fact that he was a missionary to the heathen. My father was one of the commissioners appointed to visit, and report the success of the schools. When I was a very little girl I recollect his family talks of the little Indian children singing so sweetly the songs of Zion, and of his writing home to my mother to tell his little daughter how he had been troubled in a dream about her. I married the next thing to a missionary—an itinerant preacher—who encouraged the innate feeling of my soul by supplying me with the Church-literature of the day. The New York Christian Advocate often contained items of thrilling interest. The language of Cox, "Let a thousand fall before Africa shall be given up," is never to be forgotten. Who planted this impulse in my nature? Who has guided my course to deepen and widen this tendency deposited in this "earthen vessel" until I have been linked to the great missionary work of the Church by ties and ways I never could have conjectured? and though changes, storms, and clouds of bereavement have left me almost alone at threescore-and-ten, the missionary fire burns brightly, and I feel that pity for the poor heathen and sympathy for the missionary who leaves home and friends is not enough labor in the great cause for which the Master laid down his own life. "Little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth."

"OUR CHILDREN."

The above is the title of Dr. Haygood's book. We are ashamed to say that we have not read it. We intend to do so the first day we have less than ten imperative matters pressing so closely on us as to burn by an hour's delay. We are more especially determined to read it after once hearing our mother say to several young mothers to whom she was commending the work, after careful reading herself, "I regret that I could not have had such a book when I was a young mother." We felt the reproof, and as our custom is, to like to go where we get reproof, so shall be sure to read this book. But what we intended when we wrote our heading was to say to the children that there are still large fields for them to fill in our missionary work. Mrs. Lambuth is deeply exercised in reference to a new house on an enlarged scale to take the place of the old orphan and girls' school. Cannot the children of our Sunday-schools make a Christmas-offering of $1,000 for this end? She has in hand, from a private source, nearly this amount, and if the children can add the other thousand she can purchase a new lot and build an ample house. The present house is cramped, and the lot on which it was built is getting to be overcrowded—having on it Brother Lambuth's residence, our Christmas chapel, a preacher's lodge, a room for the Bible-reader, and the Orphanage, while the whole lot is less than one-fourth of an acre. We will open a column in the Advocate for names of contributors. Who will be the first? These Orphanages have been blessed of God in all modern missionary enterprises. They are relied upon by the oldest and most successful missionaries; while in Mrs. Lambuth, wife of our Superintendent in China, we are providentially possessed of a woman admirably adapted to carry forward this branch of our work.

GENERAL STATISTICS OF PROTESTANT MISSION-WORK IN INDIA.

Every decade statistics of all Missions in India, Ceylon, and Burmah, are collected. The last were to the end of 1871. Some of these items are close approximations to present facts. The Missionary Agency of India can here be seen at a glance:

We quote from that excellent work entitled "Missionary Life in India," by the Rev. T. J. Scott, D.D., the following tabulated statement:

Population of India, according to last census	300,000,000
Languages spoken	21
Missionary Societies at work	35
Missionaries employed	600
Native ordained preachers	381
Native lay preachers	2,528
Native pupils in schools	143,192
Of these, girls and young women	26,911
Female Missionary Societies at work	4
Mission presses	25
Bible Societies	8
Tract Societies	11
Native Christian communicants	85,000
Native Christian population	330,000
Increase in ten years, 61 per cent.

At this rate, the Protestant native Christian population of India, in one hundred and thirty years, will be one hundred and thirty-eight millions!—Northern C. Adv.

THE RELIGION OF THE KAF...

The religion of the Kaffers, says Christian Advocate, like that of all varieties of the "noble savage," is ing more than a vile superstition, panied by customs of a most de character. By this religion wom degraded to the lowest level, and among beasts of burden and the ch of her master. Polygamy, of co universally allowed, and under the tem of purchase which prevails number of wives bears proportion to wealth of the husband. Concubin permitted, and no idea of virtue purity is allowed to exist. Witch is the great leading feature of the religion, and "witch-doctors" are priests. In those places where B influence does not exist, a system ularly carried out by means of men with property are sacrificed to rapacity of the chiefs. A witch-d "smells out" some person who caused, or is causing, sickness or evil. Cruel tortures, followed by are immediately applied to the unfo nate victim, and his wives and taken from him. This is an every occurrence among the Kaffers, and gent representations are frequently to British colonial authorities upon subject. The Kaffers believe in a preme Being, but most of their rites connected with the worship of their ceased ancestors, whose ghosts they deavor to propitiate. A Spiritual the nineteenth century holds a something similar, and to doubt fraternize with these savages on same "religious platform."

Christianity has made no realing sion upon them, although the great telligence and aptitude for rea of the people has been proved at two well-conducted industrial ins tions. To use the words of an the Government, who spent many among them: "The gospel has preached to them for the last fifty and some attempts have been toward civilizing them; but the Ka nationally considered, remain they were; no visible difference discerned. They are as perfect then now as they were in the Vanderkemp, one of the first mi aries, 1798, and so they ever will tinue so long as their political ment continues to exist in its pagan form." This extract the fact which Sir George Grey ly recognized, and of which the ments of the colonies and the South Africa must be well aware, unless the power of the witch-d destroyed, neither can civilization gress, security be secured, nor Chr ity prosper. The one great stirring up strife, fomenting war binding the people to their cruel famous religion, is the superstit liet in the powers and influence priests, commonly known as witc tors. Physically, the Kaffer ran particularly fine—stalwart, well-form manly, and brave. They are also in ligent, and there are now in and on borders of the colony a number of Ch tians among them.

Our Border Work.—We hear expressed sometimes as to the success of the M. E. Church, So the Western border. To those with the movements of the Chur those regions there is no doubt a See how a correspondent of the Christian Advocate writes about the citic Conference: "The Church in fornia was never in so good a sta day. The dark days are past. Church is becoming more and more manent. We have from the begin had a good hold—the lead in fact the rural districts; now we are be established, with a few exceptions, in centers of population and commer activity. In church and parsonage-b ing the Church has made most won ful advance within a very few yea doubt if there is a Conference in Connection which, in proportion to bership, has so many and so chutches and parsonages as the P San Francisco, after long depressi times almost hopeless, is fairly the woods.' A splendid church eligibly located, growing congre and membership well pastured, debt, thanks to the Missionary with every indication of continued increasing prosperity. Our college good condition, our paper is rapidly think, 'for the chance.' Our circu is necessarily limited, but far more it should be. But hitherto the hath helped us, and the needed will come to all; our interests will good providence, be sustained."

MEXICO.

We have been expecting since first of the month a letter from the A. H. Sutherland, Superintendent o Mexican Border work; but we that we shall have to go to press out it. This we regret, as this has of late been the richest in fr all our missionary fields.

The Wesleyans have, in South A 15,886 Church-members, and scholars. In West Africa they 10,849 Church-members and 8,0... ars.

THE WAY IS LONG.

The way is long and dreary,
The path is bleak and bare;
Our feet are worn and weary,
But we will not despair.
More heavy was thy burden,
More desolate thy way,
Oh, Lamb of God, who takest
The sins of the world away:
Have mercy on us!

The snows lie thick around us,
In the dark and gloomy night,
And the tempest wails above us,
And the stars have hid their light:
But blacker was the darkness
Round Calvary's cross that day.
Oh, Lamb of God, that takest
The sins of the world away,
Have mercy on us!

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 6.—The Democratic Convention nominated Richard D. Hubbard for Governor, and Francis D. Loomis for Lieutenant Governor.

WORCESTER, Sept. 6.—The Democratic convention assembled to-day. Hon. Wirt Warren was elected permanent chairman, and committees appointed.

Mr. Warren spoke of the necessity of reform and peace throughout the country. The Republicans were endeavoring to create a strife between whites and blacks for party ends. He spoke of Tilden as the chief practical reformer in the country, and the long needed leader of the Democracy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—The last rail of that portion of the Southern Pacific Railroad connecting this city with Los Angeles was laid this afternoon at Carlg's Station, 42 miles from Los Angeles, in the presence of a large concourse of people. Charles Crocker, president of the Southern Pacific Company, completed the work by driving a golden spike with a silver hammer, presented by the citizens of Los Angeles.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the party continued their journey to Los Angeles, where they were entertained by the city this evening. The road is now completed to within 30 miles of Colorado river, which will probably be reached before the close of the year.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A Paris dispatch says that information has been received from a reliable source that the troops, with their commander, Muhammed Pasha, have been massacred in Abyssinia. The Abyssinians afterwards proceeded to Massarwa, which they seized. The garrison and government officers escaped on board some ships which happened to be in port, and arrived safely in Suez. The Egyptian government is contemplating revenge, and sending more troops to the scene of action. Cavalry and artillery were also being reorganized.

CHARLESTON, Sept. 7.—A serious affair occurred late last night, growing out of a street attack by the colored Republicans upon some colored men who have been taking an conspicuous part in the Democratic canvass. A small body of whites endeavored to defend the Democratic negroes, but were overpowered by the numbers of the rioters. After a severe fight, in which pistols were freely used on both sides, the rioters held King street, the main thoroughfare, from midnight until sunrise, breaking windows, robbing stores, and attacking and beating indiscriminately every white man who showed his face. A large number of persons were injured, mostly whites. Several of those shot in a critical condition. Intense excitement prevails, the general feeling being that the trouble is not yet over.

The riotous proceedings of the rice strikers on the Combahee have caused a renewal. The situation is regarded as serious.

CHARLESTON, Sept. 7.—The city has been in a ferment all day. The News and Courier, in summing up the facts of the riot of last night, says:

"A bloody and disgraceful riot broke out in the upper portion of King street last night, and for several hours great excitement and alarm throughout the city. The affair was the result of the determination of a gang of ruffians, calling themselves [illegible] to wreak vengeance [illegible] men of their own color [illegible] joined to publicly affiliate with the Democratic party. The riot began by a comparatively small body of rioters, but quickly assumed formidable dimensions. Idle and excited colored men and boys from all quarters hurried to the scene of the disturbance, swelling the crowd and increasing the tumult, and the main thoroughfare of Charleston was for more than two hours in full possession of a noisy and howling mob of negroes, cursing the whites and savagely attacking and beating every white man who happened to be on the streets. Captain Endricks with a squad of thirty of the city police finally succeeded by persistent efforts in dispersing the rioters, but not till a long list of bloody casualties had occurred. Some of them are serious and perhaps fatal in character. All accounts agree that the police under the command of the intrepid chief did their duty with determined gallantry, but they were altogether too few to cope with the mob as promptly and effectively as the case required.

The issue is now squarely presented to the citizens, whether or not Charleston is to be left at the mercy of a mob of ignorant negroes when their vicious leaders may give the signal for a riot. To-day there has been a deep and general feeling among the whites that a repetition of the disturbance such as that of last night must at all hazards be prevented, and the military organizations and State arms are exclusively in the hands of the blacks.

The work of private organization for defense has been going on to-day. By noon to-day it was impossible to purchase a revolver in the city, the stock being exhausted.

It was the settled resolve of the whites that the colored Democrats should have another meeting to-night, and if they were again molested by the mob, the rioters should not again be victorious.

The Republican negroes, however, were elated at their success, and made no secret of their intention to attack the Democratic negroes, and all night long there seemed to be every probability of a serious conflict. The colored Democratic meeting was held at Hibernian Hall, under protection of about 1000 armed whites. No attempt at a disturbance was made, the colored Republicans confining their demonstrations to roaming the streets in turbulent crowds, firing pistols and muskets.

At this hour—11:30—there has been no serious collision, though armed crowds of blacks and whites are gathered at various points and the city continues in a very excited condition.

Buckner, one of the whites wounded last night, died this evening.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 8.—The State Legislature and Senate is almost entirely Democratic.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—At a large meeting held in Rochedale last night, to protest against the Turkish atrocities, a letter from Mr. John Bright was read. Mr. Bright says: "It is now understood throughout the world that England is the main if not the one supporter of the Turkish rule in Europe; had it acted with Russia and the other powers, it is almost certain that the Servian war would not have occurred; but for the confidence caused by the support of England the Turks would not have dared to commit the horrid crimes of which they have been guilty in Bulgaria. These crimes are not new. What is new is that England cannot see the crimes until a newspaper describes them, and an English minister treats them of small account as common incidents of war. England should clear itself of all partnership in the interests and policy of Turkey. It is a partnership unnecessary to our interest, and degrades us in the estimation of every Christian nation."

MADRID, Sept. 8.—A Cabinet Council decided to notify the provincial authorities that while the constitution forbids manifestations offensive to the Catholic religion, proper respect and inviolability of Protestant churches and cemeteries must be enforced.

An official telegram, received here, announces that Teville Anteline, an American, who kidnapped several American children, has been arrested at Montevaldre, and placed at the disposition of the Washington Government, which had demanded his extradition.

A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company, from Madrid, says: "William M. Tweed and his cousin, William Hunt, have been arrested in the port of Vigo, on board the Spanish merchantman Carmen. Tweed was traveling under the name of Secor. Both prisoners have been lodged in the fortress at Vigo.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 6.—General Diaz continues in the city of Oaxaca, and is afraid to leave it to organize troops lest the citizens pronounce against him in his absence. He was disappointed in his expectation that the mountaineers would rise and join him.

The Government forces are preparing to march on Oaxaca. The government forces continue to defeat small parties of revolutionists, but no decisive action has occurred.

General Cortina is reported sick, but his men are active. They recently captured a train of wagons, with merchandise, and demand a large ransom for it.

The American congressional border bill is approved by the Mexican press, which is thankful that there will be no invasion of Mexican territory.

Two Mexican war ships have been sent, one to Tampico and the other to the mouth of the Rio Grande.

It has been reported that General Mejia would assume the attitude in opposition to President Lerdo, but he has declared that if Congress affirms the re-election of Lerdo his sense of duty will require him to sustain the declaration, notwithstanding any action of the Supreme Court. Mejia's decision has caused a great reaction in political circles, and has broken up the so-called Mejia combination. Under this phase of affairs Lerdo's further rule is certain, and the revolution is a failure; General Escobedo has arrived at the capital.

From the Work.

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT, LOUISIANA ANNUAL CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The District Conference for this district convened at Red River church on Thursday, the twenty-seventh of July. The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. J. B. Cassidy, preacher in charge of Caddo circuit. There being no Bishop present, our beloved presiding elder, Bro. Joel T. Daves, organized the Conference with religious service. The business of the Conference was conducted by him with searching thoroughness, and no important interest of the church was neglected. The attendance of the preachers and lay delegates was small. The congregations were generally good, not only at the preaching, but during the sessions of the Conference.

The chair appointed committees on the various interests of the church to be considered by the Conference. On Saturday the various committees presented their reports, and then important interests of the church passed in review. The report on the general state of the church, in the aggregate, was good, yet room for great improvement. The report on missions was very discouraging indeed; but little has been done as yet in the way of taking up collections. The report on temperance was encouraging. The preachers and many of the members are doing all in their power to arrest the progress of the evil, and, aided by well organized temperance societies in the district, it is hoped that success may crown their efforts. The report on churches and parsonages. Some features of this report are very favorable and others unfavorable, and complaints are made in regard to the negligence of trustees in procuring titles to church property. This neglect often gives trouble and expense. The report on finance exhibited the amounts allowed by the boards of stewards for the support of the preachers and their families, and ranged from $300 to $1,000; also the receipts up to date, which amounts to about one-third of the allowance upon the whole; the financial condition of some of the circuits is hopeful, and the full amounts allowed to the preachers will be paid; in others the financial condition is simply deplorable, yet the preachers appear hopeful, and their motto is onward and upward. There is great complaint of hard times. No doubt money is really scarce and difficult to command. A number of the members and friends pay about what they feel able to pay for the support of the institutions of the church and the ministry, and yet it is not enough. Some of our preachers are embarrassed and hindered in their ministerial work, to a greater or less degree, and some of them, we fear, will be forced, by sheer necessity, to abandon their fields of labor, and turn their attention to secular employment for support for themselves and families. There is evidently a wrong existing somewhere. Bro. Pipes, chairman of the committee on education, made his report, and it was the unanimous wish of the Conference for the same to be published, as a whole, in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. The committee on books and periodicals made their report, and in this report the interest of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE was not overlooked.

Mansfield was selected as the place for holding the next District Conference. The election for delegates to the next session of the Louisiana Annual Conference resulted in the election of the following brethren: William D. Slayton, local elder, B. F. Spearman, William H. Prather, and James Ford. Alternates—J. B. Cassidy, local elder, C. W. Arnold, and R. Franklin. From the beginning to the close of the meeting prominence was given to preaching, prayer meetings, love-feast, and the administration of the sacraments. The Conference finished its work late on Saturday evening; its daily sessions were well attended by the intelligent citizens of the pleasant community in which it met, and well they deserve the unanimous resolution tendering to them the thanks of the Conference for the liberal, kind, and hospitable manner in which they entertained the Conference; dinner and supper on the ground each day, in full supply, for all present, and good enough for kings and queens.

On Sunday morning at ten o'clock our annual experience meeting was of unusual interest; the brethren spoke freely and feelingly of the goodness of God to them, and the fond hopes and bright prospects which they were able to cherish. At eleven o'clock the congregation was large, attentive, and serious, and at the close of the sermon all Christians came forward and received the holy communion, and were happy in a Savior's love. The meeting closed on Sunday night, in a fine state of feeling.

JAMES FORD,
Secretary of Conference.

AUGUST 5, 1876.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: There have been some very interesting meetings in this district, which have resulted in a large number of conversions, and quite an accession to our church. In April and May a meeting was held in Brookhaven, which resulted in the revival of the church, the conversion of over twenty-five souls, and an accession of fourteen to the church.

The camp meeting at Crystal Springs, August 2-10, resulted in the conversion of one hundred or more souls, the reclamation of many others, the healing of wounds, the reconciliation of those who had had differences, and the revival of the church very greatly over a wide extent of country. The amount of good done cannot be estimated this side of the great day.

The camp meeting at Providence, fifteen miles east of Hazlehurst, held August 30 to September 5, was one of unusual power and interest. About one hundred souls converted, many backsliders reclaimed, and the membership greatly revived. There were remarkable awakenings and conversions. Last October, after a short notice, a meeting was held on that ground where more than forty years ago camp meetings were held without a shed. This year a new and commodious shed was there for the accommodation and comfort of the people. Some eighteen framed tents were occupied and well filled. The tents are very comfortable. Besides those in these framed tents, a number of families—perhaps a dozen—came in their wagons with provisions, and under temporary coverings for the nights, and enjoyed the meeting for two or three days. Numbers in those families were converted. I believe the Providence camp will do a great deal of good. It will be the meeting for the people living east of the railroad. The people from Crystal Springs, Hazlehurst, Beauregard, Monticello, and Westville might all have tents there. I would not be surprised if there are fifty tents there next year. Come up, doctor, and take a little country airing. Come and see this beautiful place, and the ground where Elijah Steel preached his first sermon.

There have been meetings of interest and success, crowned with many conversions, on Brandywine, Springridge, Scotland, Providence, and Bayou Pierre circuits. The number of conversions in all the meetings I am not prepared to give, as I have not heard the result of each—say three hundred and fifty.

Centennial Notes. No. 3.

THE GROUNDS AND MAIN BUILDING.

MR. EDITOR: The Centennial grounds are situated on the western side of the Schuylkill river, just on the edge of the city. The site is most eligible for beauty, for plentiful supply of water, and for acceptability. That portion of the park belonging to the exhibition comprises more than four hundred acres, the whole of which, not occupied by buildings and flower yards, is set with blue grass, shaded with trees, and abundantly supplied with springs of clear, cold water. There are ten bridges across the Schuylkill, all of which are now being utilized to convey passengers to the Centennial, and the river itself is full of boats of all sizes, running to and from the grounds. You can reach the grounds in one hour, and at a cost of not more than ten cents, from any point within a distance of six miles, by the boat or street or steam car. The price of admission is fifty cents in precise change, and on Saturdays, by recent arrangement, twenty-five cents. Refreshments can be had in all the buildings, and anywhere on the grounds, at moderate rates—say fifty cents for a good meal; and visitors are allowed to carry and eat their own lunch anywhere. The New York papers state to the contrary, but it is false. Seats and water stands and saloons, for rest and washing and comfort, etc., all free of charge, are scattered at convenient places in every building. The police are stationed at every turn, and are prompt and polite in their attentions. There is no confusion, no crowding, no danger of being hurt or robbed or getting lost. All is order, and with seventy thousand visitors there is no trouble in getting about comfortably. The difference of tastes, or suggestions of interest, lead people to different points, and not more than ten thousand persons ever congregate in one building at the same time; at least they never have, except on the opening day. I mention these small items because they are of practical benefit to any one who is discussing whether he will go to the Centennial. The press and letters written, generally, do not mention such small matters.

The main building is 1,880 feet long, 464 feet wide, 45 to 70 feet high, with two wings on long side 416 feet long, and two wings on short side 216 feet long, and four towers 75 feet above the roof. The ground floor covers 23 acres. The central avenue is 120 feet wide, and on either side of this, at a distance of 100 feet, are parallel avenues 100 feet wide, and between these also are aisles, some 40 feet and others 25 feet wide. There are cross avenues and aisles of corresponding width. The building is constructed of iron and glass, with just enough of masonry and wood to knit it together; the roof being of tin and the floor of wood. It is ventilated by removing or sliding the sash, and is fully supplied with water and light. There are four main entrances and many smaller ones, making it convenient to get out or in quickly. At the four chief corners are turrets of considerable hight, ornamented with national emblems. The departments for exhibition are classified into parallel sections. The building in naked form cost $1,500,000. It is regarded by competent judges as the best arranged, most beautiful building of its size and material in the known world. For sake of comparison, it may be well here to state that the London Exhibition Buildings of 1851 covered only 17 acres; those of Paris of 1867, 33 acres, and those of Vienna of 1873, about 30 acres. The Centennial buildings will cover forty-eight and a half acres.

Now as to the exhibits. The main building is the chief, the general department of exhibition. It has national sections, and individual exhibits also. It contains all the miscellaneous articles not suited to exhibition elsewhere, which are numerous. It contains also the individual and company contributions of all nations who claim and pay for special exhibits. These, too, are very numerous. Hence the exhibition of the main building is larger and finer and more varied than that of any other department. I have given it five days full attention, and have not seen all of it yet. And when you remember the size of the building and the fact that it contains the contributions of over forty nations, and of thousands of individuals, you are prepared to appreciate the statement. It contains no machinery, except for illustration, and no statuary or painting, except a few specimens from foreign governments, and such pictures, etc., as are used for embellishment of other exhibits. It is intended to contain only the manufactured articles, and nothing else.

THE BOOK EXHIBIT.

This has a prominent large space, and the display is very fine and elaborate. The largest and best is the collective exhibit of the American Trade Association. This has a special department, and is handsomely arranged with an upper story, easily reached by a beautiful stairway. The collection contains all departments of literature and learning, and all books and stationery of every kind—that is, specimens of all kinds. Lippincott, Appleton, Harper & Bros., Porter & Coates, Barnes, Methodist Book Concern, National Temperance Company, American Tract Society, and other booksellers belong to this association, and make good displays of their publications. The American Bible Society shows, among other pretty and valuable works, the "Bible in two hundred languages," and many very old Bibles and theological works. I will mention only a few: the "Bible of John Milton," "First Bible in English Language in America," "Douay Bible," "John Rogers' Bible, published in 1549," "Bible published in Venice in 1476," and "Bible printed by Isaac Thomas in 1791." The best blank and copying book display is by William Mann, of Philadelphia, who is the first maker of copying paper in the United States. The most elegant display is by Lippincott & Co., in a separate exhibit. It is as valuable as handsome. It consists of specimens of his embellished editions of the best authors arranged in a magnificent book-case of stained walnut inlaid with precious woods and metals beautifully carved. The case is twenty-five feet high and twelve feet in diameter, with four sides and a recess at each corner, which contain the bronze busts of Shakspeare, Milton, Byron, and Scott.

Four feet from the floor, it has projections of glass cases with recesses at each corner for seats, just under the busts of the distinguished authors. The case and show cases are filled with books of beauty and of value. Among others, I noticed a Bible valued at $250. The naked case cost $2,000. There are other displays nearly as showy and meritorious—twenty at least. Near the book department are the exhibits of the "Lead Pencil," "Gold Pen," "Steel Pen," "Paper Box," "Slates and Slate Pencils," "Stationery," "Ink," "Mucilage," "Card and Cardboards," "Hand Stamps," "Engraving and Printing" Companies, all of which have attractive displays in every conceivable shape.

The American Lead Pencil Company, of New York, G. W. Faber, of Paris, London, and New York in the pencil line; Aiken, Lambert & Co., New York, gold pen men, and Thaddeus Davids & Co., New York, ink men, have the best displays in this department.

The French display of books is in a collected form called Cercle de la Librairie. It is plain, but is regarded the best and most valuable collection of books on exhibition. It is valued at $25,000. More than one-half of it has been sold to the Hopkins' University.

The German collection is very large, representing about one hundred and fifty houses. It embraces in the same exhibit type founding, musical publications, wood engravings, and chromo-lithography. The whole is well arranged, but has no book cases or tapestry to give it style. The majority of the German books are covered merely with paper, and there are very few of what we call fine books. Music and bibliography are specialties.

The exhibit of the Netherlands (Dutch) Association differs from all the others in arrangement. It is arranged by subjects.

The English exhibit is not very creditable, considering their reputation for letters. The failure is attributed to a lack of organization and co-operation among those publishing houses which have branch houses in America.

Other foreign governments and firms have creditable displays, but I do not know enough of their language to enable me to judge of their merits; and I promised merely to give you my own impressions of things. I have given more space to the book department because of its importance. Truly we may say: "Of the making of many books there is no end."

The Chemical exhibit is very large and showy, consisting of all kinds of metals, roots, extracts, dye-stuffs, and solidified substances of every color, arranged in glasses of all sizes, from an ounce vial to columns of potash, zinc, and oxides of all sorts, alums, sulphates of morphine and quinine, and many other specimens, varying from three to six feet high. The variety and brightness of color of this department give it great attraction. There are many exhibits in this department, but it is thought Bowers & Weightman, of this city, have the best. Near this is the Soap exhibit. I was astonished to see how many kinds and colors and sizes and phases of soap there are. One display was especially beautiful. The space occupied measures thirty feet square, with show cases all around filled with specimens, and a solid column in the center, ten feet high, made of soap, of all colors, capped with a large bouquet of flowers, also made of soap. It is one of the prettiest and most popular displays in the building. Soap is very much needed. It is both cleansing and savory. The world needs soap. Let us have plenty of it.

Akin to this was an exhibit of Cosmoline. I was afraid my daughter or some of my party would ask me what Cosmoline was. Fortunately, an attendant at the stand handed me a circular, which says it is "an oleaginous liquid used as the base for ointments, and as a lubricating oil for machinery." Now whether it is made out of lard from hogs or mules or fat dogs, I cannot tell, but the oil looked pretty, and was arranged in glass jars from one ounce to five gallons, was beautifully decorated, and is regarded as the prettiest oil show on exhibition. It was inclosed in a glass case ten feet high.

SOURCE.

To find the hidden source of the stream
Men dreamy journey, lingering, idle
Cross ley moor in search of the source
But all that they can find
Of higher lakes come the springs.
These sources, and no
Are safe as ever from profaning hands.
The highest lake, remotest spring
Shall flow!

Each heart to find the source
Of Love's deep stream
Sweet streams
Perhaps, if

Lessie's Dream.

Lessie dreamed she was wandering in a strange old mansion, where everything around her was gloomy and grand. Sometimes she encountered restless, anxious-looking people wandering aimlessly about. No one appeared to take any notice of her. This made her uneasy and afraid, and she hurried from one room to another in quest of some familiar face or some means of escape from the dismal place. At length she entered a large room where, at the farther end, were a group of persons that appeared very much interested in something she could not see. She hastened along, hoping to find some one she knew, or a means of escape. As she approached angry voices startled her. Two men rose simultaneously from a table in the center of the group. The report of a pistol was next heard, and one of the men fell back lifeless. This one Lessie recognized as her brother Harry. With a scream she awoke. The sun was shining brightly, and birds carding their sweetest songs; so indelible was the impression of her dream she could scarcely doubt its reality. Her brother was a noble young man, possessed of all the attainments requisite to make one useful and happy, and on him Lessie lavished all the affection of her young heart. His employment was such as to require his attention at an early hour of the day, and Lessie seldom saw him, except in the evening; and she had observed with anxiety that for the past few months he spent the evenings from home. Though gentle and kind to her, as usual, his manner was restless and preoccupied. His face began to betray unmistakable signs of dissipation, and his home seemed to have lost all its former attractions. This was a great source of uneasiness to Lessie.

Often she had waited and listened for his returning footsteps at night until, wearied with her vigil, she would go to her room and weep herself to sleep because he was away. After a hasty toilet she descended to the breakfast room. Harry was not there. This was nothing unusual, but this morning she was more than disappointed. It had never occurred to her to expostulate with her brother regarding his habits—such an idea would have been banished from her mind as the greatest presumption. "I will ask him to stay with me to-night any way, just this once; he certainly will not refuse; and if he does, what shall I do next?" With a sad, heavy heart she discharged the duties of the day, and with unspeakable joy she welcomed Harry's return at nightfall. During tea she imagined he was more sedate and thoughtful than usual. After tea he took up his hat and had reached the door before Lessie summoned courage to speak. "Stop, Harry; please don't go; do stay with me to-night?" "Why, sis?" "I'm so lonely when you are gone. Please don't go to-night." "Oh, I must. I promised to meet Frank Bennett to-night. I will be back in a little while." "Well, write him an excuse. Tell him you can't leave home, that you are unexpectedly detained. Oh, do stay with me to-night, just this once," and she clung to him, and entreated him not to leave her. "Well, Sis, as you are so anxious for me to stay, I will, to oblige you, and will write Frank to postpone the meeting until to-morrow night. Now, will that please you?" "Oh, yes, yes. Now you are my own dear Harry again." "Again? What do you mean?" She took no notice of his question, but led him into the library, where no intrusion interrupted their quiet enjoyment. She endeavored to make him happy, and when he saw how happy she was he forgot the sacrifice he had made, and fully participated in her enjoyment.

When we relinquish our own pleasures to promote the happiness of others we are always rewarded an hundred-fold. Before Lessie went to her room she told Harry her dream, how miserable she had been all day; but he only laughed at her silly fears. For some time he had been spending his evenings at a drinking saloon down town, drawn thither by his friends. At first he would only call in to take a social drink, chat a few minutes, and go on; but by degrees he became more fascinated with the jolly folks he met there, and not many weeks had passed before a drink and game were indispensable. Harry had been reared to abstain from such habits. But he thought: "My friends here, Jimmie Barnes, Percy Winters, and others, indulge with me, where can be the harm? They are nice young men, move in the first circle, and stand high in their professions. The thought of becoming an inebriate is preposterous. It is true I enjoy a drink, but I can do without it quite as well, and will desist if I should learn to like it too well. I will never be a drunkard." A back room had been fitted up for gambling, and thither the friends would repair, after drinking, to enjoy a social game. After a while, to enhance the interest of the game, they would take a quarter, half dollar, one, two, and five. The night in question twenty-five was staked. Harry and Frank Bennett were partners, against two others. "Lose or win, Harry said, I will never bet again. This will never do." Oh, weak human nature, how prone thou art to err! The next morning Harry went to his work, as usual, but soon returned greatly agitated. Coming up to Lessie he threw his arms around her, and strained her to his bosom. "My precious sister, you have been my salvation." "Harry, what is the matter? What does all this mean?" And why are you so agitated?" He then told where and how he had spent his evenings at the premeditated game; that when he had promised her to stay at home the night before he had written Frank to postpone the game until the next evening. When Frank received the note the company had assembled, and were unwilling to defer, and a young man had been selected from among the spectators who had come in to witness the contest. They were all drinking, and during the game a dispute arose, which resulted in three of them being killed, two instantly, and another after a few hours of intense suffering. "If you had not asked me to stay with you last night I would probably have been killed too. Oh, my sister, how shall I ever thank you for your timely interference? But when I remember that the young man who represented me in the game to-day would have been living in the full enjoyment of every earthly comfort, it makes me miserable indeed. This one thought will haunt me to my grave." "Oh, my dream, Harry, my dream!" and she clung to him as if she still feared its reality. "Yes, my dear sister, I have been saved by your dream. Now when I look back over the past few months I shudder. The awful pitfall over which I was rushing, and you, my darling sister, have been the means in God's hands of saving me. Henceforth I will atone. My eyes are now open. I can see the danger of moderate drinking."

And who does not know that every drunkard was at first a moderate drinker? Oh, if every mother, wife, and sister would exert their influence against this lava tide of destruction that is sweeping our noble fathers, husbands, and brothers into drunkards' graves! Though all may not, like Lessie, be warned of their duty in a dream, nevertheless it is their duty, as true women, to combine their efforts in this glorious cause.

CAMMIE C. MILLS.

Eufaula District.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

MR. EDITOR: This district held its eleventh Conference session in Louisville, Barbour county, Ala., August 21-26, 1876. The introductory sermon was preached Wednesday night by Rev. J. S. Williams. The official attendance was good, in all fifty-two. Dr. W. H. Ellison, P. E., presided during the session. A. V. Lee, Esq., and Dr. J. T. Floyd, of Clayton, were elected secretaries. The Conference had but two committees, one on Public Worship, the other on Memoirs. The session was pleasant and profitable. The inquiry as to the spiritual state of the Church, including attendance upon the ordinances and social meetings thereof, revealed the gratifying fact of pungent convictions and bright and powerful conversions in nearly every pastoral charge in the district. The inquiry further revealed the sad fact that in a few places all our members do not attend the preaching of the word on communion days, and, when present, some actually decline receiving the Lord's Supper. Many measures and remedies were suggested, but the one adopted by the Conference was that each pastor should preach a sermon upon this subject in every church in his charge during the next year.

The missionary work was taken up. No mission in the district; some missionary ground, but it lies in such fractional parts as to be difficult of plan and control.

Collections for foreign missions were reported from only a part of the charges.

The Sunday-school work is in a well organized and healthy condition in several parts of the district, but in other portions it is feeble, sickly, and inactive. Within the district there are several model superintendents. In two or three schools the missionary work is incorporated.

Upon the financial question the district is not up with herself heretofore, with two exceptions. This is accounted for in part by the hardness of the times. However, there is purpose and pluck through the district to bring the finances to a just and honorable balance. The following will show the amounts assessed for presiding elder and preacher in charge upon each pastoral work, and will approximate the proportion paid in the aggregate: Eufaula, $2,100, paid one half; Henry, $780, paid one fifth; Perote, $900, paid one sixth; Pea River, $225, paid one ninth; Enon and Midway, $800, paid one fourth; Glennville, $575, paid one third; White Pond, $500, paid one fifth; Villalla $280, paid one half; Clayton and Louisville, $757, paid, one-quarter; Beulah, $500, paid, one third.

At ten, Saturday morning, the Committee on Memoirs reported through their chairman, Rev. D. M. Banks, who read a beautiful and impressive memoir of Rev. Lawrence Baker, a local preacher of great purity and power, who died at Midway, July 19, 1876. Touching and tearful tributes were made to his goodness and worth. This solemn service was closed by a veteran lay man leading the Conference in earnest, fervent prayer.

The interests of the Alabama Conference Female College, Tuskegee, Ala., were represented by Prof. John Massey, President. We bid him a hearty god-speed.

Gem of the Woods, a school of high grade, located at Enon, Ala., was represented by its principal, Rev. D. M. Banks.

During the session prominence was given to religious worship.

The pastor, Bro. S. A. Pilley, continued the meeting. Sunday night, two joined the church.

The Delegates elected to the Annual Conference are: Revs. D. M. Banks, Dr. J. T. Floyd, W. H. Stuckey, and W. H. Nix; alternates, Revs. T. A. Johnson, J. M. Johnson, Dr. Groves Caldwell, and Capt. A. A. Cassidy.

Next session will be held at Enon, Ala.

The citizens of Louisville and its vicinity entertained the Conference and visitors in the most cordial and munificent manner.

ANGUS DOWLING.

LOUISVILLE, ALA., August 31, 1876.

The Urgency of Prayer.

DEAR BRO. PARKER: I seldom ask a place in the valuable columns of the ADVOCATE, supposing always they are more usefully occupied. But by your permission I will relate a fearful calamity which occurred a few days ago on Lake Providence, near this town, the circumstances attending which were most affecting. At the time and place mentioned a steam saw mill, erected by Mr. Owens, of this parish, from some cause not yet known, exploded her boiler with most fearful consequences, killing the owner and engineer, and two other persons, besides seriously scalding and wounding several others. But apparently the saddest event in this terrible casualty was the scalding and death of Mr. Robbins, a gentleman sojourning but briefly in our neighborhood, and in no way connected with the mill. Mr. Robbins was passing the mill on business in the country, and had delayed a few moments to witness the operations of the mill, and, it is said, was sitting quietly on his mule in front of and near the mill at the moment of the explosion. He was fearfully mangled, and died in a very short time. It is to this point in the fearful narrative that I would call the attention of your unconverted as well as your Christian readers. This poor stranger was unconverted, was a wicked or worldly man, and there was none near to care for his soul. He at once realized his position. But what could he do? He had been taught in early life that prayer was the opening gate to heaven, but he did not know how to pray; and yet in his own mind he had but a few moments left him this side of eternity. Then he began in all earnestness to pray in the best manner he could; but unsatisfactorily to himself, until his years of early childhood rushed back upon his memory, and he began that sweet little baby prayer which his mother (oh! precious name) had taught his infant lips to say:

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
And if I die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

This charming little prayer he repeated frequently and fervently; until just before expiring he calmly said to those near him, comparatively strangers: "Tell my friends to meet me in heaven;" and with this sweet baby prayer lingering upon his lips his glad spirit doubtless entered the pearly gates.

Blessed, thrice blessed truth: "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." "This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise."

And how encouraging is this to toiling, suffering, trusting mothers to persevere in well-doing, and plant and nourish the good seed of faith and salvation in the hearts of their little children, which, in the Lord's own good time and way, will fructify, and by his grace bring forth an hundred-fold.

Very truly, your friend and brother,

M. DUBOSE.

PROVIDENCE, LA., Aug. 19, 1876.

Unexpected Encouragement.

And let us not be weary in well-doing: for in due season we shall reap if we faint not.—Gal. vi. 9.

We propose to relate to the readers of the ADVOCATE an incident illustrative of the fact that there is often an unspeakable amount of encouragement for the minister of Christ, even when he may least expect it. A little more judicious work would very often bring him to the reaping point.

The harvesting of souls is not regulated by times and seasons as we are accustomed to consider them from an earthly standpoint; but "always sowing and always reaping," seems to be the great rule that governs the Master's work. The above quotation from Paul is sometimes used as an excuse for tediousness; when the spirit of devotion has been chilled by services too prolix and uninteresting. It is very questionable whether in such a case any seed have been properly planted or any harvest could be reasonably expected. As when one should, in planting, heap an undue quantity of earth in covering the seeds, so the truths of Christianity and the services of religion may be injudiciously used to such an excess as to prevent the accomplishment of the purpose desired, the germination of the seed and the reaping of the harvest. But we will give the incident, and the reader can draw his own deductions:

Rev. P. H. Napier, pastor of Enon circuit, a few months since preached to a large congregation in the town of Augusta without any exhibition of feeling on the part of the people more than usual.

After pronouncing the benediction he was informed that there were some children to be baptized. The congregation, which was about to disperse, was called to order. The object was stated and some remarks made on the subject of infant baptism, and the sacrament administered. "Now," said the preacher, "since I have detained you thus long in administering baptism, I will detain you a little longer by opening the doors of the Methodist Church for the reception of members." Six persons, members of some of the most respectable families in the community, joined. The religious element in the preacher and his congregation was excited to a very high degree, and they went home gratified with the unlooked for result of the first reaping of the year. In this case the people were easily recalled, and patient attention was given, and deep interest felt while the pastor, as God's agent, put in the sickle and gathered the sheaves.

THOMAS PRICE.

PLAQUEMINE, MISS., August 21, 1876.

Southern University.

In his article on the Southern University, published last week, Rev. J. W. Rush spoke of the importance of urging the claims of this institution upon our Alabama Methodist people "in season and out of season." This matter finds illustration in a fact stated by a preacher at a late District Conference:

The preacher said he remained on a work four years. The next year after he left he met a young man from that work going to Marion, and asked him what business was carrying him to that place. The reply was, "I am going there to enter Howard College?"—a Baptist institution.

This young man was a Methodist, and was going to a Baptist college within twenty miles of a Methodist college. Why was this? Perhaps the only reason was, his attention had not been called to the fact that his own Church had a college in the same section. At all events, the preacher said he had not informed him of the fact. A word from him might have secured this student for our own school.

Is this a solitary case?

During the last session there were in the Southern University thirteen students who were the sons of ministers, or young men preparing for the ministry.

It is thought that there are but two copies in existence of the original editions of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." One of them is in the Lenox Library, in New York city; and from the other a fac-simile edition has been produced of both the letter press and wood-cuts, and is for sale by Scribner, Welford & Armstrong.

OBITUARIES.

Correspondents, please write names and dates very distinctly. We follow copy on proper names.

Obituary notices should be forwarded promptly and immediately. Give only points of general interest, such as will help the living. Details of funeral services, and such phrases as "mourn their loss," etc., are not edifying. Verses, either original or select, not admissible in this department. Give the locality distinctly and in full. In the case of infants only a simple announcement of the death, with names and dates, will be published.

☞ All obituaries received are published as soon as convenient. If, after a reasonable time, any such communication fail to appear, let a duplicate be sent instead of a complaint.

SISTER ELIZABETH LEE, widow of John Smith, was born near the town now known as Morgan City, September 19, 1790, and died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Eliza Mayo, in the town of Washington, La., on Sunday, July 23, 1876.

In the death of Sister Smith it may be appropriately written: a mother in Israel has passed away. While she was quite young her parents removed from the Gulf coast, and settled on the Bayou Boeuf, parish of St. Landry, seven miles from the town of Washington, in which, about sixty-three years after her conversion and connection with the Methodist Church, she breathed her last.

At the time her parents settled on the Bayou Boeuf, this section of country was nothing more than a wilderness, infested by wild animals, that annoyed and frightened her exceedingly. Many incidents has she related during my pastoral visits, for I visited her two, three, and four times a week, from the beginning of my pastorate until the week of her death, in regard to this then wild country. As some of these have a direct bearing on her Christian life, one or two may not be found inappropriate.

It was frequently necessary for her parents to go out on their little farm, cut down the underbrake, and labor for their daily sustenance, leaving her all alone. As a means of protection during the absence of her parents, she would shut the door of their little cabin, as she expressed it, take the latch on which they ran, and bar the door as best she could; for there was not so much as a catch. It was during these seasons of extreme loneliness, though at this time she made no profession of religion, she felt the need of prayer, and thus barred in from the outside world, she would endeavor, upon her knees, to commune with God. She however failed. Day after day she thus wrestled with God, attending church whenever an opportunity offered, which privilege was seldom had, until a Methodist meeting in the neighborhood she was converted, connected herself with the church, and never afterwards by word or act denied her Savior. But her faith was a living faith, and she went to work immediately in her Master's vineyard. Oh, how many now-a-days need copy her example. She was married a short time before her conversion, and her husband was anything else but a religious man. She conceived it to be her first duty to induce him to be religious. She prevailed on him to accompany her to church whenever an opportunity offered, and she found that his attendance was not without wholesome results.

The following incident, illustrating her perseverance, honesty of purpose, and purity of character and life, is within the memory of all the old settlers on the Bayou. It was the custom to attend preaching, made no difference who preached. On one occasion a minister of the Methodist was to preach in the neighborhood, and knowing her husband's want of sympathy for ministers of other denominations, she was in a quandary what to do. She believed it her duty to ask him to go, and leave the result to God. She made the proposition. He remained silent a while, and then said: "I feel you would like to have me go, but if the fellow don't preach to suit me, I will whip him after meeting." He accompanied her to church, and the minister having preached a doctrine unpalatable to many others, as well as himself, it was with difficulty he could be prevented from executing his threat. But this was the turning point in her husband's career. A short time after this occurrence, at a Methodist meeting, he was powerfully converted, joined the church, and was a bright and shining light until death, a period of fifty years.

Sister Smith's Christian life was a remarkable one. Her history would be for her daily walk to the church. To know her trials, her temptations, her daily crosses, and how by the grace of God she conquered them all would be a source of encouragement to every Christian's heart. Her religious advantages in youth were few, but, endued with power from on high, she went sowing the seed of truth by the wayside, and daily will arise up at the last day to call her blessed.

She was a model in every relation in life as a wife, as a mother, as a neighbor, as a Christian. Though a mother of five children, only two survive her—a son in Texas, and an only daughter, in whose home and under whose fond care she died. While her whole Christian life evinced her living faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, it was during the last years of her life, while living with her daughter, the excellencies of her religion were apparent. A creature of suffering for years before her death, she impressed upon the minds of all who knew and visited her that there was a power in the religion which she professed, and evinced, by her patience, resignation and submission to the will of God, that she possessed "even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." Utterly helpless, and unable to attend public worship in the sanctuary of God for months prior to her death, it was the privilege of the writer to be with her often in private and public prayer, and to administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. These were occasions of such joy to her that she would sometimes say: "Oh, that it were the Lord's will, that I should go now." On my departure for the Seashore Camp Meeting, though as well as usual, she remarked: "Brother, on your return I may be in heaven." I left, fully expecting to greet her again on my return; but the Lord willed otherwise, her spirit had returned to God who gave it. May her friends, children, and grandchildren, of whom she has several, treasure up in memory her life and her death, and live so as to meet her in heaven.

R. S. I.

MRS. MARTHA OLIVIA BROWNE, wife of Maj. William B. Browne, of Maitland, Orange county, Fla., was born Sept. 27, 1842, in Wilcox county, Ala., and died at her home at Maitland, Fla., on August, 1876, of Bright's disease of the kidneys, followed by dropsy of the heart, aged three years, ten months and seven days. At a very early age she was left without mother's tender care, being only years old when her mother, Mrs. Langham, died. She received her ed at Huntsville, Ala. In 1862 she profes religion and united herself to the Meth Episcopal Church, and remained from time an unassuming but faithful me On the twenty-first of June, 1865, she married to Maj. William B. Browne, Confederate army, with whom she peacefully and happily until her death. her family circle she was always patient, and self-denying, devoting all time and talents to promote the happ of her husband and children; and in friendships constant and true. She has her husband and four interesting little dren, to mourn her irreparable loss, though her sickness was protracted, and sufferings intense, she was patient and signed her faith in the wisdom of God taining her to the last.

When informed by her grief-stricken band that she could not recover, she not realize it. "No," she said, "I shall be. I have prayed to God to spare me to my husband and little children, and will not let me die." But she soon became convinced that "He was closing last eye," and, placing her hand upon her husband's head, prayed for God's blessing upon him who had so tenderly cared for her in all her sickness; that he would protect and sustain him through all his trials, and strength to bear his affliction, and grace to raise his children. She then called her only daughter, little Fannie, and asked God's blessings upon her, saying to daughter, never dress for the church, let your seat in God's house be vacant days of worship." Then turning to her son she took his hand and said: "My first-born, my darling boy. My son, of the dram-shop and all places of degradation; remember you have a God, church—always be there. Obey your and prepare to meet your mother in heaven, who will be standing on the shore to welcome her beloved." She then blessed her two youngest children, and bid her friends, white and black, who stood around, to farewell, and bade them farewell. A few hours before her death speech left her, but she retained her mental faculties to the last moment, and when the angel came she calmly closed her eyes and sank to rest, and in the arms of her husband new song over a soul borne from trials to rest forever in paradise.

A FRIEND.

DIED, in the city of New Orleans, June 17, 1876, GEORGE HENRY MAYER, son of Henry Mayer and Elizabeth Weber, in the twenty-eighth year of his age. He was a native of New Orleans, and, besides excursions in search of health, has been spent in that city. Before the years of his struggle with disease the most scrupulous attention, and fidelity in business and education had been mainly secured in the public schools of New Orleans, and while being thorough, had fitted him for success in mercantile life.

His parents were members of the Methodist Church, and had been diligent in training him up to a life of consecration to God. His early religious education developed truth in the child, and a conscious walk with God was the experience of his early life. From the punctual, diligent scholar, he passed to the prayerful, laborious teacher in the Sabbath school, an active member of the choir, and a zealous participant in all the services of the house of God. We have never witnessed a more beautiful example of obedience to parental authority, of devotion to a mother, or of affectionate regard to kindred. Truthful almost to severity, giving and confiding, his life was a brilliant illustration of youth and manhood taught by the gospel of the grace of God.

Three years ago his health began to fail, and in spite of all efforts to arrest the progress of disease he gradually sank into the grave. Turning away from boisterous sought in almost every climate some hope restoring balm which should prolong his life, and afford him the means of usefulness. But never once did he repine. He had reason for desiring to live in the bright years of enterprise, in the growing interests of his parents, in his longing desire to do good, but at all times he expressed himself as "perfectly resigned to the will of God." Weary and wasted, his last days were spent at home. Calm and trustful, he spoke to all about him of his love of the Savior, and his readiness to depart.

Summoned suddenly to his death-bed, it was my privilege to catch the dying words of my dearly-loved friend, and then commit his body, in the hopes of immortality, to quiet rest in the grave.

MR. EDITOR: Our community was startled, on August 16, by a most sad and unexpected casualty. MARION, the son of our esteemed brother, E. C. Kibbinger, aged years, four months and ten days, was killed to death by the sudden caving in of a bank while he was getting sand. It was the most heart-rending blow to the parents, brothers, and sisters of the interesting boy, and the large number of sorrowing friends who attended the funeral showed how tender and universal was the sympathy fell for them. As distressing as is the sudden, violent death, the consolation, as remains, that all the pangs and fears of death were spared, and that the little one was as much in the hands of God as if he had breathed his last in the arms of his loving mother.

Religion of Our Presidents.

The question has been raised whether any one of our Presidents was a communicant in a Christian church. There is a tradition that Washington asked permission of a Presbyterian minister in New Jersey to unite in the communion. But it is only a tradition. Washington was a vestryman in the Episcopal Church, but that office required no more piety than it would take to be mate of a ship. There is an account of his communing in Boston or New York or Philadelphia, or elsewhere during the Revolutionary struggle. Adams was a member of the parish in Braintree. He was High Arian. His attendance at worship was not very constant. Jefferson was an avowed skeptic, and a devout admirer of Dr. Priestly. Madison and Monroe were moderate churchmen. John Quincy Adams was a professed Unitarian. He attended the services in the Representatives' Hall during the session of Congress. In the afternoon he worshiped in the Second Congregational church, where he had a pew. When Congress was not in session, Mr. Adams usually attended in the morning the Unitarian Church. Jackson was a reverential hearer. He attended church a half day. His pew in the Four-and-a-Half Street church was on the left hand side of the preacher. He paid close attention to the sermon, and made a profound bow to the pulpit as he retired. He joined the Presbyterian Church after he left office. Van Buren, trained in the Reformed Dutch school, and attended the Episcopal Church when he attended any. His Sunday afternoons were devoted to his political friends. Harrison cared very little for religious matters. Tyler was loose in regard to Sunday and worship. Polk, though not a professed Christian, was a regular attendant at public worship. He was always in his place. He rode to church on Sunday morning, and occupied the pew next to the one Jackson sat in. Col. Benton occupied the Jackson pew, and would not give it up. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Polk walked to the Second Presbyterian church, which was near the White House. Gen. Taylor seldom went to church. Fillmore, more than any other of the Presidents, was an open and decided Unitarian. He gave his influence and support to that sect. Pierce was always at church on Sunday mornings. He attended the Presbyterian Church. Buchanan was an Old School Presbyterian. The church was near his residence. The building was small, and the congregation both small and poor. He was not a very reverential worshiper. He walked slightly halt-lame, went up the aisle at a shuffling gait, dodged into his pew, and, seated in the corner, seemed wrapped in his own thoughts, paying no attention apparently to the service. An observer could not tell whether he was asleep or awake. He hurried away as if afraid to be addressed. Lincoln attended service once a day. He always seemed to be in agony while in church. His legs were long, the pews narrow, and he often relieved himself by putting his feet outside of the door, stretching them clear across the aisle. His pastor, Dr. Gurley, had the "gift of continuance," and the President writhed and squirmed, and gave unmistakable evidence of the torture he endured. Gen. Grant is a trustee in a Methodist church; but that office does not imply a profession of personal consecration.

Nearly all the accounts of shooting and clubbing affrays wind up, says the Inquirer, with the stereotyped remark: "Bad whisky was the cause of the tragedy." It is never the whisky per se but the "bad whisky" that does the mischief. Immense responsibility is thus shown to lie upon the distillers. "If the mash is not quite ripe, if it has gone a little too far, and is slightly acetous, if the fireman puts in a stick of wood too much and scorches the still on the bottom or side, many of a score of accidents occurs to the charge"—then riots, assaults, murders, and the whole catalogue of diabolism follows as a matter of necessity. In this era of reform, here is a perfect bonanza for the reformers. None but men of the highest character, men of education, experience, and known integrity should be permitted to run a distillery. When the run is scorched they should label the barrel "bad whisky for medicinal purposes only." The great demand of the times is for good whisky—liquor that will make men sober, industrious, and benevolent.

The New York Herald has letters from its African correspondent and explorer down to April 21. They continue the narrative of adventures in the neighborhood of Lake Victoria Nyanza. At a town called Marongo the party were surrounded by five hundred armed negroes, who, however, only forced the visitors to depart, and did them no harm. At another place where the explorers landed the natives stole oars and a drum, and made hostile demonstrations, which finally resulted in a conflict, in which Stanley's party killed fourteen and wounded eight of the natives while they were endeavoring to capture the boat of the explorers. He confirms the report made to Dr. Livingstone of a race of white men in Central Africa.

Rev. THOMAS B. SARGEANT.—We made a visit on Sabbath afternoon, says the Baltimore Episcopal Methodist of September 2, in connection with Bros. Leftwich and Busey to this esteemed and venerable brother. Though still confined to his room, we were glad to find him so cheerful in spirits, and somewhat improved in health. He is contemplating a visit to Portsmouth, Va., to participate in the approaching dedicatory exercises of the Monumental church in that city, of which he was at one time the pastor. We sincerly trust that a favorlng Providence may grant him the desired pleasure. His visit, we are sure, will not be less gratifying to his many friends in Portsmouth than to himself.

A BILL TO SUPPRESS LOTTERIES.—The fact, says the Standard, that both houses of Congress have passed a bill, which will have the effect, if carried out, of entirely suppressing the lottery business in the United States, or even the circulation of lottery tickets or advertisements, has escaped the public attention. The first section relates to the circulation of obscene literature through the mails, and is a slight amendment of the present law. The second section amends Section 3,894, so that it will read as follows:

No letter or circular concerning lotteries, so-called gift concerts, or other similar enterprises, or concerning schemes devised and intended to deceive and defraud the public for the purpose of obtaining money under false pretenses, shall be carried in the mail. Any person who shall knowingly deposit anything to be carried by mail in violation of this section shall be punishable by a fine of not more than $500 nor less than $100, with costs of prosecution.

Recent explorations show that the great Australian trees exceed in hight, though not in circumference, the giants of California. Some of the Australian trees must be regarded as very respectable in girth as well as in hight, the hollow trunk of one of them being large enough to permit three horsemen to enter and turn, without dismounting, while they led a fourth horse. A fallen tree in the recesses of Dandenong, Victoria, was measured, not long since, and found to be 421 feet long; another, on the Black Spur, ten miles from Healesville, measured 480 feet. The highest trees on the Sierra Nevada, California, yet discovered, reach only 450 feet, the average size being from 300 to 400 feet in hight, and from 21 to 31 feet in diameter.

TUNNEL BETWEEN FRANCE AND ENGLAND.—Two companies are to be formed—one French, one English, each with a capital of £4,000,000—for the purpose of making an experiment. The English company is to start from Dover, and is to make a small tunnel, eight feet in diameter, half way across the channel. The French company, starting from Calais, is to do the same thing, meeting the English in the center of the channel; and then, if this experiment succeeds, the tunnel is to be enlarged so as to admit of the passage of railway trains.

Scene, a telegraph office at Vienna. An operator takes out his watch, and, yawning, says: "Football cannot go to the concert to-night." "Why, may?" asks a companion. "I am awaiting the dispatches from Belgrade, and they don't generally turn up until about midnight." The other operator thinks a moment, and then, with a gleam of light in his eye, he says: "Have you received the Constantinople dispatches?" "Yes," replies operator No. 1. "Well, just write precisely to the contrary, and go to your concert."

The Methodist English says: "Rev. Luke Tyerman's new work, a 'Life of George Whitefield,' will soon be ready. Proof sheets are already printed. It is expected to be quite equal in value to the 'Life and Times of John Wesley.' It will be published in two volumes. Hitherto there has been little said about the work. It has been prepared quietly, diligently, and has been in hand a long time. If the reports of its excellence, historical value, and readiness that are afloat are correct, the religious reading world have a treat in store."

The Philadelphia Ledger of the ten inst. says: "Yesterday evening marked the close of the first three months of the six months' term from May 10 to November 10, during which the Centennial International Exhibition is to be seen. During the three months the average daily attendance of paying visitors has been about 21,500, and the aggregation for the seventy-eight days Sundays being excepted, is about 1,670,000. The exact figures, to the close of Monday evening, August 8, were 1,870,012, and the rough estimate for yesterday, made at the hour when this was written, was 30,000."

Dr. John McClintock, the eminent Methodist scholar, early in his life formed a habit of devoting his nights to study, a habit from which he found it impossible to free himself in later years, and which it is thought laid the foundation of those functional and organic troubles which broke him down in the prime of life. Young people should carefully guard against the habit which has had a multitude of miserable victims.

The Rev. Thos. A. Dodd, A. M., D. D., the Nashville American states, was, on the twenty-fourth of August, elected to the chair of Hebrew in Vanderbilt University. At present Dr. Dodd is the chancellor of the Kentucky Wesleyan University, at Middletown. At the same time a tutorship was filled by the election of Prof. James A. Anderson, of Kentucky.

A gentleman was surprised to see his little daughter bring home from the Sunday-school library a grave treatise on "Backsliding." "My child," said he, "this is too old for you; you can't make anything out of it." "I know it, papa," was the reply, "but I thought I could when I took it; I thought it would teach me how to slide backward."

—The Swedish and Norwegian synods of the Lutheran Church in America are growing very rapidly. New Swedish congregations are springing up in New England, as well as in the Middle and Western States. The Augustana Synod, at its late session at Jamestown, N. Y., received 21 new churches into fellowship, and pastors are everywhere in demand to serve new congregations. The four Norwegian synods comprise 700 congregations and about 140,000 communicants. Both the Swedish and Norwegian Lutherans support important educational institutions. One of the Norwegian synods, which was organized in 1853, has resolved to celebrate its jubilee in 1878 by raising $100,000 for its schools.

—The English papers give an account of a meeting at Lambeth Palace, at which the Archbishop of Canterbury presided and several Anglican bishops and prominent Nonconformists ministers were present. The object of the meeting was to afford opportunity to Christian ministers of different denominations to confer with the Archbishop and other bishops respecting the alleged progress of irreligious thought at the present time. The general tone and feeling of the meeting was hopeful, and many who had large experience of the state of religion throughout the kingdom testified to the real growth of vital Christianity, notwithstanding the activity of its modern assailants. His grace, in acknowledging a vote of thanks, expressed his sense of the usefulness of the meeting and of the importance of churchmen and dissenters thus having an opportunity of better understanding each other's views on questions of common interest.

—According to the Lucknow Witness, the Jesuits are meeting with considerable success in China. By a late treaty they have obtained possession of a great deal of property which belonged to them three hundred years ago, but at the time of their expulsion confiscated. A cathedral, to cost three million dollars, is to be built in Canton from the profits arising from these possessions, and another, nearly equal to this, will be built in Pekin. Churches filled with worshipers are said to be springing up in all the important cities of the empire. A decree has been obtained from the Chinese government allowing the priests to decide questions of law between the Chinese Catholics and those who still cling to the Chinese religion. The priests also gather in foundlings by the hundred, and buy children of the poor for a mere trifle, to train them for the church.

—The result of the interdiction by the Spanish King of the teaching of the liberal professors in the University of Madrid, nine in number with Castelar at their head, is that a free institute has been founded in the city for the large teaching of science and philosophy, in which no sectarian rights shall be recognized and in which all opinions in religion, philosophy, and politics may get a hearing and be fairly judged. This institute has already two hundred and seventy-four members and the subscriptions are large enough to warrant the beginning of its work. Madrid now yet become the focus of science and free thought. There will be established according to the circumstances and means of the society, studies for general, secondary, and professional education, with the academic advantages accorded by the laws of the State; (2) superior scientific studies; (3) lectures and brief courses, both scientific and popular; (4) competitions, prizes, publication of books and reviews, etc. The greatest precautions will be taken to obtain as professors men of undoubted probity and earnestness and of the highest competence.

—Late missionary intelligence from Fiji is said yet interesting and verifies former accounts of the ravages of the epidemic with which the islands were visited last year. A correspondent writing to an Eastern paper, says: "At the annual district meeting eight missionaries were present, and thirty-four native ministers. Six candidates for the native ministry were unanimously recommended to the conference to be received on trial, and six probationers were recommended for ordination. The losses of the Wesleyan Church in this colony by the late epidemic have been very heavy, including native ministers, upwards of 150 exhorters, 200 local preachers, 700 class-leaders, 8,000 church members, together with a large number of attendants on public worship, making a total of 24,000. The following are the returns for September, 1875: Missionaries, 6; native ministers, 48; catechists, 75; day-school teachers, 2,582; class leaders, 2,253; local preachers, 653; church members, 16,038; on trial for membership, 3,585; attendants on public worship, 51,48—

We have frequently referred to what may be considered the most encouraging Indian mission station on the American continent, Metlakahtla, in British Columbia. The latest reports from this Christian and industrial settlement are again very favorable. Law and order prevail, in spite of the turbulence in the adjoining territory. Fresh Indian settlers are continually joining the community from all the tribes around. They come one by one, or at most a family at a time, are formally received, and readily fall into the discipline of the place. During the past year thirty-one adults were baptized and the interest in the church services and the school fully maintained. Neighboring tribes, moved by the prosperity of the mission town, are also asking for teachers. Somewhat to the north of Metlakahtla is Kincolith, where a similar work is done. The Christian Indians of this settlement have sufficient influence upon their heathen neighbors to cause the Sabbath to be respected by them when they are out together on fishing and hunting parties. Recently these Indians have done what for them is a notable achievement. They have built a road of considerable length connecting the Naas and Skeena rivers.

Our Young People.

A MITE SONG.

Only a drop in the bucket;
Not that every drop will tell;
The bucket would speak be empty
Without the drops to the well.

Only a poor little penny,
It was all I had to give;
But as pennies make the dollars,
It may help some cause to live.

A few little bits of ribbon
And some toys; they we're not new,
But they made the sick child happy,
Which has made me happy, too.

Only some outgrown garments
They were all I had to spare,
But they'll help to clothe the needy
And the poor everywhere.

A word now and then of comfort
That cost me nothing to say;
But the poor old man died happy,
And it helped him on the way.

God loveth the cheerful giver,
Then give the gift be poor and small;
What doth he think of his children
When they never give at all?

What to Do with the Hands.

What shall you do with your hands? Trousers pockets are not the place for them in company, and little girls have no pockets for them. I forgot, but does it look well to see a girl always carrying her hands in the pockets of her apron or jacket? It will do once in a while, among one's mates, but it is rather free and easy for a regular habit. You don't want always to fold them like a cat crossing her paws. Let me tell you something that will help, in this puzzle which troubles much better bred persons than you can be yet. I've heard well-trained ladies, brought up very carefully in good society, say: "I can't walk without a parasol or book; I must have something to do with my hands."

One could not help feeling sorry they had not learned how to carry every part of themselves easily and gracefully without thinking about the matter. If they would try a very simple thing—bringing the hands together in front, below the waist, at arm's length, just as they sat down or started on a walk, and then let them fall apart as they would, and keep them as they fall—the position would be nice and easy in nearly every case. Keep your hands down, and your arms pressed lightly against your sides in walking or sitting. You need not look like a trussed chicken at all, but a little stiffness at first is less harm than carelessness. Don't have slovenly manners, whatever you are.

Don't think, in all this advice, that you are to be little prigs and "high-shouldered" small creatures. There is a time to lounge, and a time to sit with one's head higher than one's heels, and to lie on the hearthrug. These are all changes of position that rest us by changing the weight from one muscle to another. It is a good thing, sometimes, to sit in a chair tipped back, or put one's feet on a window-sill; it takes the strain off one's back. But we will take care to do this by ourselves, or with those so friendly and close as to be like ourselves. To sprawl before a stranger or visitor is entirely too familiar. It says: "I don't consider you of enough account to put myself in a pleasing position before you. I don't care whether I look awkward or not in your presence."

It isn't a comfortable feeling to give a person, and it's no credit to you. None of us have such fine manners that we need be saving of them, or be afraid of making too good an impression. We were made to be pleasant to ourselves and to others, and we ought to look well and act well for their sakes. Even in the privileged time of a home evening, or in one's room with a friend, there is such a thing as easy lounging quite enough to save the eyes of a looker-on, and there is a loutish, wide-armed and wide-legged sprawling for which any mortal deserves to be started out of his skin with a rattan cane. I have seen a young man just from college—not to speak of men a good many years from it—who, in talking with a woman he did not know very well, would curl up in an easy chair with his shoulders above his collar, and one leg over the arm of a chair, never knowing the rudeness he was guilty of. And I've seen a woman of a very good family, indeed, who composed in French and painted in water-colors, sprawl between two seats before two chance visitors, till she looked as if she were just about to tip over; and I know a poetess who read blue and gold books to young men in the back parlor half lying on an easy chair with her feet on the sofa, both ladies having good health, and being in no way familiar with their visitors.

But you mother wouldn't like to have you do so, and I want to help you with hints, so that you will never fall into these bad habits. You have a better chance to grow wise and agreeable than those who went before you, for the world is wiser, and you are getting the benefit of it. Make much of your chance.—Work and Play.

To Every One His Work.

"Oh, how do you do, poor little Bung?" What a dull life yours must be!" Thus cried the gay Flag of a vessel as he looked down from his high position upon an old barrel of water, in a corner of the deck, which was fastened up by the object of his pity. "And your miserable companions, too, the Hoops and the Nails. Poor fears! But I suppose you have no ambition, and are perhaps happy in your humble position. I'm glad I wasn't born so; what would the ship do without me, I should like to know?"

"Ah, yes, Mr. Flag, sir, I wish I were as handsome as you; how nice it must be to lead such an active life," sadly replied the Bung.

"We aren't of much use in the world," chimed in the Hoops and the Nails in a chorus.

"No, indeed!" peevishly continued the Bung; "and no one notices poor me, stuck here in this ugly old barrel; not a bit of use in the world; if only I had some honorable work to do, like you!"

"Your prospects are indeed very gloomy if you intend moping in your present position for ever and aye," said the Flag. "I should certainly try to do something in the world if I were you."

"How? how?" breathlessly cried the Bung, Hoops, and Nails.

"Oh, I don't know; you haven't much spirit; but at any rate you would have to leave your present situations."

"My dears, dear! listen to him," said old Mrs. Barrel earnestly; "however small and insignificant we have all some special work to do; without you, what would become of me and the water I contain? Be content, and remain where you have been placed."

"And so we will, ma'am," cried the Hoops and the Nails; but Bung, who, like many young people, thought himself wiser than his elders, announced his intention of leaving the society.

"Farewell," he said; "when next you hear of me I hope it will be as filling some post of honor."

With that he jerked himself out of the hole, and the water rushing out soon flooded over the deck.

For many days no breeze had been blowing, no rain had fallen, and fresh water had become very scarce, so that the astonishment and horror of the sailors at the sight of the spilt water was unbounded. A part of the barrel's precious contents still remained, owing to the faithfulness of the Hoops and the Nails. Every drop made each hoop more precious, and, had it not been for this water, the death of all on board, from thirst, would have been inevitable.

Ah, how glad were the Hoops and Nails now that they had listened to the advice of good Mrs. Barrel!

But soon the barrel was drained, and for a day or two the passengers were in anguish. Nine thought of taunting Mr. Flag in those days. At last the longed-for rain came down to relieve their sufferings, but not before one poor fellow had died of the dreadful thirst.

Poor Bung, who had been picked up by a little girl, and now lay indeed a useless thing among her toys, was inconsolable. "Oh," thought he, "if only I had kept to my hole, and had been content to do the humble but important duty assigned to me!"—Early Days.

A CHILD'S IDEA OF PRAYER.—Jennie Lee, who was only four years old, no sooner saw work laid aside than she ran to her mother's knee and claimed a seat there. Mrs. Lee lifted her to her lap, and went on busily thinking of her duties and cares, while she rocked herself and Jennie to and fro.

For a while Jennie amused herself very quietly by winding a string in and out through her fingers, but presently she began talking to herself in a low tone:

"When I say my prayers God says: 'Hark, angels, while I hear a little noise.'"

Her mother asked her: "What noise was that?"

"A little girl's noise. Then the angels will do just so, shutting her mouth very tight, and keeping very still for a moment, till I say Amen."

Isn't this a sweet thought? I wonder if the children who read this story of little Jennie have ever thought how wonderful it is that God always hears their prayers. He is surrounded by thousands and thousands of angels, all praising him with their golden harps; and yet, through all the music and all the praises, he hears the softest prayer of a little child kneeling by the bedside. He must be very loving and very kind to children. We might think he would sometimes forget, and be listening to the beautiful sounds in heaven instead of the prayer of a little child. But he never does. There is never too much singing or too many praises there for him to hear a little girl's voice.—Christian Work.

HARD WORK.—"What is your secret?" asked a lady of Turner, the distinguished painter. He replied: "I have no secret, madam, but hard work." Says Dr. Arnold: "The difference between one man and another is not so much in talent as in energy." "Nothing," says Reynolds, "is denied well-directed labor, and nothing is to be attained without it." "Excellence in any department," says Johnson, "can now be obtained by the labor of a lifetime, but it is not likely to be purchased at a lesser price." "There is but one method," says Sidney Smith, "and that is hard labor; and a man who will not pay that price for distinction had better at once dedicate himself to the pursuit of the fox." "Step by step," reads the French proverb, "one goes very far." "Nothing," says Mirabeau, "is impossible to the man who can will." This is the only law of success." "Have you ever entered a cottage, ever traveled in a coach, ever talked with a peasant in the field, or loitered with a mechanic at the loom," asked Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, "and not found that each of these men had a talent you had not, knew something you knew not?" The most useless creature that ever yawned at a club or idled in rags under the sins of Cadabria has no excuse for want of intellect. What men want is not talent, but purpose; in other words, not the power to achieve, but the will to labor.

CHRISTIAN, READ THIS! "Don't write there," said one to a lad who was writing with a diamond-pin on a pane of glass in a window.

"Why not?" said he.

"Because you can't rub it out."

There are other things men should not do because they cannot rub them out. A heart is aching for sympathy, and a cold, heartless word is spoken. The impression may be more durable than that of a diamond upon the glass. The glass may be broken, but the impression on the heart lasts forever.

One dandelion seed would seem to be enough to cut up all athelas by the roots. Its finely spread balloon, with its seed hanging like a full grown ear as it floats through the air, is certainly a piece of mechanism perfect for the end in view.—Prof. Chadbourne.

Riches In Glory.

God's riches in creation are wonderful. The vastness of the material universe exceeds our comprehension. Here is a display of power and wisdom that compels our adoration and awe. The minute, even more than the vast, reveals the surpassing skill the incomprehensible knowledge of him who fills all things. The affluence of the Being who creates, preserves, and possesses all these manifestations of strength and grandeur is truly amazing. And yet, however high our astonishment and admiration, we still feel that there is an infinite reserve of power and wisdom which has never found expression in material forms. The things that are seen are but parts of his ways—mere gtints and scintilla from the stores of the Infinite.

The riches of grace are exhibited in redemption through the blood of Christ. How great these riches are the cost of salvation tells us. The love of God and the gift of his love—the only begotten Son—exhibit the wealth of mercy, the resources of the divine compassion. What redemption achieves in the forgiveness of sins, the purification of the heart, and the opening of heaven to the lost, gives some intimation of the scope and resources of God in the greatest enterprise of his power and wisdom. God "is rich unto all that call upon him." "The unsearchable riches of Christ" is an expression that directs our faith to the Savior as the medium through which God pours upon us the fullness of all blessings. Christ is a mine, inexhaustible, of all manner of precious things, "in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge." Such are the riches of grace in Christ that there is pardon for the guiltiest, deliverance for the most abject slave of vice, holiness for the most corrupt heart, and heaven for the most degraded outcasts of earth. God is rich in grace. It is not in stinted measure, nor in a manner that would seem to begrudge the boon of mercy to the sinner. It is rather free, exuberant, overflowing, and to the uttermost. The riches of God in creation and in grace are beyond all finite measurement, and yet these are only partial manifestations of the resources of him on whose promises the believing soul relies.

"Riches in glory" would seem to be something beyond and above all that is exhibited in nature and grace. The expression takes us within the vail, up among the cherubim, and into the central courts of heaven. God's power, faithfulness, and mercy are wonderfully displayed here in nature and redemption, but in glory we may well suppose that there is something infinitely more sublime. The visible heavens stir the devout mind with feelings of wonder and praise, but the capital and center of these petty lying provinces must present an array of sublimity in comparison with which what we now behold is the merest intimation. In a gracious sense, the riches in glory are connected with the presence and person of the ascended and glorified Savior. How these riches are displayed there we may not know at present. We know in part now, and at best we see through a glass darkly. But redemption as manifested in heaven, and the fruits of it as seen in the Father's house with its many mansions, and the brightness of it as displayed in the incorruptible and unfading inheritance, must surpass all our thought.

Here we turn to the stars, and to the earth, to what our eyes behold, and to what science unfolds, and we exclaim: How rich God is! We meditate now upon man's lost estate, the cross by which he is recovered, the depths of mercy in forgiveness, the greatness of the love that purifies and exalts to an immortal blessedness, and we find nothing so well to express our wonder as "the riches of his grace!" But the riches in glory are these riches—creation and grace—seen in the light of heaven, brought out from their comparative obscurity, with the added magnificence of a thousand new and overwhelming splendors. What we know and see of the divine resources would seem to be enough to satisfy our desire and to establish our faith, but the ground and measure of our blessings is greater than these. "That he would grant you according to the riches of his glory." "But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus."

Here is something to satisfy the deepest hungerings and thirstings of the devout spirit, and to confirm the wavering confidence of distrustful souls. According to his power and wisdom in nature, and according to his love in redemption, would be a measure and gauge of surpassing fullness, and an assurance which could ask for no further confirmation. But the things granted and the need supplied are measured and assured by a higher standard—"according to his riches in glory." God has resources beyond those disclosed to our eyes or made known to our experience. He takes us above the visible and beyond the revealed, and pledges the riches which angels have scarcely explored, and which are coextensive with his own infinite nature.

Opinions Fraternal.

We give below brief extracts from the press on the report of the commissioners of the two Methodist Churches:

Christian Intelligencer

An address of unusual importance has just been issued by the joint committee of the Methodist Episcopal Churches, North and South, preliminary to a more complete announcement of the proposed terms of reunion between those two greatest branches of the Methodist family in the United States. This document presents the basis of fraternal relations upon which it is expected that organic reunion will be effected. It relates principally to the restoration of good feeling, the conditions of fellowship, and the adjustment of questions of property by arbitration. Should these negotiations be ratified by the two Churches, their reconciliation and unification will have a national significance which will be quite equal to the ecclesiastical importance of that event. The disruption of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States in 1844, upon the question of slavery, was the first great breach of national unity, and was the forerunner of the civil war which broke out seventeen years later. The healing of that wound has been only too long delayed, but it may be more thorough when it shall be actually accomplished.

Zion's Herald

The fact that the committee came to a unanimous judgment is certainly very significant and assuring; and, although as we read it, we cannot help feeling that a great many even more important matters than these referred to are still hedged round with serious difficulties that might constantly embarrass the relation of the two fraternal bodies, operating side by side in the same States, still we encourage the hope that in the private conferences which must have occurred these eminent and excellent men from both Churches saw the possibility, under the divine blessing, of the two sister bodies working out their own appropriate missions, in hearty respect for, and fellowship, with, each other. God forbid that we should raise a hand, or speak a word, or write a sentence, or admit to our columns a discussion, that in any wise should peril such a possibility as these men think they see in the near future of our two Churches. This act of fraternity comes at a remarkable hour; an hour of anxiety amounting almost to distress and fearful foreboding; an important epochal era in the history of the State. Is it an olive branch? Does the divine Dove bear it in his mouth? Does it mean all it says? Is it a representative voice? Is it the will of God? Even so, Father, if it be well pleasing in thy sight!

New York Tribune

The terms of agreement adopted by the Commissioners of the Northern and Southern Methodist Churches mark very distinctly the progress of the country toward the complete restoration of fraternal feeling. Thirty-two years ago, in this city, the Methodist Episcopal body divided. The division, as often occurs in the history of churches, was followed by angry debates and law suits, ending at length in total alienation. The disposal of slavery by the war has, however, prepared the way for the resumption of Christian intercourse between these important organizations, and with great good sense they have adjusted all the troublesome questions which have thus far kept them apart. The "basis of fraternity" is an acknowledgment of the original right of the Southern ministers and members to adhere to that communion. The language used in the framing of this acknowledgment is suggestive of some sensitiveness of the Southern Methodist mind on the point. If so, it would seem to be reasonable for the parties to accord to each other Christian standing. Questions of property are advised to be referred to arbitration, and comity will be promoted by the union of weak and neighboring churches of the two communions.

New York Christian Advocate.

The unanimity with which the Commissioners reached their conclusions is remarkable. We have been permitted to look over the journal of their proceedings, (which we understand is to be printed and given to the public in a few days,) and find that every vote in the Joint Board was unanimous. Each Commission embraced three ministers, and two laymen, and these were selected not only because of their recognized ability, prudence, and piety, but also as representing the various classes of opinion with regard to the questions at issue. That these ten Commissioners, reflecting in their daily conferences the views of every department of their great Churches, should reach the most perfect unanimity on every point considered in their discussion, is a fact to the highest degree suggestive and gratifying. Its value cannot be told in words.

Western Methodist

The secular press, North and South, as far as we have seen, very generally interpret this action as meaning organic union of the two Methodisms. Of course it means no such thing—the Commissioners were not appointed with reference to organic union, but in the interest of Fraternity alone; a distinction, it seems, beyond the comprehension of the secular press. But—we say it thoughtfully and deliberately—the logic of events displayed in the action of the Joint Commission demands the union of Northern Methodists in the South with the M. E. Church, South, and the union of Southern Methodists in the North with the M. E. Church. We leave out of view brethren, Northern and Southern, on "the border," as it used to be called, because their case was provided for in the division of 1844; and we leave out of view also the colored brethren, because those who were in the M. E. Church, South, have been settled in their own organization. But, after these exceptions, we say that because encroachments, North and South, were and are based on facts and principles, or on misconceptions and prejudices, all of which, by the action of the Joint Commission, have been set aside as without force, and because fraternity, not merely Christian, but Methodist Fraternity—a common membership "in one Methodist family"—wherever experienced; must have its development and demonstration, it follows, of course, that ere long, though gradually, and yet as rapidly as human nature will yield to God's grace, there can be in no one territory, either in our own country, or in Foreign Missions, two Annual Conferences, and there can be in no one city, town, or neighborhood churches or societies representing the two Methodisms. The continuance of "altar against altar" is impossible in the loving presence of fraternity—in the light of the action of the Joint Commission—in the light of Methodism as it was, and as it will be, by the blessing of God. Certainly the action of the Joint Commission, if it means anything worthy of its origin and promise, says—as does also the genius of our holy religion, of "Christianity in earnest!"—says to Southern Methodists in the North, unite with the M. E. Church, and says to Northern Methodists in the South, unite with the M. E. Church South. If this course be "a wise rule of settlement, where property is in contest," as recommended by the Joint Commission, it is a wise rule of settlement, where property is not in contest, wiser in the latter than in the former case. But if we have given too large and liberal an interpretation to the action of the Commissioners, we must add that we are not satisfied with that action.

Christian Union

The union, just accomplished, of the great branches of the Methodist Church in America is of especial religious and political significance. Slavery was the cause of separation of the church, thirty years ago, and sectional animosity was for many subsequent years too powerful for Christian spirit, in its existing measure, to overcome. The basis of agreement was the only one possible, but one which could not fail. Says the Commission, in its address, "We struck the keynote of brotherly love until it sounded high and clear, and so have been enabled to reach the elements of perfect harmony." All Christians will wish the reconciled brethren the increase of joy and strength which must come of the union, and perhaps the example the Methodists have set, and the infallibility of the method by which they succeeded, will stimulate other slightly divided brethren to labor for a perfect union.

New York Observer.

The result is given in full in another part of our paper. We do not understand the plan as proposing an immediate organic union, but if the plan is adopted by the two Churches the essential benefits of such a union will be secured, and it will be impossible for two Churches holding the same faith, having the same order and discipline, animated by the same spirit, and having adopted such measures for "formal fraternity," to live apart. They must become one family.

No one can fail to observe and to admire the Christian spirit which pervades this paper, and the wisdom which characterizes the consummated arrangement. No reference is made to the causes of separation or to the events which have transpired during the long years of alienation. There is no attempt to weigh the relative amount of responsibility for the separation which may belong to the respective branches of the church, and no suggestion of the humiliation of one before the other. The two bodies are simply to take a manly, noble, Christian attitude of mutual recognition and respect each to the other as occupying a position of perfect equality; and the hope is confidently expressed that the ministers and members of both bodies will regard each other as brethren beloved in the Lord, having the same work to do in building up the kingdom of their common Lord and Master.

Northwestern Christian Advocate.

The secular papers are premature, and a little absurd in announcing as the result of the labors of the joint commission, that "the Methodist Churches of the North and South are again a single body!" It will be remembered by even the most casual reader, that disputed church titles in border States have been among the chief obstacles to fraternity between the churches. The address given below will go very far to remove that apple of discord. We rejoice in this basis of concord, since however just the struggle may seem to the immediate respective contestants in certain places, the quarrels have been unseemly, and occasions for offense and stumbling to those outside the circles most directly concerned. We hope soon to hear that the last case has gone contentedly out of court.

Methodist Recorder.

Organic union is farther on, and before that result can be hoped for some still existing barriers must be removed as far as the east is from the west. The color line still crosses between the parties, and until that can be canceled, and brotherhood broadened over the entire field, the consolidation cannot be effected. But it is an encouraging indication that the commissioners themselves have unanimously agreed upon a preliminary step toward a more thorough and permanent amalgamation.

The main points thus far canvassed are those touching the property of the churches, North and South, and the fusion of interests in towns where the maintenance of both Methodisms is too expensive for the people. But so far, so good.

New York Herald.

A breach in Methodism meant a breaking up of the Republic. Fraternization now means the reverse of all this, and shows how base and baseless are the charges of political adventurers, who would have us believe that the old spirit is still alive in the South. With these men, whether they are in the Senate of the United States or on the hustings, the wish is father to the thought. If the Southern people did not mean peace, political and social, this bond of fraternization never would have been sealed; and it is because reunion means so much in its national and political aspects that this event has such great significance. Nor can we overlook the fact that it is this very significance which reflects peculiar lustre upon American Methodism and will make the Cape May Conference and its results a turning point in our history. In the state of feeling which existed between 1840 and 1860 it was easy enough to divide the churches North and South. A very great change was necessary to make reunion possible in 1876, and it must not be forgotten that this change is political not religious. In taking this great step American Methodism has bound the Union of the States together by a bond which cannot be broken, for it has demonstrated that the hearts of the people are reconciled, and in consequence both the Christian and the patriot will rejoice in the work which has been accomplished.

[Northern Christian Advocate—Referring to the chief feature of the settlement, that the Southern Church is "a legitimate branch of the Episcopal Methodism of the United States."]

This concession on the part of the Northern commissioners is a pretty clean one, but as a "basis of fraternity," agreed to by them in their representative capacity, it is subject to the following criticisms:

1. It was entirely unnecessary to "formal fraternity." If the Southern commissioners demanded it, the demand was unnecessary, and if persisted in only gave occasion to the Northern commissioners to bow themselves graciously out of the presence of their Southern brethren and to return without the loss of honor to their constituents. It was not requisite in order to the peace of the two churches that the commissioners sit in judgment on the acts of the previous generation and come to an agreement as to the character of those acts. The conditions of Christian fellowship only required that they should "agree to disagree" respecting the historical controversy.

2. It transcended the power of the commissioners. They were not appointed the arbiters of the historical controversy. They were empowered "to remove obstacles to formal fraternity," which very appointment assumed the existence of two parties, and their worthiness of fraternal recognition. They were not asked to decide whether the parties had a right to be; whether the birth of either was legitimate or illegitimate; they were placed beyond this question in the act of their appointment. It was not supposed that by their decision they could "remove" historical facts, or the opinion of the people respecting them. These were not among the "obstacles" with which they had to deal. And the Methodist Episcopal Church will make no very grateful acknowledgment of their service in their gratuitous decision on a question which if had placed beyond their province.

3. It is a falsification of history, and is not representative of the views of the Northern section of Methodism. There has never prevailed in our church any method of justifying her existence and place in the family of churches, which is equally applicable to the Methodist Episcopal Church South, as a distinct ecclesiastical and Methodist body. The share of honor and vindication which it has in the providential origin and Scriptural character of Episcopal Methodism has nothing whatever to do with the secession in 1814. In that secession or division—call it which you will—the Methodist Episcopal Church South had its origin as a distinct organization. That secession rested on no Scriptural basis, nor was it justified by any clearly indicated providential demand. It rested on slavery, the sectional interest which by this "sum of all villanies" was sustained, and the desperate sophistries by which it was defended. Nor is there, as Dr. Fuller has abundantly shown in his "Appeal to the Records," any room to ascribe to the origin of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, as a distinct organization, anything like legitimacy. That origin was illegitimate. If justified at all, it must be justified as a revolution. It was in harmony with no law, no constitutional provision, no act or concession of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Such certainly is the well settled conviction of the Methodist Episcopal Church as expressed by her ablest historians. And it was all the more incumbent on the Northern commissioners to respect this view, since it is persistently opposed by an error which has become current in the South. The Southern brethren talk to us about a "Plan of Separation," and "equitable arrangements," all of which fictions lie at the basis of the idea of legitimacy. We owe it to the South to correct these false impressions by putting the facts of history in the clearest light. We are sorry for the cloud which the report creates.

New York Methodist.

We record with profound gratitude to Almighty God the reconciliation of the two chief bodies of American Methodists. We have been laughed at for regarding this reconciliation as possible, and sneered at for treating the promotion of it as a religious duty. The scoffers are welcome to the front seats, and may make the heartiest amens. The reconciliation is by ample authority—it is complete; and, as we have often said it would, it strengthens all and harms none. Neither church loses an ounce of right, or a hair of privilege. The existing status is accepted, and made binding on both churches.

Southern Christian Advocate.

From the stand point of Southern Methodism, the most prominent and hitherto insuperable obstacle to authorized and cordial fraternity has been the disputed status of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. In view of all that had been said and done since 1844, so long as there was no definite and authoritative acknowledgment of our legitimacy, and consequent co equality as a branch of American Episcopal Methodism, both self-respect and security forbade formal fraternal relations. By the action of the commissioners this barrier has been turned away, and no longer obstructs the flow of fraternal feeling or hinders the indulgence of fraternal intercourse. The recognition is hearty, unequivocal, and authoritative.

In an unprofitable discussion as to the correspondence of this deliverance with antecedent declarations, the two churches would doubtless employ different adjectives to qualify the word "right." But this is of no consequence in presence of the paragraph as it stands, and which is honorable and satisfactory alike to both sides.

The principles set forth for the adjustment of conflicting property claims seem to us equitable and righteous. Their application will doubtless work hardships in individual cases, but not more so for one side than the other; and there will result, let us hope, abundant compensation for these exceptional burdens in the general abatement of contention and strife. There are other points at which there has been friction, and doubtless will be still, but these will more rapidly disappear under the "peace policy" upon which the churches are now to enter than was at all probable a short time ago. All formal impediments to actual fraternity have been cleared away by the Joint Commission; let us hope that the good work so auspiciously provided for will not be defeated by jaundiced editors, and other writers of irreconcilable temper.

Central Methodist, West Virginia

Henceforth, at home and abroad, by the verdict of the Joint Commission, the relation of the two churches is co-ordinate; "each of said churches is a legitimate branch of Episcopal Methodism in the United States, having a common origin in the Methodist Episcopal Church, organized in 1781." This is all we have ever claimed, and all for which we have contended; the latter judgment of the Northern church has, we are glad to know, seen the folly of denying to us a perfect equality, ecclesiastically and organically.

Baltimore Episcopal Methodist

We simply desire to correct one or two errors into which the secular press has fallen in this connection. It has been stated that the action of the commission is not final, but must be referred to the Annual and General Conferences for ratification. Were this so, the fact would be deplorable indeed; for it would only reopen all the questions of difference between us in a form only more direct and irritating than before, and perhaps put us farther apart than ever. But this is a mistake. The commission were clothed with plenary powers and authorized to adjust all matters of variance between the two churches. Their decision is final, and without appeal, except in some particular cases referred to where they recommend arbitration as a just and honorable basis of agreement. "We have arrived," they say, "at the settlement of every matter affecting, as we suppose, the principles of a lasting and cordial adjustment." So we believe the two churches concerned will regard their action, and accept it in every case as a finality.

Things at the North.

Dr. Kennedy, editor of the Southern Christian Advocate, has had a pleasant centennial trip, as all faithful editors should have. We make the following extract from his editorial correspondence of August 29:

"Having inspected the Exposition to the point of safety, I took my leave of Philadelphia for a rapid run through some interesting localities farther north. A busy day was spent in New York; but as my plans only allowed me twelve hours of daylight in the metropolis, I accomplished little more than a few brief calls upon parties to whom I bore letters of introduction, and a ride through Central Park. The pleasure of calls at the book-room and at the offices of the Advocate and Meth[illegible] which I had confidently associa[ted] with a visit to New York, was [in]compatible with my necessarily [brief] stay. The most vivid impression [left] by my short sojourn in this [great] city was the seeming utter prostration in business circles. The [unsophis]ticated countryman who [comes] to town after his first visit with the impression that there was a very large number of merchants named [——] doing business in that place, would conclude that a very large proportion of the business of New York [is] in the hands of "To Let." The [ominous] words confront the passer-by from the closed doors of whole blocks of magnificent buildings on Broadway, and silently attest the appalling stagnation that prevails in this center of commercial life. My observation in traveling and conversations with residents of that region convinced me that, trying as are the times with us, they are not comparable in severity with what the Northern people are passing through, and what they are reasonably dreading in the near future. We have little money, and there may be serious disasters in commercial circles as a consequence, but the fields have yielded bountifully, and with our comparatively sparse population there will be abundantly "seed for the sower and bread for the eater." Whereas, at the densely populated North vast numbers being without employment, in addition to the downfall of commercial houses, there will be widespread want; and the thoughtful are not without apprehensions of riotous and bloody demands for bread by the hungry laboring class. Whatever may be the burdens which the times impose upon us, let us not be unmindful of our mercies, or fail in gratitude to him who has caused our hills to smile with plenty, and has covered our valleys over with corn. I am a poor interpreter of outward signs if the condition and prospects of the South are not far more satisfactory to-day than those of the North. From conversations with various intelligent gentlemen I judge that the present condition of things will have a very marked effect upon the approaching elections. There are multiplied thousands whose political affiliations are dictated and determined by pocket or stomach. They are indifferent as to which party is in power, except so far as their interests or necessities are affected, and realizing painfully the existing state of things, the feeling is that matters can not be made worse by a change of administration, while there is no such change the possibility and hope of improvement. This reasoning, it is claimed, will alter the majorities in enough of the Northern States to put the Democracy in power. Whether the opinion is well founded can only be determined in November.

Denver Conference.

Bishop Marvin, writing to the Nashville Christian Advocate, says:

The attendance at the Conference is full from the Colorado district. From the Montana district there is only one in attendance. It is too far and the expense of coming is too great.

The year has been one of some prosperity in Colorado, while but little has been accomplished in Montana. Several reasons have combined to produce this result there. For the coming year the work will be organized on a more assuring basis, and I shall look for good results.

The session would be a pleasant one but for some unfortunate cases that the Conference has to deal with. Alas for the necessity of exercising discipline!

There have been two sermons preached. The first I did not hear. The second, which I did hear, was remarkable for two things—brevity and excellency. It was very short—too short—only twenty minutes. The text was: "He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself." It consisted of a clear, discriminating statement of the great doctrines contained in the text. There were no waste words; there was no irrelevant matter.

CHEYENNE, Aug. 28.—The preceding part of this communication was written at Colorado Springs, the seat of the Denver Conference, on Friday, the twenty-fifth, the first day of the session. This is the first time I have ever held a Conference under whip and spur, and I hope it may be the last. But I was obliged to do so, or miss my appointments in Eastern Oregon. I got through all the important business by Saturday at three o'clock, put A. E. Sears in the chair to close, and took the train for Denver, where I preached on Sunday. This morning I am here waiting for the train westward on the Union Pacific railroad, hoping to reach Baker City, Oregon, by Sunday. At Kelton, Utah, I am to take a stage for a long ride of several days and nights through Western Idaho and into Oregon, and then proceed down the Columbia river to Portland.

I send you the appointments of the Denver Conference, and the secretary will send you the minutes as soon as they are prepared.

APPOINTMENTS.

Montana District.—David Morgan, P. E. Helena station, to be supplied; Diamond City and Radersburg, R. S. Clark; Bozeman, C. W. Sanford; Willow Creek, L. H. Stadler; Deer Lodge, to be supplied; Corvallis and Missoula, T. W. Flowers; Silver Star, E. J. Stanley; Bowlder City, to be supplied.

Denver District.—A. E. Sears, P. E. Denver station, W. Harris; Golden, A. E. Sears; Sterling, H. M. Craven; Divide, to be supplied by —— Evans; Colorado Springs, M. A. Clark.

Pueblo District.—W. M. Smith, P. E. Pueblo, James McClure; Westcliffe, Los Animas, T. R. Pierce; Huerfano, A. H. Quillian; Trinidad and Dadsonville, S. W. DeBusk.

Transferred.—Thomas L. Duke, of Pacific Conference; Samuel S. Cobble, to Louisville Conference.

We have received a copy of the annual Report of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, June 1, 1876. This work ought to be in the hands of every preacher, of course, and the women will do well to supply themselves with it. What we are doing in missions is here presented clearly and completely. The exhibit of our foreign work is the most interesting, and will, we trust, stimulate our people to greater zeal and liberality.

Rev. I. Z. P. Morris, writing from Houston, Texas, September 4, says: "Our meeting protracted from the week of prayer just closed. A blessing to church mourners and sinners. Our editorial on 'In a Strait' came just in time to put our church to work. They see now the privilege of working for the Master. Bro. Owen, our presiding elder, will be with another meeting in my church the sixteenth, when we expect to see the results of this strait we are in now."

There is no such thing as luck. It is a fancy name for being always at duty, and so sure to be ready in the good time comes.

Publisher's Department.

REV. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the EPISCOPAL ADVOCATE, is now on a tour through the West and South on business connected with the office. He can refer freely with our patrons and agents in different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, for which we have not forgotten.

"HOW GREAT THE PLEASURE OF reading and rewing by a good light, that shines clearly and does not injure the eyes, at the same time is perfectly safe. We really enjoy writing by the hollowed ordinary that it sheds around us, rendering it superior to gas for study or rest, or of its freedom from sweet and unpleasant drinks, and as to its safety there is but one opinion based not only on the certificates of experienced chemists and leading officers of insurance companies and agencies, but upon the trial of hundreds of families who continue to use it to the exclusion of other oils. This deservedly popular lamp is doing a large business in all kinds of fluid lamps, cans, burners, &c.

THE attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of the California Male and Female College, on this page. This College is highly convenient to any town in North Louisiana and Texas. It is under the patronage of the Arkansas Conference, and the terms are such that it is within the reach of any one in moderate circumstances. We would advise parents to correspond with the President, Rev. J. A. Perkins.

ANY ONE WHO HAS BEEN UNfortunate enough to lose a finger would do well to read the advertisement of Mr. Marvin Lincoln. Mr. Lincoln has for years been engaged in the manufacture of artificial limbs, and feels confident of ability to give satisfaction. The testimonials we have read speak highly of his art. His office is at No. 5 Hamilton Place, Boston, and he will be glad to give any information required.

H. BUFFORD'S SONS advertise in another column to-day to-day to send their chromo-lithographs to sell their chromos. They will send samples on reasonable terms. An illustrated catalogue free. They have been in this business for a long time in Boston, and, no doubt, offer inducements to many who are out of employment for engaging with them.

TEACHERS of drawing and students will find the advertisement of R. Pastelvecchi of Boston, Mr. Pastelvecchi manufactures plastic models for various animals and objects to draw from. He has also a large supply on hand, and orders from any part of the Unionsan very short notice. His office is at 141 Grand street, New York.

VISITING CARDS.—W. W. C. Cannon, 172 Washington street, offers to print visiting cards at very low rates, and we think from what we know of Mr. Cannon that he will give satisfaction to all who patronize him. Read his advertisement on this page, and send him your order for cards or other printing.

WE THINK RID, A HOUSE of rats, mice, and other vermin has long been a perplexity to all house-keepers. Mr. W. Fichtenberg, whose advertisement will be found in our paper, is said to have discovered a real exterminator.

BONCE'S PECTORAL BALSAMIC Elixir.—We direct attention to the advertisement, on the first page, of the above-named medicine, which has been before the public for many years, and the continued growth of its sale is sufficient evidence of its efficiency in the diseases for which it is recommended. Druggists and country merchants generally have it for sale. Dealers can be supplied by A. Farrouche, 30 Chartres street, New Orleans. For particulars see advertisement.

THE PEERLESS PUMP, manufactured by Charles W. King, will be of much service to those having gardens and plants to water, and their friends in the country will find a safeguard in the use of this pump against fire. Mr. King has for sale different styles, ranging in price from $5 to $20. He will gladly forward catalogues, giving full information, on application. See his advertisement on another page.

THE readers of the "Child's Corner" will do well to send on ten cents for a copy of Our Nursery, published by John L. Shorey, 36 Bromfield street, Boston. It is admirably managed, and the last two numbers of this year will be sent to all who subscribe now for 1877. See the advertisement.

AN ENTERPRISING gentleman, Mr. T. Schilling, of 158 Canal and 381 Dryades street, has visited distant cities with a view of seeing the latest and most elegant styles in hair Goods, has returned, and appears to be as busy as ever. His numerous friends will be pleased to learn that he has a full assortment of the latest and Hair Goods, which he is now offering to suit the times.

THE PEERLESS PHOTO PRINTING PRESS.—Many readers will be, no doubt, interested in the advertisement of Benj. O. Woods & Co., manufacturers of presses and printing material. They are specially of the novelty and sell it very cheap. Send to them for catalogue at 49 Federal street, Boston.

MRS. WELLS MANUFACTURING CO. is the trade their unique Hair Crimper. They also fill orders from private parties on favorable terms. See the advertisement on another page.

ONE of the most attractive of the dry goods stores is M. L. Navra's China and Glass establishment.

TRAVELERS making tours in connection with a trip to or from the centennial at Philadelphia, will find it to their advantage to look at Boston as their home for it is a city, and almost every thing that is to be seen. The American House, Boston, is crowded with strangers, tourists, and bridal couples.

THE BEST advertisement for the Grand Hotel, of New York, is the verdict of the guests who have received the comforts of its superior accommodation and famous restaurant. The Grand is located on Broadway, corner 31st street, and convenient to any part of the city.

CLERGYMEN, Bankers, Bookkeepers, Editors, and others that lead sedentary lives will find much relief from dyspeptic headaches, nervousness, and constipation, engendered from want of exercise, by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator. It is a luxurious sensation, except and unless the stomach is out of order, when it may be tried to good effect. We positively assert that it is the best remedy that can be used.

MEDICAL.

A STRING OF PEARLS!

Extract of a letter from Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872:

I occasionally use when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator which I find effects. It is mild, and suits me better than quinine in five cases out of ten.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens has greatly improved in health of late. The State (Ga.) Journal, 1875.

Testimony of the Chief Justice of Georgia.

I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for some time in the Fever and Ague cases of the Ogeechee river, and always when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it.—Hon. Logan E. Bleckley, Chief Justice of Georgia.

Opinion of the Clergy.

Simmons' Liver Regulator is certainly a specific for that class of complaints which it professes to cure. Many of our fellow-beings are suffering from hepatic troubles and have recourse to it with a result of perfect satisfaction.—Rev. Jno. Hamilton, Macon, Ga.

Always Keep It On Hand.

I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator myself, in this country and yonder, and pronounce it one of the most satisfactory medicines that can be used. Nothing would induce me to be without it, and I recommend all my friends, if they want to secure health, to always keep it on hand.—R. L. Mott, Columbus, Ga., Postmaster.

CAUTION!

Two Fine Pears.

Clapp's Favorite.—This is a new variety which originated near Boston, and is supposed to be a cross between Flemish Beauty and Bartlett. The growth of the tree is like the Flemish Beauty; the form and size of the pear resemble the Bartlett. It is large, oblong-pyriform, pale yellow, marbled, and splashed with light reddish brown. The flesh is juicy, melting, sweet, and of very good quality. It ripens at the end of summer at the North, about a week before the Bartlett, and should be gathered at least a week before full maturity, to prevent rotting at the core. No new pear has gained favor more rapidly than this, and in the catalogue of the American Pomological Society it is recommended for general cultivation in ten States, and is promising in eight others.

Doyenne du Comice.—This pear originated in France. It is rather large in size, roundish pyriform, becoming clear yellow at maturity, with some markings of russet; the flesh is white, juicy, and melting, slightly aromatic, sweet, and rich. It ripens late in autumn. It is one of the most promising of all the newer pears, and maintains its excellence of quality both in this country and in Europe.

Beurre Superfin.—This is another autumn pear of French origin, which proves of excellence and value in this country. It is medium, often large in size, obovate, approaching pyriform, with the neck narrowing to the fleshy stem; in color, greenish yellow, with some russet, often with a reddish brown cheek; exceedingly juicy and melting, with a rich, vinous flavor. It grows vigorously on the quince, and is one of the very few sorts which will succeed perfectly as a dwarf.—Rural Affairs.

A NEW HYBRID LILY.—Many beautiful lilies have been produced by crosses between L. auratum and the speciosums, though we are not aware that any of these new varieties have yet been offered for sale. It requires a number of years, probably eight or ten, to produce bulbs from one seed in a sufficient quantity to place them in the market; so that after the announcement of a new hybrid or cross-bred lily, we must wait patiently for a long time before we can hope to procure it.

The latest novelty among this beautiful class of plants is one flowered by Mr. Anthony Waterer, of England, which, according to the Gardener's Chronicle, is the most beautiful that has yet appeared. It asks us to imagine a blossom of the high-colored type of Lilium speciosum increased in size, so that the segments, straightened out, measure nearly fourteen inches across, and give to this grand flower the coloring and rich spotting of the plant just referred to, while suffused with rich, rosy crimson, and having deep crimson spots freely distributed over the colored portion, and "some idea may be formed of this splendid lily." To these noble proportions, and this charming coloring, it may be added that the scent is delightful, more delicate than that of L. auratum, and more approaching the sweetness of L. speciosum. We have seldom seen a more magnificent flower.—Rural New Yorker.

HINTS IN CARVING.—To carve fowls, which should always be laid with the breast uppermost, place the fork in the breast, and take off the wings and legs without turning the fowl; then cut out the merry-thought; cut slices from the breast, cut out the collar bone, cut off the side pieces, and then cut the carcass in two. Divide the joints in the leg of a turkey. In carving a sirloin, cut thin slices from the side next to you (it must be put on the dish, the tenderloin underneath,) then turn it. Help the guests to both kinds. In carving a leg of mutton or ham, begin by cutting across the middle to the bone. Cut a tongue across, and not lengthwise, and help from the middle. Carve a fore-quarter of lamb by separating the shoulder from the ribs, and then divide the ribs. To carve a loin of veal, begin at the smaller end, and separate the ribs. Help each one to a piece of kidney and its fat. Carve pork and mutton in the same way. To carve a fillet of veal, begin at the top, and help to the stuffing with each slice. In a breast of veal, separate the breast and brisket, and then cut up, asking which part is preferred. In carving a pig, it is customary to divide it and take off the head before it comes to the table, as to many persons the head is revolting. Cut off the limbs, and divide the ribs.

HOW TO RAISE PLUMS.—There is a secret about plum-raising. We have discovered it in traveling over the country. We never visited a large plum orchard in our life that we did not find plenty of fruit. And we never visited a place with eight or ten trees, and found a good crop of this fruit. Now, these facts set us to thinking, and the result of our thought is this: that it is very easy to have all the plums you want to eat and sell. The secret connected with plum-raising is to plant plenty of trees, so as to give fruit to the curculio and to yourself also. If you plant fifty or a hundred trees, you will have fruit enough for everybody. Every such orchard that we ever visited had plenty of ripe fruit. Some even complained that the curculio did not thin out the fruit enough—that the trees were over-loaded. So we say to our readers, if you plant plums at all, plant fifty or one hundred trees, then you will be sure to have all the plums you want, and it is one of the most profitable crops raised.—Annual of Phrenology and Physiognomy.

CREAM CAKES.—One tumbler of water, and one half-tumbler of flour, one-fourth pound of butter. Boil all together, and when cool add five eggs, stirring in one at a time. Bake fifteen minutes in a quick oven.

OILS, LAMPS, ETC.

ILLUMINATING OILS

AND

FLUIDS!

AT

REDUCED PRICES.

THE

PUROLINE AND PORTABLE

GAS LIGHT CO.

Offer to the trade, at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES, the following list of their superior and popular brands:

INSURANCE OIL.

The Insurance Oil is the best Family Safety Oil, and is urgently recommended by all our Insurance Companies as a substitute for common Coal Oil or Kerosene. It may be used in ordinary lamps: Without Change of Burner.

THE NEW ORLEANS BOARD OF UNDERWRITERS SAY:

"It is our opinion that the general use of the Insurance Oil would greatly reduce the number of lamp fires and explosions, and lessen the risk of destruction of life and property."

It will not explode or ignite in a lamp; and the price has been so reduced as to place it within the reach of all classes of consumers, and make it the great FAMILY SAFETY OIL.

As an Illuminating Oil for family use, or for general use in ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil lamps, the Insurance Oil has the indorsement of the New Orleans Board of Health, the Fire Commissioners, and all the American and European Insurance Agencies, as PERFECTLY SAFE.

Refined Carbon or Coal Oil.

THE WELL-KNOWN CROWN BRAND.—This is a pure, high-fire test Kerosene or Coal Oil, generally known as the Crown Oil, and recommended to the trade, and to consumers who buy CHEAP OIL, as the best and safest of all the LOW-PRICED ILLUMINATING OILS in market. In five years' experience no accident from its use has ever occurred. The Puroline and Portable Gas Light Company have the exclusive agency of the Crown Oil for the States of Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

PUROLINE FLUID.

For Metallic Gas Lamps and Portable Gas Burners. Manufactured and sold only by the Puroline Gas and Portable Gas Light Company and their Agents.

This celebrated Fluid, prepared by a process known only to the proprietors, is the best and most reliable of all the products of Petroleum for use in Metallic Portable Gas Lamps and Lanterns. It burns clear and bright, is free from smoke or unpleasant odor, and does not char the wick or gum the burner. No other fluid or oil should be used in Portable Gas Lamps or Lanterns.

Puroline is especially recommended for use in Portable Gas Lamps and Chandeliers, in Street Lanterns, Sugar-House Lamps, Cane Shed Lanterns, and in Torches and Gas Burners for Steamboat Landings, Moonlight Picnics and Street Processions. Giving a light equal to the best city Coal Gas, it enables the people of the remotest villages to illuminate their stores, Warehouses, Saloons, Hotels, Churches, Streets and Gardens as brilliantly as the favored residents of a great metropolis.

Gasoline for Gas Machines.

Distilled expressly for the Puroline and Portable Gas Light Company, and with peculiar regard for the changes of temperature so common in this climate. Unequaled for generating gas, or for carbureting coal gas.

Proprietors, patentees and owners of Gas Machines cannot overestimate the importance of having their Gasoline of reliable gravity and quality, as success depends so much on these conditions.

Opinions of New Orleans Booksellers.

It is a book which has long been wanted and often called for. I am selling copies daily that are mailed to all parts of the world.

GEORGE KILBIE, Bookseller, Opposite the Postoffice.

During my long experience as a bookseller in this city I have had thousands of inquiries for such a work. Mr. Dennett's LOUISIANA AS IT IS is precisely the book that has been called for. It gives general satisfaction to my patrons in the city and country. If its true character were generally known it would require ten times the present edition of 10 000 copies to supply the demand.

C. C. HAILEY, Bookseller, 124 Commercial Place, Branch, 154 Poydras street.

An experience of twenty-five years as bookseller in New Orleans will justify me in saying that the book just issued by Mr. Daniel Dennett, LOUISIANA AS IT IS, supplies a want long felt by residents and strangers. The demand for the book is active, and is steadily increasing.

DUCONGE'S PECTORAL BALSAMIC SIRUP.

NEARLY half a century has elapsed since the discovery of this wonderful compound. Its established virtue and its high reputation in curing all the Chest, Lungs, Breast and Throat affections known, and has been tested for so many years by such extensive patronage, that it would be superfluous, at this late day, to dwell at any length on its efficacy in Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Inflammation of the Throat, Stomach or Bowels, Pains of Blood and Whooping Cough.

It has been found highly beneficial in all Rheumatic disorders, such as Rheumatism, Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Summer Complaint, and even in those cases of Cholerine which, for want of proper care, so often degenerate into confirmed Cholera.

All affections of the Lungs, verging on Consumption, it has been found almost efficacious in curing, that most awful scourge, whenever it is resorted to.

Besides its acknowledged certainty of cure, this extraordinary medicine has, over most compounds of the same nature, the decided advantage of having its agreeable flavor, it can be administered without the least difficulty to children, and requires no particular diet. It is also the cheapest, only because the bottles contain more sirup than any other, but owing to its peculiar composition this sirup will keep for years without fermentation, and it can be used in families whenever required, simply keeping the bottle well corked.

Directions for Taking the Sirup.—Grown persons take from four to six spoonfuls in the course of the day, either pure or diluted in a little water, at regular quantity at intervals of three or four hours.

Children much troubled during the night may take a teaspoonful of the Sirup on going to bed—it will stop the cough and procure a good rest.

Children from three to five years old may take from four to six teaspoonfuls during the day. In smaller quantities, at intervals of three to four hours, for sale by

THE ONLY TRUE AND PERFECT HAIR COLORER!

THE MYSTERY,

Or Turner's Hair Tint!

HARMLESS! BEAUTIFUL! PERMANENT!

This preparation has received the indorsement of the scientific world, and wherever introduced has superseded all other preparations of the kind. Its washing or preparation of the hair is necessary before using.

It is free from all Deleterious Ingredients, consisting not Lead, Sulphur, or other compounds which are universally to the Hair and Dangerous by Absorption.

In its use saves both time and labor, as a few applied with a comb, once a month or so, to the hair or Whiskers, answers the purpose, the color being so perfectly assimilated as to defy detection. Its great recommendation is in its Restoration of the Hair, producing any desired shade, bright brown to the deepest black, and can restore gray of that dry and burned appearance to the other Hair Dyes. The Mystery can be used to a single hair, to those that have changed, and be restored to their original shade without applying all over the head, as is necessary when other Hair Dyes.

BALANCED SCREW

COTTON PRESS.

THIS is the most valuable improvement ever made upon the screw Cotton Press. It retains all their good qualities, and adds thereto rapidity and economy.

The improved method of making the nut is by lever. The nut is engaged and released upon the screw by the pleasure of a lever. With the nut open, the screw and follower are let down upon the cotton, then the nut is closed and the pressing is done in the usual manner; then open the nut and raise up the screw and follower instead of screwing it up. This raising and lowering the screw by means of its counterbalance, saves revolving the press at least sixty times, reducing the time and labor in pressing cotton one half.

This Press has taken the premium over all competitors at the regular State Fairs of Mississippi and Louisiana.

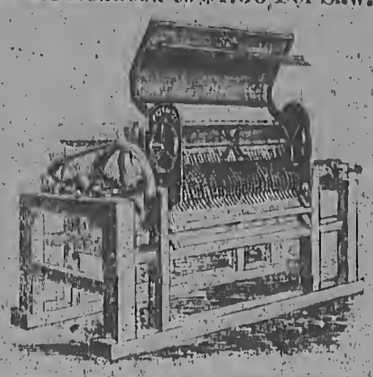
DANIEL PRATT'S IMPROVED

"Revolving Head" Cotton Gin.

PATENTED JULY 18, 1876.

Price Reduced to $4.50 Per Saw.



THIS GIN has been in use for the past three seasons, and several recent improvements have been added. It obviates all friction at the ends of the cotton box, prevents the roll from breaking, and gives a Larger Yield of Lint from the Same Amount of Seed than any other Gin in use. The Revolving Head lightens the draft and causes the Gin to run faster with less driving power, thus doing a great deal more work within the same time, while consuming steam or animal power than any other Gin. The seed being ginned very close, the length of the staple is increased, producing cotton on this account of a greater market value. This improved value, given by length of staple, with extra production of lint, added to increased amount of work done, more than covers the cost of the Gin in every 100 bales ginned. New Orleans Markets.

ADVOCATE OFFICE,
New Orleans, Tuesday, Sept. 12, 1876.

MONETARY.

Quotations are as follows: Exceptional paper, 8 per cent.; A1, 10@12 per cent.; second-grade, 15@— per cent.; mortgage, first-class, 10 per cent.; mortgage, second-class, nominal. Gold, 109¾@110¼, against 109¾ at New York.

The movement in discount market is regular. Confidence increasing; demand for gold light. Stocks and bonds are firmly held, but capitalists show but little disposition to operate at advanced figures.

COTTON.

The following interesting extract we take from the cotton circular of W. C. Watts & Co., Liverpool, August 25, 1876:

The Manchester market this week has lost much of the firmness previously prevailing. Business has fallen off, and producers are rather easier to deal with, but so far there is no material change in prices. We now quote 8¼lb Shirting 6s 3d to 7s 9d per piece: No. 40 Mule Yarn 9¾d, 10d and 11¼d for common, good mid, best seconds; 32's Twist 8¾d to 10d per lb.

At Bombay, for the week ending August 24, the receipts have been 4,000 bales, against nil, and the shipments to Europe 8,000, against 6,000 same week last year. Latest quotations are: For good fair Oomras 4¼d, cost and freight, and for 8¼lb shirtings 4r. 12a. at Bombay, and 4r. 10a. at Calcutta.

Special Notices.

THE SCHOOL FOR BOYS.—Rev. F. M. Grace, A. M., once a professor in the East Tennessee University, and afterward president of Hiwassee College, puts into his paper, the Iron Age, Birmingham, the following notice:

"Hiwassee College closed its annual exercises May 25. We learn from the biennial catalogue that the number of students was one hundred and eighty-six, many of them from Alabama and other gulf States. There is no better school in the world for a boy than Hiwassee. Address President John H. Brunner, Hiwassee College, East Tennessee."

DRAWING WATER.

Dark, as if it would not tell,
I lift the water, still and cold;
Dip the bucket in the well,
Drink from the secret pool.

Up it comes all brave and dim,
Telling of the darkness sweet;
As it rises to the orlo
See the sun and water meet!

See the friends each other hail!
"Here you are!" exclaims the sun;
The water splashes from the pail,
Joy has made it wild with fun!

You have many a tale to tell,
Water, while I take you home;
Tell me of the hidden well
Whence you, first of all, did come.

You have kept a little taste,
Through the distance and the strife,
Narrow veins and open waste,
Of the lovely well of life.

Could you lead me back the way?
Through the earth, the sea, the sky,
Bring me (ither? Happy day!
I would drink and never die.

Jesus sits upon the brink,
All the world's great thirst to slake;
Offering every one to drink
Who will only come and take.

Lord of wells and waters all,
In the hearts or to the heads;
Unto thee my soul doth call
For the something that it needs.

Give me water in my heart,
Flowing ever with a song;
Bathing it in every part,
Till its cleanliness makes it strong.

Come, sweet water! I can tell
You will make the cottage shine;
Come, O water, from the well,
Thou wilt make my God divine.

George MacDonald.

Centennial Notes.—No. 4.

In the same section is the Cologne exhibit—said, to be the handsomest of all. It consists of bottles of all sizes, up to twenty gallons, and of all designs of shape and ornamentation, with a silver fountain at one corner, from the top of which constantly spouts a stream of the sweet-scented fluid, while two beautiful figures at the base, with pitchers that never fail, pour the same into a reservoir, which constantly resupplies the fount and pitchers. All can moisten handkerchiefs free of charge. All the ladies find this place.

The Furniture exhibit is very extensive. It is the fullest display in the exhibition, I think, and no department is more creditably represented. There are chairs and bedsteads and lounges, and other articles of every wood known to the world, and inlaid, many of them, with the precious metals. Some of "adjustable" chairs and beds are curious, and useful, too, beyond question before examination.

The Chinese and Japan chairs and bedsteads and fire screens are very highly ornamented—some of them are made of ivory, beautifully carved, and others of rare wood, with porcelain work inlaid. But for comfort and use and appearance, too, the American department is far ahead of all others. The French display is very fine, but not so good as ours.

Some of the New York and Philadelphia displays have been prepared without regard to cost. Sets of ratan, mahogany, rosewood, cherry, ebony, straw, cork, and other material, splendidly ornamented, are shown in large spaces, beautifully fixed up to represent bed chambers. One complete set of bed-room furniture, manufactured in New York, is made of amaranth brought from Africa. The wood is purple. The style is new and magnificent. Another set, made in the old style of 1776, out of a maple tree two hundred years old, that stood in Independence Square, and was cut down last year, attracts universal attention.

Just by it is an "adjustable sleeping apartment," consisting of a bedroom, with bed all ready for use, carpeted, and supplied with mirror, etc., six by seven feet, which, as soon as you wish, can be instantly compressed into a space twenty inches thick, and rolled to any part of the house.

A set of church furniture attracted my attention. It is complete, having pulpit, chairs, tables, stands, desk, and organ, all made of olive wood. I am glad to find that the church and the Bible are remembered and cherished in this fashionable, infidelian age.

The Piano and Organ exhibit is also very full, and all nations, except two or three, have specimens and their best performers here. These are scattered all over the building, and there is good music all the time. I am not musician enough to decide which is the best instrument, even in my own opinion.

The Hardware and Cutlery exhibit is large, and many of the nations and individuals will contend strongly and closely for the premium. All styles of table ware, tools, grates, mantel-pieces, and everything made of iron, steel, and brass, are to be found in immense quantities, arranged in all styles. I noticed a knife-blue feet long and of width to correspond, with pearl handle, and a fork of size to match. Close to this is the United States display of fire-arms. Colt, Sharpe, Catlins, Porter, Remington, and many others, have their best specimens of guns and pistols of all sizes, and adapted to sport, or the use of the army or navy. The French and English, too, have good and full displays in this line.

The Jewelry department is by far the most brilliant and most popular exhibit of the occasion. A special police is employed at some of the jewelry stands to answer questions, and to prevent the disappearance of articles.

The displays of Tiffany & Co., of New York, Caldwell, of Philadelphia, Elkington & Co., of England, and the French, Italian, and German collections are magnificent. The ladies go crazy over the diamonds. There is nothing so attractive to a majority of them as fine jewelry.

Caldwell has two single necklaces worth, respectively, $20,000 and $25,000. Tiffany & Co. show one set, consisting of breastpin, earrings, and necklace, worth $60,000, and another worth $110,000. Besides these, he has dinner sets loaned him for the occasion by the wealthy men of New York, and much of the plate won at the New York races. His show is the most brilliant of all. The jewelry of the Italians, Germans, and French is not so costly or showy as the American. They claim, however, that their work is finer and their styles more tasty.

The most costly German article is a butterfly, in full wing, filled with 2,000 diamonds and pearls; price, $15,000. This, the Berlin jeweler told me, would be priced in New York at $25,000. France has one set valued at $60,000. All the foreign jewelry is plainer than the American, and I think cheaper in price.

Elkington & Co. exhibit the "Milton Shield," made of steel and silver worth $15,000, the "Helicon Vase," representing the "Triumph of Music and Poetry," worth $30,000, a collection of ancient shields and coats of arms of silver and gold, and a chess-table, with men in position, etc., worth $2,000.

What a vast amount of money to be invested in such non-productive property! And what a vast amount of good could be done in the missionary fields with the aggregate of these useless treasures!

The Lace exhibit is one of much interest. I have always had a weakness for fine lace. It looks so genteel and stylish. There are many contributions from all the nations, and from many houses in America, but those from Belgium and France are the finest. The New York and Philadelphia merchants say they will get the premiums on lace.

The Silk department is as fully represented as any other industry. All the fabrics are on exhibition. The cocoon in raw state, the thread in the rough, and after polish, ribbon, handkerchiefs, scarfs, the cloth, and the full dress of fashionable style, are all shown by many firms, by State organizations and nations. Brazil, France, Brussels, California, Kansas, Massachusetts, and other States, have their show cases and pyramids of thread and ribbon and cloth of all the colors and quality, presenting one of the best, most showy sights of the building.

The Woolen exhibit is very large also, and is arranged in similar style to the silk department. The competition in woolens is distributed between Victoria, Netherlands, Canada, Argentine Republic, Sweden, Switzerland, Mexico, Norway, California, and nearly all of the Northern and Eastern States of America.

The Carriage display is so large as to require a separate building attached to the main buildings. England has the heaviest carriages, France the smallest, most fanciful, New York city the best, considering style, comfort, and durability. Some of them, it seems to me, are too fine to be exposed to rain or sun. Prices range from $200 to $3,000. England shows the old stage coach with horses hitched and driver on the box, whip in hand, and the representation is so good that at a distance of 100 feet nearly every man would think the whole scene a real one. The imitation is complete. The latest fraud on the dog must be charged on the French, who, by the invention of a new light buggy, called the "Cynophore Carriage," so confine dogs in a box wheel, made of wire, as to force them to rotate it. I have not the space or time to further explain the Cynophore Carriage.

The Linen and Cotton Goods department are elaborately displayed, but they are so well known as not to need comment.

The Carpet exhibit is full to overflowing, and the styles are very handsome, and some of the patterns of one piece too large for small rooms. Turkey sends some handsome carpets and rugs, but the New York houses have the finest. Many of the States have most creditable contributions from their carpet factories. All the exhibits are good.

The Wire and Brass and Hair Cloth and Comb and Straw and Rope departments astonish all who examine them. It is wonderful how many sizes and varieties of these articles can be made, and to what necessary uses they are now applied. They are all growing industries, and attract great attention among that class of visitors who are investigating the progress of the times in the useful arts.

The Millinery exhibit, as was expected by all, is extensive. All over the building are show cases of every size, from small bird cage capacity to huge houses of glass, filled with bonnets and hats and dresses and shawls and hosiery and embroidery, and everything in the line of ladies' wear; and you may rest assured the ladies throng them. Madame Demorest seems to have the advantage over all others.

The Mineral exhibit, like the carriage department, is shown in an adjoining building called the Mineral Annex. The collections, both geological and mineralogical, from all the countries and States represented, are creditable, but those of California, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Kansas, and Colorado are the most extensive and select. Kansas and Colorado have a separate exhibit in their State building.

The Straw Goods exhibit presents articles of that material in numberless varieties and shapes. Italy exhibits the finest qualities; the United States the largest display of matting, etc.

This sketch is very imperfect. There are many other meritorious branches that could be mentioned, but my letter is now too long. I will merely mention some exhibits of peculiar interest, and give a few summary conclusions and close, promising not to be so lengthy hereafter.

France exhibits a telescope 20 feet long, worth $5,000; also a glass mirror 22 feet by 11 feet by 1¼ inches. She makes the best exhibit of shoes in the main building.

Cincinnati sends a glass mirror 18 feet by 11 feet.

Mexico sends the root of a mahogany tree 7 feet 6 inches in diameter; also very fine metals.

A Philadelphia firm shows a doll valued at $250—a very dear baby.

The American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, of New York, shows, among other curious things in their line, the scenes of cock fights and dog fights, the cocks and dogs being the same engaged in the conflicts, stuffed and preserved, and looking as natural (if not more so) as life.

Brazil sends a large collection of stuffed birds of gorgeous plumage, which are shown in beautiful arrangement in a pyramidical glass case 30 feet high, standing at the entrance to that department. She has the best collection of woods and gums, and the finest coffee.

Norway has the finest display of furs and flax, and the choicest, but not the largest, specimens of silver ore.

China and Japan have the best displays of wood carvings and designs in ivory. Their lacquer work and wooden ware, with porcelain top, are very much admired. Their fire screens, lanterns, and toys are curious workmanship. The silk crape, the paper and wooden and basket ware of the Japanese—all made by hand—are most splendid.

Portugal has a good display of printing material, gold and silver ore, glassware and pottery, and handsomely decorated tapestry.

Sweden has very fine iron and tin and fancy earthenware. One of the most interesting features of the main building is the representations of rural and domestic life in Sweden and Norway, illustrated by stuffed birds dressed and grouped to suit the scene. These are so novel and so natural as to attract much attention, and many hundreds of persons have approached or walked around them, thinking they were really alive.

Turkey has tobacco and pipes and carpets.

Switzerland has the finest and most curious watches, some of which, of perfect organization, are as small as a half dime, and are set in canes and pencils.

Egypt shows cotton, dyes of all colors, pods of the celebrated mumma, fruits of her climate, such as dates, pomegranates, and tamarinds, and a very fine case of silk goods, and cocoons at work. The Khedive has sent a special case of embroidered saddles and bridles and trappings for horses and dromedaries. There are innumerable photographic views of the Pyramids, the Sphynx, and the ancient cities of that oldest of all nations.

The Argentine Republic shows the best lot of leather.

Hanover has the largest and best collection of velvets, in a glass case 40 feet high and 15 wide, of all colors and of handsome arrangement. It is one of the most gaudy shows on exhibition.

As was expected, Spain has the best tobacco and China the best tea.

Africa sends the lion, the ostrich, and crocodile, in the skin, also rice and cotton.

Russia has a very general display of grains, grasses, woods, fruits, flax, minerals, furs, and skins. In all these it is equal to that of the majority of other foreign nations.

I was about to forget one other remarkable individual contribution: that of Paxson, Comfort & Co., of Philadelphia, wholesale undertakers, agents, etc., for Stein Burial Caskets, Monuments, etc. They show a splendid large case of shrouds, materials for trimming, etc., fine enough almost to tempt some people to make arrangements for their own burial. I was surprised to learn from what great distance they constantly have orders for magnificent caskets and trimmings. This is carrying style to the utmost limit. And I suppose it is all right. People who make a god of this world should get all out of it they can, and a fashionable burial is about the last display that can be made. Perhaps some of the relatives hope that when their beloved dead arise they will make a fine appearance in the costly garments in which they were consigned to the grave.

The art gallery, or memorial hall, is the most popular resort of the exhibition. Thousands of persons of all ranks and ages, with descriptive catalogue in hand, constantly throng its galleries and press along its promenades, a very small proportion of whom seat themselves for quiet or thorough examination of anything they see. The absorbing idea, with a majority, seems to be to see as much as possible in a given time. This is a fair estimate of popular appreciation of art. The building proper is 365 feet long, 210 feet wide, and 59 feet high, built of granite, iron, and glass, with marble floor. It has an annex of about the same dimensions constructed of brick, iron, and glass, and of similar style of architecture. The chief building consists of four splendid pavilions, at the four corners, connected by two parallel arcades, one inside and the other outside. At the middle, on the long side, a large hall, with pavilion fronts at either end, runs through the building. These fronts have three immense doors, all close together. At the center inside, where the galleries converge, there is a hall 84 feet square. This and the annex together afford 135,000 square feet of wall space for paintings, and 40,000 feet of floor space for sculpture, all of which is filled. The pavilions are crowned at the corners with marble eagles of tremendous size, and the dome with a life size statue of Columbia. At the front entrance, as you pass into the main building hall, are the marble statues of Washington of the daughter of Zion weeping over Jerusalem, of Eve, of Thetis with her child Achilles, bronze statues, of large size, of Bismarck and McMahon, and a life size portrait of Lincoln. All these are excellent and their prominence is in good taste. This large hall is filled with the finest specimens of art from all the nations, but I can mention no more of them.

To be brief, the United States has 1,500 specimens of oil painting and sculpture; Great Britain has 310; France, 511; Germany, 185; Austria, 167; Belgium, 290; Netherlands, 169; Italy, 518; Spain, 300; Russia, 100; with smaller contributions from all other countries. This does not include photographs; they are exhibited in the "photographic hall." In this amount of display from different nations there is necessarily a very great variety of design and of style of execution. This adds interest to the scene. There is also as great a difference of appreciation of the merits of the exhibits. I will mention only a few of those, of each nation, which, struck me as of the highest class of art. In the United States department, in oil: "St. Paul at Athens," "The Shadow of a great Rock in a weary Land," represented by a weary female pilgrim stretching herself out under the shadow of an immense overhanging rock, situated in an open desert; three associate scenes called "The Cross and the World," illustrating the wisdom of the choice of the boy, who, at the beginning of life, represented in scene 1, chose the cross. In No. 2, he is seen climbing mountains, and crossing streams, but, with eye fixed on the cross, he marches onward. In No. 3, he approaches the end, represented by the world terminating at the sea of death, where are angels awaiting his arrival. These are very large, and come nearer speaking out on canvas than any paintings I have ever seen. The "Battle of Gettysburg" is the largest scene in our department, and is very splendidly executed, but not being in harmony with the design and home peculiarities of the piece, I did not admire it much. In sculpture: "Christ in the Sepulchre," the "Crucifixion," "Annunciation," "Jeremiah," "Helen of Troy," and "Ruth" are worthy of mention.

In the Great Britain department in oil: "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," "Portrait of Earl Russell," and "Two Women shall be Grinding at the Mill."

In the Russian department, in oil: "Prince Gortchakoff," "Blessing the Bride before Marriage" (a National custom and an Imperial scene), and the "Amulet Seller."

In the Italian department, in sculpture: "Infancy of Moses," "Death of Abel," "Angelica," "The Orphan," "Faith," and "St. John the Baptist."

In the department of Austria, in oil: "Venice Paying Homage to Catarina Cornaro," a scene at court, 36x15 feet.

In the German department, in oil: "Capitulation of Sedan" (very large), "Queen Esther," "Christ appearing to Mary Magdelene," and "Columbus Discovering America."

In the department of Belgium, in oil: "Night of St. Bartholomew," 30x16 feet.

The scriptural representations, both in oil and sculpture, are the best and most admired of all, so that the highest art is made tributary to religious sentiment.

I was much amused at a statue in bronze, representing the "Abolition of Slavery in the United States." A negro held in his left hand the proclamation of Lincoln, of 1863; while on either arm were bands and chains freshly broken asunder. The statue had none of the characteristic features of a negro. His face and arms were those of a white man and there was nothing but the wool of the head to indicate he was a negro. An oil painting in another department represents the same glorious redemption of the "man and brother." And you may be assured he is regarded up here as a "man and brother." In this scene there are several chain-bound negroes listening to the reading of the "proclamation of freedom," whose chains burst asunder, some of whom are embraced affectionately by their wives. The men look like some of the Egyptians at the Centennial, and the women are simply handsome, Spanish looking females. These artists ought to travel South, and take a look at the negro as he is and was at the time of the great salvation from torture and death.

The art gallery, as a whole, is the finest exhibition the world ever saw. Artists here, who were at Vienna, Paris, and London, say the Centennial Art Exhibition is, by far, the best ever made.

The American department in paintings is, at least, equal to any other, either in beauty of expression and sentiment, or in mechanical skill. The court scenes of some of the foreign nations are larger and more brilliant, but in life-like representation, and in accuracy and delicacy of execution, America is not behind any of them.

The building is grand; the display is magnificent. But I have one very serious objection to the art exhibition. There is, both in painting and sculpture, too much display of nakedness, especially in the French, Italian, and United States departments. There are too many "Girls in Bath," and too many Cleopatras and Venuses. It is a disgrace to those governments, and to the authorities of the Centennial, to exhibit so much nudity. It is an evidence of a sensuous taste, not creditable to artist, contributor, or managers. The grounds around the art gallery are handsomely ornamented. The building cost nearly $2,000,000, and belongs to the State of Pennsylvania, and not to the Centennial commissioners.

MACHINERY HALL.

This is the second largest building on the grounds, being 1,402 feet long and 360 feet wide. The foundation is of masonry, and the superstructure of solid, plain wood, bound together by iron ties. Besides this, there are projections and outside boiler houses and machinery houses, and a large annex 208x240 feet. No article is shown here unless accompanied by the machinery that made it. The whole machinery of the entire building is run by an immense engine, situated at the center of the building, called the "Corliss Engine," which has a wheel 30 feet in diameter, and a capacity of 2,500 horse power. It runs daily, the engineer told me, with 1,500 horse power. All the machines on exhibition which run by steam or horse power are connected with this, and stop when this stops. The engine was made at Providence, R. I. In attempting to give some idea of the most important and novel exhibits in this building, I will classify them into national departments, mentioning such only as interested me specially. Of course, in all the buildings, many things, both curious and meritorious, escaped my attention. Others failed to interest me particularly, because of my want of taste or knowledge to examine or understand them.

Great Britain and Ireland exhibit machinery for making rope and coarse linen fabrics of flax. The entire process from raw material to goods is shown. The factory is at Leeds. A cotton factory and cloth making exhibit, from Manchester, is quite interesting. J. & P. Coats show machinery for making, spooling, and stamping their celebrated thread. The Walter Printing Press, in full play, attracts much attention. England has other displays of interest, but they are similar to those made by other nations.

Russia shows a very large and fine collection of mining and manufacturing instruments together with the manufactured articles of iron, steel, brass, and wire, and the ores taken from the mines. The exhibit is very large, and shows Russia to be rich in mineral wealth, and up with the progress of the age in developing it. The display of rope near this is perhaps the best of the hall. A very creditable display of artillery wagons and guns is also made by Russia.

Brazil makes the best exhibit of silk, floss and thread, and exemplifies the process by taking the cocoons, submerging them in hot water, unwinding the floss from the cocoon, and making it into thread. The cocoons are of different colors. The worms are shown at work in glass cases, and in their different stages of propagation and growth.

Belgium has a machine for embroidering and braiding, which is regarded much the best on exhibition; also a huge machine for boring out the beds of rivers and canals.

Sweden shows a splendid lot of fine looking machinery, from Stockholm, for all best finished work in iron, steel, and brass; making screws, bolts, saws, and everything that can be made out of these metals; also very curious "apparatus for medical gymnastics or Swedish movement cure." It is a new thing under the sun, unless the surgical institute at Indianapolis can show something like it. There are many devices, and all of the finest material.

France has a silk weaving machine from Lyons, a brass manufactory, toilet soap manufactory, and an ingenious machine, of small size, for cutting and embellishing fancy, fine jewelry.

Germany has an "atmospheric gas engine," said to be the best in the world; also large display of iron and steel articles, similar to those of Sweden, a machine for making bricks and pottery ware from Berlin, and the big gun of the entire show. It is a breech-loading cannon, made of steel, weighing 104 tons, with a conical ball 1,000 pounds in weight.

"UNTIL THE DAY BREAKS."

Will it pain me there forever,
Will it leave me happy never,
This weary, weary gnawing of the old chill pain?
Will the sweet yet bitter yearning
That at my heart is burning
Throb on and on forever, and forever be in vain?

O weary, weary longing!
O sad, sweet memories thronging
From the sunset-lighted woodlands of the clear and holy past!
O hope and faith undying!
Shall I never cease from sighing?
Must my lot among the shadows forever more be cast?

Shall I never see the glory
That the Christ-knight of old story,
Sir Galahad, my hero, saw folded round his sleep?
The full, completed beauty
With which God gilds duty duly,
For hearts that burn toward heaven from the everlasting deep—

From the conflict ceasing never,
From the toil increasing ever?
From the hard and bitter battle with the cold and callous world?
Will the sky grow never clearer?
Will the hills draw never nearer
Where the golden city glitters in its rainbow mists impearled?

Ah, me! that golden city!
Can God then have no pity?
I have sought it with such yearning for so many bitter years!
And yet the idlis' blue glimmer
And the portals' golden shimmer
Fade ever with the evening, and the distance never nears!

O weary, weary living!
O foemen unforgiving!
O enemies that meet me in the earth and in the air!
O flesh that clogs my yearning!
O weakness aye returning!
Will ye never cease to trouble? Will ye never, never spare?

Will my soul grow never purer?
Will my hope be never surer?
Will the mist-wreath and the cliff gates from my path be never rolled?
Shall I never, never gain it,
That last ecstatic minute,
When the journey's guerdon wakes me behind those hills of gold?

Alas! the clouds grow darker,
And the hills loom ever starker
Across the leaden mist-screen of the heavens dull and gray.
Thou must learn to bear thy burden,
Thou must wait to win thy guerdon,
Until the daybreak cometh, and the sorrows flee away.

Centenary College.

MR. EDITOR: On the morning of the ninth of July, in company with a number of friends from our present home, the beautiful town of Clinton, we left for Jackson, a town famous for literature and learning, and where the sciences and arts grow and flourish as luxuriantly as the beech and magnolia of the surrounding country. The heavens being overcast with clouds to shield us from the hot rays of a July's sun, and the roads being in most excellent condition, our morning's drive of thirteen miles was rendered very pleasant, and we reached the classical town in a very short time. On reaching Jackson, in company with our esteemed friend and brother, Rev. James A. Godfrey, a man, by the way, equal in proportion to any occasion, we drove up to the large and beautiful residence of President Andrews, had our horses and vehicles stored away, refreshed ourselves a short while, and then reached the church in time to see the Sabbath school assembled, and to hear some short and appropriate addresses to the children by the Rev. Mr. Goodwyn, of Shreveport, La., and the Rev. R. H. Rivers, D. D., of Pulaski, Tenn. Both of these gentlemen are men of very happy spirits, with faces full of smiles and sunshine, and proved quite interesting to the children and young people. The Sabbath school is in fine condition, and is very ably superintended by that most admirable Christian gentleman, Prof. Wiley, of Centenary College.

The exercises of the Sabbath school being over, we repaired to the college chapel, where we had the pleasure of seeing and hearing for the first time the celebrated Dr. W. E. Munsey, who preached the annual sermon to a very large audience, taking for his text a part of the one hundred and second Psalm, beginning with the twenty-fifth verse, and reading: "Of old hast thou laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the work of thy hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure; yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed. But thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end. The children of thy servants shall continue, and their seed shall be established before thee." When the celebrated orator appeared on the rostrum we were very agreeably disappointed in his personal appearance, as we were expecting, judging from what we had heard, to see an old specimen of the genus homo; but in lieu thereof beheld a man over six feet high, well proportioned, with fine face, erect and elegant form, graceful movements, with few exceptions, and commanding appearance. We feel that we would be doing great injustice should we undertake, in any way, a description of the able sermon preached by this eminent divine from the above text, for in our mind his production was in keeping with the sublime text on which it was founded in beauty, grandeur, and sublimity. He opened the volume, both of nature and revelation, and caused light and truth to shine forth from the pages of each, and commingle in loving harmony. He drew a striking contrast between natural and supernatural existence, pictured the decay of the one and the eternity of the other, and showed that God possesses the latter, that he is "from everlasting to everlasting," and that his children are to endure and enjoy the future of his eternity with him. He also drew a most beautiful and consoling picture of a ruling Providence in all the machinery of the vast universe, and assured us that God had not created the world and left it like a clock, after being wound up, to run on independently of him.

On Monday evening there was an exhibition of the preparatory department. The exercises of this department were very good, indeed, reflected much credit upon both students and faculty, and proved highly interesting to the large audience of friends and visitors.

The next morning prizes and diplomas were presented to the graduates by their respective societies. In this matter the societies were very ably represented by Mr. J. Simrall, of Woodville, Miss., and the graduates by Mr. W. G. Owen, of Iberville parish, La. The speeches of these young gentlemen were highly applicable, and did much credit to the minds and hearts of the young authors.

After the young men were through there was a short intermission, during which time the alumni held a meeting, and returned in a few minutes, to inform the audience, through their worthy president, Col. D. C. Hardee, of Clinton, La., that the Hon. Mr. Spencer, who had been invited to address the alumni, could not be present, but that the Rev. Dr. Munsey had agreed to fill his place, and would be in in a few moments. While waiting for Dr. Munsey Rev. James H. Muse, an honored member of the alumni, was called to the rostrum, and delighted the audience with some hallowed reminiscences connected with the college. Mr. Muse seemed full, and, as he is a man of very superior ability, he was no doubt prepared to entertain the audience with many rich things; but when he saw the great orator of the age coming he retired from the rostrum with becoming grace and modesty. Dr. Munsey then stepped upon the rostrum, and quietly informed his auditors that he could not offer them a literary address, as he did not expect to be called on for such when he left home, and so had none such with him, but that he would just scrap a little from three popular lectures: on the Ideal of Beauty, Art, and Music. Now, Mr. Editor, we shall not undertake an impossibility here, which is a description of that masterly address with our feeble pen, for we think we had as well try to paint the rainbow, and we are neither artist nor artisan to begin with. If the doctor only gave us the scraps, we cannot imagine what the whole would be. From what we had heard of this wonderful man our expectations were raised very high to begin with, but he soon rose in strength and grandeur far above our most sanguine anticipations, and, giant like, led his electrified audience captive at his will through unexplored regions of rare beauty and profound thought, and displayed the mighty power of his great genius by carrying his captivated hearers with him, and causing them to see the beautiful creations of his powerful imagination. On the harmony of music he reached forth his mighty wand and marshaled in beautiful order everything in the universe that makes a sound or breathes a whisper, from the highest archangel that strikes the golden harps in heaven to the tiniest insect that hums upon the earth. The peroration consisted of a most wonderful description of the flight of the lost soul through outer darkness, after being dashed out of the universe of God by the hand of the Almighty, because of its not being in harmony with heaven. On, on it flies through the blackness of darkness forever, without finding any place on which to rest its weary pinions. When he closed, the writer, for one, felt like he had been turned loose in high and lofty regions, and was gradually sinking back to earth again, because his wings were too weak to remain there.

On Tuesday evening the exercises of the societies were celebrated, and were ably represented by the following young gentlemen: Messrs. J. W. Chambers, of Baton Rouge, La., and J. D. Wall, of Clinton, La., the "Franklin," and Messrs. J. B. Shelmire, of Baton Rouge, La., and F. Foster, of DeSoto, La., the "Union." The speeches of all these young men were very fine, and indicated much care and thought in preparation.

After the young men were through the Rev. Dr. Rivers, of Pulaski, Tenn., appeared on the rostrum, and after a feeling allusion to his pleasant associations with the college when connected with it, about twenty years ago, and assuring the young gentlemen that he could sympathize with them in their toil and labor as well as in their joy and pleasure, he proceeded to address the societies on the "Harmony of Truth." Dr. Rivers is a fine looking man, a very magnetic speaker, and moves in no ordinary sphere of mind and thought. His address proved to be highly interesting to all who heard him, and elicited frequent and loud applause from the large assembly. As Dr. Munsey had shown that music was the harmony of the physical world, so Dr. Rivers attempted to show that truth was the harmony of the moral world. A want of harmony was falsehood. Nothing which lacked the element of harmony was true. Harmony governs the works of nature and proclaims that God is true. We have had this highly interesting gentleman in our midst for several days of late, and have had the pleasure of being with and of hearing him several times, and feel that we have been very highly favored thereby. His lecture at the Town Hall, delivered by request of the young men of Clinton, was received with great applause. Seldom have we listened to an address containing more of the useful and the beautiful than did this charming lecture to our young men. The public were invited, and the audience was a large and appreciative one. Dr. Rivers preached for us four times in Clinton. He carries with him to his home in Tennessee the kindly recollections of all who heard him. Long will the Clinton church remember the fervor and eloquence of his discourses. It is not the intellect alone that feasts upon his utterances, but it is the heart that is made satisfied with his holy teaching.

Wednesday morning was commencement day, and the audience was welcomed in a Latin salutatory by Mr. Charles Kilbourne, of Clinton, La. Then followed addresses from the other members of the graduating class: Messrs. P. H. Jones and T. S. Jones, of Jackson, La., W. G. Owen, of Iberville parish, La., and Charles Barrier, of Philadelphia, Miss., after which Mr. Charles Kilbourne came upon the rostrum again to deliver a historical poem, and Mr. P. H. Jones to deliver the valedictory. The productions of all these young gentlemen satisfied all present that their authors were worthy of the high honor being then conferred upon them.

The young men being through, President Andrews delivered the baccalaureate address to the graduates. This address was rich in beauty and thought, and abounded with much that will no doubt linger long with the young men to whom it was uttered, and upon whom the president lavished so much praise for their zealous work and gentlemanly department.

Bishop Keener then arose and announced the opening of the college in the fall under the management of the same faculty, with the exception of Prof. Holcomb, who had resigned, and Prof. Wilson had been elected to fill his place; and the exercises closed to the satisfaction of all who attended. A Revival.

MR. EDITOR: I like the letter from Bro. J. W. Rush in the ADVOCATE of the seventh instant. He always writes well, and to me is both a suggestive writer and talker. In this last letter he has hit upon a rich endowment idea, a plan which at once commends itself as being practical and to the point, when he says: "What our Southern colleges need most at this time is to be enshrined in the hearts of our Southern people." "Enshrined in the hearts of our Southern people."

Yes, "love is a splendid endowment when strong enough to produce earnest prayer and sustained effort for success." Rich as is the Vanderbilt endowment, yet Greensboro may have an endowment of zeal, love, faith, and prayer that shall cause her peace to flow as a river. "And this endowment can be given, and given at once," and no one shall be the poorer thereby.

Alas! how few talk of our church schools—how seldom are they mentioned in prayer. Only once in a half dozen years have I heard any allusion to church schools and religious education from the pulpit.

Not long since I heard a brother preach on "Female Power and Influence." He said once he had been rich, and was constantly adding to his wealth, his daughters in the mean time were going on uneducated. "After a while the Yankees and the devil got all the money, and my daughters were uneducated." The sermon was a peculiar one, from a peculiar man, and delivered in a peculiar style. Evidently this preacher is giving to our church, schools, and colleges his zeal, love, and prayers. In the "preacher's tent" at the camp meeting he talked much of our "Alabama Conference Female College." In the sermon he said: "If need be, educate your boys at the plow and hoe, and your daughters in the college in Tuskegee."

I asked him his opinion of Bro. Massey. "Bro. Massey, Who is Bro. Massey?" "You do not mean to say you do not know who Bro. Massey is after preaching that sermon this morning." "Yes I do, for I do not know anything of such a man." "He is the president of the college, recently elected." "Well, then, I think well of him, or any other brother that they may elect president, and I will gladly recommend them, and pray for them, too, no matter if I never have or never do see them. We have Christian gentlemen in charge of our church schools, and I can indorse them."

With a Conference of such men as this veteran, and Bro. J. W. Rush, and such laymen as Bro. Rush speaks of in his letter, our schools will be amply endowed.

"The Alabama Conference Female College" is in a fair way to receive this rich endowment, and at once." Yes, Bro. Rush, I cross the waters of the Alabama river to bear to your snug home in Prattville the glad news of a revival in the interest of our college in Tuskegee.

The Board of Directors have sprung the question in this country by electing Prof. John Massey as president for a term of years. In less than one hour after his election he was at work using the telegraph to secure such teachers as he desired. Having completed the organization of an able faculty, his next work was to secure the interest of the church in behalf of the college. This he has already done to a large extent. Since his election he has visited twenty-one towns and cities; attended four District Conferences, one camp meeting and one college commencement; and in all this travel he has never asked a man to pledge him his patronage, or a girl to pledge that she would enter his school. Certainly he has talked of education, shown its importance, etc.; and then answered questions about the Tuskegee College. The prospect for a good opening is very flattering. The friends of the college in the town are highly elated. They say Bro. Massey will succeed. Hopes are high. It amounts to a general awakening. There is a revival in progress. A part of two days and a night spent in Tuskegee enabled me to see what this working man is doing now.

The college building is undergoing a thorough cleaning from garret to cellar—whitewash, paint, soap, and water being freely used. The furniture is being repaired, the grounds cleaned, the groves trimmed, fences rebuilt, etc. The sleeping rooms are to be so improved as to secure better ventilation. Prof. Massey is doing all in his power (and he seems to be fully able to meet the demands) to make every arrangement for the comfort and interests of pupils and patrons.

The charges in this school are less than in most Southern female colleges, and the advantages of the school are very great. The building is a large one, the promenade grounds, shaded by large trees, are beautiful, the town remarkably healthy, and the community refined, intellectual, and pious.

Tuskegee affords many natural advantages for acquiring an education, and that which nature does not furnish will be supplied by such teachers as Prof. John Massey, Rev. E. L. Loveless; Prof. C. J. Kierulff, Mrs. Kierulff, Mrs. E. F. Massey, Miss M. A. Barker, and Mrs. Brown.

With unflinching fidelity will this body of teachers look after the physical, mental, and moral interests of all who may be committed to their care. M. P.

Cooper Institute.

MR. EDITOR: Dear Sir, please permit me to call the attention of your many readers to an offer made in the catalogue of Cooper Institute to young ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church who wish to work their way through college. It is this: the school will give them their tuition, and I will pay their board at the rate of $10 per month, and give them a chance to make the money after they are out of school.

We have the assistance of friends and officers of the public schools of the State pledged to us, and I have no doubt but that schools can be had for them each vacation. I have tried the plan, and it will do.

Cooper Institute is a large and well-organized school. Being a creature of the times, it has done its own building, collected its own libraries, apparatus, and geological specimens, and paid its own faculty. In short, it asks nothing of the public but to come and enjoy its many advantages. To this invitation it has had the response of eight different States, and an attendance of from one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and sixty-eight during the past ten years. Our young ministers have and may enjoy its benefits. We mean business. We have the means, but it is the Lord's, and we intend to turn it to his account. Our watchword is labor, and our aim is the elevation of the standard of the Christian ministry. For catalogue and further information, address,

REV. C. W. BARRIER.

HALEYVILLE, Miss., July 31, 1876.

OBITUARIES.

Correspondents, please write names and dates very distinctly. We follow copy on proper names.

Obituary notices should be forwarded promptly and immediately. Give only points of general interest, such as will help the living. Details of funeral services, and such phrases as "mourn their loss," etc., are not edifying. Verses, either original or select, not admissible in this department. Give the locality distinctly and in full. In the case of infants only a simple announcement of the death, with names and dates, will be published.

☞ All obituaries received are published as soon as convenient. If, after a reasonable time, any such communication fail to appear, let a duplicate be sent instead of a complaint.

IN MEMORIAM.

THE lives of the holy leave the most precious memories. And the record of their various experiences is the richest legacy they have left the world. But these memories are doubly dear when traced in an example of spotless piety in the life of one who sustained to us the endearing name of mother. The image of her Christ-like example is daguerreotyped on the hearts where her name is so tenderly enshrined.

My dear mother, Mrs. SARAH WOODWARD, passed away from earth, to her long-coveted home in heaven, August 11, 1876.

I hope, as the recollections of her many excellent qualities arise vividly before my mind, I will be permitted to speak of her, as of another, without the imputation of undue partiality. She was born in Kershaw district, S. C., December 28, 1799; was married to Robert S. Woodward in 1817; professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1820. About this time they removed to Clark county, Ala., but finally settled in Marengo county, where my father died, at the age of thirty nine years—having been a local preacher about ten years. My birth occurring a short time after my father's death, my mother was left under this dark cloud of widowhood, with a family of eight children, most of whom were quite young. There was now no father's gentle rebuke to restrain, nor smile to cheer, nor strong arm to support and defend her children. How could she meet their wants alone, and perform the work of rearing a family without a father's counsel and help? She was fully alive to all her responsibilities of every character. But she regarded the work of training her children for heaven as paramount to every other consideration. With an unswerving purpose to adopt no measures, nor receive any counsel that she did not consider consonant with the will of God, and with a fixed purpose to let duty ever be her watchword, and God's word and spirit her counselors, she laid her burdened heart, with all her lacerated affections, at the foot of the cross, and sought the guidance of the Spirit of God. She was wonderfully sustained; and, from that hour through life, to do the will of God seemed to be her meat and drink. She esteemed his service her chief delight, and the assurance of his loving favor made every duty a pleasure, and every cross a blessing. Her meek and lovely spirit ever told to the world that Christ was to her a satisfying portion. Few women possessed a calmer, clearer, and more deliberate judgment, combined with such inflexible integrity of character. Hence her family government was firm, yet there was happily blended with that firmness the tenderest cords of sympathy and affection, which breathed such pious solicitude for the religious welfare of her children that obedience was not only irresistible, but a pleasure. For one burdened with so many cares, she read extensively and understandingly. But the word of God was her daily companion, and next to the Bible was the Guide to Holiness, and the lives of such holy women as Mrs. Fletcher, Hester Ann Rogers, Madame Guyan, etc. Her watchful care and ceaseless vigilance manifested for the social and religious welfare of her children knew no abatement. She always seemed to me as God's sentinel at the post of duty, whose constant and close communion with him gave her a kind of spiritual intuition as to when to chide and when to encourage us in the path of duty. She was ever keenly alive to the dangers that encompass the young, hence a word of seasonable warning was often given us against the ensnaring allurements of gay and fascinating company and worldly amusements. Under her pious influence all of her children were brought into the church, with the assurance of divine acceptance, before they reached their majority. Not one of the eight, that I am aware of, has ever departed from the faith. Two of her children preceded her to the better land—a daughter, at the age of sixteen years, and the oldest son, who was a local preacher in Texas. She loved the house of God, and was constant in attendance upon the public and social means of grace, as long as her health would permit. She was peculiarly gifted in prayer, and often led the devotional exercises of the prayer meeting with great efficiency. Her prayers were always fervent, pathetic, and powerful in their impressions of nearness to God, but never boisterous. Owing to enfeebled health, and the infirmities of age, she had been able to attend the house of God but seldom for many years. But her long-cherished love for the "Lord's day" enabled her still to make the Sabbath a delight. She saw more beauty, more sanctity, more of the goodness of God, and more of heaven in the Sabbath than any one I ever knew. She always rose earlier on that day than any other. The first gray shadows of the sacred twilight were always greeted with her song of "Welcome, Sweet Day of Rest," etc., which, as it floated on the ambient air, was the dulcet call to morning prayers. And well do I remember our Sabbath evening reviews of the Sabbath-school lesson and the sermon. Her timely suggestions and practical applications were well fitted to fasten the truth upon our young minds. Nor can I ever forget a secluded spot in the forest, where she often took me in the evening twilight to pray. The soft pressure of her hand on my head, as she asked the benedictions of heaven on her baby boy, is as fresh to-day as if it had never been removed. I do not mention these facts alone to satisfy a loving tenderness, but because it is due to the precious memory of one the influence of whose holy life gives inspiration to my weary heart amid all the discouragements of life. I have exchanged near one thousand letters with her since I left the maternal roof. Every one contained some message, "fitly spoken," in the way of admonition or encouragement to faithfulness in the work of the ministry. She desired to know, at all times, my troubles and hinderances in the way of my success, that she might "carry them to Jesus." On one occasion, while passing under the rod of affliction, I received a letter from her to this effect: "My son, I am sensibly impressed that you are passing through some severe trial or affliction of some kind, but I am living at the feet of Jesus in your behalf." Her last years, though attended with great feebleness of body, and frequent attacks of great physical suffering, were accompanied with corresponding resignation, patience, and sweetness of temper. During her last illness she was confined to her bed for several weeks, and could converse but little at a time, yet her powers of mind were perfect to the last. She lived now principally in her own thoughts and sweet communions with her Savior, her sun slowly sinking beyond the horizon, but the sky was clear. When she spoke, it was about "departing and being with Jesus." Friend after friend entered to receive her parting blessing, and each on retiring, expressed by words or tears the consciousness of the holy influence pervading her room. Occasionally she would say, "Now close the door, and permit no one to enter for a while, that I may be alone with Jesus." On one occasion, brother said, "Mother, it troubles me to see you so anxious to depart. If God should see fit to detain you a while longer, for the good of some poor soul, would you not be resigned to do so?" "Oh," said she, "if I could be the humble instrument of saving one poor soul, I would be willing to suffer on for a hundred years." On another occasion, after some requests to see some loved ones, I asked if she had any other requests to make. After a moment's silence, she replied: "Only let Jesus be given—none but Jesus be given." Then followed such an overwhelming influence of the divine presence that approximated as nearly the transports of Peter and his comrades on the mount of transfiguration, we believe, as God ever permits his people to enjoy this side of heaven. A short time before she fell asleep in Jesus, while suffering from a severe paroxysm, she inquired if brother could not relieve her, and seeing from his expression that he could not, she said: "Pray for me." Then she lifted her eyes to heaven, as if in most fervent prayer for a moment; then, as a sweet calm settled on her brow, she said: "Now let me die." "Pray that Jesus may embrace me in his arms." Then raising her feeble hands together, she said: "Glory to God and the Lamb forever!" And thus she passed away quietly into the arms of the Savior whom she had loved so well and trusted so faithfully, for fifty-six years. She died at the residence of my brother, Rev. T. C. Woodward, in Marengo county, Ala., in the ripe age of seventy-six years, seven months, and thirteen days.

"Mother! though lost to human sight,
I feel thy spirit lingering near,
As softly as I feel the light,
That trembles through the atmosphere."

R. S. WOODWARD.

BRANDON, Miss., Sept. 1, 1876.

ANN M. AYERS, nee Smith, was born in Middletown, N. J., September 2, 1799. Her parents moved to Brooklyn, N. Y., and were among the first members of the first Methodist church in that place. She was converted in her thirteenth year. In 1815 she was united in marriage with Dr. Ayers, and became with him a member of John Street Methodist church, New York, of which she was for years an active member. With her husband and family, the latter consisting at four boys and two girls, she moved to Texas in 1831, and at once was identified with the church of her early choice, and continued in this new country that life of purity which marked her early profession and experience. It was the lot of the writer to have known Sister Ayers for nearly thirty years, and he can testify to the purity of her Christian character, her sound judgment, her active and unwavering zeal in the Savior's cause. At home, in the church, in the social circle, on a journey, her calm Christian spirit was ever the same. We were with her often during her last illness. She was not known, amid all her suffering, to utter a single murmur. We always found her calm and peaceful, yet rejoicing. Many words she uttered in those last hours will be cherished as precious legacies by her surviving family. As we stood by her bedside in that final hour, one of her daughters said: "In looking back upon my mother's life I am unable to remember a word or an action that in this hour I would wish to have recalled." Words can add nothing to a testimony like this. "Her children rise up and call her blessed." Her husband and her six children still abide on earth. She was the first of the family circle who came to Texas to reach the better land. It was her dying prayer that all of them should meet her on the other shore. May it be answered.

HER PASTOR.

MRS. SARAH ANN DIXON, wife of William E. Dixon, departed this life at Pine Grove, Hillsboro county, Ala., August 24, 1876, at the age of forty-one years. Her maiden name was Lewis. She was converted at the age of fifteen, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and she was a consistent and devoted Christian until her death. In the church and community she was most highly respected, and her presence and influence will be greatly missed; but her husband and six daughters have been very sorely bereaved. But our loss is her infinite gain; and may our loss be so sanctified that it may prove a lasting benefit. Her last illness was brief, and her death sudden, but she was ready, and passed away in holy triumph. May her afflicted loved ones imitate her life, and may their end be like hers.

PASTOR.

CHARLIE R., son of Jesse A. and Maria L. Walls, was born March 1, 1871, and died August 10, 1876. Little Charlie was a sprightly boy—his parents' only son. His death was the first that occurred in their family—his parents' first sorrow. Weep not for his death placed him beyond the reach of temptation and sorrow; and though on earth he "faded like a gentle flower," he lives and blooms in the paradise of God. Meet there your little angel.

J. R. P.

John Wesley said, when he was young, he was sure of everything; in a few years, having been mistaken a thousand times, he was not half so sure as he was before; and at that time he was hardly sure of anything but what God had revealed to man.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1876.

THE ORIGIN OF DIMPLES.

One morning, in the blossoming May,
A child was sporting mid the flowers,
Till, wearied out with restless play,
He laid him down to dream away
The long and scorching noontide hours.

At length an angel's unseen form
Parted the air with a conscious thrill,
And poised itself, like presence warm,
Above the boy, who was slumbering still.
Never before had so fair a thing
Graced the swift speed of its abiding wing,
And, gazing down with a wonder rare,
On the beautiful face of the dreamer there,
The angel stooped and kissed the child.

Then lo! at the touch the infant smiled,
And just where the unseen lips had pressed,
A dimple lay in the sweet unrest,
Like a ripple waked from its light repose
On a streamlet's breast when the soft wind blows;
And the angel passed from the sleeping one,
For his mission to earth that day was done,
A fair face bent above the boy—
It must have been the child's own mother;
No fever would such pride and joy
Have lit the face of any other.
And, while she gazed, the unquiet air
Grew tremulous with a whispered prayer.
Anon it ceased, and the boy awoke,
And a smile of love o'er his features broke
The mother marked with holy joy
The dimpling cheek of the darling boy;
And caught him up, while a glad surprise
Stole like a star to her midnight eyes,
And she whispered low, as she gently smiled,
"I know an angel has kissed my child."

"Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

The origin of the most precious of the hymns of Charles Wesley has been very variously described by those who have undertaken inquiries concerning it. There is a story of a controversy between Wesley and Toplady which resulted in the two hymns for which they are famous. One writer says that a little bird, which, in attempting to escape from a hawk, flew into his study through the open window, suggested to Wesley the theme of his production. Neither of these stories is satisfactory, for while either of them would perhaps account for the prevailing sentiment of the hymn it does not account for the peculiar imagery employed in its development. Mr. Long, whose valuable work on the history of hymns has already been reviewed in these columns, claims to have reliable information on the subject. His statement is certainly a plausible one without regard to the source from which he professes to have derived his knowledge, while the fact that he gives the names of the two persons who alone link him with an eye-witness renders it almost certain that he has discovered the facts in the case.

The brothers John and Charles Wesley, with Richard Pilmore, were one evening holding a twilight meeting on the common, when they were attacked by a mob and fled from its fury for their lives. The first place of refuge that they found, after having been for some time separated, was a hedge-row near at hand behind, which they hid a few minutes, protecting themselves from serious injury by the missiles that fell like hail about them by clasping their hands above their heads as they lay with their faces in the dust. As night drew on, the darkness enabled them to leave their temporary retreat for a house at some distance. They took their way at last to a spring house, where, in comparative security they waited for their pursuers to weary of seeking them. "Here they struck a light with a flint stone, dressed their soiled and tattered garments, and after quenching their thirst bathed their hands and faces in the water that bubbled from the spring and flowed away in a sparkling streamlet. Then it was that Charles Wesley was inspired to write, "Jesus, lover of my soul," with a bit of lead he hammered into a pencil.

These circumstances beautifully illustrate the hymn, giving to almost every line a reality that makes it peculiarly significant to every loving Christian heart. They had fled here their enemies, and found shelter from danger; he sang,

"Jesus, lover of my soul,
Let me to Thy bosom fly."

No figure is so commonly used with reference to the assaults of the wicked as that of the line

"While the nearer waters roll," which is a favorite with the psalmist. The next line,

"While the tempest still is high,"

also reminds one of the sweet songs of Israel, but seems above the former appropriate, recalling, as it does, the storm of missiles that broke upon the hedge when they were concealed behind it. The same figure, carried still further, finds expression in the first of the first stanza:

"Hide me, O my Saviour hide,
Till the storm of life is past;
Safe into the haven guide,
O receive my soul at last."

There can be no doubt but that the little spring house suggested "the haven of eternal rest" for which the persecuted evangelist longed with unutterable desire. They had barely escaped death by flying to the only place of safety within their reach; what wonder then that the poet should exclaim,

"Other refuge have I none, Hangs my helpless soul on Thee;"

the thought with a shudder, of the loneliness of the first of their flight, which is touchingly indicated in the lines,

"Leave me not alone,
Still support and comfort me;"

The thought of the first two lines of this second stanza is repeated in the fifth and sixth, and followed by another reference to the period of their greatest peril. Christ, the only hope of the sinner, is addressed in the words,

"All my trust in Thee is stayed,
All my help from Thee I bring;"

and entreated to save his soul when in peril, as their bodies had been. He prays,

"Cover my defenseless head,
With the shadow of Thy wing."

The third verse, which is usually omitted, is a passionate appeal for aid in weakness and exhaustion:

"Wilt Thou not regard my call?
Wilt Thou not accept my prayer?
Lo! I sink, I faint, I fall!
Lo! on Thee I cast my care!"

Other, perhaps, with a reminiscence of the aid which they were powerless able to render one another,

"Know and own Thy gracious hand,
While I for Thy strength receive,
Hoping against hope I stand,
Dying, and behold I live!"

The sufficiency of the Savior in implied comparison with any human helper is finely brought out by the poet, who, like Paul, evidently glories in his own weakness:

"Thou, O Christ, art all I want;
More than all in Thee I find;
Raise the fallen, cheer the faint,
Heal the sick, and lead the blind
Just and holy is Thy name;
I am all unrighteousness;
False and full of sin I am,
Thou art full of truth and grace!"

The weakness of their condition recalls its cause, the "wounds and bruises" that have ever been symbolical of sin. These had been laved in the limpid water flowing at their feet, hence the strain:

"Plenteous grace in Thee is found,
Grace to cover all my sin;
Let the healing stream abound,
Make and keep me pure within!"

They had drunk, too, of the water, and as it had refreshed their fainting bodies would the Christian take refreshment from the water of life. This thought furnishes the climax of the hymn, than which a more inspiring could hardly be framed in words. It is the language of perfect confidence in the Redeemer as the source of eternal life. He sings, O how sublimely!

"Thou of life the fountain art;
Freely let me take of Thee;
Spring thou up within my heart,
Rise to all eternity."

The history of this hymn would fill volumes. It has entered more or less deeply into the inner life of hundreds of thousands of the Christians of the last century. It has resolved doubts, dispelled fears, allayed anxieties, and soothed sufferings, how often, how tenderly, who dares undertake to tell? A very touching incident in the last day of the life of the late President Finney has just appeared. It was the Sabbath. After tea, according to his custom, he was walking about his grounds with his wife, enjoying a glowing sky and a cool, refreshing breeze. Evening worship in the church near at hand which he himself had planned, and in which he had preached nearly forty years, had just begun. Presently there came floating out of the old sanctuary the familiar strains of the dear old hymn,

"Jesus, lover of my soul."

He quickly caught it, devoutly joined the invisible congregation, and kept them company to the end. Before the morning dawned, the prayer then breathed was answered, and he who had so long trusted in Christ was "at last" received into the bosom of his Savior.—Golden Rule.

John Paul Jones.

John Paul, the son of a gardener, was born July 6, 1747, at Abingband, Scotland. At the age of twelve years he went to sea. In the year 1773 the death of his brother, in Virginia, whose heir he was, induced him to settle in America. It was then he added to his name, and thenceforth was known as Paul Jones. This was done in compliment to one of the most noted statesmen of that day, and, in the love and gratitude it shadows forth, is a scathing reproach and a touching example to the people who could neglect in life and forget in death. It appears that before permanently settling in Virginia, moved by the restlessness of his old seafaring life, he wandered about the country, finally straying to North Carolina. There he became acquainted with two brothers, Willie and Allen Jones. They were both leaders in their day, and wise and honored in their generation. Allen Jones was an orator, and silver-tongued; Willie Jones, the foremost man of his State, and one of the most remarkable of his time. A short sketch of his public services will not be out of place. Educated abroad, a profound and elegant scholar, he was a thinker and actor rather than a speaker. Like Franklin and Jefferson, he, perhaps, owed his uncompromising republicanism to the abuses of royalty he had seen in the Old World. He served as Governor in 1778, refusing compensation; was in the Continental Congress of 1780-81, and, in fact, filled every office in the gift of the State. He is specially memorable now for his refusal to act as delegate to the convention which framed the Constitution, and for having caused the rejection of that Constitution by North Carolina in 1788.

His home, "The Grove," near Halifax, was not only the resort of the cultivated and refined, but the home of the homeless, Mrs. Jones having sometimes twenty orphan girls under her charge, and it was here the young adventurer, John Paul, was first touched by those gentler and purer influences which changed not only his name, but himself from the reckless mariner into the polished man of society, who was the companion of kings and the lion and pet of Parisian salons. The almost worshiping love and reverence awakened in his hitherto wild, untamed nature by the generous kindness of the brothers found expression in his adoption of their name. The truth of this account is not only attested by the descendants of Willie Jones, but by the nephew and representative of Paul Jones, Mr. London, of Charleston, S. C. This gentleman, in 1846, was in Washington awaiting the passage of a bill by Congress, awarding him the land claim of his distinguished uncle, Paul Jones, which had been allowed by the Executive of Virginia. Hon. E. W. Hubard, then a member of Congress from Virginia, had, in 1841, prepared a report on Virginia land claims, in which the committee indorsed that of Paul Jones. This naturally attracted Mr. London to him, and, learning that Mrs. Hubard was a descendant of Willie Jones, he repeated to both Colonel Hubard and herself the cause of his uncle's change of name, and added that among his pictures hung a portrait of Allen Jones. Mr. London was a cultivated and highly intelligent gentleman, but in exceedingly delicate health, and the expense and anxiety of long waiting on the action of Congress no doubt hastened his death, which occurred before he had received the reward of the splendid genius which had made America as famous on sea as on land. He left one child, an interesting little girl.

But what of the Serapis of a hundred years ago? Let us see. The 23d of September, 1779, found Flamborough Head swept into sight his Majesty's man-of-war the Serapis. Now built, thoroughly equipped, superbly manned, with a reputation far unrivaled speed, she moved majestically to the south with a fleet of forty sail and a convoy. Awaiting her was a battered Indiaman, owned by the King of France, commanded by a man whose hands had been the first to raise our battle flag (a pine, under which coils a rattlesnake, with reared head ready to strike, and the motto, "Don't tread on me,") who, in the first cruise of sixteen weeks as captain gained sixteen prizes; who, after weary delays in a ship "crank and slow," had crossed the ocean, and during the shipping of Whitehaven made his name a terror to the British coast, and who now, still neglected by Congress, owed his small squadron to Franklin. Of this squadron but two were with him. Of these one put out to sea as soon as she had ascertained the force of the enemy, and the movements of the other were vacillating and uncertain.

But there was no uncertainty or hesitancy on board Le Bon Homme Richard, where the men, fired by the dauntless courage and invincible spirit of their leader, made ready for battle. Night came on, and, glass in hand, Paul Jones watched the enemy gradually nearing the Serapis, with the Countess of Scarborough in her wake. At last was heard the hail from the Serapis, but the reply being equivocal, a simultaneous broadside was delivered. At the first fire two of the American guns bursting blew up the deck, and all the heavy guns were deserted. For more than an hour the cannonading was fast and terrific; then a lull, in which the English captain called out:

"Have you struck colors?"

To which rang out the cool, stern answer from Paul Jones:

"I have not yet begun to fight!"

A short time afterward the two noble ships came foul, and Paul Jones himself lashed the enemy's head gear to his mizzenmast and the battle raged. Once defeat seemed inevitable, when the Alliance approaching, whether through treachery or confusion it was never decided, opened fire, not on the Serapis, but on her consort, "Le Bon Homme Richard, and after a few death-dealing rounds retired. Still, when the morning broke, gray and chill, shorn of her glory, stripped of her pride, over the bleak waves of the North Sea drifted the Serapis, the prize of American prowess, and an eternal witness to the deathless fame of her victor. Europe was electrified with the wonderful news, and the fame of Paul Jones was at its height. At Versailles and Paris he was caressed and courted. Men and women, king and subjects, vied in their efforts to do him honor.

From the princely hands of Louis the Sixteenth he received a sword of gold with the inscription, "Vindicati Maris, Ludoviens Sixteenth, Remunerator Strenuo Viridici!" from Franklin and Washington letters of congratulation, and from Congress a vote of thanks and a gold medal. Yet this man's land claim was a subject of long debate, and nowhere has there appeared a comment on the coincidence of a second Serapis this Centennial year. His subsequent career, when, his services ignored by his country, he wandered first to Russia, then to France, eating bitter bread, broken-hearted, in his exile dying in poverty and want—is the record and the shame of history.—Baltimore Sun.

The New York Aquarium.

The Aquarium building which has been in process of construction for some months, on the site of the Colosseum, Broadway, and Thirty-fifth street, is nearly completed, and will be opened early in September. We believe it is the first attempt made in this country, on any large scale, to furnish to the people an opportunity to study the nature and habits of the fish of the sea alive in their native element. Several European cities have extensive aquaria, which are the resort of all classes of people, the educated are going for the purposes of gaining scientific information, and the uneducated to gratify a very laudable curiosity. The aquarium at Berlin is one of the most interesting of the Continent, and one at Brighton, England, is but little less celebrated.

The one soon to be opened in our city covers a large area. It has one bank of plate glass, sixty feet in length by ten feet wide, which is prepared as a city residence for living shark, sturgeons, and other monsters of the deep; a large basin for whales; two large tanks with a grotto for sea lions and seals; and a number of glass tanks for a great variety of smaller fish from the sea, rivers, and lakes. These have been fitted up at a great expense, and will require large expenditure to stock them, and keep them supplied with both water and fish; but the proprietors have evidently counted the cost, and are prepared to make the place attractive to all intelligent persons. We hope for the interests of science and for the entertainment of the people at large that it may become a complete success.—New York Observer.

The following is an abridgment of a sermon, which took an hour in delivering, from the words: "Man is born to trouble."

"My Friends, The subject falls naturally to be divided into four heads:

"1. Man's entrance into the world.

"2. His progress through the world.

"3. His exit from the world; and

"4. Practical reflections from what may be said. First, then:

"1. Man came into the world naked and bare.

"2. His progress through it is trouble and care.

"3. His exit from it none can tell where.

"4. But if he does well here, he'll be well there.

"Now I can say no more my brethren dear, should I preach on this subject from this time to next year. Amen."

Religious Intelligence.

—The Foreign Missionary contains letters from the Nestorian mission fields, on the borders of Asiatic Turkey and Persia. This well-known former work of the American Board, centering at Oroomiah, is now carried on by the Presbyterians, in the spirit of its founders. The four presbyteries into which the Nestorian field is divided held their annual meetings toward the close of last year, received favorable reports from the various congregations, and showed through the papers which were read and the discussions which followed a marked growth in spiritual intelligence and vigor on the part of the helpers. At the commencement of the year the general meeting of the presbyteries was convened. Its spirit is best shown by the prayer-meeting with which its sessions were closed. This was opened at day-break and was expected to close in time for breakfast, as many of the helpers had a long distance to go in order to reach their homes. But, although several efforts were made to close the meeting, the number of those who desired to be heard was so great that the exercises were continued until noon with undiminished interest. The chief topics were the confession of sins and short-comings and renewed consecration. A number of unconverted persons asked prayers for themselves, and since the helpers' return home revivals are reported in several places. The Armenians of this district have hitherto been very inaccessible; but the work among them is now becoming more encouraging. Foothold has been obtained in several of their villages, and from one of these towns a petition has come for a preacher, whom they promised in good part to support. Recently the influence of the American mission has appeared in an effort on the part of the Armenian archbishop to procure a better observance of the Sabbath. This day is known as "bazar day," because the Armenians and the Nestorians, leaving their fields, use it as the time for their business transactions. Against this practice the Armenian archbishop has protested and has threatened a fine of $20 for each offense. The merchants and others are ascribing his action to the teaching of the Protestants. The Jews are another nationality among whom efforts have recently been made. Many of their children have been gathered into the mission school at Oroomiah. The visit of several Jerusalem rabbis has stiffened the Jewish prejudice; yet some of the parents are willing to risk the displeasure of the synagogue, for their children's sake. But the most interesting feature about the mission field is the increasing access had among the Mohammedans. Nominally there is no more religious liberty to work among them in Persia than in Turkey; but really there is a great deal more. Many of them are ready to hear about Christ in private conversations, and in numerous cases both mullahs and laymen ask for instruction on the subject. Some also attend the public services. The missionaries are sure that the door for effective labor among the Mohammedans of Persia is rapidly opening. Their teachers are afraid of the new influence, and forbid their people to discuss religious subjects with the Protestants. But even the Nestorians are now bold in proclaiming to their Moslem neighbors that Christ is the only Savior. What makes the prospect still more favorable is the rapid increase of the sect of the Babs. These dissatisfied Mohammedans are now so numerous that the government has ceased trying to suppress them, and large accessions to Christianity are expected from their ranks.

—Father Hyacinthe has been lecturing in England lately upon the prospects of Christendom. Reform, he thinks, must come (1) by a rupture with the Papacy; (2) by faithfulness to the order of the Church. The Papacy, as a universal episcopate, Father Hyacinthe of course rejected. He paid a merited tribute to the Liberal Catholics, represented by Montalembert, Nacordaire, and Gratry. "The Liberal Catholics," he said, "who remain in the Church place their hopes in the next papal election. But if a moderate Pope should be elected, his diplomatic concessions and those of theology would not entrap the secular power, till his successor brought back the present system; and if a fanatical Pope should succeed Pio Nono, he would precipitate the crisis." As to the second point, he expressed the hope that the Latin, Greek, and Anglican Churches would join in a corporate unity, "while looking with sympathy upon all outside their pale who are faithful servants of the cross." In this way the order of the Church would be maintained. In general, Father Hyacinthe was eloquent; but not hopeful. The separation of Church and State he viewed as impossible.

—The San Francisco Bulletin has been looking into the Chinese missions in that city. It finds that the Methodists maintain a church of forty Chinese members, a Sunday-school, and a night school. Five teachers are employed in the night school, which is attended in part by adults. Instruction is given in the ordinary English branches of learning. The Methodists also support a refuge and home for Chinese women. The Presbyterians have a Chinese mission church of sixty members, an evening school of 110 pupils, and a home for women. The Baptists have an evening school, attended by seventy scholars, and a Sunday congregation of fifty Chinamen. There are thirteen other schools sustained by the churches of the city, which are attended more or less by the Chinese population.

Young Men's Christian Associations are an important auxiliary to church work in different parts of the world. There are 261 in England and Wales, 103 in Germany, 63 in Scotland, 30 in France, 31 in Switzerland, 5 in Austria, and 3 in New Zealand; in North America there are over 1,000. It is an American institution. They are beginning to organize them in China, Japan, and Honolulu.

HOW CHARLIE MINDED.

Little Charlie was playing marbles
With his comrades in the street,
When a window was thrown open,
And there came a voice so sweet

"Charlie, dear, your father wants you!"
Charlie stopped to hear no more;
Entered at the cottage door.

Now, a merchant who was passing
Wanted soon in his employ
Such a lad as could be trusted,
And he thought of Charlie boy.

And that splendid store was Charlie's,
After years had passed away,
Just because he minded quickly
On that pleasant summer day.

Children should respect their parents,
And obey them in the Lord;
'Tis the first command with promise
Written in the Holy Word.

Watchman and Reflector.

From Our Little Friends.

BILOXI, Miss., Sept. 4, 1876.

DEAR DR. PARKER: I am greatly troubled. Mary, my missionary hen, died suddenly last night. Little Sister Susie and I have just returned from her funeral. We buried her in a bed of blue violets in my flower garden. Mary was given to me by Sister Totten, of Cadiz Street church. The proceeds of the sales last year were given to the Louisiana Conference.

This year, up to her death, I have $2 clear money. This will pay the monthly dues to the Ocean Springs Juvenile Missionary Society for myself and Sister Susie for this year. But I had hopes for $2 more this year, and this troubles me.

I have saved one of Mary's daughters, that will try to take Mary's place. I hope next spring to have some eggs to sell. I am but a little girl, as you remember, yet by the help of my missionary hens I have sent abroad some $8 or $10 to cheer our missionaries. I pay mamma all expenses for feed of my hen, and then the clear gain belongs to the missionary cause.

I hope all the little girls and boys will get a missionary hen, and do their best to help Jesus save the world. Your little friend,

KATE L. DOWNER.

PORT HUDSON, La., Sept. 7, 1876.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: I saw in your paper of August 31 a letter from "Sophia and Sallie," which contained the question: "Where is the word girl found in the Bible?" I have found the word "girls" in Zechariah, eighth chapter, fifth verse, and presume it must be the one they have reference to, as they say it occurs but once in the Bible. I did as they said—received no help from any one—and found it after reading eighty-nine chapters. We are still keeping up our Sunday school at Pipkin's Chapel, though it is not very well attended. There is a very nice Sunday school in Jackson, which I attended regularly while at school there last session. We have preaching twice a month. President Andrews is our pastor, and the people seem to be very much pleased with him. I like him very much as a teacher.

I remain yours, very respectfully,

WALTER LIPSCOMB.

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss., Sept. 7, 1876.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: As you are so kind as to give us little folks a corner in your paper, I have concluded to write a short letter. Tell Sophia and Sallie that I have found where girl is mentioned in the Bible. It is found in Joel, third chapter, third verse. "They may trust to my honor that I did not get any help. I go to Sunday school and church every Sunday. We have a large attendance at our Sunday school and church. Rev. J. T. Heard is our pastor. I like him very much. I think he is a splendid preacher. My father is a Methodist preacher; he preaches on the Scotland circuit, near Brookhaven. He likes it very much. It is useless to tell you of our school here. Every Methodist knows, and is proud of Whitworth College. I am glad to see the little girls' and boys' letters. They are entertaining, most of them.

Your little friend,

BETTIE A. LESK.

HOLMESVILLE, Miss., Sept. 4, 1876.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: As I have been wanting to write you a letter for the ADVOCATE a long time, I have now concluded to write. As we have no Sabbath school, we read a chapter in the Bible together every Sunday morning. I was at the camp meeting in Magnolia on the fifth Sunday in July. There were more than half of the people that could not get under the shed. Well, you may tell Miss Sophia and Sallie that the word girl is found in the third chapter and third verse of Joel. Now I will ask the boys and girls a Bible question: Who was it that built the ivory house, and in what book, chapter, and verse is it spoken of? It is found in the Old Testament. I remain as ever, your true friend,

BETTIE LEWIS.

A King's Robe of Golden Feathers.

BY SARAH COAN.

I want to tell you about one of the most remarkable garments ever worn by royalty. It is a feather robe worth $150,000.

Rather costly, is it not? But let me tell you why it is valued so highly and was nine reigns making.

Many years ago the natives of the Hawaiian Islands (far out on the Pacific, you know,) were very expert bird-catchers—not bird-killers—the object of their pursuit being a small, black bird called the Oo. This pretty little creature had, under each wing, a single golden feather about an inch long; and these feathers the natives made into leis (wreaths,) capes, and robes for the alii or chiefs.

To catch the Oo without killing any injury was necessary, or the birds would soon be exterminated; hence, to entrap them successfully was considered a great accomplishment.

With the gum of the bread-fruit tree, which is very sticky, the bird-catcher smeared the twig of a tree near some tempting fruit; across this twig he laid a light string slip-noose, and, holding the line, concealed himself in the thick foliage. Now came the unsuspecting Oo for his mango or guava dessert, and alighted on the smeared twig. Finding it an unpleasant standing-place, he fluttered and struggled to extricate his feet, but instantly the slip-noose closed lightly around both little legs and he was a prisoner; his two beautiful golden feathers were pulled out, which, I am sure, made him very unhappy, and then he was given his freedom.

I think the wise birds did not get caught a second time, though many of them no doubt were foolish, and lost the feathers as soon as they were grown.

In this way thousands and thousands of birds were caught to furnish kings with a coronation robe. It is said three hundred birds were caught for feathers to make a lei half a yard long; and the robe is four feet wide, and eleven and a half feet long. This mamo (war-cloak) of Kamehameha the Great is as sacred a relic as the famous Scottish stone in Westminster Abbey, upon which English kings have been crowned for more than five hundred years.

The Hawaiian "throne" is nothing but a chair covered with the mamo.

Until within a few years there was a similar feather robe, which belonged to King Lunalilo; but, as he was the last of his family, it was wrapped around his dead body and buried with him.

Very few of the old bird-catchers are living, and, as the young generation does not follow the pursuits of the old, the present mamo is considered the last specimen of a lost art. In the Hawaiian department of the Centennial are some fine Oo leis and capes loaned by Queen Emma, which are well worth examining. They are very beautiful, and show great skill at workmanship.—Christian Union.

THE POLICEMAN OF THE WOODS. Tap! tap! tap! sounds out clear from the woods as if a young drummer were trying to beat a tattoo. The noise really comes from a bright-looking bird, perched up high on some tall oak, now on one side and then on the other, sometimes with head downward, and then clinging to the under side of a large branch, occasionally knocking vigorously with his bill, as though he were at a friend's house and in haste to be invited in. It is the woodpecker, or, as he might be called, the policeman of the woods; for it is his business to keep the trees free from any insects or grubs who love to make a meal from the soft green wood, and often do great damage, even causing the death of the tree.

Mr. Woodpecker's practiced eye can tell at a glance where one of these burglars is at work. Woe unto him when he finds it out! for he is quickly captured, and Mr. Woodpecker makes a fine meal of him as his reward.

We see by this that each living thing was made by God for some wise purpose, for some special work, even the smallest object. Well for us if we do our work in ridding the world of evil as well as the woodpecker does his; and in this work the girls and boys are to take an important part. Have you found out your special work? Have you inquired: "Lord, what will thou have me to do?"—The Banner.

NOT YET.—"My son, give me thy heart," said the Lord Jesus to a little boy.

"Not yet," said the little boy, busy with his hat and bat. "When I grow older I will think about it."

"My son, give me thy heart," said the Lord Jesus to the young man.

"Not yet," said the young man, "I am just going into business. When I see it prosper I shall have more time to attend to the matter."

Business did prosper.

"My son, give me thy heart."

"Not yet," said the man of business. "I am pressed now. When my children are well settled in life I shall be better able to attend to religion."

He lived to be an old man.

"Not yet," he cried; "I shall soon give up trade, and then I shall have nothing else to do but to read and pray."

And so he died. He put off to another time what should have been done when a child. He therefore died as he had lived—without God.—Sunday School Gem.

NOW IS THE ACCEPTED TIME. There are no promises in the Bible for to-morrow. Now is the time for repentance. There is no safety, no security, no wisdom in postponing the acceptance of the Savior. These are common-place remarks; but they are no more common-place than death, which knocks with equal confidence at every door; no more trite than the death-sickness, which will some day weaken the body and obscure the mind of each one who reads this paragraph. To all who are mortal, and who have not made their peace with God, there is nothing of more importance, of more living interest, than the fact that God will hear and forgive to-day, but makes no promises for to-morrow. To-day is the day of salvation.—Christian Observer.

The Settlement.

We have published the report of the commissioners, and the comments of the press to a considerable extent. As we understand the matter, the commissioners were clothed with plenary powers and authority to settle questions in dispute between the two churches. The warrant under which the Southern commissioners acted was the resolution of the General Conference: "Resolved, That in order to remove all obstacles to formal fraternity between the two churches our College of Bishops is authorized to appoint a commission, consisting of three ministers and two laymen, to meet a similar commission authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and to adjust all existing difficulties." We do not understand that the settlement requires the ratification of the two General Conferences in order to make it binding, and before its provisions can be carried into effect. The act of the commissioners is the act of the General Conferences, and a final adjustment, as much so as if both of those bodies had been in session and given their formal approval.

There were but two existing difficulties to formal fraternity. The first was as to the status of the Southern Church as a legitimate branch of Episcopal Methodism in the United States. The Plan of Separation, in substance, affirmed and secured the complete equality of the Southern Church, and its unimpaired rights of name and property. The substance and principles of the Plan of Separation are recognized and conceded by the commissioners. The Southern Church in accepting the settlement does not recede from the position it has uniformly occupied since 1848, when the Northern General Conference declined to receive Dr. Pierce as our fraternal delegate, and declared the Plan of Separation "null and void." By the terms of the settlement the two churches stand precisely upon the same grounds. One is as legitimate as the other. One is as old as the other. They came from the same organization in 1784, and when they parted there was no secession, no schism, but a separation which was mutual and in violation of the rights of neither.

The terms of the settlement mean this as we understand them, and, as so understood, we are satisfied with them. The principles enlinced in the Plan of Separation could never be surrendered by the Southern Church, and they have not been. They have been solemnly affirmed and ratified by both churches through their commissioners. In any case, the Plan of Separation stands by authority of judicial decisions, and cannot be affected in any way by the settlement, so far as our rights under it are involved. The courts have given it the validity of their sanction, and the Southern General Conference at its last session reiterated its convictions as to its import and binding force.

The disposal of the property questions is calculated to operate with some degree of hardship in some sections, but the only practical plan was adopted, unless these disputes had been left to the civil courts. Until we know something about the cases adjudicated, what they are, and how arranged, we are, of course, unable to form any opinion of the action of the commission concerning them.

So far as possible, then, the commission has done its work, and all existing difficulties have been adjusted—difficulties, be it understood, that stood in the way of formal fraternity. Now the two General Conferences can consistently exchange fraternal messengers, and the churches can honorably, and with no loss of self-respect, extend to each other such courtesies as are usual between Christian churches. They are two churches, two separate denominations, pursuing their own work, and pledged henceforth to mind their own affairs, and let each other alone. They are now on speaking terms, and may shake hands, and pass the compliments of the season. Our relations with the Northern Church, as with other evangelical churches, are those of amity and peace. Where their preachers among us are men whom we can respect and esteem, they will have such regard; where they are not, we shall be compelled to discriminate between the church and its representatives. Practical good neighborship will depend upon the temper, conduct, and spirit of those whose legitimate work brings them in contact with each other. Such difficulties as can be settled by a commission are settled, and this is a great advance toward not only formal but practical fraternity. For the rest, we trust that time and grace will remove all stumbling blocks, soften all asperities, and bring true and lasting peace. So mote it be.

We are surprised at the blundering allusions of some leading secular and religious journals to the settlement as effecting the organic union of the two churches. It only shows their utter misapprehension of the whole matter. The commissioners were appointed for no such purpose, and we presume it was never mentioned in their conferences and discussions. So far from union, the settlement secures from the Northern Church the distinct and unqualified recognition of our rightful and separate organization, and as in every way the equal of herself in all that pertains to an independent and scriptural organization. We regard the settlement as the last and final deathblow to organic union. It means friendship between equals, and organic separation as right in itself, and expedient. American Methodism, as two churches, can do its work better than if it were one, and, so believing, the idea of union has been dropped, and, what is far better, friendship and peace have been secured.

The Rock of the Field.

"Will a man leave the snow of Lebanon which cometh from a rock of the field?"—Jer. xviii. 14. To some well-known spring supplied by the melting snows of Lebanon the prophet refers, and to the unaccountable folly of turning away from these cool waters, to illustrate the greater folly of a man forsaking God. The physical image he thus calls up is not only graild in itself, but a most apt illustration of the subject in his thoughts—the necessary dependence of man, rewarded by the faithfulness of God. The great mountain range resting upon immovable foundations and recording an age coeval with the earth, has a still superior greatness in its sole power to image to the eye the faithfulness of God. Never is the mind distressed even with a passing thought that the mountain will vanish away. And why should the quiet, steadfast faithfulness of God, "which he has established in the heavens," be ever suspected of change?

If the mountain stand fast, then will the snow never disappear from its summit, for there are fast fixed laws silently and constantly working to prepare the "beautiful snow" for "his faithfulness reacheth unto the clouds." In like manner, the mercies of the Lord increase more and more, pure, fresh, constant as the ever-forming snow far above the earth. A sickly and perverted imagination is that which thinks that there is something in nature fresher, and in life less inconstant, than the old-time mercies of God.

And if the snow accumulates upon the mountain, the fountains it fills and the streams it supplies will never fail of cool, flowing waters. And so again the image makes evident the fountain and streamlike fullness of the Divine Grace. Can the fountains of Lebanon fail? How, then, can the mercies of God fail a man who puts his trust in him? How frivolous the feeling which in a moment of inconstancy would strive to cover up the folly of forsaking God! We must know that in turning away from him we leave "the fountain of living waters," and if we "hew out cisterns for ourselves, they will be broken cisterns, that can hold no water." Will a man leave the snow of Lebanon which cometh from a rock of the field? Then [as he can not lose his dependence, he must needs turn elsewhere. And now the mountain which served to familiarize our thoughts with the habits of God's faithfulness will show us also the use of our dependence.

The snow-capped mountain aptly images the life of man. Each has its foundation in the earth, each a summit that reaches the sky. Man has the natural and the supernatural; in nature his foundation is deeply and broadly laid. He carries nature up through his manifold relations with it, and his conditions in it, to the highest point that nature reaches, but he does not find a limit to himself in nature; he is more than nature; he has also the supernatural, by which means he has what nature cannot have—access to God in the knowledge and fear of him. And so, like the mountain by its great elevation, penetrate they the snow fields above that clothe its summit with the fleecy flakes they crystallize.

The religious man in communion with God is clothed with a purity and glory of character transcending all the observed qualities of nature. The great treasures of which by virtue of its elevation the mountain becomes the reservoir and dispenser are formed in the surrounding atmosphere. So plainly does it appear that man's real good is all divine. He receives it in intercourse with God.

But will a man leave the snow of Lebanon which cometh from a rock in the field? Then will he commit the greater folly of forsaking God, to whom a necessary and evident dependence unites him, good influences will cease from his life, for the fountains are filled and the streams are supplied only from celestial regions which man must penetrate by the great elevation which his moral, spiritual, and intellectual powers give him. As with individuals, so, also, with churches; when the growth is scant and stunted, it is because the streams have ceased to flow, which is a sure token that the fountain is failing, that God has been forsaken.

DOUBLE U.

Centenary College.

This is one of our oldest and best literary institutions, located at Jackson, La., and under the joint control and patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences. It is entitled to a warm place in the hearts of our people, and should receive their hearty support. As there is no available endowment, the expenses must be met by the patronage of its friends, and by such donations as they may be able to make. The pungent arguments and appeals of Bro. Rush for the Greensboro College apply with equal force to Centenary. The necessity of education for our prosperity and advancement as a Church, and for the well being of the State and society, is not generally felt as it should be. And, where the need of education is felt, the conviction that, for the highest utility, it should be connected with the purest and most decided moral and religious influences is not always sufficiently clear and strong. Our youth are growing up, and they cannot wait for better times. They must be educated now, or we shall have a generation upon us of ignorant men, unfitted for the enterprises of life, and incapable of defending and honoring our civil and religious institutions. A liberal education is a better gift to our children than a fortune in land, stocks, or money. Whether a boy is to be a drayman, farmer, carpenter, preacher, lawyer, engineer, or doctor, he should be educated as completely as possible. Utility, in its highest and broadest sense, demands the mastery of the most liberal curriculum—literary, classical, mathematical, and scientific. Rev. C. G. Andrews, D. D., president of Centenary College, has spent a week or more in our city, and will remain a few days longer. He has the promise of a number of students from New Orleans, and has met with encouraging responses to private appeals for financial aid. We hope that men of wealth will be moved soon to contribute something worthy the name of an endowment. But, falling in this, the alumni and other friends of the college can contribute according to their means, to supplement current expenses, and to complete some needed repairs. We have no plan to suggest but this: Let every lover of the Church and of education give something, and let those who have sons to educate send them. With the patronage that our people can bestow, and such pecuniary aid as they can easily afford, the college can be made to prosper and do a great work for the country and the Church. The expenses of a student at Centenary are very moderate, indeed, as Bishop Keener stated in his recent communication. The faculty, including the president, is able and experienced, a body of Christian gentlemen, men well qualified for their duties.

DEATH OF BISHOP JANES.—The telegraph announces the death of the senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Edmund Stoner Janes, D. D., was born in Sheffield, Mass., April 27, 1807. He was admitted on trial in the Philadelphia Conference in 1830, and elected Bishop by the General Conference at New York in May, 1844. Bishop Janes was a great and pure man, an excellent preacher, a safe and prudent administrator, and respected and beloved by both branches of American Methodism. He was never a bitter partisan, and, during the asperities and bitter feelings engendered by ecclesiastical and sectional strife, he never lost the respect of his Southern brethren. Mrs. Janes, a woman of saintly character, died in great triumph recently, and now, after so brief a separation, they have met in the better world. Bishop Janes died in the city of New York on Monday, September 18, aged sixty-nine.

THE YELLOW FEVER IN SAVANNAH.—This disease has prevailed in Savannah in epidemic form for several weeks, and up to this writing there has been no decline in the mortality. Our citizens know what a yellow fever epidemic is by sad experience, and we trust they will respond promptly and generously to the call made upon them for means to relieve the suffering in a sister Southern city. Our city is exceptionally healthy this season, and while the stagnation of business, and the monetary depression are severely felt, we doubt not that something liberal will be done to help a sorely-stricken and afflicted community. We observe with pleasure that Northern and Eastern cities are responding to the appeals for Savannah. Let New Orleans not be behind in this good work.

We are glad to learn that the East Mississippi Female College, Meridian, Miss., has opened auspiciously with ninety-five pupils in attendance, and the prospect of many more. President Adkinson is at his post, and pursuing his labors with encouraging success. This college is well located, well conducted, and deserves the patronage of our people.

Rev. W. F. Graves, of the Peoria circuit, Northwest Texas Conference, writes: "I have been in the midst of a powerful work of grace. One hundred and sixty conversions in my work."

State of Society in New York.

The following deplorable account is taken, says the Southwestern Presbyterian, from a late New York Observer. Our secular journals fully bear out the statements of the editors in reference to the condition of affairs described. There is very little safety either of life or property in the State or City of New York, we must suppose. It is a condition of things much to be regretted. And we feel sincere sorrow that there is so little power either in law or authority to restrain it. We venture to say, that much as has been said of insecurity of property or life in the South, there is no part of the South, that we know of, of which such a description would be true as is here given by the New York Observer of the community in which its editors reside:

BURGLARS AND TRAMPS.

The whole country is in a state of apprehension owing to the operations of these two classes of outlaws. The burglars are not only becoming more and more bold in their depredations, but are showing a reckless disregard of human life which may well excite alarm. They no longer hesitate to kill, by any means, those who make resistance to their robberies. In former times the settlers on the frontiers, who were exposed to the scalping knife, were objects of sympathy the world over. But we are now in greater danger of life as well as property from midnight robbers than they were from the Indians. Those who live in their celled houses in the city and those who dwell in the peaceful hamlets of the country are equally exposed. Very few persons now lie down at night or wake in the night from any cause, without thinking of the bullet of the assassin. A few nights since a citizen of Brooklyn was murderously assaulted by a burglar in his room, and barely escaped with his life. He is scarcely out of danger. The murder of the wealthy Mr. Nathan in this city by undiscovered burglars is now paralleled all over the country. And burglaries of less fatal consequences are all the time occurring. One day last week, in the middle of the afternoon, Henry Freeman, a wealthy butter merchant of Rahway, N. J., while asleep on a sofa in his house, was bound, gagged, and robbed by four masked burglars. When aroused by their attack, he made an ineffectual resistance and received some severe blows. His family were absent at the time, and he was bound for half an hour before released.

A letter in the New York Times states that on Wednesday morning, about 1 o'clock, the residence of Mr. McCoy, near Waterford, N. Y., was entered by burglars. Their presence was first discovered by Daisy McCoy, who was awakened by a dog in her room growling, when she saw two masked men. One held a revolver to her head, and said: "Keep your dog quiet or I'll shoot you!"

It is believed the reason no subsidy fraud has yet come out against any of the colored Congressmen is because of their peculiar ability to "keep dark."

The Wesleyan Missionary Society held its annual meeting at Exeter Hall on May 1. We extract a few items of interest from the annual report. Connected with the parent society in England are two vigorous off-shoots, the Australasian Missionary Society, which supports the missions on the islands of the Pacific, and the Canadian Missionary Society, which attends to the work in British North America and has also commenced a mission in Japan. The receipts for the year were as follows: Parent Society, $685 000; Australasian, $110,528; Canadian, $154,010; Ladies' General Committee for Female Education, $6,840. Total, $957,278. The Continental missions of the Wesleyans are carried on in Ireland, France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, and Germany. Connected with these missions are 84 missionaries, 5 728 church members, and 7,052 scholars. The Italian work is the largest carried on by any foreign society in that country, having 2 English and 21 Italian ministers, 1,149 members, and 866 scholars. The missions among the heathen are carried on in India, Ceylon, China South, and West Indies. It is the rule of the Wesleyans to bestow equal attention on the white colonists and the heathen natives. It is, on this account, impossible to determine what proportion of the membership has been gathered from heathen races. A very large part of the totals in the various English colonies consists of European settlers. The number of missionaries employed in these missions is 343; church members, 77,762; scholars, 77,995. In South Africa the best prospects for extension are furnished in the two free states—the Orange River and the Transvaal—and in the adjacent districts. This interior country is rapidly filling up with colonists, and the Beehuana race, who have their dwelling-place there, offer the best field for missionary labor of all the South African nationalities. The West Indian missions, like those of all the other societies there engaged, suffer from the material depression of the island communities; but there are evidences of improvement, especially on Jamaica. The Australasian Society has charge of the Wesleyan interests in the English colonies and in Polynesia. The number of ministers is 377; members, 60,142; scholars, 131,683. The purely missionary work of this society in Polynesia returns 80 missionaries, of whom 63 are natives, 26,389 members, and 58,475 scholars. Through the epidemic on the Fiji Islands the Wesleyans lost 7,500 church members. The Canadian Society reports 392 missionaries and 35,071 members. Increase of educational facilities in the various mission fields has now become one of the grand objects of endeavor among the Wesleyans. High schools have been established in South Africa and Ceylon, and others are in contemplation. We might almost call education the hobby of the Wesleyan missionaries at the present time. Their letters from all parts of the world are continually recurring to this theme. Thus the society is nobly supplying an element of usefulness which was formerly lacking in its widespread operations. The report declares that upon the success of these educational efforts the perpetuity of all the Wesleyan missions, especially in tropical climates, mainly depends. Independent.

Western Conference.

This conference met at Nebraska City, August 30. Bishop McTyeire presiding, Dr. McAnally, Editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, was in attendance, and writes as follows of the condition and needs of the Conference:

The great pressing want of the Western Conference is more men. Calls have been made for them—earnest calls, often repeated. From six to ten additional preachers are greatly needed here, and there is perhaps no other part of our territory in which they could be more useful. With all the disadvantages under which the preachers here have labored—and those disadvantages have been many and serious—they have in a few years reorganized the Conference and gathered a membership of 2,500 or more, most of whom but for them and their labors would not have been religious at all. There has during the past year been an increase in the aggregate of the membership. Exactly what it is, I cannot now say, between two and three hundred, I think.

The Christian World says:—"The failure of Rationalism at Heidelberg University is now an admitted fact. For years the most unevangelical theology has had the field all to itself, and the most extreme views have been freely advanced by professors of marked ability, among whom the celebrated Paulus held a distinguished place. His influence continued to be felt long after his death. What is the result? Students have more and more forsaken the lecture halls, and gone to Berlin, to Halle, anywhere to sit at the feet of strong positive convictions, teachers who can offer something better than cold negation. A crisis seems now to have been reached. We are informed that only nine theological students frequent the theological school, scarcely a greater number than that of the professors! The 'Liberal' government of the Grand Duchy of Baden, it is true, still persists in refusing the appointment of one or more professors of a more Biblical faith, but it is not probable that the recognition of an imperative call for reorganization can long be delayed.

What a magnificent gift the Creator makes to man each successive spring! What refreshment of mind and body, what conscious or unconscious revivals of hope in dull hearts, what profusion of things of beauty which are a joy forever, come with every spring!

Some persons pass their wretched days like so many swine; they never look up to heaven till God lays them on their back.

A Survey of Fifty Years.

"MISSION WORK."

One of the most valuable pamphlets that has fallen into our hands bears the above caption, and is issued by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. We condense some statements from it as appropriate to these days when the national mind is indulging in retrospect and contrasting the past with the present. We cannot write the Centennial Summary of Foreign Missions, for such work is not yet a hundred years old. Here are the facts:

AFRICA.

In Gambia, Africa, and at Sierra Leone, the Wesleyan and Church Missionary Societies have strong missions, with 14 000 church members, 7,500 scholars, and 52 ministers, native and foreign. In Liberia colony are 4,000 communicants. At the Gold coast are 7,000 communicants and 4,000 scholars. The Bible is, in part or whole, in fifteen languages. In Cape colony, Kaffraria, Natal, the Beehuana tribes are 100 foreign laborers, 90 native ministers, 40,000 communicants, and 45,000 scholars. In Egypt are 8 missionary stations, 6 foreign and 2 ordained native ministers, 596 communicants, and 170 scholars. In Madagascar the London Missionary Society alone reports 64,896 church members. There are other missions. In the Maori land there are 333 members. In this and Madagascar jointly are 65 missionaries, 292 native ministers, and 6 communicants.

ASIA.

In Turkey are over 5,000 communicants. In Persia are over 800 Christians. In India are 35 mission societies, besides local agencies, ordained missionaries, 400 stations, 2,000 sub-stations, and 318 363 native Christians. Since 1856 the relative increase of the three great religious classes has been: Christians, 51 per cent.; Moslems, 33; Hindoos, 37. In China are 200 ordained evangelists, half of whom are from the United States. Native Christians there: In 1853 they numbered 351; in 1865 they were 1,974, in 1868 they were 6,743, in 1875 nearly 12,000. In the Moluccas and Celebes the Netherlands Missionary Society reports 800 hearers, in other fields, 3,783.

POLYNESIA.

More than three hundred islands have thrown away idolatry within less than fifty years. In the Sandwich and other islands there is church membership of 70,000 and 300,000 adherents.

AMERICA.

In Mexico the work is cheering. In the West India Islands things are not encouraging. In Brazil two native churches have been organized, with 800 members. Among the North American Indians there are, perhaps, 10,000 church members. In Labrador and Greenland are perhaps 1,000 members.

SUMMARY.

The present showing of church membership of churches on mission ground would be, Africa with Madagascar, 130,000, Europe, with Scandinavia and Germany, 53,500, Asia, 120,000, Polynesia, 70 000, America, North and South, 21 500, West Indies, 10,000. Total, 500,000.

In 1825 the missionary force numbered 400. Now there are 2,300 ordained missionaries. The membership in 1825 was 40,000, and is now over 500,000.—Missionary Supplement Nashville Christian Advocate.

The great question which occupied the Wesleyan Conference of England at its recent session and one which has agitated this large and influential body for years, that of lay representation, was settled, after an able, protracted and excited debate, by a very decisive vote of three hundred and sixty-nine in favor to forty-eight against the measure. The form in which the decision was made was the adoption of the following resolution proposed by Dr. Punshon:

"Resolved, That it is expedient that lay representatives shall be admitted into, and take part in the proceedings of the conference during the time when such matters shall be considered and decided as are hereby declared to be within the province of ministers and laymen acting jointly, but that the details of the scheme shall be submitted to the first meeting when the laymen present, and their report shall be submitted to the next conference."

The work on the New Orleans and Pacific Railroad is rapidly progressing, and according to the last news, forty miles of grading is completed west of Alexandria. A strong force of about 600 men is kept constantly at work, and the grading on the road is being earnestly pushed forward. Between Alexandria and Bayou Houla, the point where the connection with the Chattanooga Railroad is to be made, the work is distance has been graded with the exception of about thirty miles, which, with the present force at work, can be completed in a short time.—Picayune.

GERMINATION FROM SEEDS A THOUSAND YEARS OLD.—An interesting observation, referring to the power of germination in seeds which is hundreds and even thousands of years old, is said to have been made by Prof. Hendreich in Greece. In the silver mines of Laurium, from the slags left by the ancient Greeks are at present worked off, in order to gain, after an improved modern method, silver still left in that dross. The refuse ore is probably about two thousand years old. Among it, a seed of a species of glaucium, or horned poppy was found, which had sprouted in the darkness of the earth during all that time. After a little while when the slags were brought up and worked off at the melting ovens there suddenly arose a crop of glaucium plants, with a beautiful yellow flower, of a kind unknown in modern botany, but which is described by Pliny and others as a frequent flower in ancient Greece.—London Examiner.

This was made at Essen. Other foreign countries had creditable exhibits, and those already named and additional ones of merit, but I have no space to note them.

The United States shows well in everything, it seems to me, and so many and so much of everything. I am aware we have the advantages of transportation, both as to time and economy. But, as an intelligent foreigner remarked to me the other day, other nations did not come here prepared to see such evidences of our growth in science and arts and industry. They are amazed at the advancement we have made in one hundred years.

I will mention "Paper Box" machine, "Envelope" machine, which folds, gums, and counts 120 in a minute. Silk weaving, which will make cloth or scarfs and ties, with all sort of designs on them, or will weave photographs. I saw all these articles in process of manufacture. Clarke's spool cotton machinery, in full operation, was a good set off to Coats. Saw, File, Bolt, Hammer, Wire Cork Screw, Stove and Lath, Steam Engine, Fire Engine, Nail, Soda Fountain, Drilling, Sewing, Quilling, Weaving, Washing, Drying machines without number. A new stopper machine at work caught my eye at once. It makes stoppers as fast as one can count. The operator told me there were two houses in Great Britain called the Osborne House and the Balmoral Castle, both of which are large houses, made entirely of cork wood. I did not believe it. This cork factory is at Pittsburg, Pa., and gets its material from Spain. There are several mills for grinding all metals and tools and seeds into powder.

The quartz mill of Nevada has a separate house, a few feet from Machinery Hall, and is a great curiosity. The meter companies, for measuring the pressure and consumption of steam, gas, etc., make a brilliant show. There are Foundries and Rollers, Stove and Barrel machines everywhere about. A Hair manufactory was interesting; also a Gutta Percha machinery, which took the raw article and made it into shoes, overcoats, and backgammon boards in a short while. Then came the Meat Cutting, Steam Cracker, Steam Confectionery machines, all busily at work making something to sell.

The Waltham Watch factory makes a complete watch in two to three minutes. The display of Printing Press, Engraving, Lithographing, and Bookbinding machinery is immense—the largest perhaps, except that of Carpets and Pipes. These latter are woven together around a reservoir. In the center of the building. The reservoir is 150 feet long and 50 feet wide; the depth I do not know. At one end of the reservoir is an engine, which conveys a large amount of water to a height of fifty feet, from which it is emptied, in a sheet forty feet wide, into the reservoir. This attractive scene is intended to imitate Niagara Falls. All the engines running pumps are collected around this reservoir, from which they draw, and into which they pour their water. In this way the power of the different engines and pumps and pipes can be tested.

The ventilator, to drive bad and heated air from mines is a curious instrument, and almost blows a man's hair from his head.

The glass factory is an interesting sight, especially in those departments which make fancy glassware and tricks of all sorts.

The wall paper manufactory of New Brunswick, N. J., attracts much attention, and deservedly. It takes the paper, stamps it, and rolls it up to dry. The pattern made, during my observation, was of several different colors, but there was not a blot or stain on it.

In a separate building, close by, is the Campbell Printing Press, of New York, which prints and folds 12,000 sheets of paper per hour from, one set of plates. It stamps pictures, of all kinds, with corresponding speed, and very handsomely too. Here I saw the printing press used by Isaiah Thomas to print the Declaration of Independence in 1776. It was made in 1650, in England, and was brought here in 1775. I must not forget to mention the pin machine, which makes and sticks on paper 10,000 pins per day. It is a great novelty.

Virginia makes the best display of tobacco manufacturing. The principal machinery consists of four very intelligent looking negro operatives, who, in addition to their efficient assistance in making an elaborate and highly creditable display of the chief industry of the old commonwealth, attract large crowds of Northern people to hear them sing as Southern darkies alone can sing.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—The July Interest on the notes given by brethren in the Mississippi Conference is due. Will they please to send it by mail?

R. A. YOUNG,
Sec. Bd. Tr. M. E. C.

In 1861 the famous Abbe Lecordaire left behind him a fortune estimated at 600,000 francs, or £24,000. He entered the order of the Dominicans at Rome in 1839, went to Paris in the long white dress of the order, and with shaven crown preached at Notre Dame, and was received at the Academy by the Protestant M. Guizot. When the Abbe died the Dominicans kept his money, but after years of pleading the Tribunal of Cantres has decided that the order shall within six months restore the sum of £8 000 to M. Leon Lecordaire, the rightful heir of the celebrated preacher and polemist.

A little three-year-old girl, in repeating her prayer to her mother every night, insists on praying to be made "a dood Episcopalian-Wepublican."

Gardini, the wonderful violinist, was once asked by a youth: "How long, sir, will it take me to play like you?" He replied: "Twelve hours a day for twenty years."

MARRIED.

MOORE—THORNTON.—At the residence of W. J. Harper, near Walnut Grove, Miss., Sept. 7, 1876, by Rev. Irvin Miller, Mr. B. F. Moore and Miss Jennie Thornton.

SANSOM—WALKER.—At the residence of H. F. Walker, near Macon Station, Ala., Sept. 5, 1876, by Rev. J. M. Crews, Mr. Wm. H. Sansom, of Greensboro, Ala., and Miss Louisa Walker, of Hale county, Ala.

ROBERTS—DANIEL.—At the residence of the bride's mother, September 14, 1876, by Rev. B. F. Lightfoot, Mr. William A. Roberts, of Escambia county, Florida, to Miss Susan J. Daniel, of Pensacola, Fla.

WRIGHT—BLACK.—At the residence of Dr. H. F. Wright, in Franklin county, Miss., September 6, 1876, by Rev. F. A. Flowers, Dr. H. F. Wright to Miss Sarah E. Black.

Publisher's Department.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now on a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

FORT EDWARD COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, in NEW YORK, N. Y., is in successful operation and our readers are directed to the advertisement in another column.

ONE OF THE MOST cheering signs of the times is the introduction and use in the South of time, money, and labor saving machinery. To the cotton planter one of the most important inventions of the age is the Complete Cotton Cleaner. This machine seems to be rapidly growing in favor, and the time is not far distant when no gin-house will be considered complete without one. Many of the leading planters of the South are using it. It dries green or damp seed cotton, and prepares it for the gins in a light, fleecy condition, enabling the gins to run lighter, to do easier, better, and one-third more work to get more lint from the seed, and to make a smooth and perfect sample from cotton that would otherwise turn out gin cut or napped. It thoroughly removes all the dust, dirt, sand, and most of the light leaf trash from seed cotton, and thereby improves the lint from one to four grades, and enhances its value. The machine is light, simple, and easily adjusted to either horse or steam power, and has a capacity to clean from ten to fifteen bales cotton per day. Planters have suffered too severely in pocket during the past few seasons from the extremely low prices of gin-cut dirty, sandy, and trashy cottons not to recognize the necessity for and hail with joy this machine.

Frierson & Co., 77 Carondelet street, are general agents for the Complete Cotton Cleaner, and fully warrant its successful working. They will be pleased to furnish any desired information. Send for circular.

INSURANCE OIL.—How great the pleasure of reading and sewing by a good light that shines steadily and does not injure the eyes, at the same time is perfectly safe. We really enjoy writing by the mellowed brilliancy it sheds around us, considering it superior to gas for students, on account of its freedom from smell and unpleasant flickering, and as to its safety there is but one opinion—based not only on the certificates of experienced chemists and leading officers of insurance companies and agencies, but upon the trial of hundreds of families who continue to use it in preference to all other oils. The Puroline and Portable Gas Light Company, under the superintendence of W. E. Jervey, is doing a large business in all kinds of coal oil, lamps, cans, burners, etc.

THE card of R. M. Lusher's Commercial and Classical Academy will be seen on this page. Mr. Lusher is well known as an educator of rare ability, and parents who confide the education of their sons to him may rest satisfied that no pains will be spared in the training they receive at this model school.

OUR readers will please note the advertisement of Mr. Andrieu, boot and shoe dealer, at 150 Poydras street. Mr. Andrieu will manufacture shoes at $4.50 per pair, certainly as low as any one could wish. For particulars refer to his advertisement.

M. L. NAVRA will fill orders from the country for Gilding and Glass ware with care and dispatch.

MEDICAL.

A STRING OF PEARLS!

Extract of a letter from Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1875:

I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active remedies.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens has greatly improved in health of late.—The State Line Press, West Point, Ga.

Testimony of the Chief Justice of Georgia.

I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it.—Hiram Warner, Chief Justice of Georgia.

Opinion of the Clergy.

"Simmons' Liver Regulator is certainly a specific for that class of complaints which it claims to cure. If any of our fellow-beings are suffering from hepatic disorders, and have doubts in relation to the efficacy of this popular preparation, we can only offer them the simple and candid argument of Philip to Nathaniel: "Come and see." Try the proposed remedy, and then you can judge for yourselves.—Rev. David Wills, Pastor of Presbyterian Church, Macon, Ga.

Always Keep It On Hand.

I have used Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator myself, and in my family for years, and pronounce it one of the most satisfactory medicines that can be used. Nothing would induce me to be without it, and I recommend all my friends, if they want to secure health, to always keep it on hand.—R. L. Mott, Columbus, Ga. (Congressman.)

CAUTION!

Buy no Powders or Prepared Simmons' Liver Regulator unless in our engraved wrapper, with trade mark, stamp and signature unbroken. None other is genuine.

Manufactured only by

Farm, Garden and Household.

The Farmer's Garden.

Small Fruits.—We have spoken of the most important vegetables in a well-filled garden, but there are fruits properly belonging to a garden that are even more relishable than vegetables, and better adapted to the healthful wants of the system, during the prevalence of warm weather. The large fruits, or fruits growing upon trees, properly belong to the orchard or to a separate fruit garden; but the small fruits growing on plants, canes, or low-growing shrubs, that cast little or no shade, may very well find a place in the kitchen garden. Even grapes may be trained on trellises on the north side of the garden, where their shade would do no injury.

Strawberries.—This delicious small fruit ripens first in order, and shall first receive attention. It also requires the most labor in hoeing and weeding to grow it to perfection, and this must be taken into account when growing for market.

We prefer to transplant strawberries in the spring, as soon as the soil is dry enough to work without injury, and, to facilitate cultivation with horse, would set them in rows three feet apart, and about one foot apart in the row. A strong, mellow loam is preferable, but with manure and thorough tillage, fair crops can be raised on light sandy or heavy clay loam.

As to varieties, the Wilson can be raised in a greater variety of soils, climate, and localities than any other. On strong loams the Triomphe de Gand usually succeeds, and is a sweeter berry. Jucunda will do well on a heavy, strong loam, and generally averages larger berries than the Triomphe. Charles Downing succeeds on both light and heavy soils. Col. Cheney, Kentucky, Monarch of the West, and Star of the West, are newer varieties, highly commended by many.

Raspberries.—Raspberries are much easier of cultivation than strawberries, and are used in a greater variety of ways. They are good to eat out of hand, sugared on the table, in pies and puddings, canned or in jams, and are excellent dried. Transplant, in April, on a good loam, in rows six feet apart, and from twenty inches to two feet in the row. If not convenient to transplant in April, they may be very successfully removed in May, after the new canes have made a start, by careful handling.

In the Black Cap family, Davison's Thornless, Doolittle and Mammoth Cluster take the preference. Some think highly of Ontario and Seneca.

Among the reds, Clark, Kirtland, and Philadelphia are good and hardy, and Hudson River, Antwerp, and Franconia are fine, needing protection; Highland Hardy, Bristol, Brandywine, and Turner are promising in localities where they have been tried.

A Hybrid.—The Canargua Hybrid is a hybrid between the blacks and reds, and is certainly one of the most vigorous and productive raspberries we have ever seen. It is good for the table, cooking or drying.

Blackberries.—This species comes latest of the berry family, but cannot well be dispensed with in the family garden. It should be planted in the same way as the raspberry, but, if planted as closely, will need severe shortening in, to admit of cultivation. Dorchester, Early Wilson, Kittatinny, and Lawton are the old, well-known varieties. Snyder is undoubtedly the hardiest, and has a fine, wild flavor, and Honsac has a local reputation from its being thornless.

Currants—Ripen about with the raspberry, and, although less highly prized than formerly, when the other small fruits were seldom grown in the garden, yet from its intense and delightful acid it is still popular. It should be transplanted in April, four feet each way, in a good garden soil, and kept clean. If the currant worm should appear, it should be promptly treated with white hellebore, for the destruction of the foliage the first season would check the growth of the young plants. Cherry and Versailles are the finest reds, and White Grape the best white.

Gooseberries—Should be planted and cultivated very much like currants, and like currants they are used for cooking while green. The American seedlings are the only reliable kinds, and among these Houghton's, Smith's, and Downing's are the best.—Rural Home.

RAISING SPRING CHICKENS FOR 1876.—Henry Anthony, living near Smyrna, has a new process for growing spring chickens for the Centennial, which, from present indications, promises well. He has a house, about twelve by twenty-five feet, with glass front and ends. He has a stove in it, which he uses when necessary. He set his first hens some time in December, and has nearly four hundred little chicks. He expects to reach five hundred, and to be able to ship his first lot of "broilers" in May. Each hen has her own particular compartment in the house, and the floor is covered with little pens and thronged with chirpers. The house is lined with tar paper to keep out vermin, and so far this seems to accomplish all that was claimed for it. The success in growing chicks has been remarkable, so far, in the experiment.—Smyrna Del. Times.

The Lily of the Valley is a great favorite with the best judges of flowers, on account of its delicate, while, fragrant flowers peeping out from its large green leaves. It is a perennial that takes as firm a hold of the soil, with its immense roots, as to be well able to hold its own against all intruders. It flourishes best in a deep, rich soil.—Detroit Post.

Man—"Do you think it would be safe for me to cross this pasture?" Maid—"Well, the old bull don't like red very much, but if you chalk your nose I guess he won't attack you."

OILS, LAMPS, ETC.

ILLUMINATING OILS

AND

AT

REDUCED PRICES.

THE

PUROLINE AND PORTABLE

GAS LIGHT CO.

Offer to the trade, at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES, the following list of their superior and popular brands:

INSURANCE OIL.

The Insurance Oil is the best Family Safety Oil and is urgently recommended by all our Insurance Companies as a substitute for common Coal Oil or Kerosene. It may be used in ordinary lamps Without Change of Burner.

THE NEW ORLEANS BOARD OF UNDERWRITERS SAY:

"It is our opinion that the general use of the Insurance Oil would greatly reduce the number of lamp fires and explosions, and lessen the risk of destruction of life and property."

It will not explode or ignite in a lamp, and the price has been so reduced as to place it within the reach of all classes of consumers, and make it the great FAMILY SAFETY OIL.

As an illuminating Oil for family use, or for general use in ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil lamps, the Insurance Oil has the indorsement of the New Orleans Board of Health, the Fire Commissioners, and all the American and European Insurance Agencies, as PERFECTLY SAFE.

Refined Carbon or Coal Oil.

THE WELL-KNOWN CROWN BRAND.—This is a pure, high test Kerosene or Coal Oil, generally known as the Crown Oil, and recommended to the trade, and to consumers who Buy CHEAP OIL, as the best and safest of all the LOW-PRICED ILLUMINATING OILS in market. In five years' experience no accident from its use has ever occurred. The Puroline and Portable Gas Light Company have the exclusive agency of the Crown Oil for the States of Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

PUROLINE FLUID.

For Metallic Gas Lamps and Portable Gas Burners. Manufactured and sold only by the Puroline and Portable Gas Light Company and their Agents.

This celebrated Fluid, prepared by a process known only to the proprietors, is the best and most reliable of all the products of Petroleum for use in Metallic Portable Gas Lamps and Lanterns. It burns clear and bright, is free from smoke or unpleasant odor, and does not char the wick or gum the burner. No other fluid or oil should be used in Portable Gas Lamps or Lanterns.

Puroline is especially recommended for use in Portable Gas Lamps and Chandeliers, in Street Lanterns, Sugar-House Lamps, Cane Shed Lanterns, and in Torches and Gas Burners for Steamboat Landings, Moonlight Picnics and Street Processions. Giving a light equal to the best city Coal Gas, it enables the people of the remotest villages to illuminate their Stores, Warehouses, Saloons, Hotels, Churches, Streets and Gardens as brilliantly as the favored residents of a great metropolis.

Gasoline for Gas Machines.

Distilled expressly for the Puroline and Portable Gas Light Company, and with peculiar regard for the changes of temperature, so common in this climate. Unequaled for generating gas, or for carbureting coal gas.

Proprietors, patentees and owners of Gas Machines cannot overestimate the importance of having their Gasoline of reliable gravity and quality, as success depends so much on these conditions.

JENKINS' ANNIHILATOR.

PURELY VEGETABLE COMPOUND, for the permanent cure of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia.

What the Annihilator will do:

From one to two bottles will cure any first attack of Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia.

From two to twelve bottles, according to duration of disease, will cure any case of Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia.

It is one of the best regulators of the circulation ever known.

DUCONGE'S
PECTORAL BALSAMIC SIRUP.

NEARLY half a century has elapsed since the discovery of this wonderful compound. Its established virtue and its high reputation in diseases of the Chest, Lungs, Breast and Bowels are well known, and has been tested for so many years by such extensive patronage, that it would be superfluous, at this late day, to dwell at any length on its efficacy in Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Affection of the Throat, Stomach or Bowels; Spitting of Blood and Whooping Cough.

It has been found highly beneficial in all Inflammatory disorders, such as Rheumatism, Diarrhea Dysentery and Summer Complaint, and especially in those cases of Cholerine which, for want of proper care, so often degenerate into confirmed Consumption.

Affections of the Lungs, verging on Consumption, it has been found most efficacious in checking that most awful scourge whenever resorted to.

Such is its acknowledged certainty of cure, this extraordinary medicine has, over most compounds of the same nature, the decided advantage of being to its agreeable flavor, it can be administered without the least difficulty to children, and requires no particular diet. It is also the cheapest, simply because the bottles contain more sirup than any other, but owing to its peculiar composition the sirup will keep for years without fermentation, and can be used in families whenever required by simply keeping the bottle well corked.

Directions for Taking the Sirup.—Grown persons will take from four to six spoonfuls in the course of the day, either pure or diluted in a little water, and in quantity at intervals of three or four hours.

Persons much troubled during the night may take two tablespoonfuls of the Sirup on going to bed, as it will stop the cough and procure a good night's rest.

Children from three to five years old may take from one to six teaspoonfuls during the day, in small quantities, at intervals of three to four hours.

THE ONLY TRUE AND PERFECT HAIR COLORER!
THE MYSTERY,
Turner's Hair Tint!

"BEAUTIFUL! PERMANENT!"

This preparation has received the indorsement of the scientific world, and wherever introduced has excelled all other preparations of the kind, rendering all preparation of the hair by necessary.

It is free from all Deleterious Ingredients, such as Lead, Sulphur or other components which are injurious to the Hair or Destructive by Absorption, &c.

It not only saves both time and labor, as a few applications with a comb, once a month or so, to the Whiskers, answers the purpose, the color being so perfectly assumed as to defy detection.

But its great recommendation, is in its natural, producing any desired shade, from brown to the deepest black, and entirely removing that dry and burned appearance produced by other Hair Dyes. The Mystery can be applied to single hair or spots that have changed, and restored to their original shade without applying over the head, as is necessary when using other Hair Dyes.

Will be sent free by mail to any address in the United States upon receipt of Price, One Dollar, by the inventor and proprietor,

JAMES TURNER, Chemist,

THE BALANCED SCREW
COTTON PRESS.

THIS is a most valuable improvement over made by the Screw Cotton Press. It remains all that it ever possessed, and adds thereto capability and

The screw is operated and closed upon the screw descends at a speed of With the nut open the screw and screw arms are down upon the cotton. Power is then applied and the pressing is done all the way down; then open the nut, and raise up the screw and follower instead of screwing it up. This raising and lowering the screw, by means of the counterbalance, saves reversing the press at least sixty times, reducing the time and labor of pressing a bale one half.

This Press has taken the highest premium over 40 competitors at the recent State Fairs of Mississippi and Louisiana.

DANIEL PRATT'S IMPROVED
"Revolving Head" Cotton Gin.

PATENTED JULY 15, 1873.

Price Reduced to $4.50 Per Saw.

THIS GIN has been in use for the past three seasons, and several recent improvements have been added. It obviates all friction at the ends of the cotton box, prevents the roll from breaking, and gives a Larger Yield of Lint from the same Amount of Seed than any other Gin in use. The Revolving Head lightens the draft and causes the Gin to run faster with less driving power, thus doing a great deal more work within the same time, while economizing steam or animal power than any other Gin. The seed being ginned very close, the length of the staple is increased, producing cotton on this account of a greater market value. This improved value, given by length of staple, with extra production of lint, added to increased amount of work done, more than covers the cost of the Gin in every ten bales ginned. Testimonials sent by mail on application.

MONETARY.

The usual outflow of supplies is drawing upon the resources of business men, but has been provided for with such care that no change in money matters is apparent. Stocks and securities, of all kinds, are firm, and some descriptions are held at higher figures as our quotations will show. Confidence in our city bonds is increasing, and moving steadily upward. The following prices we cull from the report of the New Orleans Stock Exchange of September 15: Exceptional paper, 8 per cent.; A1 paper, 10@12 per cent.; second-grade paper, 15@18 per cent.; A1 mortgage paper, 9@10 per cent. COTTON.

We select the following extracts from the cotton circular of Messrs. W C. Watts & Co., Liverpool, Sept. 1, 1876:

The Position, etc.—The trade have purchased very sparingly this week, say some 20,000 bales less than their consumption. There has been no inducement for them (spinners) to buy more than was actually necessary. Silver has declined ¼d. per oz. during the week, and this has to some extent checked business at Manchester, in goods and yarns, for shipment to India and China, besides the large business done during the first half of this month seems to have exhausted the orders in the hands of buyers, and consequently the lull in the demand is but natural. Last week it was hoped that the war between Servia and Turkey was very near a close—that diplomacy was about to put an end to the struggle—but now there is less hope of such a speedy termination, and the uneasiness still existing as to future serious political complications is not only sufficient to check business with the Levant, but yesterday had a very marked influence in depressing prices on the Stock Exchange. The crop accounts from America also continue favorable, and it is expected the next report of the Agricultural Bureau will represent the condition at the close of August to be considerably better than it was at the same date last year. The Bureau represented the condition at the close of July last year to be 85.80 per cent. of an average, and at the close of August to be down to 88.30 per cent. Unless there seems to be a similar decrease in August of this year it will, to a considerable extent, dissipate any fears of an insufficient supply of cotton the coming season, and thus induce spinners to pursue, as a general rule, the policy of buying "from hand to mouth," excepting when they have booked orders for future delivery of yarns, etc.

The stock of cotton held by English spinners we now estimate at 83,000 bales, against 134 000 last year, and 119,000 the year before, at same date.

CHARLESTON, Sept. 22.—The armed negroes in Aiken county dispersed upon the approach of a large force of organized whites.

Apprehension of serious fighting is quieted for the present, but several attacks by negroes on isolated plantation houses are reported, and great uneasiness prevails throughout the country.

The strike on the Combahee has broken out afresh, and with increased violence. The strikers are beating most brutally all the colored hands whom they find at work. Some of these hands, who had been working for $2 a day, and who were terribly cut and bruised yesterday, reached Charleston this evening, hoping for redress from the United States Court, as the civil officers of the State are powerless in the disturbed regions, and the gangs of strikers are masters of the situation. The planters are in despair about harvesting the rice crop.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The Times publishes a Barcelona letter, saying: "During the past three months the clergy and aristocracy have made a severe attack on their employes and servants who dare worship or send their children to Protestant schools or churches. Hundreds of poor men and women have thus suffered for their faith."

Lord Derby has consented to receive a deputation relative to the Protestants in Spain. It was stated at a meeting of various Protestant societies that the German mission had not been molested, in consequence of a special stipulation with the Emperor William.

The Times prints a letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury, to the bishops of the United States and Canada and the West Indies, proposing July 7 as the time for holding the Pan-Anglican Synod at Lambeth.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A Reuter's telegram from Belgrade says the proclamation of Milan as King of Servia was enthusiastically received by the population. It is believed that the Prince and his ministers only disavow the act because of the strong diplomatic pressure, especially by England.

The plague appeared among the Turks before Alexinatz. They are compelled to change their positions and burn their tents and posts.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.

This building is a parallelogram 840 by 540 feet, and covers 10 acres of ground, exclusive of its boiler and annex houses.

It contains a complete display of the products of the forest, the farm, the garden, and of the waters of the many nations and States represented, also an exhibition of the practical operation of all machinery with which crops are sown, cultivated, gathered, and appropriated to the use of man and beast. I shall give a glimpse merely of this department, mentioning only the peculiar features of some of the exhibits.

Spain sends the best rosin, tobacco, in different forms, and the best wool from Merino sheep.

The display of Germany is large, especially in beer, hops, bitters, and wines, but unfortunately for her laurels, except in Rhenish wine, her exhibit is too near that of France, which, for wines and liquors of all sorts, is second only to Italy, and for chocolates, candies, fruits, preserved fruits and vegetables, and all sorts of oils, is far ahead of all nations. The French beat the world, too, in ornamentation of articles, and arrangement of exhibits.

The Dutch (Netherlands) make a fine display of olive oil, preserved vegetables, seeds for garden, cereals, and blue flax. They excel in gin and cheese.

Sweden and Norway make the best show of fish, preserved in oil, a fair exhibit of forest timber, and of fishing nets and boats. The agricultural implements of Sweden are good; those of Norway, and of the Netherlands, are very inferior.

Denmark exhibits fine varieties of barley and oats.

The display of Brazil, I think, is the best of all foreign nations. It shows the largest number and amount of best specimens of the most valuable products, such as cotton, coffee, silk, timber, medicines, and vegetable fibers, and gums of all sorts. It shows, also, fine cereals, flax, and tobacco. Like that of Spain, this exhibit is well arranged, and makes a good impression on all visitors. The agricultural implements of Brazil are not good, but Dom Pedro, who is a man of sagacity and progress, has bought a full supply of improved machinery, with which to make the next crop.

Portugal shows an abundance of cork and other valuable woods, and a creditable display of wines, nuts, and skins of animals.

Russia shows the best loaf sugar, and other fine sugars made of beets, the largest display of coarse flax and wool, and field and grass seeds.

Great Britain and Canada show fine wool, flour, meal, grains, a splendid variety of forest birds, and all improved machinery by the wholesale. The English fruits and vegetables, canned and preserved, are inferior to those of France and the States of America.

Austria and Hungary show a variety of fruits, wines, wheat, and woods of all kinds.

Japan has a curiously arranged department, but excels in nothing except tea. Her exhibit of silk and cocoons is far inferior to that of Brazil, and her fruits and vegetables are very common.

Venezuela shows fine coffee and cotton, fruits, nuts, oils, chocolates, and leather. I was surprised to see such a variety of valuable products from this semi-barbarous country.

Italy shows 171 varieties of wine from the grape. Her display of wines is the best of the exhibition—so regarded by all.

The Old Irish Whisky is the favorite thus far. All these nations, and some others not noticed, exhibit grains, leather, metals, timber, and fish in addition to those articles mentioned as specialties. Chocolate, too, is a very general product, and is capable of showy display. The same impediment to progress has existed in foreign governments of a southern latitude as existed in the Southern States of America. They, like we, have relied upon fertility of soil, and the ease of making a living, while the more Northern countries, because of less favorable climate, etc., have been pushed up to greater effort, and, as a consequence, to greater development. Nothing less ruinous to nations, or to individuals, as too easy or too good a start.

In the United States department, especially among the Western States, the visitor gets bewildered and remains so for several days in effort to decide which is the best display of cereals and timber. Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska, Oregon, Wisconsin, Iowa, Washington Territory, and Kansas are the chief competitors for this honor. Their specimens of corn, wheat, oats, barley, and all varieties of grasses, are simply magnificent; with these they show their planters and cultivators, cutters, mowers, and harvesters, and every other machine that can save time and labor. All the machinery is exhibited on one side of the building, and is driven by engines located in outside houses.

Another feature of the agricultural exhibition of much interest is the display of valuable timber. All the States show specimens of their largest trees and most costly woods. Delaware shows two blocks of timber, one of walnut, six and a half feet, the other of pine, seven feet in diameter. Michigan shows many specimens in plank shape equally as large. California has a section of wood, taken from a tree 276 feet high, which is 80 feet in circumference, the bark alone being 37 inches thick. This is no sensational tale. After an examination of at least ten full days of the displays of all these States, I have decided that California is the banner State of the entire exhibition. Her gold mines almost equal those of Mexico; her silk that of Brazil; her wine that of Italy and France; while as to grain and timber and wool she is, perhaps, ahead of all others. Kansas has made more character than the other States of the West for cereals, but this is owing greatly to the fact that she and Colorado have a separate building in which they make a more elaborate and showy display than any of the other States can make in the general agricultural building. Still Kansas does make a splendid exhibit. I never saw such a profusion of excellent grain so handsomely arranged. Iowa, Kansas, Rochester, N. Y., and suburban Philadelphia show the best green fruit, fresh supplies of which are constantly received. They consist of pears, grapes, plums, apples, and melons of all kinds.

Some of the individual exhibits are worthy of mention because of peculiarity of age, size, or magnificence. A bird cage, made of silver and glass, nine by six by five feet, costing $1,500, is very pretty, shown in the middle of a collection of stuffed birds. A California fruit man shows a fruit dryer that will turn out a barrel of cured raisins in one day; and a mechanic in the wood turning business, at San Francisco, shows a seal of State made of eighty different kinds of timber. A Pennsylvania farmer shows two pigs weighing respectively 1,307 and 1,250 pounds, and a plow of 1776. Somebody sends a plow made by Daniel Webster. He was not a success at plow making. A fencing machine is very complete and curious. It saws the timber for posts, cuts it off proper length, shapes the rails, bores the holes, and makes the tenons and shoulders all ready to put together. An old windmill, used in 1776, is the most popular sight of all, except Old Abe, an eagle, that was three years in the war with a Wisconsin regiment. Many people, and all the darkies, buy his photograph through love for his name. Delaware sends a bell stamped in 1683. A New York horse-dealer has a stuffed horse, twenty-one and a half hands high, weighing, when alive, 2,800 pounds. Barrels made of one piece of wood, except the hoops, is a great improvement on the old stave pattern. A New Yorker shows, in glass jars of small size prepared, specimens of washed wood from every nation and State in the known world. Leadbeater & Son, of this city, show 190 varieties of field and garden seeds in a handsome case. In addition to the fish exhibits in salt, in oil, dried and photographed, there are glass cases of large dimensions along the entire western side of the building, filled with water flowing in and out, in which are shown fish of all kinds, from the smallest perch to large buffalo and green sea turtle of enormous size.

I have not only been interested in this department, but have learned more of the agricultural productions and progress of foreign nations, and of our own country, than I had ever learned from books and travel. And this is true of all the departments of the entire exhibition. They are full of information, and are worthy of the study of all men who pretend to keep up with the developments of the day.

And now I close these imperfect, hurried notes. I could say much of Horticultural Hall, with its flowers and perfumes of all climes, and of that garden of luxuriant and variegated beauty that spreads out like a carpet of velvet upon its western lawn; of the women's pavilion full of domestic art and handiwork contributed by every class, from the poor blind girl of the asylum, to the royal household of England; or of the United States Government building, with its valuable collections in all departments of science from all nations, its specimens of natural history, its mementoes of national achievement, and the life-like, full-uniformed illustrations of soldiery, in all ranks of service, from Revolutionary times to the surrender of Gen. Lee, divided into sections according to epochs, and arranged under the supervision of presidents, secretaries of war and navy, generals and commodores, whose portraits hung around, as if in review, add dignity and impressiveness to the scene.

What Southern man of sense will allow the North alone to glorify the deeds, or revere the memory of those Southern heroes and statesmen who were the chief actors, both in council and in war, in the establishment of our government. We may not love our present rulers—indeed how can we—but we do love our mother country, and her noble sons of earlier generations.

LEVI W. REEVES.

PHILADELPHIA, September 6, 1876.

From the Work.

MR. EDITOR: The Brookhaven District Conference was held in Crystal Springs, July 13, Rev. H. H. Montgomery presiding. The attendance was large, and much interest manifested.

The spiritual condition of the church was not as favorably reported as we could wish, excepting a few localities where the work has been greatly blessed. The brethren are all laboring faithfully for the Master. Prayer meetings are not as well kept up as should be. Class meetings are not much attended to. Baptism of children is much more uniformly attended to in the district than formerly. Sunday schools are increasing in number and interest. All feel the importance of training up the children in the way they should go.

We can say for Brookhaven district that both country and town have as fine Sunday schools as are anywhere to be found. One thing we find no improvement in is ministerial support, and we would like for the church to answer how the cause can prosper when one of the most essential means is kept from it. Half the Conference year is gone, and many of our noble ministers report only about one-fourth salary paid. We trust the next Conference may reveal things quite differently financially. We are proud to state the increasing interest taken in our church paper, the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. A committee was appointed to consider the interest of the ADVOCATE, and reported as follows:

Whereas, We are satisfied that mere preambles and resolutions are regarded as a cheap commodity, and we would not offer words of praise nor pledge efforts for the success of the ADVOCATE that we are not perfectly satisfied its readers will readily endorse, and its agents will carry out; therefore be it

Resolved, That we heartily indorse the editor and his arrangement and conduct of the ADVOCATE.

Resolved, That it is the experience of the pastors, within the bounds of this district, that where the ADVOCATE is read, in families of their charges, they have much less trouble in introducing religious topics than in families where the paper is not taken.

Resolved, That we heartily approve the plan of devoting a department of the paper to the children and encouraging even little children in writing for the ADVOCATE, affording thereby to the children of the church an opportunity for intellectual and spiritual improvement. And we also regard it wise and proper that the editor should, as heretofore, give the current news of the day through the columns of the ADVOCATE.

Resolved, That we deplore the habit of some of our members taking secular papers to the neglect of the ADVOCATE, which secular papers are in many instances not only unworthy a place in Christian families, but often corrupting in their influence upon the household.

The following resolution about church entertainments was also adopted:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this District Conference that theatrical exhibitions are not the better plan to raise money for church purposes, and that we recommend to our church the more excellent way of direct appeal to the liberality of the people. Provided that this resolution is not to be construed as condemning the practice of giving suppers, or selling the products of their skill, and devoting the proceeds to church purposes.

The place selected for holding the next Conference was Beauregard.

The following delegates and reserves were elected to the next Annual Conference: David McRee, J. H. Thompson, Rev. J. W. McNeil, and Willis Barnes. Reserves—R. P. Willing and B. H. Catching.

SILVER CREEK CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Knowing the solicitude every lover of the church has for her interest is my apology for this intrusion upon the columns of your paper.

Our work has been growing in interest since our first Quarterly Conference. Our third was held September 2 and 3, Bro. William B. Hines presiding.

We held a four days' meeting at Middle Silver Creek, with no visible indications of success, and with Sabbath morning's service (September 3) closed the meeting; and in the evening came to Palmetta Home, and held service at night, with some indication of work of the Spirit in the hearts of the congregation. After we had dismissed the assembly, it was suggested we continue the services next day, which we did, resulting in seven accessions to the church.

After leaving Palmetta Home we came to Tchula Lake, and held service on Wednesday morning, and, owing to sickness and press of farming interest, had to leave for Yazoo city. On our way we baptized and received four into the church.

On Sabbath last your correspondent tried to preach on Tchula Lake (which was our regular appointment,) after which we proposed to organize society, and to our happy surprise fourteen persons came forward and joined in covenant with God. My brother, you can better imagine our joy of soul than it is possible for words to express it. The very forest seemed to bow with hallowed joy over the organization of this company of soldiers for Christ's army so near their shades. In our reflection we thought we could see surprised devils in full retreat from the sacred scene. There were persons present who had not heard any preaching for some years. Surely God is with us!

Yours in Christ,

G. W. BROWN, Pastor.

The Hamburg Case.

A correspondent of the Picayune, writing from South Carolina, says:

The postponement until after the election of the trial of the case growing out of the Hamburg riot, by Attorney-General Stone, is regarded here, and will be regarded, everywhere, as palpable evasion, amounting to a confession of his utter inability to give any color of proof to the charges he had so freely made. Any man of ordinary intelligence will perceive how valuable this trial would have been to the Radical party in and out of the State, if there had been any prospect of a show of evidence going to corroborate the slanders which have been so generally circulated with regard to its subject matter. Besides, the accused had all along invited and urged a legal investigation. Gen. Butler had challenged Gov. Chamberlain to come to trial, and had announced his ability to show Cumberland's complicity in promoting the disturbance. Not only the official character but the veracity of both the Governor and the Attorney-General were involved in this trial. In shirking and dodging the issue and avoiding a legal investigation, even before a South Carolina court, they are confessedly unable to establish the truth of charges deliberately made and published officially; and the country at large will hold them responsible, as the Democrats of the State do, for some of the most malicious calumnies which have ever been circulated against this much slandered people.

TO THE PREACHERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH.—Dear Brethren: I call your attention to a tract now in press, and which will be out in ten days, on "High Churchism Run Mad, or the Fruits of Close Communion." Price, single copy, 10 cents, 75 cents per dozen. Send orders to Dr. A. H. Redford, Nashville, Tenn.

OUR MINISTER'S SERMON.

The minister said last night, says he,
"Don't be afraid of givin'
Heaven all's worth nothin' to other folks,
Why, what's the use of livin'?"
And that's what I say to my wife, says I,
There's Brown, the miserable sinner,
He'd sooner a beggar would starve than give
A cent toward buyin' a dinner.

I tell you our minister's prime, heds.
But I couldn't quite determine
When I heard him give it right and left
Just who was hit in his sermon.
Of course there couldn't be no mistake
When he talked of long winded prayin'
For Peters and Johnson they set and scowled
At every word he was sayin'.

And the minister he went on to say
There's various kinds of cheatin',
And religion's as good for every day
As 'tis to sing to meetin'.
I don't think much of the man that gives
The loud amens at my preachin',
And spends his time the following week
In cheatin' and overreachin'.

I guess that dose was bitter enough
For a man like Jones to swallow,
But I noticed he didn't open his mouth,
Not once after that, to holler.
Hurrah, says I, for the minister—
Of course I said it quiet—
Give us some more of this open talk,
It's very refreshin' diet.

The minister hit 'em every times
And when he spoke of fashion,
And riggin' out in boys and things,
As woman's ruhin' passion,
And coming to church to see the styles,
I couldn't help a-winkin',
And nodded my wife, and says I, "That's you,"
And I guess it set her thinkin'.

Says I to myself, that sermon's quare
That man is a queer creature,
And I'm much afraid that most of the folks
Won't take the application.
Now if he had said a word about
My personal mode of sinnin',
I'd have gone to work to right myself
And not set there a-grinnin'.

Just then the minister says, says he,
"And now I've come to the fellers
Who've lost this hour by us both, I'm afraid
As a sort of moral umbrellas.
Go home," says he, "and dust your coats,
Instead of hangin' your brothers,
Brush in," says he, "and wear the coats
You tried to fit for others."

My wife she nudged, and I knowed she wanted
A end there was lots of huddlin',
And lots of lookin' at our pew
It set my blood a-bilin',
Says I to myself, our minister
Is gettin' a little bitter,
I'd tell him, when the meetin's out,
I ain't at all that kind of critter.

From Vicksburg to Los Angeles.

MR. EDITOR: At noon on that great day—the first centenary of American independence—with my wife, and baby I went aboard the beautiful steamer Capitol City, at the Vicksburg elevator, bound for St. Louis, en route for my new field of labor—Los Angeles, Cal. The day was hot, but when the boat got under way we enjoyed it finely. On we steamed up earth's grandest river, past islands, and towns, plantations and cottages, reaching Memphis at twilight on the fourth day. There we staid twenty hours, and we saw the city park, Elmwood Cemetery, State Female, and numbers of the handsomest residences I ever saw. The Memphians have done honor to themselves in erecting that exquisite monument to Mattie Stephenson, the Yellow Fever Martyr. It bears the beautiful legend: "She died for us!" State Female College has by far the most comfortable accommodations for boarders and the best study hall and recitation-room arrangements I have ever seen in any school. A very pleasant hour was spent with the editor of the Western Methodist. On we go again past cities, towns, and islands, stopping a few hours at Cairo, in the Egypt of the West, being in Alexander county, of which Thebes, now almost deserted, was once the capital—strange coincidence—history repeats itself. I hope the orlental Egypt had a better looking Thebes, and has a prettier Cairo. On we go, the fourth commandment notwithstanding, but we made Sunday as much a Sabbath as we could, the Rev. John T. Wheat, D. D., of Memphis, a Protestant Episcopal clergyman, with a big soul and liberal views, preaching a fine sermon at eleven o'clock A. M. and the writer making an attempt at eight o'clock P. M. The passengers attended well. We pass towns and villages, rocks and bluffs, too numerous to mention. St. Louis is reached on Monday at ten o'clock A. M. After seeing the city and Shaw's Garden, we left on Tuesday at eight o'clock P. M., on the St. Louis, Kansas City, and Northern railroad for Omaha, with the assurance of no change of cars—notwithstanding we do change, so much for the veracity of railroad agents. Reader, if you come to California, don't come on that road. We reached Omaha, on the edge of the plains, in twenty-four hours, all covered with dust and soot; spend the night at a little Yankee hotel over in Council Bluffs, and get aboard a Union Pacific railroad emigrant car the next day at three o'clock P. M., bound for Ogden, Utah. We found the emigrant car quite roomy and comfortable, from the fact that we could cook at will, which we did on a little kerosene stove borrowed of a clever fellow-passenger, arrange our own bed, and live at ease, together with the facts that we have no dust nor soot, and have time to see the sights. Such sights! such sights! Plains with no green or dark fringe in the horizon, all covered with long grass, until we sweep over the Black Hills, when we find sage brush and alkali, antelopes galloping over the hillocks, jozotes slipping through the grass, Jack rabbits looking like miniature calico mules, all run to ears, prairie dogs, with more ostensible curiosity than a whole academy full of girls, the grand little owl, whose very gravity makes one laugh; and last, but biggest, the snow-capped mountains. Down we sweep through Echo and Weber canyons—such rocks, such cliffs, and beetling crags!

I can't tell it, reader; go and see for yourself. Here we are at Ogden, in the land of Mormonism. Yonder rolls the wonder of America, Great Salt Lake, with the Wasatch mountains looking down into its billowy bosom. We now dash into the desert—oh! the alkali and the sand, the glare and the heat—desert, desert, desert, till we climb the bold Sierras. Up, up, up, past saw-mill and flume, ice depot and station, stopping at Truckee, a mountain-top town, picturesque and pretty. On again, through thirty-three miles of snow-shed, around Donner Lake and Cape Horn. Eureka! We see the land of gold, the occidental Ophir. Down we glide into the far-famed valley, and get on board a jaunty little steamboat at Sacramento. On we float down the Sacramento, and through the Bay of "Frisco;" passing grand grain farms, vast orchards, rocky islands, and various water crafts, we land in San Francisco. We were bored at St. Louis by railroad agents; we were bored at Ogden by a biped donkey employed by an eating-house to act as an ass; but worse bored than ever by hotel runners in San Francisco. San Francisco, or "Frisco" as they call it for short, is the biggest young city in the world. Here we stay a day and look, but don't see half of the city. We are honored by a call at the hotel from Bro. C. Chamberlin, formerly of the Mississippi Conference, and Bro. Wick. B. Payne, the genial, jolly editor of the Methodist. He is a layman and a fine editor. All aboard! we glide out from the "Frisco" pier on the upper cabin deck of the steamship Senator through the Golden Gate, and out on the green waves of the old Pacific. Over the billows we roll, and oh! how sick I get. Oh! ocean may be very poetic, but I'd take mine on land just now if I could. Forty-eight hours we roll, and I don't find a bit of poetry in it, but feel decidedly more so as we land and board the cars at Santa Monica, and roll over the plain through orange groves and vineyards to that far-famed "Eden of the West," Los Angeles.

Mr. Editor, here we are. We have seen it all, except what we passed while asleep; and now I have told as much as I can, unless you surrender your paper to me a few weeks.

Yours,
H. WALTER FEATHERSTON.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Aug. 18, 1876.

Letter from Texas.

MR. EDITOR: After a long silence we make an effort to write to you from this far-famed country—Texas.

It was sad, and required a severe struggle to tear away from dear old Louisiana. It was no light thing to separate from the association and from personal contact with such a body of men as the Louisiana Conference. Indeed, there is an esprit de corps in that body which places it among the foremost of the church. As we write, memory calls up the old camp grounds, Beulah and Bethel. Again we hear them sing and shout as in the days now beyond the flood. Once more we are beside the grave of a darling babe at dear old Holly Grove. Again we are at Belle Bower, Kearbie, and Liberty. Once more we meet the loved friends at Mount Zion, Mooringsport, and Friendship. Friendship! Truly thou art named aright, for upon no spot on earth does true friendship bloom along a preacher's path than within your sacred precincts. Again we are at the feet of our aged brethren, Tidwell, Ilsley, and others, whom we loved in life and hope to love forever. Once more we are with Barnes, Pressley, Franklin, Kilo, and Cassity is with us on our way to the distant appointment. We realize to-day in this distant land that life at best is but a meeting and a parting; but blessed be God, when the eternal cycles shall dawn upon the hills beyond the river, then we shall meet to part no more forever.

Yes, we are in Texas. No man eastward can conceive of the meaning of that word unless he has traveled westward. Mighty empires have been erected, vast armies moved, and broad campaigns completed on less territory. She is equal in extent to the Middle and New England States, with Maryland and the two Virginias added on. Three-fourths of the Mississippi river could find itself a channel within her borders. Place her southern point on New Orleans, her northern point would rest on Chicago. Were she thus placed, she would soon dispute the supremacy of both lakes and gulf with the strongest. From east to west, she would reach from Shreveport, La., to Charleston, S. C. No one man can give satisfactory and intelligent information about Texas except the portion he chances to be in. There is the lumber region, the timbered country, "the brush" country, the grain country, "the cotton belt," the sugar region, the cow country, the bald prairies, the sandy plains, and the mountains. Every kind of land is here; and to judge of lands by all the criterions used in "the old States," will make the settler go by the best lands and settle on the most worthless.

It is not unusual in plowing a hundred yards to cross six or eight different soils. Lands are uncertain property, owing to the inaccurate surveys made at the first settlement of the country. The lines run to every point of the compass. There are no sectionized lands here except the railroad grants. Another source of great trouble are the "old claims." Under the cover of these an immense amount of fraud has been practiced. Men have often paid for their homes the third time. The Texans feel the disadvantage of these things, and some efforts have been made to give relief. The greatest disadvantages of Texas are a lack of wood and water in the middle, northern, and western portions. Building material is very scarce and very dear. Lumber sells at from $3 to $7 a hundred, owing to its distance from purchaser. There are no fences worthy of the name, nor any timber to repair or rebuild when those they have are gone. "Timber stealing" is considered among the low vices by the Texan landholders. The lack of seasons will always be a serious drawback. They have either all the fat or all the lean kine at once. It rains very curiously here. One county is deluged with rain, and another adjoining is parched to death. It rains sometimes by bucketfuls on a few acres, while all around is drouthy. Really, Texas is a Gideon's fleece both ways. The weather changes, too, in a way that would make old Mrs. Weatherwitch scratch her head; oftentimes at every meal. Pneumonia is the winter and spring disease, and terrible congestions of every sort the maladies of summer and autumn. Persons disposed to these can find a speedy termination of life by coming to Texas. We are not impressed with the healthfulness of the country. Everything here is peculiar, and as shifting as the channel of the old Father of Waters. The railroads are the foundations of Texas' prosperity, and their termini are the centers of trade. All "the old towns" have been broken up, and new ones built upon their ruins. A look of newness and of instability rests upon everything that is done. The church is greatly interested in Texas.

Isms of every order and of the most destructive kinds are here in massed forces. Catholicism has lost her sway, but others are more than making up for it. The Campbellites and Cumberland Presbyterians are said to be the greatest disorganizers. Unionism prevails to an alarming extent, and is, as always, the fruitful cause of strife. To be a faithful Methodist preacher in Texas is the next thing to being a martyr. Texas surpasses any country in the world for breaking down the influence of such men. Else they are a most abandoned, graceless set; for the like of slander upon their good name we have never heard. Sin and infidelity are dominant all over the country. Horse-racing and dancing are the besetting sins of Texas. It is a Texas proverb that "there are no boys nor ponies in Texas—all men and race horses." Of course, under these circumstances, "the fields are whitening unto the harvest." In no country in the world is worldliness so all-absorbing as here. It is a dangerous country for young converts, and not a safe place for an old member, unless he brings a letter and presents it to the church at once. Our Fairfield circuit has experienced some glorious times. The junior preacher, Rev. G. W. Swofford, is a most excellent man and a valuable coworker. We have had fifty conversions and seventy-four accessions this year. We have held two camp and two protracted meetings on the circuit, according to Bro. Parvin's plan. Our presiding elder, Rev. T. W. Hines, is doing a stirring work on this the Corsicana district. Rev. John S. McCarver has worked and preached with great zeal, power, and effectiveness among us. We are looking forward to the visit of Bishop Doggett with great interest. We cordially invite you, Mr. Editor, and the Louisiana preachers generally. You will all be welcomed warmly.

Yours as ever and forever,
R. H. ADAIR.

FAIRFIELD, Aug. 26, 1876.

To the Members of the Mississippi Conference.

DEAR BRETHREN: We have the highest authority and the most approved precedents for preserving and perpetuating the history of the church. The Old Testament is little else than a history of the church under the patriarchal and prophetic dispensations; and as soon as the Apostles and Evangelists became successful in preaching the gospel, they commenced writing and publishing a history of the church, as found in the New Testament; and from that to the present time the history of the church, in all her leading branches, has been written and published for the edification of Christendom. As an important branch of the general church, we must contribute our part to her general history. You discharged an important duty to the present and future generations of Methodist Christians in our country in making the necessary arrangements to have a complete history of Methodism in the Mississippi Conference written for publication. I do not say that you were fortunate in selecting the writer; but I may be permitted to say that the matter had been so long deferred that I was the only man left that could write it from long personal contact with the materials of the history. The manuscript is now complete in four volumes, of about five hundred pages each, beginning in 1799, and ending with our ecclesiastical year of 1869. I never expected to publish the work myself. I have written for you in compliance with your unanimous request. I am not able to publish it, and never expect to be; and if I were able, I would not do it, for then it would be looked on as a private enterprise, and but few would interest themselves in its sale and circulation. It was a happy thought for the Conference to make itself responsible for the publication of the work, for this gives every member of the Conference a personal interest in the success of the enterprise. Once published, I believe the work would be well patronized by the Alabama, North Mississippi, Louisana, and Texas Conferences, for all their territory was once a part of the Mississippi Conference, and they are dependent on our journal for a history of early Methodism in their territory up to the time it was set off from the original Conference, and I have been very careful to give its history while it was a part of our Conference. I have never thought any plan spoken of for the publication of the work feasible until the one adopted at our last Conference, which was for each preacher to collect ten dollars and forward to the treasurer for the publication of the first volume. Dr. Redford, our general book agent, advised this course, as he thought the publication and sale of the first volume would provide the means for issuing the second, and so on to the end of the series. I regret to say that very little has been done yet, but enough to commit us in honor to the publication. The greatest difficulty I have seen in the plan last adopted is, that the preachers do not seem to understand the import of their own resolution to obtain and forward ten dollars to publish the first volume. When we say anything about the ten dollars, many of them immediately begin to tell us how poor they are, how heavy their family expenses are, how little quarterage they have received, and how utterly unable they are to advance the ten dollars. It was never expected that the preachers should advance the money out of their inadequate salaries to publish the book. We expect, as a matter of course, that every preacher will want a copy for his own library, but we propose to publish the work mainly for the entertainment and edification of the members and patrons of the church, and most of them who are able, are willing to pay for its publication, especially when they are informed that, if they wish, they can have the worth of the money in a copy of the book. Many of our laymen are clamorous for the appearance of the work, and say, when called on, they are ready to advance the required sum. I believe there is not a pastoral charge in the Mississippi Conference, that at least ten dollars could not be raised in, if the object was properly explained and they were called on for the amount. And if there is a charge so poor that it cannot raise at least ten dollars to perpetuate the history of God's gracious dealings with the church of its choice, it ought to be put off the self-supporting list, and either added to some other charge or made a mission. Try it, brethren, and you will very generally succeed. Find five persons who will advance two dollars each, and you have it. Or else explain the object clearly, and get the required sum in fractional currency by public collections in your congregations. If you do not send it as directed in your own resolution, be certain to bring it to Conference. Our history will do good. It will advance the interests of Methodism. If correctly printed—which it must be—I have no doubt but it will be both saleable and readable.

I think you will not be disappointed in your book. It has already been examined by some of the best judges among us, and they heartily indorse it; and if there is any doubt about "its worthiness" I am ready and even anxious to have it thoroughly examined by any number of competent critics.

I hope the brethren will bear in mind that I have worked at their bidding. I have spent nearly four full years as constantly and conscientiously engaged in writing this history as any preacher in our Conference has spent the same term laboring in his pastoral charge; and all up to this date, at my own expense of time, labor, stationery, correspondence, etc. Now I wish to see some fruit of all my toil and care."

I am now in my seventy-third year, and I think, in justice to myself and the book, it will be best, if possible, to publish it entire while I am living, that I may sit down, among my text books and voluminous memoranda, and read, and if necessary, correct any errors that may appear.

Yours affectionately,
J. C. JONES.

OBITUARIES

Correspondents, please write names and dates very distinctly. We follow copy in proper names.

Obituary notices should be forwarded promptly and immediately. Give only points of general interest, such as will help the living. Details of funeral services, and such phrases as "mourn their loss," etc., are not edifying. Verses, either original or select, not admissible in this department. Give the locality distinctly and in full. In the case of infants only a simple announcement of the death, with name and dates, will be published.

☞ All obituaries received are published as soon as convenient. If, after a reasonable time, any such communication fail to appear, let a duplicate be sent instead of a complaint.

BRO. JAMES S. CLACK was born October 1, 1797. He was born of God and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church South at New Iberia, about twenty years ago.

Bro. Clack was highly esteemed by all who knew him. His neighbors, both saints and sinners, pronounced him a good man. The brethren who knew him best loved him most. As a man he was remarkable for his integrity and probity. His word was a sufficient guarantee to any one who knew him. He required no indorsement, but, like the unadulterated coin, he passed currently upon his own intrinsic value. As a Christian he was consistent, uniform, devout, ever ready to do or to suffer the will of the Master. If "the effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much," who can estimate the loss sustained by the community from the cessation of the prayers of this devoted Christian?

Bro. Clack was a great sufferer. For many years he was afflicted in a peculiar and most distressing manner, yet he was patient and submissive, having a "desire to depart and to be with Christ;" nevertheless content to abide in the flesh. He was literally troubled on every side, yet not distressed; perplexed, but not in despair; cast down, but not destroyed; for he rejoiced in the verification of the promise: "My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness." He died July 14, 1876, at his home, near Tunica, West Feliciana parish, La. His death was sudden, and in an unexpected and painful manner, shocking the community, and paralyzing the home circle with bitter grief. But their sorrow is not without hope. A bright vista opens up before the eye of faith. By-and-by there will be a happy reunion in that bright land where God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes. May the God of all grace "comfort and bind up the broken-hearted" widow. May the sweet assurance of the Prophet drop as soothing balm upon her grief-stricken heart. "Thy Maker is thine husband; the Lord of hosts is his name, and thy Redeemer, the holy One of Israel." May the bereaved children love their Savior supremely, and rejoice in the realization of the precious promise: "I will receive you, and will be a father unto you; and you shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty."

IN THE Sabbath school at Belmont, Sumter county, Ala., August 20, 1876, the following was proposed and adopted:

Whereas, It hath pleased our Heavenly Father to take away from our Sabbath school, and from the troubles of this life, our loved little school mates and companions, BIDDIE, BELLE, and ANNIE LAURIE TAYLOR, to visit us with the deepest sorrow, and to smite the hearts of their parents with the bitter rod of affliction; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we bow with meekness and submission to this sorrowful dispensation of the Divine will, looking with prayer and Christian hope to the great Author of our faith to stay the hand of the destroyer, and shield us from calamity with the wing of his love and mercy.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to the stricken parents of our dear little friends in this the darkest hour and sorest affliction of their lives, and point them with confidence to the only solid source of comfort and consolation, whose loving hand has transplanted these buds of affection from the chilling winters of time and earth to a more genial clime, where they will ever live and bloom in the light and glory of his love.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved parents of the deceased, and to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

A. J. GUARD, Superintendent.
H. M. TALLAFERRO, Clerk.

HENRY H. CLARK was born in East Feliciana parish, La., in the second of April, 1851, and died at the residence of his parents, in Pointe Coupee parish, La., July 25, 1876. He was the son of H. F. and F. S. Clark, and was a mute. He was educated at the "Institute for the deaf and dumb, at Baton Rouge, La." He seems to have been a very good scholar, and was possessed of good natural talents, and he was a man of refined feelings and sentiments, and of a generous, loving heart. One remarkable and commendable trait of his character was his deep love for and his devotion to his parents, especially his mother. He was received into the church in 1874, by Rev. V. Pointer, and seems to have been a consistent Christian till his death. The dear son, the loving brother, is gone, and we trust that those ears so dull upon earth have before this been saluted by the songs of the redeemed, and that the silent tongue has been loosed, and has joined in the triumphant song of the blood-washed throng that are united in ascribing praises to God and the Lamb forever.

J. H.

DIED, in Wilcox county, Ala., April 26, 1876, after a lingering and painful illness, Sister CYNTHIA COOK. She was born in Nash county, N. C., in 1805; was married in Alabama to Manassah Phelan, in 1824. Soon after her first marriage she embraced religion and united with the Methodist Church. After the decease of her first husband she married Capt. D. H. Cook, with whom she lived twenty years.

It was not my good fortune to know her long. Soon after my appointment to Lower Peach Tree circuit, I went to see her, and found her on a bed of sickness, from which she never rose till God called her from labor and suffering to rest.

She was rapidly approaching her end, power of speech was greatly impaired, but enough could be understood to discover that her faith was strong—her hope based on the rock Christ Jesus.

A short interview convinced me that she was ready for the solemn change that awaited her. Her life was the life of a Christian, in the true sense of the word, filled as she had lived, and left to her surviving friends the cheering hope that she still lives, and lives to die no more. The bereaved husband and sorrow-stricken children follow her as she followed Christ, and meet her in heaven.

GEORGE F. ELLIS.

DIED, near Edwards' depot, Hinds county, Miss., May 13, 1876, Mrs. MARY E. DRUMMOND, wife of T. W. Drummond, in the forty-first year of her age.

Another elect sister has gone to rest on flowery beds of ease—for through much suffering was she called to pass on her journey to that home eternal in the heavens. It is by affliction chiefly that the heart of man is purified, and that the thoughts are fixed upon a better state." And sorely did he keep the trials of our beloved sister. A few brief months before she was laid on her bed of affliction, she followed two of her daughters to the silent tomb. If our present state were one continued succession of delights, or one uniform flow of calmness and tranquility, we should never wish to think upon its end; death would then be a surprise, as a thief in the night. Our task of duty would remain undone till the night come when no man can work."

In 1857 she joined the Baptist Church, which she lived a consistent member till 1871, when she and her husband were received into the Methodist Church, of which the writer was then pastor, from that time until her death she lived as one who seeketh her heavenly home, and when the summons came she was fully prepared to meet her Lord in peace. After calling her husband and family around her, and giving to each her dying charge, she told them heaven's gate was open to receive her, and she saw the shining host that had come to welcome her home. Then, singing a few stanzas of that sweet hymn,

"Jesus, lover of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly,"

she calmly and sweetly passed away to that blessed inheritance prepared for her by Christ.

J. M. WIT[illegible]

DIED, in Mobile, July [illegible], after a short illness, Mrs. SARAH E. DAVIDSON, aged twenty-nine years.

Sister Davidson was converted at a meeting held last spring in St. Paul's, and immediately received into full membership. The genuineness of her conversion was evinced by her devotion to God and his marked regularity of her attendance upon the means of grace. Thus her attachment to the flock, of becoming gold, was constantly strengthened, and her heart was kept warm in the love of God. Her religion was a source of constant joy to her. Frequently in the class room she would say, "My heart is happy." After this spirit she lived, and doubtless died in the faith. God has taken her, in the prime of life, away from her husband and helpless children, but we know that his ways, though inscrutable, are [illegible]

DANIEL G. RENNER was born in Georgetown, in the district of Columbia, in the year 1821, and died in the city of Natchez, Miss., on the twenty-seventh day of July, 1876. He came to Natchez in 1844, and was a citizen of that place of its choice till his recent death. In the year 1[illegible], during the pastorate of Rev. A. T. M. Fo[illegible], the city of Natchez, he sought the pardon of his sins, was made happily conscious of his acceptance with God, and became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. This position he strove to honor to the close of his life. He was deeply interested in the church, and was ever ready to do anything in his power to promote its welfare. For many years he filled the office of steward and that of trustee, and sometimes both at once, and ever in a manner both useful and acceptable to the church. In his family he was remarkable for affectionate devotion to wife and children. Few husbands and fathers have ever been more ardently loved than was he by the inmates of his house. His last illness, which was quite protracted, he bore with that Christian fortitude which should ever characterize a servant of God. Desiring to live for the sake of those he loved, he nevertheless cheerfully submitted to the will of God, trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ as his Savior, and committing all his destiny into his faithful hands. To his wife he said: "Grieve not for me, I am only going before you to the better land." Calling his children, three grown up and four little ones, around him, he gave each one of them his parting counsel, and then bidding them all and his wife an affectionate farewell, calmly slept in Jesus, hoping to have a part in the resurrection of the just at the last day.

A SONG OF SOLACE.

...weet hand of God, that so wouldest my heart,
...makest me smile, while thou makest me to smart;
...ems as if God were at ball-play, and I,
...harder he strikes me, the higher I fly.

...n if, he bruises, he pierces me sore;
...the hammer and chisel afflict me no more:
...I tell you the reason? It is that I see
...Sculptor will serve out an angel for me...

...ink from the suffering, how painful soe'er,
...ounce I own not that my God's hand is there!
...on the anvil the iron shall glow,
...the Smith with his hammer deals blow upon blow.

...presses me hard, but he gives patience, too!
...I say to myself, "'tis no more than thy due,"
...lone, from the organ can swell on the ear
...the musician's fingers press down on the keys.

...ome, then, and welcome the blow and the fire,
...ust there no moral in heaven can inhabit;
...what can the sheaves on the darn-floor avail,
...the thresher shall beat out the chaff with the flail?

...ora moment God clusters with pain
...follows on sorrow like sunshine on rain;
...there's that to God to thy spirit shall lay,
...ound; but when tempted to murmur, then be.

My father felt impelled to state publicly what he knew of the private life and virtues of his friend. This, of course, brought upon him the wrath of General Harrison's enemies, and he was denounced as a "political preacher."

My father was present at the celebrated interview between General Harrison and Tecumseh, the great Indian chief. The chief sat on the ground, and the white men present felt that the situation was a critical one. Every Indian warrior kept his eye fixed on Tecumseh. My father is mentioned in the "Life of Harrison" as the young preacher who stood in the door of the house with a musket in his hand to defend the ladies.

In the autumn of 1844 my father was sent to New Orleans. The Protestant population of the city was then small, and very few Methodists among them. He hired an upper room, taught school during the week, and preached on Sabbath. His signal for preaching was the gun fired to call men to the "cock-fight" at ten o'clock A. M. His main supporter was a German brother, named Knab. This good man in after life always kissed my father when he met him.

As to my father's character as a preacher and writer, I need say nothing. All that is well known. He preached the gospel with great purity and power, and thousands were charmed and blessed by his ministry. He rests from his labors, and his works follow him. "Jesus died for me" was the ground of all his hopes. One of his favorite hymns was,

Jesus, I throw my arms around
And hang upon thy cross.

"Jesus, lover of my soul," was another favorite, and one that expressed his experimental theology. His death, like his life, was radiant with the glory of the cross. How precious the memory of such a father!

He was buried at home, and the hymn sung at his funeral was engraved on his tombstone. It was as appropriate to him as it is sublime:

Servant of God, well done!
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy.

Ruskin on Precious Stones.

Mr. Ruskin lectured recently, at the London Institution, on the words from Genesis, "And the gold of that land is good; there is bdellium and the onyx stone," altering the text, as will be seen in the sequel. He said he thought it would be interesting to his audience to see the way in which he was trying to bring science before working men at Sheffield—that was, by pretty and enlightening means as he could, and yet giving distinct knowledge. He only ventured in science on beaten ground, and ventured on nothing doubtful. He picked up knowledge if he could, a thousand years old and more, but only that which had stood the test of investigation and was trustworthy. Although it was not generally thought of him, Mr. Ruskin continued, he was one of the most practical of men, and liked to talk about things that could be touched and were useful. He held in his hand a pebble, perhaps from a moraine, perhaps from old sea beach; and he had a sovereign. None of us know what things are; but he thought he knew a little more about them than the other people. What things are made of anybody can tell; the smallest apothecary can tell you that this pebble is made of silicon, and oxygen, and water. Just so, they will tell you that your yourself are "molded" carbon, phosphorus, lime, and seventy per cent. or rather more of water; but that does not tell you what you are. Quoting his text, Mr. Ruskin now read "crystal" for bdellium, and said that in the only other place where bdellium occurs in our version (Numbers 11: 7,) it refers to the color of manna, and was translated in the Septuagint by krustallos, or that which is congealed by cold. He discussed the references to manna as dew found in the morning, and said that it was pure as Alpine snow. Then "crystal" in the English version is, in the Book of Job, joined with gold, and in Ezekiel, the firmament is "as the color of terrible crystal." In the Apocalypse the river of life is "clear as crystal." The three substances named together in the text stand generally as types, the gold of all precious metals, the crystal of all clear precious stones prized for luster, the onyx of all opaque stones prized for color and for distinction of color. The last included the whole range of marble and alabaster works, and the system of Byzantine architecture. The highest use of gold and stones had always been for devotional purposes, and the three masters in christendom were Vogelleo of Perside, Holbein, and Sandro Botticelli.

After describing the specimens of stones upon his table, Mr. Ruskin diverged into an explanation of the statement in the Pentateuch that the covering of the tabernacle was of badgers' skins and of rams' skins. Nothing of the sort was meant. Seals' skins, not badgers', were used. The rams' skins were dyed red; and the three colors of the tabernacle were blue, gules, and purple. Much might probably still be learnt from the now neglected science of heraldry, where every color had its stone. Or, gold, comes first; it is called sol, the sun, rejoicing as a strong man to run his race, standing between the light and darkness, representing work. Its stone is a topaz. Second is carbide, scarlet, which we once confused with gules, but is the stirred hue of human flesh, incarnate strength, and incarnate modesty. Its stone is the jasper, red with the same iron which colors human blood. Third was vert, viridis, which represents virtue and virginity, the color of spring, the true color in the eyes of Athene, the emerald smaragdos, rent as the earth was rent in the battle with the Titans. The fourth was gules, from the Persian word gul, for the rose, the color of love, the ruby. The fifth was azure, the clear blue of the sky, joy and love in heaven. Its stone was the sapphire, the same stone as the ruby, though their colors were different; and the union of the two colors made the sixth color, purple, whose stone is the jacinth, and bloom the hyacinth, the sable flower inscribed with woe. The seventh was argent, silver or snow. Its stone is the carbuncle, the same stone as the ruby, a white sapphire. It was associated with the morning star as the eighth, sable, was with the star of evening. Sable is from sabulum, sand, and the diamond is its stone, which is never found save in sand. The ninth was gray, columbine, plumby, the color of the dove. Its stone is the pearl. Thus all the phrases of heraldry, which applied to color and to precious stones, although now looked upon as jargon, had a deep symbolic meaning.—London Architect.

A Noble Belgian Institution.

Describing some recent local festivities in Brussels, a correspondent of the London Times says one of the most interesting ceremonies of the fetes was the distribution of State rewards for "acts of courage, devotion, and humanity," at which the King, the Queen, and the Princess Louise were present. In Belgium there is no trusting to private benevolence and to private societies to reward or recognize the saving of life from drowning, from fire, or from calamity in the streets. This duty is undertaken by the State, and is under a State department. The ceremony was held in the temple des Augustines, a fine old church which stands in the middle of the roadway in the new boulevards. The body of the building, which is of great size, was crowded in every part, and the Minister of the Interior presided. The seats on the sides of the platform were filled by officers of the State in uniform, by officers of high rank, and by the members of the court. When the royal family came, the whole audience arose with the greatest enthusiasm and cheered their majesties the King and Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess most warmly. The first to be honored was a little fellow twelve years of age, whose achievement brought tears into the eyes of the Queen and Princess. It seemed, from the account read to the audience, that three children, of whom the boy was the eldest, were playing in their room by themselves when the little sister pulled over a paraffine lamp and set herself on fire. The brave little fellow, fearless of burns, did the best he could to extinguish the flames, and was so horribly burned himself that he was three months ill, and will bear the marks of his achievement to the grave. The sister died, but the boy's act was recognized by his being awarded the medal of the first class—a large gold medal, surmounted with the royal crown. The second was a boy who rescued a child from the broken ice in a canal last winter, and the gold medal was also given to this little hero. The third was a man, who had rescued, at the risk of her life, an infant from a burning house. After the boys and the nun came two members of the Chamber of Representatives—M. D'Andrimont, the Deputy of Liege, well known to the English Volunteers who visited that city in 1869, and to the members of the Iron and Steel Institute, who were there a short time ago, and the Comte de Borchgrave d'Altena, Deputy of Tongres and Burgomaster of Marlinne. M. D'Andrimont saved the lives of two bathers on two different occasions. The Comte exposed his life on two occasions in preventing public calamities at two fires. The two deputies were rewarded, amid the cheers of the assemblage, by the civil cross of the second class. The two members of the Belgian Parliament were followed by two workmen, one of whom a slater, Wagemans, had rushed into a burning house to rescue a sick woman, and was assisted by a painter named Ducos. Both men were much burned, and the slater had the first-class medal awarded, the other the second. Then came Colonel Poitiers, of the Garde Civique, or Molenbeck St. Jean, who plunged into the water in his clothes to save a man who had fallen into a canal. The Colonel was awarded the first-class medal. Among the other heroes in civil life decorated for saving life, were a student, aged sixteen, who received the first-class medal for saving a man from drowning, the Abbot Thoman, of Ostend, who received the same for a like act of devotion, a religious named Justin Morelle, for saving a child carried away by a current; and officers and pilots of Antwerp were rewarded, their acts of devotion being in connection with the fire of the paraffine-laden American ship Westmoreland. On one of the brave fellows being pulled, it was announced that he had met his death by drowning in the river Schelde. There were many other presentations of a like character.

When any one shall say to you, "I do not feel that I have come to Christ," turn their thoughts away from such introspection, and turn them again at once to Christ; do not go into the science of optics, but give the light, which will enforce a consciousness of spiritual seeing.

It is stated that sometime during the present year a party of one hundred Englishmen is coming over to this country on a grand fox hunt. "Ist? I'sh?" Ark! the horn of the hunter is heard on the hill.

True science, which is the knowledge of facts, and true philosophy, which is the knowledge of principles, are always allied to true religion, which is the harmony of the soul with facts and principles.

Religious Intelligence.

—Rev. Selah Merrill, of the American Palestine party, fixes the sites of Sedom and Gomorrah at the north end of the Dead Sea. His reasons are, first, that the tradition that these cities were submerged and their sites obliterated is not warranted by the Bible; in the next place, it is now established by geologists that the surface of the Dead Sea was never less but formerly was much greater in extent than it is as present. Only a very small portion of the region at the southern end of the sea is habitable, while the greater part of the plain at the northern end is very fertile, and has been occupied by cities from the the time of Moses at least. Again, the catastrophe took place about five centuries before the time of Moses and Joshua, and in their time we find on this plain a Beth-Jeshemuth, or house of desolation, which name it seems probable preserved the impression produced upon the popular mind by the great event. The site of this place still exists, and its present Arabic name, "Suweinreh," corresponds exactly in its signification to the Hebrew tradition. If this name is regarded as significant of the character of the place, then it is far from being appropriate; hence there is all the more reason for supposing that the meaning of this word has reference to an ancient catastrophe which brought destruction and in a certain sense desolation upon that region. If this is the site of Sodom, some place must be found very near it, also in the plain but nearer the mountains, to which Lot could flee between dawn and sunrise. Such a place appears in Tel Ektanu. Mr. Merrill adds: "It should be remembered that because certain wicked cities were once destroyed by fire it does not follow that their sites or the region about them became uninhabitable any more than such a result followed in the case of the Chicago or Boston fire. The sites remained and were afterward built upon, and have ever since been occupied by cities or ruins."—Christian Union.

—PROGRESS IN JAPAN.—There are no less than eleven missionary societies working fraternally together in Tokio, Japan, and in the closely related part of Yokohama, through nearly seventy missionaries, there being about an equal number of men and women. The total missionary force in Japan is about one hundred and fourteen, perhaps half of whom have arrived and are yet students. From a few instances, see how the leaven of Christianity is to spread in Japan. The head of the Normal School for Women, in Tokio, a scholar of reputation, belongs to a church connected with the Canada Wesleyan Society. Several students in the university belong to the same church. A Japanese gentleman of high rank is a member of the American Methodist Church, and is outspoken in his profession of Christianity. A private gentleman of great wealth connected with the American Presbyterian Church, has opened a large store in the midst of the city for the sale of Bibles and Christian literature in all languages read by any among the Japanese. He has also brought out, at his own expense, a new translation of Matthew and Mark, prepared chiefly by the Japanese, to meet the wants of those who are highly educated in the Chinese. The religion professed and enforced by the lives of such men cannot fail to impress the communities in which they dwell.

—Mr. Saville, of the London Society, in an address at Exeter Hall, made a very encouraging statement with regard to Tahiti and the other islands of the Society group. Christianity has now stood the test of three-quarters of a century on those islands. It has lost its novelty; it has been interfered with by the erroneous teachings of the Roman Catholics and by the immoral practices of hundreds of Europeans now residing there; but it has a stronger hold on the native conscience and heart than ever. No trace of heathenism remains, and it is necessary to refer to books in order to know fully what the old idolatry was like. Mr. Saville illustrated the intense feeling which the Society Islanders have against heathenism, by narrating an experience he made among them soon after leaving England. Having instituted a May anniversary, after the English fashion, he persuaded the young people to decorate their school room with ferns and flowers. While they were thus engaged, the deacons came in and were horrified at the sight. "Here," they said, "are the very things with which our forefathers used to dress up the old heathen altars." Not until the walls and posts were bare as before would these grandchildren of cannibalistic idolaters agree to enter upon the anniversary services.

Next year the Fourah Bay College at Freetown, Sierra Leone, will be half a century old. It has from the beginning been very ably conducted by the Church Missionary Society. The first pupil on its roll was Samuel Crowther, the energetic bishop of the Niger Mission. Men educated in this institution have, as pastors and teachers, been a blessing to various parts of the west coast of Africa. This year the college has been reorganized on a wider basis, such as the advanced condition of the Sierra Leone colony requires. Studies have been added to the course, the teaching staff has been increased, and the scale of fees has been arranged. The institution is still to furnish facilities for the training of missionary agents; but is the same to serve as a high school for the youth of the colony. For this purpose the college has been affiliated with the University of Durham, so that African students may receive their degrees without being obliged to leave their own country.

Our Young People.

SHORT SERMON TO BOYS.

Whatsoe'er you find to do,
Do it, boys, with all your might;
Never be a little true,
Or a little to the right!
Trifles even lead to heaven,
Trifles make the life of man;
So in all things great or small things,
Be (so thoroughly as you can).

Whatsoe'er you find to do,
Do it then with all your might;
Let your prayers be strong and true,
Prayer, my lads, will keep you right.
Pray in all things, great and small things,
Like a Christian gentleman;
And forever, now and ever,
Resist thoroughly as you can.

Lost in the Snow.

Widow Wild and her only son, Paul, occupied a small farmstead on the skirts of Greystone Moor, a wild, uncultivated track, lying among the fells of Westmoreland.

On a never-to-be-forgotten Sunday, in the month of January, Paul set out on a special embassy to the family meeting-house situated in a small hamlet some distance off. It was a venerable building, more spacious than necessary for the scant population, but it had a history of its own. It had been reared in perilous times, when the Five Mile Act was in force, which prohibited the assembling of schismatics, as Dissenters were then called, in the vicinity of corporate towns, and punished with fine or imprisonment such as infringed the law. Here the primitive Christians of a former age—fearless, devout, God-fearing men and women—were wont to congregate for public worship. When enlightened legislation brought more merciful times, and the wearying Sabbath journeys were no longer imperative, the old edifice was still preserved intact as a memorial of the past, and to those to whom it had been a very tabernacle in the wilderness.

When Paul, warmly equipped with rough overcoat, fur cap, muffler, and stout boots, set out from home, leaden-gray clouds were scudding overhead, and a searching northwest wind was sweeping across the moor. In due time he reached his destination, sat out the morning service, saw the congregation dismissed, and then stole round to the vestry-door, there to waylay the aged pastor with the "widow's mite."

His mother had knitted a couple of pairs of thick, warm worsted gloves for the pastor's acceptance, and Paul was the bearer of them. The old gentleman expressed his gratitude in unstinted terms, and finished up by conveying Paul away bodily to his modest cottage residence.

The widow's son had never been so honored in his life before. Only to think of dining at the minister's table, sitting eating the looks in the minister's study, warming himself at the minister's fire; above all, listening to the minister's famous conversation, every word of which sank soothingly into his soul. His old preceptor from infancy unseemed to stand out a living embodiment of the Galilean presence with the Galilean voice, saying: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

It was growing dusk when Paul, rehabilitated, started on the return journey. He had but six good miles to traverse, if fortune enough to keep the straight path across the moor; how many, otherwise, remained to be seen.

The whole he had been enjoying the minister's hospitality and kindness the snow had begun to fall, and the desolate plain was already one vast winding sheet. He had unexpectedly two foes to encounter—a blinding shower of pitiless ice flakes, and a rising hurricane that would not be gainsaid.

For a short distance there were hedgerows to guide his feet, and skeleton hand-posts to point the way he should go. When these failed him, and deep night came down on its sable wings, hope there was none, save in a providential Providence. Commending himself to the Father of the fatherless, he pressed forward despite the fury of the elements. Again and again his boots stuck in the snowdrifts, and again and again he paused to take breath, and brace himself up for more strenuous exertion.

He must have been fighting his way for hours, still as far off as ever from home and parents, still unknowing which way to turn, when his limbs suddenly grew benumbed, and a sickening drowsiness, so often fatal to the snow-bewildered traveler, stole over him. "It is of no use to try any more," he cried, the tears gushing forth. "God befriend my poor mother, and save my soul for Jesus' sake!"

With that he laid him down on the snow medium to sleep, to die.

It was a most fortunate thing that Snap and I were led that identical afternoon to seek temporary shelter in Widow Wild's cottage. We had anticipated a heavy snow-fall, and were making the best of our way toward Barnard Castle, when the violence of the elements counseled us to halt on the first opportunity.

The prim-looking dame who stood at her door, nervously peering into the flecked distance, shrank back when first accosted, but, reassured, immediately proffered such accommodation as fell to her lot.

"Have you journeyed far? Did you come across the moor? Did you meet any one on the way?" she eagerly inquired.

"Not a soul," I replied; "weather like this is too terrible even for the like of us," and Snap and myself know what it is to rough it."

Crushed in heart and hope, she but herself double on a low stool near the threshold, and moaned: "My poor boy! My poor, dear boy! I shall never see him again—never! He is lost to all but ——." The remainder of the sentence was lost in an intense exhibition of feeling.

It required no ghost from the grave to interpret the state of affairs, and no monitor but my own heart to point out the plain path of duty.

"Cheer up, dame! cheer up!" I whispered in her ear, laying my hand at the same time gently on her head, "tell us all about it, what he is like, whither he was bound, and you have two friends here who will go through, not alone snow and wind, but fire and water, if needs be, to serve you!"

The salutly eyes that were instantly upturned, streaming with tears, might have quickened the pen of the recording angel!

A hasty meal, a temporary rest, and Snap and his chief strode out into the black-setting night air. I carried a bogh lantern with me, and Snap wore a sheepbell suspended from his neck. "The widow's blessing go with you!" cried Dame Wild; and it did go with us. Our footsteps once on the moor, there were not wanting good omens to encourage us in our enterprise. The fury of the Arctic gray clouds had abated considerably, and we had the wind at our backs, fortunately, scattering the snow before us as we plodded on. "Good dog!" I said to Snap, and he instantly commenced snuffing about in all directions. My voice might frequently be heard traveling far on the breast of the blast.

Midnight had come and gone, the wind was still, and there was a faint glimmer of moonlight struggling through the clouds, when Snap pulled up all of a sudden at a snow mound—the very mound upon which Paul had laid himself down—and began tearing away at it with his paws. Ten minutes later and no human power could have rivalled the widow's son. The death-sleep, which knows no waking, must have set in—and there an end!

The cold nose of the dog on his face, the sound of a strange voice in his ear, a dim perception of things as yet confused and intangible, a violent rubbing of his hands, chest, and feet with snow, and Paul recovered consciousness, to our extreme satisfaction.

It was daylight before the truant was restored to his aged parent. If the grief had been great at his absence, her joy at his presence was no less. Taking him in her sinewy arms and raining kisses on his rough lips and cheeks, she exclaimed: "This my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found." An offering of tears, and then: "Bless the Lord! Let all the earth praise him!"

Paul's first epistolary effort was to express in his own vernacular—the Westmoreland dialect—his boundless gratitude to Snap and me "for t' reesein' him fray t' deeade." It reached me some weeks after our romantic episode on Greystone Moor, and, fortunate a time and particular account of the thanksgiving service that had been held on the following Sunday but one, when the dear old minister preached a wonderful sermon in the dear old meeting-house, from the singularly appropriate words: "He is only son of his mother, and she was a widow." He further said that the good pastor had promised to draw up a memorial for presentation to the Royal Humane Society, urging that august body to confer medal its badges of honor on Master Snap.—Skip Van Winkle, in the Christian Globe.

A Sagacious Cat.

One very strange thing I remember happened at the house where I was once visiting. I had been told of it, but never fully realized how peculiar it was till I witnessed it myself. The family consisted of my friend, her husband, and four children; and when a new was brought that puss had five new kittens, each begged so hard to be allowed to have one, that orders were given to save four and drown the remaining one. Whether Mrs. Puss missed her remaining child or not I don't know, but she seemed very well satisfied with those left her, and was more than usually happy when any of the children would pay her a visit at her snug quarters under the kitchen table. A dozen times a day or more would the reckless kittens be dragged from their shed to be kissed and petted and hugged. But, if so happened that from some cause or other one whole day passed without any one going to see the kittens, much to their mother's grief, who had frequently gone to the nursery in search of her young friends. Evening came; the whole family were together, the two younger ones being on the floor, when, to their astonishment, in walked the cat, carrying a kitten in her mouth. This she carried to one of the children, and so soon as she saw it was kindly received ran quickly away. Bump, bump, was soon heard, and in came the mother cat with another kitten, which was deposited near another of the children. Curiosity was now excited; the two elder children took seats on the floor to see if kittens would be brought to them, and in a very short time they were. Then was pussy's happiness complete; she would purr loudly, rub herself against each one in turn, and try by every means to show how pleased she was.

During the time I visited at my friend's I witnessed the above strange scene three times, and never once did puss make a mistake in not giving the kittens to their proper owners, nor was the peculiar "bumping" noise ever heard when she carried any other but Neil's. Need I say that it was soon named "Bumps" by the children?—New Dominion Monthly.

The first day Artemus Ward entered Toledo, travel-worn and seedy, he said to an editor who was on the street: "Mister, where could I get a square meal for twenty five cents?" He was told. "I say, Mister, where could I get the twenty five cents?"

Wisdom consisteth not in knowing many things, nor even in knowing them thoroughly, but in choosing and in following what conduces the most certainly to our lasting happiness and true glory.

Thorns in the Flesh.

The great apostle's experience was not exceptional. There are few who have not something like this thorn in the flesh. Precisely what it was is left pretty much to conjecture. Doubtless it was some bodily disease, causing acute pain and terrible suffering at times. Whether it was a disease of the eyes, the ears, headache, or some nervous disorder, it is impossible to tell. It was something trying to his patience, humiliating to his manhood, and, as he conceived, embarrassing to his ministry. In considering the labors and sufferings connected with his apostolical office and ministry, the recollection of this thorn, as superadded to all his other troubles, will help us in our estimate of Paul's life and character.

A diseased body is one of the severest trials to one whose work would seem to require the maximum of strength and the utmost of physical health. And yet this condition, so desirable and so much coveted, is often denied to those who would consecrate all their powers to the service of their Savior. We are reminded of Luther with his grievous malady, of Robert Hall with his life-long agony, of John Kitto, most of all beset with bodily infirmities, and yet each one of them suffering heroically and working manfully to the end. But this sort of discipline is not confined to such eminent and gifted ones. Thousands of less note in the family of saints have this messenger of Satan to buffet them. Some sharp thorn of disease clings to them through life, consumes their strength, depresses their vitality, and at times lays them by as worse than useless in the cause to which they are devoted.

Natural religion can throw no light upon such a dispensation of affliction, and even under the gospel the sufferer is apt to struggle with his chain and be tempted to murmur. In some instances there may be healing in answer to prayer, but in many more the thorn loses none of its sharpness, and it continues to rankle in the quivering flesh, and to send its streams of fire along the nerves. People pray for health, for soundness of body, not altogether that they may be comfortable, but that they may be more useful, and because they sincerely feel that it would be for the glory of God. But the buffeting does not abate, and their prayers seem to be in vain. Do they interpret the event aright?

With Paul the explanation was a revelation, but it was made for our sake as well as for his. There was a moral purpose, a spiritual end in the affliction. "And lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelation they was given to me a thorn in the flesh." Even such a man as Paul was in danger of being exalted above measure. It is peculiarly the danger of gifted men. God bestows the gifts because they are needed, and, in this case, visions and extraordinary revelations, but at the same time the danger is guarded by a suitable check. In our measure and circumstances we can all read the important lesson. The thorn is given for our good; there is reason why it was given, and why it must stay. It is better so than that we should fall into spiritual pride, and become unduly elated by such distinctions as God for his own cause and glory has bestowed upon us. A preventive discipline is the most beneficent. The scourge that is for correction is merciful, but the chastening that anticipates and prevents sin is more gracious.

Paul was satisfied when he knew the reason, and felt that Christ's way for him was the best, that the thorn should stick, that the buffetings should continue while he had the promise of sufficient grace. Sufficient grace was better than abundant health, and, knowing the reason that his prayer was not answered, he saw that he had escaped a great peril by the refusal to grant his petition. Submission under suffering brings us all within the range of that most delightful promise: "My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness." If our prayers for health are not answered; if the anguish continues, notwithstanding our cries and tears, if Satan's buffetings are unabated in spite of our most urgent supplications, if, in this thing, God refuses the boon we ask, let us reflect before we murmur. The prayer is unanswered not because of our lack of faith, not because of any actual sin committed, not that we have incurred the divine displeasure, but because God would keep us humble, dependent, patient, and guard us against evils to which he may see that we are liable.

Whether this fully explains or not, the child of God will thankfully accept his lot of suffering along with its dowery of grace, and rather glory in infirmities than repine and complain. It is right to pray that the thorn may depart from us, and sometimes God may see fit to answer the prayer. If safe for us, if best for our usefulness, he may rebuke the disease, and give us what we desire. But, if the boon is withheld, there is a greater blessing if we rightly penetrate the divine meaning, and submissively accept the decision of infinite tenderness and love.

Out West. Texas.

MR. EDITOR: The field of ministerial labor in Texas has always presented this incentive to work. In addition to the ordinary sense of responsibility, a vast territory of rich lands and valuable pasturage was drawing an immense population from all parts of the world, and soon a polyglot nation would be spread over our prairies. No State in the Union has such an empire of wealth awaiting the development of human labor, and hence the great emigration to the State. These emigrants generally come with limited means, and are compelled to labor hard for several years before they can purchase land and build their homes. During these years of hardship they must be supplied with the gospel, but they are not able to support the men who serve them. Shall they be without the privileges of the church? Ministerial obligation cannot allow this, and the future interests of the Church and State cannot afford to leave them thus neglected. The truth is we have a grand field of missionary labor which is but little understood by our missionary board. Our collections for domestic missions will supply but a part of this demand. For be it remembered that even our older settlements have just passed from the missionary status to the self-sustaining circuits. Men of small means and large families are coming to us from the older Conferences, leaving the ability of their Conferences unimpaired, but giving us a heavy burden. We will do the best we can for these emigrants, but the missionary society might help us to do much better. There is a large field open for young and active ministers who can do much work on small pay; but all who propose to transfer to Texas should understand that our gold-bearing trees were cut down during the war, and they have not sprouted since. We will welcome them to our "work of faith and labor of love;" but if they have either purse or scrip they had better bring them along. Verbum sap.

The religious awakening of the east has reached us also. All over the Waco district the protracted meetings have been wonderfully successful, and from the reports at present the number of conversions will not be much short of one thousand this year. We hold our own, gather-ings and keep to the good old Methodist plan—earnest repentance and clear conversion. Perhaps we are indebted to a Baptist evangelist, who has visited several of our towns, for a good lesson on union meetings. For Moody and Sankey movement was so extensively indorsed that we were ready to try their plan under any successful leader. When this evangelist came among us our people rushed to the meetings, and labored harmoniously with him, until they found that his intense sectarianism sought to turn all the results into the Baptist Church. When he came to Waco we let him alone, and at our third quarterly meeting continued the services with gracious results. We are perfectly satisfied that these new lights have made no important discovery. They may ridicule the "Methodist altar" and the "mourner's bench," but they have substituted nothing better, nothing that gives us more really converted men and women. The "Bible class," as the penitents are called, are pronounced converts as soon as they profess a little hope. Hence the many conversions reported. Give me the old paths, with fewer numbers and more thorough experience.

At one time, in the history of the present great revival, it seemed as if some new church organization might be brought into existence; but, as the movement comes in closer range of observation, it is evident that no greater providential ends are intended than those which may be seen in other forms of religious worship. One prominent lesson is the wonderful attention which religious truths will receive when presented with all the preparation and enthusiasm of the Hippodrome meetings. Another is the warm Christian fellowship which may be made to gush from the hard-shell creeds of Christianity. But these things are not new. In the camp meeting we have the Hippodrome on a simpler and cheaper plan, and in the catholicity of our creed we have been illustrating how Christians may love and yet differ. But I will not run into "fraternity" in this paper, but hope you will give us the earliest news from the commissioners.

Our literary institutions have had a full experience of failure and revival, and the history is such a repetition of what you have seen and heard that it will be uninteresting. "Let the dead bury the dead." But we have something living and working in the Southwestern University. It is the child of Texas Methodism, all the Conferences of the State being equally interested in it. The sponsors are enough to secure success, and with well directed efforts will. The university is located in Georgetown, nine miles from the nearest depot, on the International railroad. It is far enough west to be free from the malaria of the river bottoms, and north of the territory which may be visited by the epidemics of the Southern coast. The country around Georgetown is rolling prairie on the south and east, with the foot-hills of a mountainous district on the west. The country is well watered by the beautiful San Gabriel rivers. The town may never be much of a place for trade, and hence the character of the population will be select. In the course of time it will be a university town, with literary men seeking its quiet seclusion, for the purpose of pursuing their studies and enjoying the association of educated companions.

The president, Dr. F. A. Mood, has worked hard for the institution, and is beginning to reap some of the fruits. He had the satisfaction to see his first class graduate last July—a class of which he may well be proud. The session closed with largely increased patronage, and with growing prospects for the future. All that is wanting for complete success is that Texas shall be true to the university, give it students at once, and an endowment as soon as practicable.

W. G. CONNOR.

German Camp Meeting.

MR. EDITOR: Soon after the blessed convocation at the Seashore camp ground we held a German camp meeting at Boniface church, near Covington, in St. Tammany parish, La. As you know, we have a thriving work at that place. A goodly number of our church members and others of New Orleans attended, and our dear Master honored our labors with 15 conversions and 12 accessions to the church. Four of our German preachers assisted me. Finding that some of our American friends were in attendance, we had one service in English every day. Linguistically some of our German preachers have the advantage over you—they can preach in both the English and German languages. A very interesting incident occurred during the meeting: An American brother, who knows no other than his mother tongue, was awakened under a German sermon, and was converted during a prayer in that language. This reminds me of my wife's conversion. When she did not know a word of English she was powerfully convicted of her sinfulness under a sermon from Bishop Keener at the Dryades Street church, and you know that, though the Bishop may have a Teuton look, he don't preach in that language. The Spirit of God is not wedded to any one language; he operates in his own sovereign way.

Very recently I attended another German camp meeting in Mason county, on the western frontier of Texas. This was a so-called fraternal camp meeting—i. e., two congregations, one of our church, and one of the M. E. Church (North,) united in holding this feast of tabernacles. These two congregations composed formerly a self-supporting circuit of our church; but, owing to influences which I will not here mention, the work was divided into two dependent missions. A committee of the laity of both churches had been appointed to make the necessary arrangements for the present camp meeting. Among other rules, they required that the two presiding elders of the two districts to which the two missions belong should jointly conduct the meeting, and that ecclesiastical questions should not at all be broached. Being officially invited, I, in company with eleven preachers of our church, attended. The Northern Church was represented by six preachers. The meeting lasted six days, and was a decided success; we had not less than 50 conversions. Fraternity feeling was at high tide. You could have seen me, arm in arm with a Northern presiding elder, singing glory to God with all our might. But, alas! soon a chill crept over my feeling. I discovered that our Northern brethren, in a clandestine manner, distributed printed circulars among our members, the contents of which purported to be a translation from an editorial in the Galveston News, to the effect that the joint commission of the churches North and South, which recently had met at Cape May, N. J., had half initiated measures for a speedy organic union of the two churches in question. The moral of the circular was, of course, that our German churches might as well unite at once—i. e., we might as well unite with them, with the Church North, without further delay. I have not seen the editorial of the Galveston News. I suppose the translation is correct. We all know that the secular papers are very poorly informed in regard to church matters; but did not the party who conducted the translation and distribution of said circular know that the contents were untrue? I am in favor of fraternity. I am fraternal in word and deed. I love all Christians, no matter to what denomination they may belong; but I, at the same time, abhor hypocrisy, no matter where I find it.

J. B. A. AIKENS.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18, 1876.

Rev Norval Wilson.

"I want to go home," were the last words of the grand old preacher. Words of pathos, of faith, and hope assured, of desire to be with Christ.

The Richmond Christian Advocate gives the following account of Norval Wilson's last years, and the closing scene:

When the days of infirmity came he quietly submitted himself to God's will, and retained all through his last years his cheerful interest in all the movements and events of the world about him. He was constantly looking for God's hand in all national affairs, and trying to read current history in the light of God's truth. He did not, meanwhile, give himself to a life of inactivity. He continued his personal work as long as work was possible. Some will remember when, with tremulous voice, in 1850 he asked for a supernumerary relation only upon the ground that the ranks were so full that older must retire to make room for more active and younger. His heart seemed burdened. It was a stern struggle with him to give up his effective relation. But few know how he continued his ministrations as long as God would let him. He preached when he could; and he was a home missionary in his more private work, visiting sick, hunting up unsaved men of all conditions and urging them to repent. The last winter of his life was spent in Washington city, and there he went into the home of many a family unknown to him, only that he might inquire into their spiritual state and induce them to give attention to their eternal interests. He was a man into whose constitution Christianity was thoroughly incorporated. By the gospel he tested everything.

With all the boldness and authority of his assertion of the truth and power of the gospel, he was singularly temperate in the statement of his Christian experience.

He was never heard to use an extravagant expression concerning himself. He trusted in the mercy of God. Upon that he delighted to dwell. Everything was of grace. The meekness and humility of his personal experience were remarkable in strong contrast with the vehemence and force of his proclamation of the gospel in its fullness and breadth. Yet he knew no doubt.

One who knew him well says: "For more than twenty-five years of closest and most intimate intercourse with him I have never known him to intimate a doubt as to his personal relations to God by Jesus Christ." He settled, long since, all the great questions involved in his responsibility under the gospel, and never was moved from his foundations thereafter.

He was able to speak for nearly two days before he died; but the habit of his life and his expression in anticipation of the end were sufficient assurance of the result. To his son-in-law he said: "I trust in the dying hour I shall give an example of resignation that shall be a comfort to those who are left behind. Eternity is just before me. In all the struggle—" and there his mind failed for the time, and the sentence was never completed. To Bro. Ferguson, in response to his inquiry if he wanted anything, he said: "I want to go home," his last distinct saying, doubly dear to his family, because 24 years before in this same month of August his second daughter, a lovely girl just coming into mature life, passed away with the same words upon her lips. They are at home. His family is broken up for a time. The majority is on the other side. But all who remain are looking to wind their home. We append the following memorial tribute, adopted by a number of the preachers and members of the church in attendance at Wesley Grove Camp Meeting:

"At a meeting of a number of the ministerial members of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and of others, assembled at Wesley Grove Camp Meeting August 12 1876, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from the ranks of our ministry, and the communion of the church militant, our beloved and venerable brother, Rev. Norval Wilson, whose name and labors have been identified for more than half a century with the history of Methodism in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia, we deem it but proper to give some suitable expression to a sense of the loss which we, in common with the church at large, have sustained by his removal: Therefore

"Resolved, That in the death of this faithful servant of God, and devoted minister of the gospel of Christ, we deeply and sadly realize that 'a prince and a great man has fallen in Israel.' Commencing his ministry at the early age of eighteen, he continued it through a period of fifty-six years, forty-nine of which were spent in the effective work. He was a clear, practical, and forcible expounder of the word of God, an able minister of the New Testament, 'a man full of faith and the Holy Ghost,' and through him much people were added to the Lord." He united with the Baltimore Conference at its session in Baltimore commencing March 16, 1821, and filled many of the most important appointments within its bounds up to March 1858. He then, with his characteristic sincerity and independence, became the acknowledged leader of a large majority of that body, who, at that time, in accordance with their previously avowed principles, dissolved their connection with the General Conference of the M. E. Church. In 1854 he presided over the Conference that met at Bridgewater, Va., and also over that which met in Alexandria in 1866 and which fully identified itself with the M. E. Church South. In this connection he rendered efficient service until 1866 when his advanced age and enfeebled health compelled his retiracy from the active ranks. He fell asleep in Christ at the residence of his friend, Jas. M. Brown, near Charleston, W. Va., on Wednesday, the 9th inst., triumphantly sustained by that truth he had so long proclaimed to others.

"Resolved further, That in the recollection of the Christian virtues which adorned the character of our deceased brother, and his life of consecrated and useful labor, the church has a precious treasure which we shall cherish as some atonement for our loss, and an incentive to like fidelity and devotion on our part.

"Resolved, That we hereby express our sincere sympathy with the surviving members of his household in their sore bereavement, but with them anticipate a joyous meeting with our departed brother in that land of holy rest and rapture upon which he has doubtless already entered."

OUR CHINA VISITOR is the title of a missionary paper issued by the Mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in China. It is published quarterly. We have received No. 1, dated July 1, 1876. It is a neat eight-page sheet, the pages seven inches by eleven. The first page contains a woodcut of chapel, book room, and parsonage of our mission at Shanghai. From the contents we make a few extracts:

"In the field, as you know there are Revs. Y. J. Allen, A. P. Parker, and J. W. Lambuth.

"There are at present in connection with our Mission work six native preachers and student helpers, Bro. Daau, (C. K. M.) Bro. Yoong, Bro. Dzing, Bro. Fong, Bro. Tsung, and Bro. See, awaiting the visit of our beloved Bishop Marvin, when we one and all long for us a bright era in the history of our mission. God grant to keep him and us in safety for that glad hour when we can face to face welcome him as the best of friends.

"We have three foreign built churches, and nine Chinese houses used as chapels; boarding schools or mission homes, two—one for boys and one for girls. Five day schools where the pupils learn of Jesus, and we trust may receive such seed in their hearts as may lead them to believe in and worship the one true and living God. We have three book rooms, two in Shanghai, and one in Soochow, and two colporteurs.

"There are four Bible women doing what they can to lead their own sex to know the truth, and in the midst of much discouragement at times looking to our Heavenly Father for help in their work. We have in our schools at present, under instruction one hundred and two scholars.

"Brethren, the heathen are perishing. Christians alone have the remedy. We make an earnest appeal to you for help, that the gospel may be preached to the millions around us.

"We want a deeper interest in your prayers, that we may be filled with the love of God and that we may see the work of the Lord prospering in our hands.

A LIVING EXAMPLE OF FAITH.

There is a small society composed of the children of a missionary and of a family deeply interested in the mission work, and one Chinaman, who propose to give this year $5[illegible] the support of a little girl in Lambuth's school in Shanghai. [illegible] little girls, twelve years old, give each during the year. Two members give $10 each. One boy gives $5, and four smaller children give $5, and the Chinaman $5. They are making the money in various ways, and have already collected the greater portion of the [illegible]. One little girl says: "I have finished my tidy, and it will soon be ready for sale." Some are saying this, and doing without that, and making [illegible] articles for sale. Some are saving rags, old iron, eggs, and chickens for sale. Almost everything you can think of is being made to go into the treasury of this little missionary society. One was going to make a portion by economizing, and so on. All are all determined to support a little heathen girl and have her taught the way to Jesus. God bless these dear children and make them happy in this blessed work and in honored means of carrying the truth to others. Are there not others who would like to follow their example? If so, form yourselves into a society of earnest workers and write to us in China. Mrs. Lambuth has seventeen girls in her school. She could have fifty scholars as well as seventeen if we had the money.

EARNEST WORKERS FOR JESUS.

Another welcome letter has come from Felicity Street Sunday school Missionary Society, New Orleans, bearing with it $40 Mexican to be used in the support of our little boarding-school. Soochow. They continue to send us words of encouragement. And now, just as I am finishing this, another letter comes from the same band of earnest workers bringing with it $58 25 with words of encouragement to us in this land of darkness. Surely the Lord will bless the efforts of these dear children and make them abundantly useful in sending the gospel to others.

QUARTERLY MEETING.

The third quarterly meeting of the China Mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, U. S. A., for the year ending September 30, 1876, was held in Shanghai, July 8, 1876, Rev. W. Lambuth presiding.

Present: Revs. J. W. Lambuth, Young J. Allen, and A. P. Parker.

J. W. Lambuth reported that he had visited all the out-stations except Soochow three or four times during the quarter, and that he had been encouraged by the manifest interest with which the people had listened to the word.

Young J. Allen reported that he had in connection with Revs. Muirhead and Dr. J. Edkins started a monthly magazine in the Chinese language to be devoted to the spread of religious truth and general information. He reported his weekly paper as meeting with encouraging success.

A. P. Parker reported that a small chapel had recently been opened in Soochow, where many more people could be reached than in our regular Our boy's boarding school in Soochow is in a prosperous condition, numbering nine boarders and three scholars.

A resolution was adopted expressing our great pleasure in anticipating the contemplated visit of one of our Bishops, and our earnest desire that he should not fail to come.

A. P. PARKER, Sec.

Savannah.

The following appeal for Savannah from Rev. Dr. Haygood [illegible] we trust, meet with many and liberal responses. Last week we called attention to the subject. Our citizens can send their donations as Dr. Haygood suggests, or through the committee in New Orleans. Help is needed, and promptly.

There is sorrow and distress in the beautiful Savannah. The yellow fever grows worse. New cases by the score. The death rate increases. Those who could go have gone. Many have remained because too poor to go; many because duty said "Stay." But in such a case it is the poor, for the most part, who cannot get away. How much worse is the case when the rich—who can help—are gone!

The papers received to-day bring sad news. The fever spreads, suffering increases. Several of the leading doctors are dead; others are sick. Some ministers are dead; others are down. Dear Bro. A. M. Wynn, pastor of the Wesley Memorial church, is among those who have been tireless. The good Lord bless him! So have they all. The Protestant, the Catholic—the white and colored clergy, stand fast by their posts. They are doing their duty. But their poor need help—help that must come soon if it come not late, and help that must come from without. And Savannah deserves help. She has ever been generous to others.

At last accounts Dr. E. H. Myers was up and giving his strength to his people. May he escape, if please God!

Money sent to Dr. E. M. Kenaday, editor of the Southern Christian Advocate, Macon, Ga., or to the undersigned, will be joyfully forwarded to the right parties in Savannah, as gratefully reported.

ATTICUS G. HAYGOOD,
EMORY COLLEGE, OXFORD, GA.,
September 21, 1876.

We are informed by the Pastor of Moreau Street Church that he intends beginning a meeting on next Monday night. Rev. Alfred E. Cox will be with him and preach from Monday night at seven o'clock. Bro. Sawyer solicits the prayers, so far as it may be practicable, the presence of the brethren of our other town churches.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—[illegible] Joly interest on the notes given [illegible] brethren in the Mississippi Conference is due. Will they please to send it by mail?

Books and Periodicals.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.—The latest issues of this standard eclectic weekly contain some very valuable articles, among which the following are specially noteworthy: Lord Macaulay, by the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone; The Comte de Paris' Campaign on the Potomac, by the late Col. Chas. Chesney, of the Royal Engineers, being the last paper of that admirable military critic, and especially interesting as an Englishman's review of a Frenchman's account of the Potomac campaign; Sketch of a Journey across Africa, by Lieut. Cameron, of the Royal Navy; In a Studio, continued, by W. W. Story; Autobiography of a Vegetarian, a True Narrative of a Successful Career, by C. G. Graham Napier F.G.S.; Modern Warfare, by John Ruskin; Tickner's Memoirs; A Lady's Visit to the Herzegovinian Insurgents.

—The Christian Observer of Sept. 6 gives on its seventh and eighth pages the contents of the Religious Remembrancer, published in Philadelphia in 1813, and also, as a supplement, a photo engraving of the same paper. The Observer claims that the Remembrancer was the first religious newspaper ever printed, and that the Observer is the direct and legitimate descendant of it. The old paper as reproduced, No. 1, September (1813, is an object of much interest. We congratulate our contemporary on its reputable and ancient lineage.

—Among the articles in the Atlantic Monthly we note, as of special interest: Personal Recollections of Jean Francois Millet, Deep Haven Excursions, Holy Places of the Holy City, Old Woman's Gossip, Characteristics of the International Fair. Recent literature is, as usual, able and voluminous.

—The Galaxy for September has: War Memories by Gen. Custer, Nomination and Election of Abraham Lincoln, Day and Night, Shall We Drink Wine? Gen. George A. Custer, The Bones of Speech, A Persian Poet, and other articles.

—Whippoor-Will is the title of a new book of songs for public schools and juvenile classes. By W. O. Perkins. Oliver Ditson & Co., publishers, Boston. It is a very good collection of popular songs, grave, gay, humorous, pathetic, and religious.

—Lippincott's Magazine for September has; The Century—Its Fruits and Festivals, No 9; Lapland, Illustrated; On a Housetop in Capri; Letters from South Africa; On the Piscataqua Shore; George Sand, and other articles.

—We have received an excellent engraving of Governor Ellen. He looks like an honest and able man, and one for whom honest and intelligent people may safely and conscientiously vote.

—Record of the Year, October issue, is promptly to hand. It is a valuable compend of current events. This number contains a finely executed engraving of the distinguished New York lawyer, Wm. M. Evarts.

—Ware's Valley Monthly for September has: Entomology; Clara, the Queen; The Parlor and Kitchen; Scientific Idea of Force; John Chrisman; The State and Primary Education, and other articles.

—The Ladies' Repository for September is an excellent number. The presence of the new editor, Dr. Curry, is manifest in the character of the articles, as well as in the editorial department.

—The September issue of the Record for the Year contains careful selections of the choicest current miscellany, besides a record of all important current events worth preserving.

—Golden Hours for September is a interesting number of this excellent magazine for boys and girls. Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, and Nelson & Phillips, New York, publishers.

—American Agriculturist for September is splendidly illustrated, and filled with fresh and practical information for farmers, housekeepers, and mechanics.

—St. Nicholas for September will be a delight to our young people. The pictures are charming, the matter amusing, entertaining, instructive.

—While Awake for September is as fresh and charming as ever. Our young folks are delighted with it, and watch for its monthly visits.

—Morton's Home and School for September is, as usual, well stored with educational literature. One of the best periodicals of the day.

—Scribner's Monthly for September is handsomely illustrated, and abounds in articles of freshness and ability.

—The Aldine, part 15, has been received. It is an excellent number of this splendid art journal.

Rev. J. H. Anderson died at Prospect, Tenn., on September 14.

Publisher's Department.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now on a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI. We have had the pleasure during the week of welcoming to our office Professor Fitzhugh, one of the faculty of the above sterling institution. As will be seen by the card in our advertising columns the next session opens on the 4th of October.

There is no able faculty of professors devoted to their calling. We like the tone of the Institution. The trustees are gentlemen of public spirit, culture and advanced views, capable of grasping the requirements which a university sustains to liberal educational institutions and adapting with the attributes of sustaining that high standard of culture which it by its object demands.

Located at Oxford, a high, dry and healthy place with comfortable buildings, excellent apparatus, and library it certainly ought to be patronized in preference to others farther North.

DAVID W. WATSON, 73 Cornhill street, Boston, offers his Centennial Printing Press, for printing cards, labels, etc, for the very low price of $.

It will be very interesting to manufacturers, as we his instructed to buy who has purchase. Circulars will be sent free. See the advertisement on this page.

AGENTS WANTED.—We call the attention of those out of employment to the advertisement of Messrs. Smissen & Smith on this page.

LANDON BOOKS.—A. L. Guyster, 138 Fulton street, New York, advertises rare and valuable books for sale at prices as cheap as they can be purchased in London. This will be an opportunity to readily procure for their libraries books that could otherwise be obtained only at much expense and trouble. Catalogues and full information will be furnished free on application. For particulars see the advertisement on this page.

CHROMOS.—J. Latham & Co., art publishers, Boston, Mass., offer a large number of American and foreign chromos for sale, and want experienced solicitors. This will be a good opportunity for parties to supply themselves with cheap prices and also for any one will time to engage in the sale of chromos. Their advertisement will be found on this page.

W. Y. Edwards, 36 Church street, N. Y. continues to offer his printing presses for sale at low figures. Those in need of presses would do well to correspond with Mr. Edwards. His ad. in No. 41, next will be found on this page, and he will be pleased to answer any inquiries in regard to his press.

LEVY BROS., 850 Magazine street, make a specialty of black alpacas.

AT M. L. NAVRA'S China Palace, on Canal street, all articles of China and glass ware can be procured at reasonable prices.

IT AFFORDS us pleasure to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement in another column of Messrs. Poole & Hunt, Baltimore, Md., whose reputation as manufacturers of first-class machinery is preeminent in the South, and second to none we know of. For nearly a quarter of a century they have been prominently before the public, year by year strengthening their claims to public confidence, until to-day, with an immense establishment, as perfect in its appointments as experience and mechanical skill can make it, they can send forth every article of their manufacture perfect and accurate in all of its parts, as tested by the fixed and high standards by which their work is regulated. They who have used their machinery can best vouch for the truth of what we have asserted.

ECONOMY IS THE ROAD TO INDEPENDENCE.—This maxim every one of us should heed, and the little savings in buying supplies carefully looked after. To assist our readers in this matter, we call their attention to the card of Randolph & Dunnica, found in another column of our paper. By sending your orders for Corn Meal, Flour, and Provisions to them you will have them filled at low rates, as they sell on commission, and are not dealers, but millers' agents. They will also attend to the sale of cotton, sugar, rice, etc. Being gentlemen of undoubted integrity, and one of our first-class houses, none need fear to intrust their business to them.

HOLMAN'S Fever and Ague Pad will be found advertised in our paper to-day. This is said to be efficacious in the cure of Liver complaints and other kindred diseases. We have heard it very highly spoken of by some who have used it. The design is to cure diseases by the absorption process. We do not understand much of these things, and can only say that we find that Mr. Holman has certificates of cures enough from many reliable persons throughout the country. Julius Hart & Co. are proprietors, and any orders or inquiries addressed to the mail 68 Canal street, New Orleans, or Memphis, Tenn., will receive attention.

MR. M. L. NAVRA, successor to that well-known firm of Navra & Offner, of the China Palace, on Canal street, has just returned from a trip to the North, where he has been taking advantage of the low prices and purchasing very largely of China, Glassware, and Crockery. Mr. Navra proposes to carry out the system followed by the old house, of selling goods at a reasonable advance on cost, and realizing profit from the large sales. Merchants from the country will do well to inspect his stock when in the city. All orders will be carefully attended to. See advertisement elsewhere.

WOOD ENGRAVING.—T. A. McKechine, 27 Washington street, Boston, will fill any order in his line as wood engraver. He calls the attention of printers, especially in his line for cards and envelopes. We direct attention to his advertisement in the paper.

CLOTHING & FURNISHING GOODS
FOR MEN AND BOYS.

We have visitors from the country to look at our stock. We keep good Goods, sell at one price and mark it in plain figures. Clergymen's trade solicited and their deduction made to them.

ASTHMA AND CATARRH. See Dr. Rankin's advertisement.

THE thirsty and weary traveler will find most excellent rooms with baths at the American House, Boston. The hotel has no superior in New England, is situated in the heart of the city, and within five minutes walk of every where.

FOR THE great Holidays in New York there is none superior to the Grand Hotel, Broadway and 31st street. Its excellent table is equalled only by that of the European plan. Situated in the most central spot, as its name implies, it is a ground on Lookout house. While everything is first-class, and of the very best, the expense of living at the Grand Hotel is no more than at other first class houses.

MANY CASES of fever and ague, chills and congestive chills were promptly arrested and entirely banished by the use of your Simmons' Liver Regulator. You don't say half enough in regard to the efficacy of your valuable medicine in cases of ague, intermittent fevers, &c. Every case has been arrested in a shorter, more effectual manner than I have ever known, and I have suffered for years with the liver disease, and only found relief by using your medicine. When your medicine is taken it seems to go all through the nervous system.—JOHN H. WEEKS, Batavia, Kane Co., Ill.

Farm, Garden and Household.

The Yellow St. John Peach.

For many years—nobody seems to know how many—this variety has been in general cultivation among the old Creole gardeners along the Bayou St. John, in the suburbs of New Orleans. This circumstance first gave it the name of St. John. Some thirty or more years ago a gentleman by the name of Fleitas took cions or trees of it across the lake, and began its propagation, in a small way, for market purposes. From him it soon began to be disseminated among his neighbors, both as the Fleitas peach and the Fleitas St. John. Mr. Washington, an intelligent nurseryman living near Mr. Fleitas, was, so far as we have been able to learn, the first one to put it regularly into the trade, about 1856, under the name of May Beauty, from the circumstance of its having once or twice been known to ripen a few specimens in May. In 1857, E. G. Cloud, a fruit dealer in New Orleans, procured a tree or two from Mr. Washington, under the name of May Beauty, and planted them in his garden in the city. At the same time he procured from some of the gardeners on Bayou St. John a tree under the name of St. John, and planted it by the side of the May Beauty. They came into bearing in 1858, and on a close comparison Mr. Cloud thought there was a slight difference, both in the trees and fruit, and that this difference, whatever it was, was in favor of the St. John peach. We were then pretty largely engaged in the nursery business, and always on the lookout for new and superior varieties. We therefore procured cions of the St. John from Mr Cloud, during the budding season of 1858, and in the fall of 1859 sent out about five hundred trees of the Yellow St. John, the "Yellow" being added to keep this variety distinct in name from trees disseminated from other sources. This is the history of the true Yellow St. John peach. The name has been established and rendered authoritative by being adopted by the American Pomological Society at our suggestion.—Dr. Swasey, in Southern Home Journal.

GAME FOWLS.—Game fowls are the aristocrats of the poultry yard. With their graceful form, handsome carriage, fine feather, and undeniable courage, who can help admiring them? And then we must not overlook their useful qualities. Good layers, although not rivaling some other breeds, perhaps, whose only redeeming quality is in their egg production, their eggs being of the finest known quality. The best of sitters, steady and careful, differing from some of the Asiatics in the fact that they do not care to sit regularly after laying five or six eggs, and then, when they bring off their young, almost always coming off with a good percentage, they have no equals as mothers. Always on the alert for any lurking intruder, they are ready to fight for their young, generally coming off victorious, too. Then, when they come to maturity, they can be caught and dressed at any time, always being plump and fat, and a fit subject for the palate of an epicure. Look for a moment at their exquisite feathering. What can be more pleasing to look upon than the glistening plumage of the black-breasted red, or any of the less common varieties? The courage and fighting of the game fowl, which are something remarkable, ought not to be passed over.—Fanciers' Journal.

SCALLOPED OYSTERS.—Do not drain the liquor from the oysters, but fork them out of it as you use them; in that way as much liquor as you require adheres to them. Use stale bread, and do not crumb it too fine, or it will be clammy. Half a teacupful of cream, two great spoonfuls of butter, salt, and pepper. Oysters part with a great deal of moisture in cooking, and if the mixture is too wet it is not as good; it should be rather dry when done. Cover the bottom of a well-buttered baking-dish with a layer of very dry bread crumbs, dust over a little salt and pepper, and stick little bits of butter all over the crumbs; then, with a spoon, moisten it with the cream. Next place a layer of oysters, alternating with bread crumbs, until the dish is filled, finishing with the butter and cream; invert a plate over it, to keep in the flavor. Bake three-fourths of an hour, or until the juice bubbles up to the top. Remove the plate, and brown on the upper shelf of the oven for two or three minutes only. Some families use a little cayenne pepper instead of the black, and a very little sprinkling of dry mustard, while others prefer a little grated mace.—Country Gentleman.

PRESERVING MILK.—We send our milk to market, and frequently suffer loss, during the warm season, from fermentation, which, from the low price of the product, and high cost of stock, labor, investment, etc., we cannot well afford. I have read that a chemist has discovered a substance which, when added to milk, preserves it sweet and good for several days beyond the ordinary period. What can you say of this plan?—M. J. Pennypacker, Chester county, Pa.

There are three chemicals used for prolonging the time of keeping milk sweet—salicylic acid, borax, and bisulphate of soda. Each of these substances may be dissolved and used in quantities so small as to produce no sensible medicinal effect, and yet delay materially the usual changes which occur in milk. The effect will be in proportion to the quantity used. One part of either of the solutions to one thousand parts of milk may be safely used.—New York Tribune.

JENNY LIND CAKE.—Three cupfuls of flour, two cupfuls of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of sweet milk, two eggs, one-half cupful of butter, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of lemon or vanilla.

OILS, LAMPS, ETC.

ILLUMINATING OILS

AND

AT

REDUCED PRICES.

THE

PUROLINE AND PORTABLE

GAS LIGHT CO.

Offer to the trade, at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES, the following list of their superior and popular brands:

INSURANCE OIL.

The Insurance Oil is the best Family Safety Oil, and is urgently recommended by all our Insurance Companies as a safe substitute for common Coal Oil or Kerosene. It may be used in ordinary lamps Without Change of Burner.

THE NEW ORLEANS BOARD OF UNDERWRITERS SAY:

"It is our opinion that the general use of the Insurance Oil would greatly reduce the number of lamp fires and explosions, and lessen the risk of destruction of life and property."

It will not explode or ignite in a lamp; and the price has been so reduced as to place it within the reach of all classes of consumers, and make it the great FAMILY SAFETY OIL.

As an Illuminating Oil for family use, or for general use in ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil lamps, the Insurance Oil has the indorsement of the New Orleans Board of Health, the Fire Commissioners, and all the American and European Insurance Agencies, as PERFECTLY SAFE.

Refined Carbon or Coal Oil.

THE WELL-KNOWN CROWN BRAND.—This is a pure, high-fire-test Kerosene or Coal Oil, generally known as the Crown Oil, and recommended to the trade, and to consumers who buy CHEAP OIL as the best and safest of all the LOW-PRICED ILLUMINATING OILS in market. In five years' experience no accident from its use has ever occurred. The Pureline and Portable Gas Light Company have the exclusive agency of the Crown Oil for the States of Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

PUROLINE FLUID.

For Metallic Gas Lamps and Portable Gas Burners. Manufactured and sold only by the Pureline and Portable Gas Light Company and their Agents.

This celebrated Fluid, prepared by a process known only to the proprietors, is the best and purest reliable of all the products of Petroleum for use in Metallic Portable Gas Lamps and Lanterns. It burns clear and bright, is free from smoke or unpleasant odor, and does not clog the wick or gum the burner. No other fluid or oil should be used in Portable Gas Lamps or Lanterns.

Pureline is especially recommended for use in Portable Gas Lamps and Chandeliers, in Street Lanterns, Sugar-House Lamps, Cane Shed Lanterns, and in Torches and Gas Burners for Steamboating Landings, Moonlight Picnics and Street Processions. Giving a light equal to the best city Coal Gas, it enables the people of the remotest villages to illuminate their Stores, Warehouses, Saloons, Hotels, Churches, Streets and Gardens as brilliantly as the favored residents of a great metropolis.

Gasoline for Gas Machines.

Distilled expressly for the Pureline and Portable Gas Light Company, and with peculiar regard to the changes of temperature, so common in this climate. Unequalled for generating gas, or for carbureting coal gas.

Proprietors, patentees and owners of Gas Machines cannot overestimate the importance of having their Gasoline of reliable gravity and quality, as success depends so much on these conditions.

GENERAL AGENCY

AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO.

(LIMITED.)

17 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS,
August 1, 1876.

Notice to Dealers and Merchants Buying and Selling Iron Cotton Ties.

Whereas, sundry unscrupulous persons are offering for sale in this city and other parts of the country, cotton ties having Arrow buckles on, not licensed for sale by us, and some having so-called second-hand Arrow buckles, we caution the public, for their protection, and to purchase any Arrow or Open-Slot Ties whatever from any but our authorized agents, or sold through them. Either new or pieced bands, using our Arrow and Open-Slot buckles in combination therewith, unlicensed by us, violate our patent rights.

As an additional protection to the public and ourselves, for several years we have stamped our buckles: "Licensed for use once only."

Its Topography and Valuable Resources,

BY DANIEL DENNETT.

PRICE, 50 CENTS—POSTAGE, 12 CENTS.

LIBERAL REDUCTION TO DEALERS.

10,000 Copies Just Published—3,000 Copies Sold.

The Editors of New Orleans have given this book unstinted indorsement.

Opinions of New Orleans Booksellers.

It is a book which has long been wanted and often called for. I am selling copies daily that are mailed to all parts of the world.

GUSTAVE ELLIS, Bookseller,
Opposite the Postoffice.

During my long experience as a bookseller in this city I have had thousands of inquiries for such a work. Mr. Dennett's LOUISIANA AS IT IS is precisely the book that has been called for. It gives general satisfaction to my patrons in the city and country. Its true character were generally known it would require ten times the present edition of 10,000 copies to supply the demand.

T. C. HALEY, Bookseller,
74 Commercial Place,
Branch, 153 Poydras street.

As experience of twenty-five years as bookseller in New Orleans will justify me in saying that the book just issued by Mr. Charles Dennett, LOUISIANA AS IT IS, supplies a want long felt by residents and strangers. The demand for the book is active, and is steadily increasing.

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
92 Camp and 918 Canal street.

Dealers in the city and country can obtain samples of the above book at the wholesale establishment of ROBERT J. HARP, 110 and 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

DUCONGE'S
PECTORAL BALSAMIC SIRUP.

NEARLY half a century has elapsed since the discovery of this wonderful compound. Its well established virtue and its high reputation in the diseases of the Chest, Lungs, Breast and Bowels are well known, and has been tested for so many years by such extensive patronage, that it would be superfluous, at this late day, to dwell at any length on its efficacy in Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Inflammation of the Throat, Stomach or Bowels, Spitting of Blood and Whooping Cough.

It has been found highly beneficial in all Inflammatory disorders, such as Rheumatism, Diarrhea, Dysentery and Summer Complaint, and especially in those cases of Cholerine which, for want of proper care, so often degenerate into confirmed Consumption.

In all affections of the Lungs, verging on Consumption, it has been found most efficacious in preventing that most awful scourge whenever properly resorted to.

It is the acknowledged certainty of cure, this extraordinary medicine has, over most compounds of the same nature, the decided advantage, owing to its agreeable flavor, it can be administered without the least difficulty to children, and requires no particular diet. It is also the cheapest, only because the bottles contain more simply than any other, but owing to its peculiar composition, this Sirup will keep for years without fermentation, and it can be used in families whenever required, simply keeping the bottle well corked.

Directions for Taking the Sirup.—Grown persons may take from four to six spoonfuls in the course of a day, either pure or diluted in a little water, at a less quantity at intervals of three or four hours.

Persons much troubled during the night may obtain considerable relief from the Sirup on going to bed, when it will stop the cough and procure a good night's rest.

Children from three to five years old may take from four to six teaspoonfuls during the day, in suitable quantities, at intervals of three to four hours. For sale by

THE ONLY TRUE AND PERFECT HAIR COLORER.

THE MYSTERY,
Or, Turner's Hair Dye!

HARMLESS! BEAUTIFUL! PERMANENT!

This preparation has received the indorsement of the scientific world, and wherever introduced has superseded all other preparations of the kind. No washing or preparation of the hair is necessary before using.

Free from all Deleterious Ingredients, such as Lead, Sulphur or other compounds which are Injurious to the Hair or Destructive by Absorption.

Any house servant can apply it with little or no trouble, as a few applications will restore, in a short month or so, to Hair or Whiskers, any or the shades, the original color, being so perfectly assimilated as to defy detection. Its great recommendation is in its action of dye, producing any desired shade, which will brown to the deepest black, and restore the hair dry and limited appearance produced by other Hair Dyes. The Mystery can be applied to wash the hair, or spots that have changed, to be restored to their original shade without applying all over the head, as is necessary when other Hair Dyes are used.

The box sent free by mail to any address in the United States upon receipt of price, One Dollar, by the inventor and proprietor,

JAMES TURNER, Chemist,

MISCELLANEOUS.

Our weaving capacity is now 5,500 CORSETS daily, or a yearly aggregate of 1,700,000.

These Corsets have met the demand of the times in giving a PERFECT AND SUBSTANTIAL CORSET at PANIC RATES. Their eminently superior quality has been more and more appreciated, and without question they are now the most popular made. 1st. Because they are perfect in fit, while flexible to the natural movements of the form. 2d. They are stylish, durable and luxurious to wear. 3d. Being woven without seam, and in perfect symmetry of shape, their stay properties are unapproached. Our new improved qualities have one of the labels here printed in Gold and Black—like no other—cut these out and compare—beware of counterfeits.—The perfect form which our goods have, was never produced by weaving until the invention of our Wonderful PATENT Loom, while their superiority is attested by the Gold and Silver Medals awarded us, as well as the continually increasing demand. If your dealer does not keep them, send for our circular.

CORSETS

COTTON PRESS.

THIS is the most valuable improvement ever made upon the Screw Cotton Press. It retains all their good qualities, and is better in every respect, and at less cost.

The screw is of steel, and is in two parts. The nut is opened and closed upon the screw by means of a lever. When the nut is open the screw and follower are let down upon the bale. When the nut is closed and the pressing is done in the usual manner. Then open the nut, and raise up the screw and follower, instead of screwing it up. This raising and lowering the screw, by means of the counterbalance, saves repairing the press at least SIXTY-FIVE dollars each time and labor of pressing cotton one half.

This Press has taken the premium over all competitors at the recent State Fairs of Mississippi and Louisiana.

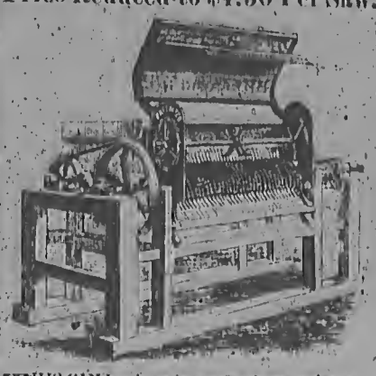
DANIEL PRATT'S IMPROVED
"Revolving Head" Cotton Gin.
PATENTED JULY 15, 1873.

Price Reduced to $4.50 Per Saw.



THIS GIN has been in use for the past three seasons, and several recent improvements have been added. It obviates all friction at the ends of the cotton box, prevents the roll from breaking, and gives a Larger Yield of Lint from the Same Amount of Seed than any other Gin in use. The Revolving Head lightens the draft and causes the Gin to run faster with less driving power, thus doing a great deal more work within the same time, while economizing steam or animal power, than any other Gin. The seed being ginned very close, the length of the staple is increased, producing cotton on this account of a greater market value. This improved value, given by length of staple, with extra production of lint, added to increased amount of work done, more than covers the cost of the Gin in every instance ginned. MONETARY.

The steady movement which has marked the past six months continues. Confidence in each other is growing among our business firms. Stocks and bonds are held generally quite firmly, and in several instances outside prices refused the sales of premium bonds indicate a belief in an improvement in our city government. Quotations unchanged. Gold, 110@110½. Exceptional paper, 8@8 per cent.; A1 paper, 10@12 per cent.; mortgage paper, 9@10 per cent; second-class paper, 15@18 per cent.

COTTON.

The New York Commercial and Financial Chronicler makes the following comparison, which proves that the South is slowly but quite steadily recovering her wealth, and ere long the energy, industry and economy of our people will be rewarded by an abundance of means to develop the resources of the country. It compares the crops before the war, and since thus: "In the seasons of 1858-59 1859-60, 1860-61 there were raised 12,177 257 bales of cotton, being the greatest amount raised with slave labor in three successive years. The crops of 1875-76 amount to 9 561 326 bales, making a total for six years of 21,738 583 bales made with slave labor. The crops of 1870-73 foot up 11 257,176 bales, and for 1873-76 12 672 667 bales, and for six years 23 939,843 bales, an average of 3 988,307 bales made with free labor. Under severe drawbacks, and many difficulties the figures show an actual increase of 10 per cent. Another important fact, not to be lost sight of, is the change in the system of advancing. There is not the same amount of money needed to raise the growing crop. Year by year the planter is depending less and less upon his cotton factor or country merchant. Finding it is more profitable to produce his own meat and bread, than to pay some Western neighbor to do it for him. This lesson of wisdom once acquired, and put into practice, the road to wealth will be found comparatively easy.

We take the following extracts from the official report of the National Cotton Exchange, published September 19, 1876:

THE SCHOOL FOR BOYS.—Rev. F. M. Grace, A. M., once a professor in the East Tennessee University, and afterward president of Hiwassee College, puts into his paper, the Iron Age, Birmingham, the following notice:

"Hiwassee College closed its annual exercises May 25. We learn from the biennial catalogue that the number of students was one hundred and eighty six, many of them from Alabama and other gulf States. There is no better school in the world for a boy than Hiwassee. Address President John H. Brunner, Hiwassee College, East Tennessee."

INSTINCTS.

BY THOMAS POWELL.

Heaven gave the bee desire for sweets,
Nor heaven denies her flowers;
The thirsty lamb for moisture waits,
Nor heaven withholds its showers.
No sooner are the babe's alarms
To mother's ears expressed,
Its finds a shelter in her arms—
Its solace at her breast.

Nor are the instincts of the heart
Less subjects of heaven's care;
Nor would it sympathies impart,
Merely to perish there.
The heart that yearns for kindred mind
To share its bliss or pain,
That knows to love, shall surely find
A heart that loves again.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

MONTHOMERY, Sept. 26.—Drs. Stone and Mandeville, of New Orleans, with ten nurses, passed through this city for Brunswick to-day.

SAVANNAH, Sept. 26.—Sister Mary Martha, of Fon du Lac, Wis., and Rev. E. H. Myers, Methodist, died here to-day.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 27.—The citizens' committee collected $4,000 to-day for the yellow fever sufferers. The committee also sent $1,000 to Brunswick this morning.

GALVESTON, Sept. 27.—At nine o'clock this morning Gen. Braxton Bragg dropped dead while crossing Twentieth street, in front of the post-office. His body lies in state at Artillery Hall. The remains will be taken to Mobile if arrangements can be made with the New Orleans steamer for their conveyance. Gen. Bragg was in his usual health up to the moment of the attack. The immediate cause of death was fatal syncope induced by organic disease of the heart.

SHREVEPORT, Sept. 28.—At a meeting of the business men and physicians held this evening it was decided to quarantine the river against New Orleans. Shreveport is exceptionally healthy, and the wish is to keep it so.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The Chamber of Commerce reports a total of 2,055 for Savannah.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—The Stock Exchange has telegraphed $700 gold to Savannah.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—The demand for tickets of admission to the Moody and Sankey meeting, Sunday next, is immense. The Tabernacle, in which the services will be held, stands on ground 160x190 feet, and contains 8,000 chairs. George C. Stebbins, of Boston, will lead the great choir. Mr. Cree, of Philadelphia, manages the details of the meetings. W. Harney is chairman of the Executive Committee. Moody's headquarters are at the Grand Pacific Hotel.

GALVESTON, Sept. 29.—The recent quarantine order at this port not only cuts off communication between Galveston and New Orleans, but prevents Morgan's steamers from entering Bolivar channel and proceeding to the terminus of ship channel on Buffalo Bayou, at Clinton.

The Houston authorities called upon Dr. Blunt to modify his order so as to allow freight traffic with New Orleans. Blunt refused to make any modifications, and a meeting of physicians called to consider the matter sustained him. It is said the Houston authorities will seek the intervention of Gov. Coke.

Advices from Northern and Northwestern Texas report a grasshopper invasion. In some counties they are destroying vegetation. Wheat sowing has been delayed until it is ascertained whether the hoppers will remain long enough to deposit their eggs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—A dispatch from Rome to-day reports the very serious, even alarming, illness both of the Pope and Cardinal Antonelli.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—James Beckwith died in this city at one o'clock this morning. He had been gradually sinking for several days, death resulting from mere decay of nature. His remains are lying in state at Pioneers' Hall.

GALVESTON, Oct. 1.—The News' San Antonio special reports an Indian attack stealing raid on the Nueces and Frio rivers.

Rangers are endeavoring to intercept the raiders. The United States troops at Fort Clark have been notified, and are expected to co-operate with the rangers.

Quarantine against New Orleans modified so as to allow steamers from Morgan City to come in with through freights.

AUGUSTA, GA., Oct. 2.—There was a heavy frost here this morning.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 2.—Total interments to-day 42, of which 28 were from yellow fever; eight of burials were colored.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 2.—Heavy frost last night, but little damage done, probably owing to drouth. This relieves all anxiety in regard to yellow fever here.

MONTGOMERY, October 2.—The weather is unusually cold for this season, and there was a heavy frost this morning in the city.

FOREIGN.

HAVANA, Sept. 26.—A hurricane at Martinique on Sunday. Telegraph lines down. No details.

The steamship City of Merida, from Vera Cruz and the City of Mexico, has arrived.

City of Mexico advices of the 14th say that Gen. Escobedo, the new Secretary of War, shows great activity, and is bringing the army to the highest standard. Gen. Alatorre will have 8,000 regulars around him, constituting the finest army Mexico ever had. His headquarters are at Huamantla, between Oaxaca and Puebla. Diaz is reported marching on Puebla with about 3,000 men, of whom only 400 are well armed. Hopes are entertained that the coming battle will be the last, and decide the question of the revolution. The filibuster Eaken, who commanded a company of revolutionists in Coahuila, was taken prisoner, and will doubtless be shot.

The Two Republics warns the public to put no trust in the news published by the El Progress, of Brownsville (that sheet being one of the so-called regenerating journals,) that the Mexican government will probably recognize the English debt, and make some arrangements with bondholders.

A recent decree imposes a duty of four cents per kilogramme on sulphur imported into Mexico.

Congress meets to-day, and will receive the President to-morrow, and proceed to business on the eighteenth. The session is looked forward to with considerable anxiety as the culmination of the present crisis. In the meanwhile all military operations are at a stand-still.

VIGO, Sept. 27.—The prefect of Pontevadro has formally surrendered Messrs. Tweed and Hunt to the commander of the Franklin.

The prisoners were taken from the Castella del Castro between 8 and 9 o'clock last night, and, strongly guarded by a body of soldiers, conducted through the quiet streets of the town to a pier where one of the Franklin's boats was waiting. They were quietly taken into the boat. After a hurried adieu between the American and Spanish officers, the boat rowed away and Tweed was soon on board the Franklin. He was immediately taken below, locked up and closely guarded. The Franklin sailed this morning direct for New York. It is reported there was a strong feeling among the populace of Vigo against the imprisonment and surrender of Tweed.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Times, Belgrade dispatch says: There is much reason to fear that Prince Milan and his minister are no longer their own masters in the question of peace. If the war continues, and everything points in that direction, there will be a Russian war in Servia, until it assumes something more.

The only chance for peace lies in Turkey's prompt acceptance of all of the conditions of the powers. Hundreds are arriving daily.

The situation is most alarming for the peace of Russia. The delay of a day may prove fatal to Turkey and peace.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A Times, Belgrade dispatch says: The situation continues gloomy and affairs become more complicated. The only chance for peace is the Turkish acceptance of the powers, proposition.

The war party mock at peace allusions, asserting that whatever Russia may profess to the other powers, she is really for war until the Turks are driven from Constantinople. Both parties claim a victory on Thursday. The Servians are constructing winter quarters.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Standard's Belgrade dispatch says the Servians again furiously attacked the Turks and were repulsed with a loss of 1500. Another attack is imminent.

The Standard's Belgrade dispatch says: Russian inundation is steadily crowding out the Servian element. Preparations at Belgrade and on the Russian border are inconsistent with the pacific declarations of the Russian cabinet. There are good reasons for believing Russia will soon take the responsibility for the war which has been waged under the flimsy cover of the Servian flag.

From California.

MR. EDITOR: On Monday morning, July 10, Rev. J. P. Simmons, my presiding elder, his little son, Jimmie, and myself left the residence of Dr. James R. Thomas, in Redwood valley, Mendocino county, for a point in Humboldt county, nearly two hundred miles distant, to attend a camp quarterly meeting. We started out on horseback, each with a pair of blankets tied behind his saddle, and one gun among us, also a couple of sacks of bread, expecting to camp out, and depending upon our gun for our meat. Climbing over the mountains, with a very dim trail to guide us, we reached Little Lake valley, about twelve miles distant, at noon, where we were joined by Rev. J. F. Campbell, of Potter Valley circuit, who also was equipped with a pair of blankets, a gun, and a sack of bread; also an extra horse on which to pack our baggage. I suggested that we had about twice as much bread as we would need. Bro. Simmons replied: "You'll see." And I did see. I never saw men eat heartier in my life than we did. Instead of half, there were only some crumbs in our bread sack when we arrived on the camp ground; besides, we killed an abundance of wild game, but not more than we devoured. I will say, just here, that the first thing a person thinks about when he gets sick in the country is either to go out camping or to visit some mineral spring.

Little Lake is quite a small but pleasant and fertile valley. I stopped to get my horse shod here, at a little place, where, I learn, quite a remarkable incident occurred some years since. One Sabbath a company of drunken rowdies went through a mock crucifixion of Christ; just one week from that time the same parties, gathered in the same place, got into a quarrel, when six of their number—all the leaders—were killed in the space of two minutes. From this valley we had a wagon road until Tuesday afternoon, when we took what is called the mail trail, which leads directly along the comb of that part of the coast mountains lying between two forks of Eel river, and you may be sure it is a pretty rough one. We were climbing up and crawling down a great portion of the way. When on what is called the highest point on the trail, I beheld the grandest sight that my eyes were ever permitted to gaze upon. North, south, and east, as far as the eye can see, is, as it were, a perfect ocean of mountains, both great and small. Some of their lofty pates present quite a rusty appearance, while others are capped with glistering snow. Some wear dresses all ragged and torn; others are dressed in a beautiful yellow, and yet others in living green. Just below us is "Grizzly Gulch," and from its fearful appearance it does not seem to me that even a grizzly could live there. In the west, though there are mountains in that direction, too, seemingly rising high above them is a bow of a deep blue, which seems to extend nearly half around the globe—that is, the face of the unfathomable deep. The whole forms a scene at once grand, sublime, and beautiful, and to such perfection that I think no pen—much less my own—could do it justice.

On Friday and a portion of Saturday our trail led through a dense and gigantic redwood forest. It would seem that they could not well be thicker; and as to size, we measured several which varied from forty-eight to fifty-six feet around the trunk, and three hundred feet is but an ordinary hight. We found one, in the hollow of which a man lived. I rode into that of another, and turned my horse around. Besides this vast forest, there are numbers of hills and mountains, covered with fir, spruce, and redwood. Surely the timber in Humboldt county must be inexhaustible.

On Saturday afternoon we arrived at the camp ground, which is located in the midst of Eel River valley. This valley, covering only about seventy-two square miles, is the most productive portion of California that I have yet visited. It produces from ten to over twenty tons of potatoes to the acre, twelve or fifteen being the average; from sixty to one hundred bushels of wheat, and from one hundred to one hundred and forty bushels of oats and barley; also from one and a half to two tons of English peas, great fields of which are planted, principally for the hogs. Recently it has been discovered that Eel river is navigable for ocean steamers for about eight miles, and a company in San Francisco have made arrangements to run two steamers regularly between Port Kenyon and San Francisco. This would have been done long since, but a survey of the river was kept off by the capitalists of Eureka, on Humboldt bay. A few miles of railroad from Port Kenyon will bring into market a sufficient quantity of lumber to supply California and Nevada, doubtless, for hundreds of years to come. Besides the Eel River valley, there are several smaller valleys, and considerable table land, which, however, is not quite so productive. The hills are the best of grazing lands; besides, I am told the nutsquito grass, sown even among the timber, will take firm hold, and make the best of pasturage. There is a better opening here for men with some capital than any place I know of.

But while Humboldt county offers so many advantages, like other parts of the country it also has its disadvantages. What I regard as the greatest of these, which in reality makes the soil so productive, is the continuous fogs. While there awoke several times during the night and thought it was raining, when it was only the fog falling from the trees. The sun is scarcely ever seen a whole day at a time, and is frequently not seen at all for weeks.

Our camp meeting, though prospects did not seem very bright at first, was a very good one for California, and resulted in eight or ten conversions, and seven accessions to our church. We have as yet a very small society here, but if Conference will make a considerable missionary appropriation, and send one of our best preachers here next year, I believe this can be made one of our most important circuits.

As we were told that the trail that led down the coast was better than the one we came up, and as we desired to see that part of the country any way, we left on Monday, the 24th, by that route. Without stopping to give a full history of our trip home, which I would be glad to do if space and time would permit, I will only say that we found it much rougher and farther than we expected. While on the beach we had to contend with rocks and sand; and, while off it, with very steep hills; notwithstanding which we made home safely, after a week's hard riding, and feel the better for having made the trip.

Truly yours, W. P. A.

The Silent Rebuke.

Twenty-five years ago there was a marriage in New Orleans. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. H. N. (now Bishop) McTyeire, who at that time was the editor of the ADVOCATE.

After the ceremonies and the usual compliments on such occasions had passed, and the bride had written her maiden name for the last time, without thought of the future to mar the felicity of the present, the wine and cake were brought in.

Yes, there was wine at that wedding. It was offered to the bride first. She took a tiny glass and held it in her hand until all were served. Then, just as she was raising the glass to her lips, the minister arose, and, approached her, and, deliberately took the glass from her hand and placed it on the mantle. Not a word was uttered, but the bride, on raising her eyes to those of the minister, read the deep meaning therein expressed. Often before she had felt the power of those expressive eyes and that benignant smile that spoke volumes without the accompaniment of words, and in her heart she thanked him and her God for the silent rebuke.

The next day, on recurring to the incident, the young husband said to his wife: "My dear, why did the minister take the wine from you last night?" She answered: "It was because he did not wish me to set an example before you of the evil habit of drinking wine." "Well," replied the husband, "that was not necessary. I never drink to excess. I only take a little wine on special occasions, and I think your friend was over-scrupulous. He might have let you taste it on this one occasion. But if I ever do come into your presence intoxicated I want you to take a razor and cut my throat." "No," she said, "I would not do that, but I would not live with you any longer. But 'wine is a mocker,' and it is best to 'touch not, taste not, handle not.' Let this silent rebuke be as a talisman to both of us against temptation." And it has been. Twenty-five years have rolled around, and the husband has never come home intoxicated, and the wife has never had occasion to put her threat into execution. They have had days of clouds and gloom, rain and sunshine. They have stood beside the grave of their first-born, a son of bright hopes and great promise, just entering the arena of a noble manhood. Two little hillocks mark the resting-place of two darling boys, each in a different State. Yet they have four daughters left to comfort and bless them as they journey on life's rugged road. When the night is over and the morning dawns there will be visions of beauty beyond all present imaginings. This blessed hope cheers and sustains, and makes sunshine even in adversity. On the twenty-fifth anniversary of this wedding, if the good Bishop could have been near enough, he would have heard the lady mentioned above singing to herself:

"John Anderson, my Jo, John, we climb the hill thegither,
And many a canty day, John, we've had wi' ane anither,
Now we maun totter, John, but mind to baud we'll go,
And sleep thegither at the foot, John Anderson, my Jo."

Dickens always believed in spiritualism after asking at a seance the attendance of the spirit of Dudley Murray, and being answered by the spectre, to whom he put the question, "Are you the spirit of Dudley Murray?" "I are."

At a spiritual circle, the other evening, a gentleman requested the medium to ask what amusement was most popular in the spiritual world. The reply was, "Reading our own obituary notices."

WOODVILLE DISTRICT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The Woodville district, of the Mississippi Conference, convened near Centerville, Miss., on the twenty-fifth instant. There were about twenty members present; the Rev. James L. Forsythe, presiding elder, in the chair, and conducted the proceedings. The business sessions of the Conference were held on the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth instant, and the greatest courtesy, good feeling, and harmony prevailed throughout. We had religious services at eleven o'clock A. M., and at eight o'clock P. M. of each day, which were well attended, and with much interest. The meeting has been protracted almost by common consent, and is still going on this week with an encouraging prospect of doing great good. The spiritual condition of this district, taken as a whole, is considered comparatively good, and somewhat improved during the year. At Jackson, La., and at Salem church, near Jackson, there have been recently great revivals, and many conversions and accessions to the church. The delegates elected to the Annual Conference from this district were Rev. P. S. Petty, A. P. Smith, Thomas Garnett, and F. D. Brame. Alternates—John Castles and L. K. Barber.

The following resolutions, among others, were adopted unanimously by the Conference:

Resolved, That this District Conference has heard with pleasure of the success of the commencement services of Centenary College, and hail it as a sign ominous of future prosperity, and that we, ministers and laymen of this district, will use our utmost endeavors to promote the interests of this institution, by recommending it to the people for support and patronage.

N. B. YOUNG,
D. C. LANGFORD.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this District Conference that the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE approximates very closely our ideal of a religious family newspaper.

Resolved, That we indorse the management of the publisher, Rev. R. J. Harp, and congratulate him and the church upon the superior appearance of the paper.

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves anew to increase the subscription list of the ADVOCATE among us.

C. G. ANDREWS,
N. B. YOUNG.

Resolved, That this District Conference render a vote of thanks to the people of Centerville and vicinity for the liberal and hospitable manner in which they have entertained the Conference, and that we will pray that its deliberations and exercises may result in great good to the community and the church.

N. B. YOUNG,
C. G. CECIL.

The Conference adjourned to meet next at Clinton, La.

Yours very truly, etc.,

F. D. BRAME,
Secretary of Conf.

TUSCALOOSA DISTRICT, NORTH ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The Tuscaloosa District Conference was held in Vernon, Sanford county, Ala., July 27-29. In the absence of our presiding elder, Rev. J. L. Coleman, the Rev. D. S. McDonald was elected to preside. The charges, except one, were represented. The official attendance was unusually good. Instead of the usual number of committees, only three were appointed, respectively on education, missions, and finance. Reports from all the charges were called for, and a careful hearing was given by the Conference. Such inquiries were made by the chair and other members as brought out the facts most desirable to be known. There were present about fifteen local preachers, of whom each one was called upon to make a concise statement of his work during the past year. Accounts from some of these were truly gratifying. The session was harmonious, and great earnestness was manifested by all the members in the work of the Conference. Religious exercises were held twice a day with encouraging attendance. A half hour before each morning session the Conference met and held a prayer meeting. A deep impression for good was made on the community. Several attached themselves to the church. On Saturday night of the meeting a missionary anniversary was held, two appropriate speeches were made, and a collection was taken, amounting to $60.40. Our presiding elder, Dr. J. L. Coleman, was sick, and could not attend. It was a matter of universal regret. The Conference, however, was greeted by an affectionate communication from him, in which he expressed great desire to be with us, assuring the Conference that, though absent in the body, he was present in the spirit. He manifested prayerful concern for the proceedings of the meeting, urging the pastors to the consideration of the more important interests of the church, and to a strict and general observance of the "Week of Prayer;" and, finally, asking the prayers of his people for the speedy recovery of his health, and restoration to the post of duty.

E. A. Powell, J. A. Duncan, Gustavus Legg, and J. H. R. Chappell were elected members of the next Annual Conference; their alternates are respectively W. M. Stone, R. F. Henry, B. F. Meek, and John N. Black.

The next session will be held at Fayette Court House, Fayette county, Ala.

BLACK WATER MISSION, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: If you think your readers would like to hear from a good Sunday school in a country place, here is a short report of the Sunday school at Jones' chapel, Black Water mission, Alabama Conference. This school numbers five officers and teachers, and forty scholars. The books used are: The "Primer," "Farr's Manual for Infant Schools," "Child's Scripture Question Book," "Elementary Scripture Question Book," "Improved Question Book on the Life of Christ," the "New Testament," and the "Gem" song-book. The recitations are excellent; indeed in this respect it is a model school. I have never heard better recitations. For every attendance a red ticket with a Scripture verse upon it is given to each scholar. The roll is called by classes, and each scholar rises and recites the verse upon the ticket received the preceding Sunday. This is an interesting exercise, and the more so since some very small children may be heard to repeat the precious words of the Scriptures. The parents take an interest, and attend the school with their children. The scholars are very much attached to the school, and are not easily persuaded to take a trip which involves an absence from the school. The scholars behave very nicely in the Sunday school. There is no going out and coming in during the session of the school, and no confusion during the distribution of the tickets. This school was put in operation, and has been carried on by the Rev. B. T. Marshall, whose coming into the community last winter was very opportune. Some of the Sunday-school scholars have recently attached themselves to the church, and still the good work goes on. Take it altogether, I never saw a better Sunday school in a country place. I am delighted and encouraged. Fraternally,

W. H. MORRIS.

OZARK CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Last Friday, it being general fast day, Bro. H. M. Gillis, our beloved pastor, commenced a meeting at Ozark, in the Ozark circuit, Marianna district. It has been in very warm progress ever since. How much longer it will continue I do not know, but one thing I do know is that the Lord has blessed us most wonderfully; have had a gracious outpouring of his Spirit in our midst; many have been reclaimed; who were cold before the meeting commenced, and are now bright and lively members. But few thus far have been added to the church; in fact we are not trying so much to build up in numbers as to revive the members already on hand.

A few weeks ago we had another good meeting at "Old Ebybank church," two and a half miles from Ozark, and many were made happy in the Lord there. Upon the whole, I think the spiritual outlook of the Ozark circuit is very good, and I think, if not too severely invaded by "Gen. Hard Times," we will be able to send our preacher to Conference with as clean papers and good clothing as any other circuit will.

As to Bro. H. D. Moore, our presiding elder, he is like a "Jackson," ever on the watch, guarding with great diligence and care the interest of the church, by preaching clear, pathetic, and logical sermons.

THE WEDDING EVE.

One morning fifty years ago
When apple trees were white with snow
Of fragrant blossoms, and the air
Was spellbound with the perfume rare,
A pair of farm horses large and lean,
And, as with its double load
A sun-browned youth and maid were seen
Jogging along the winding road.

Blue were the arches of the skies,
But bluer were that maiden's eyes;
The dew-drops on the grass were bright,
But brighter was the loving light
That sparkled 'neath the long fringed lid
Where those bright eyes of blue were hid.
Along the shoulders, brown and bare,
Half hid the waves of golden hair,
Where, almost stifled with the spray,
The sun, a willing sufferer, lay.

It was the fairest sight, I ween,
That the young man had ever seen
As, with his features all aglow,
The happy fellow told her joy.
And she, when, the first surprise
Looked on him with those heavenly eyes,
Saw underneath that shade of tan,
The kindred features of a man;
And, with a joy but rarely known
She drew that dear face to her own.
And by her fair forehead hid
I cannot tell even what she did.

Soon the verdure, until noon
The dew-barn leaves with dew-drops hung,
The parsonage arrayed in white
Peers out, a more than welcome sight.
Even with a cloud upon his face,
What shall we do," he turned to say,
Should he refuse to take his pay.
From what is in the pillow case?
And, shaking down, his eye surveyed
The pillow-case, before him laid.
Whilst, unaware, reaching softly long
Maiden quickness for her thread,

The maiden answers, "Let us wait
To-morrow trouble where's the need
Then at the parson's opening gate
Halted the more than willing steed.

Down from the horse the bridegroom sprang
The latch-loss gate he swung,
The knocker on that startled door
Struck such a peal as ne'er was heard before.
Brought the whole household pale with fright
And there, with blushing dignity,
So, bashful he could hardly speak
The farmer met their wondering gaze.

The groom gave in his credentials
And as the parson took, to hear
For her the wished as well, and tells,
"Come in." He says he'll take the bears.

Oh! how she jumped. With one grand bound
She and the head-bag touched the ground.
Then, entering with each dilated gaze
The precious freight of the sleigh,
She bears it through the open door,
And thrown upon the parlor floor
Dumps the best beans you ever see.

Ah! happy were their songs that day
When man and wife they rode away;
But laughter this chorus still
Which echoed through the wondering crowd
"God bless the priest of Whitsuntide
And bless the man who ties the bears."

Seashore District Conference, Mississippi Annual Conference.

MR. EDITOR: The Conference convened September 8th in Salem church, Mount Carmel circuit.

The last resolution passed by the body was a request that the presiding elder should prepare and send to the editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication a synopsis of its proceedings. Complying with the request, he sends the following:

The attendance of members was very good. No representatives from Ocean Springs, White Plains, and East Pascagoula circuits. The condition of these was reported by the presiding elder.

No committees were appointed. The session occupied two days in harmonious and profitable review of the various matters coming legitimately under its supervision. Collating the reports from the circuits and missions, the following may be considered as a proper summary:

The spiritual condition of the entire district is improving, and presents a very encouraging outlook. There have been something over 300 accessions to the church. Conversions have been numerous and membership generally revived. Congregations have enlarged, and deeper interest manifested by members in the ordinances, except in family worship. Two churches have been built and four others arranged for, and will be erected. One of the former is in Westville mission. The entire cost of this new church, which is about $500, was paid by Bro. Charles Burtis, a steward in the work.

NOTE BY THE PRESIDING ELDER.—Bro. Barns is not a rich man; but he has given an illustration of what can be done when there is a will by one in ordinary circumstances of life. While so many respond to the urgent calls for help with the old cry of "hard times," here is one who is willing to invest some of his living in an interest-paying bank. He has already received a part of the dividends. His wife was the first to join our church when services were opened in the new building, and his business has enlarged and become more profitable.

There are three missions, one of which Westville has been raised to a circuit for the ensuing year. The Taylorsville is not doing well, and the Chickasawhay is prospering. Its pastor is 76 years old; fills ten appointments; travels every month about 250 miles; visits his sheep; and came a distance of 75 miles on horseback to District Conference.

The Lord is blessing his work. One mission came to pay Bro. P. C. Whitlock, the pastor of it, much, but it has already done better than ever before for the length of time. In the district there are 22 Sunday schools, and about 1,000 scholars. Several of these have established juvenile missionary societies, and the one at Moss Point, when last heard from, had raised $25, and the one at Ocean Springs $17 15. There are several Sunday schools in our churches on the union style, having our literature, and taught in part by Methodists, but not admitted in the reports.

One circuit (Columbia) has no Sunday school of any kind.

About one-third of the missionary assessments have been collected, and the collections still in process. Something over one-third of the preachers' salaries have been paid. Have not gotten out of the old system—of (not) paying the preachers at the end of the year. The opinion, however, prevails that there is an improvement.

A revisal of the entire work was made as to geographical boundaries, and some changes agreed on, which will be submitted to the Bishop. The following persons were elected delegates to the ensuing Annual Conference, viz.: T. J. Fenzell, I. M. Applewhite, J. P. Carter, and R. J. Parker. The next District Conference will be held at Enon.

The following preamble and resolutions, relating to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is the official organ of our Annual Conference, and is well calculated to instruct our people in the polity of Methodism and the glorious doctrines of our holy religion, and promotive of a high standard of spirituality, and in these respects we consider it as an essential help to the pastor in his labors; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the Seashore District Conference, approve the energy and efficiency of the editor and publisher in the management and publication of the paper.

Resolved, That we commend it to the patronage of all our members in the district.

Resolved, That we will endeavor to place it in every Methodist family in our charges.

Resolved, That a copy of the above preamble and resolutions be furnished the ADVOCATE for publication.

P. H. NAPIER,
W. W. HOPPER.

The religious services were very profitable and impressive. A large number of penitents were at the altar for prayers. It was specially a season of refreshment to God's people.

THOMAS PRICE, P. E.

Los Angeles—The City.

MR. EDITOR: The original name given to this town, or rather mission, nearly one hundred years ago, by the Spanish, is Nuestra Senora, Reina de Los Angeles, "Our Lady, Queen of the Angels," which poetic but cumbrous title the practical denizen of to-day contracts into "Los Angeles." The name is pronounced as if spelled Loce Ang-gleas, a very pretty name indeed; but it does not signify as intimated by many writers, the "City of the Angels." In plain English, it was named for the Virgin Mary, who is, according to Romish teaching, "the queen of the angels."

It is situated in the broad valley of the Los Angeles river, which is a pretty mountain stream, flowing from the blue peaks on the north of the city to the ocean on the west and south. The city spreads over the plain and the foothills of the mountains, covering an area of thirty-six square miles; being a perfect square. It contains about sixteen thousand souls, made up of immigrants from every direction. A large proportion are Americans, a great many are Indians and Mexicans, some are Spanish, some Jews and Germans, a few are French and Italians, and many are the irrepressible Chinese. Immigrants from the States, both North and South of Mason and Dixon, prevail, so that society is cosmopolitan somewhat, but very fine. There is a great amount of intelligence and enterprise. This city, although the American portion of it is scarcely a dozen years of age, is several decades ahead of Vicksburg or New Orleans in enterprise.

The buildings, excepting the adobes of the Spanish part (a very small part, too), are uniformly pretty, and many of the public buildings are very handsome for a young city. The yards to the residences are roomy, and some of them large, with every variety of plants and shrubs indigenous both to a temperate and tropic clime. Palms, olives, Australian gums, century plants, and cacti, both of which become trees here, pepper trees, etc., to say nothing of orange, lime, lemon, and citron trees, and the grapevine transformed by the pruning knife into a little tree. Also geraniums clambering to the very roofs of cottages, heliotropes, and roses, and I don't know what all, growing, with a little sprinkling now and then from a hydrant connected with the city water-works, fearless of cold and regardless of heat. Although not a "paradise," as some are led to suppose, nor even the home of "the angels," yet it is a lovely place, and what is remarkable is the fact that this loveliness is so recent. Many of the most luxuriant of these yards and gardens are no more than two years old. Such is the rapidity of vegetable growth here when carefully irrigated.

We have fruit and melons in the greatest variety and abundance, and of the best character; but above all in excellency are the grapes; we have them of all varieties, and most luxuriant in growth and luscious to the taste, growing in bunches weighing from one to ten pounds each. One may eat almost to excess of them, and suffer no inconvenience. Peaches, apples, plums, and pears abound; plenty of each can be bought from wagons and fruit-stands to-day—rather late for plums in Mississippi. Garden vegetables of every variety grow and flourish with but little attention.

The climate is delightful. I have been here throughout the month of August, and have not suffered an hour from heat, but have slept comfortably under cover every night. It is to-day more balmy and delightful than April or May in Mississippi and Louisiana. We have no rain here through summer and autumn, but it is scarcely more dusty here than in Mississippi a week after a rain, and the citizens of Los Angeles do not suffer as much inconvenience from dust as the citizens of Vicksburg, Miss. It is never winter here literally, and never summer, but a rainy spring, followed by a dry spring, and that completes the year; although not heaven by far, yet we can truly sing:

"Here everlasting spring abides,
And never-withering flowers."

So much for the city of Los Angeles. I will write next time about the country around here, and tell about the big beet and the big pumpkins, and the barley fields and fat hogs, etc. I saw a few weeks ago on my visit to Los Nietos (pronounce that name Los Nayfoce).

Yours,

H. WALTER FEATHERSTON.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Aug. 26, 1876.

Brookhaven District.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.—Dear Sir and Brother: After recent communication with our presiding elder upon the district finances, my first impulse was to write, privately, to a number of our brethren, and make an appeal, personally, for a greater effort.

But where shall this personal appeal end? It ought to reach every member of our communion—which it can alone do through your invaluable paper.

We are in the midst of our fourth round of quarterly meetings, and shall I, as a district steward, confess it?—Data in my possession show that but little over one-third of the allowance to our presiding elder (and of course preachers in charge) has been met. Hazlehurst (much honor to her) has met two-thirds of hers; my own work but little over one-third, and most of the works about one-fourth.

Our presiding elder tells me that, having exhausted his other resources, he has been forced to borrow over $150 to meet necessary family expenses.

Brother stewards, shall this state of things continue, or will the church meet its pledges? The question is for me and for you to answer. In a life's history and observation I have seen no church fall seriously behind when the stewards have fully met their duty.

Think of the wonderful graciousness of God to us, even in the midst of this our dereliction—350 conversions have already been reported to our presiding elder, and still the work goes on, and we, the members of his church, show our appreciation of God's marvelous blessings by "robbing" him of that over which he has but made us his "stewards."

Is there wonder to the Bible reader that the drouth, the floods, the caterpillar have destroyed more than half our crops, and that now a pestilence worse than in thirty years peoples our cemeteries? Again we say: Brother stewards, let us better ourselves, and make our people see the facts in the above, the true light. It will cost us time to visit, once, twice, thrice, most of our brethren. We must suggest ways and means the consolidating cotton at some gin to be put into a bale and shipped, or perhaps the delivery of other products, that they may be converted into money. Let us urge men persuade them. It will be unpleasant, but our people know too well that men who can beg for themselves are not made stewards of Our Savior, his apostles, "persuaded," "besought," "entreated." Are we better than they? Is the discharge of our duties of less importance than theirs? Suppose your preacher this year had given notice publicly, or even gone to your houses and given it, that if once a quarter you would bring to him your children, your neighbors, he would tell them of the plan of salvation. How many of us have done even this well? How many converts would we have had in Brookhaven district? Instead of this, he has gone through heat and cold, storm and sunshine, sick or well, left his family perhaps in distress or want, hunted you, your children, your neighbors out, not only presented the gospel, but urged its claims, and "besought," "entreated," "begged" (with tears) them to accept it. And we would have been satisfied with nothing less than the most energetic has done.

Then let us enter into judgment with ourselves, and be aroused by our own consciences. Do our duty with the order which governed them, and we can bring up these assessments, and save not only the reputation of our works, but what is more important to us—our Christian consciences.

I pledge myself to the line of zeal indicated above, and will bring up the assessment of my charge, and I believe we will of our circuit. Who will make the experiment? He need not fear failure, and, if branded as an enthusiast, it is the heritage of those who have succeeded.

One more word: Bring up the mission collection, but not as last year, by taking the bread out of the mouths of the Conference claimants. This is a sacred debt.

Your brother,

J. V. ENOCHS.

Our Little Missionary Society.

MR. EDITOR: In reading the ADVOCATE I have learned that you are a friend of foreign missions. For in one of your editorials you said: "As long as men wore buttons on their coats, and women wore ribbons on their hats, so long you would ask them for money for missions." So I thought that you might like to hear something about our little society. It was organized by the teachers and scholars of our Sunday school on the 13th of February, and is called the "Centennial Missionary Society" of Oakland Sunday school. We had twenty-six members at first, now we have fifty-three. Each one paid five cents initiation fee, and we pay five cents each month for monthly dues. We meet twice a month on Sunday afternoon. We have a president, secretary, and treasurer. At each meeting the president appoints one of the members to deliver an address at the next meeting. This helps us to understand our work better. The addresses are all on missionary subjects.

"The wanderers speak like angels
As they sing of love and pain;
We can tell the love of Jesus,
We can say the dead live again."

We have some little members in the society only two and three years old. We take all the little ones as well as the larger ones. All the members except the officers constitute a committee to solicit aid for the society, and that gives each little child something to do. We have a few honorary members. We have a roll of honor with all the members' names on it, for we all esteem it an honor to belong to the first missionary society of our Sunday school. "The roll of honor" has at the top a picture of a little ship under full sail, and over it are the words: "The Missionary Ship," and underneath "Outward bound." It was drawn and presented to the society by one of the members. Our missionary enterprise met with some opposition at first, but we have overcome that, or at least we do not hear much about it now. There are some who are opposed to foreign missions, but are in favor of home missions; but our little ship is "outward bound," and, though we may not be able to make up a large sum, we will ask God to bless our "mite." We will "cast our bread upon the waters," and if we never find it again we hope the heathen will. We never knew anything about a missionary society until this year. We have such a good presiding elder and preacher. We are all trying to do all we can to help them. I think that our Conference is like the Israelites, who sent twelve spies to spy out the land of Canaan, and all brought back an evil report, except two. The Conference sent two this year to spy out our land, and we want them to be like Caleb and Joshua, and take up a good report of us to our Israel. We will try and have it so if we can, God being our helper. Mr. Editor, will you pray for us that we may be faithful in our work, for we want to Work for Jesus, all day long,

Thus by work your faith attesting;
Heaven is the place for resting,
Work for Jesus, work.

ELLA.

At one of the anniversary meetings in London, Mr. Spurgeon said: "He would like to see the denominational feeling intensified far beyond anything he had yet observed; and as regards Christian charity, experience taught him that that was always best exemplified by those who really loved their own denomination."

"Boxed Preaching" is what the Christian Intelligencer calls it, and ventures to express the hope that the day for such preaching to the unsaved is over.

"Patrick Bacher," said the justice, "guilty or not guilty?" "Faith, yer honor," said Patrick, "wait till I hear the evidence."

OBITUARIES.

Correspondents, please write names and dates very distinctly. We follow copy on proper names.

Obituary notices should be forwarded promptly and immediately. Give only points of general interest, such as will help the living. Details of funeral services, and such phrases as "mourn their loss," etc., are not edifying. Verses, either original or select, not admissible in this department. Give the locality distinctly and in full. In the case of infants only a simple announcement of the death, with names and dates, will be published.

☞ All obituaries received are published as soon as convenient. If, after a reasonable time, any such communication fail to appear, let a duplicate be sent instead of a complaint.

IN MEMORIAM.

MISS ADA ANNA MONTGOMERY, daughter of Rev. H. H. and Mrs. E. M. Montgomery, died at M. C. F. Institute, Jackson, Tenn., March 17, 1876. The subject of this notice was intellectual above ordinary. She had been accustomed to books, study, and school from infancy; could not remember when she could not spell and read. She loved to read, and perused most of the volumes in clarger, well-assorted library. Her mind analyzed, classified, and arranged what she read. Her latest employment was reading and conversation. Her letters were full of thought, expressing noble sentiments as well as sprightly gems.

In June, 1874, she graduated at Whitworth College, to the degree of M. E. t. Wishing to complete a course of the languages, music, and the fine arts, etc., she was successfully carrying out this plan so as to qualify herself for a high-grade teacher, which was her ambition in letters, when she was smitten down with malarial fever, which terminated so fatally.

She was baptized in infancy, and had been instructed in the principles of our holy religion at home and in the Sunday school, which she had attended from the time she could walk to church. From the time she could read, she had been accustomed to have her Bible when the family met for prayers, and to read with the family. In this way she read the Bible regularly through several times, besides her daily reading in her room. Her room-mates at school testify that no pressure of duties or fatigue of hours kept her from the daily reading of her Bible and attending to her morning and evening devotions. Dr. Jones says she was the model of his school, and a teacher who was very intimate and spent much time with her, says she was the most exemplary Christian she ever knew among the young. All this is very gratifying to us, as she had been at home for very little since September, 1873, and with whom she was more intimate than any other, writes: "I never heard Anna speak an improper word nor saw her do a wrong act." When she was a little over seventeen years of age she made a profession of religion and assumed the vows of the church. Ever after she loved all its services, and was a punctual attendant on all its ordinances. Her amiability, gentleness, and firmness were such as to arrest the attention of others. She was devoted to and attended earnestly for principle. She had an "influence magnetic," which drew many to her, and carried them with her. This was noticeable even in childhood. She died away from home. None with her seemed to apprehend any danger of death, until the brain was affected, the mind wandered, and perception failed. Hence none spoke to her about her spiritual condition or prospects. She left no "dying testimony." But her principles, sentiments, devotion, and life give this encouragement to believe that she rest in the paradise of God. At the request of a school-mate she wrote in a sentimental album, a few days before her last sickness, in answer to the questions: Which season do you love best? Answer: "Spring, the emblem of the resurrection." If and yourself, who would you rather be? Answer: "A brighter and purer being." What word above all others would you like to hear? Answer: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Which place would you like to go to? Answer: "Heaven, where sorrow never comes, where God has wiped away all tears, and where friends never part. Weep not, your son and brother is not dead, but sleepeth; not lost, only gone before. God's ways are always right, and love is over them all; though far above our sight. It is well; it is well." M. A. P.

DIED, in Collytown valley, Jackson county, Ala., on the night of the 17th of June, 1876, JOHN MORROW, who, after doing a half day's labor the day before, at supper heartily, went to bed unusually cheerful, and was found dead next morning. He was born in Abbeville district, S. C., December 17, 1800, and moved to Autauga (now Chilton) county, Ala., in 1818. He afterward lived in DeKalb, and then in Jackson, where he died. He professed religion in 1828, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and lived a consistent member until his death, being seventy-five years and seven months old. He married Mary Ann Arbor, of Pickens district, S. C., in 1828. He was highly respected and loved by all who knew him. As a husband he was affectionate and kind; as a father observed as a neighbor very agreeable, as a citizen honorable. He loved the church, the Sabbath school, and its Bible. He was true to his church and his Master, and was always found at his place. He left an aged companion and seven children, three sons and three daughters, all of whom are in the church, and a number of grandchildren to mourn his loss. The church, the Sabbath-school, the community, and the large circle of relatives and friends have lost one of its truest and devoted members.

A FRIEND.

SUSANA AKIN, consort of Rev. John Akin, was born March 31, 1814, in Amite county, Miss. She was married to Rev. Akin October 25, 1835, and in 1850, with her husband, she moved to Claiborne parish, La., and died in Caton parish, La., May 29, 1876.

Sister Akin embraced religion in the eleventh year. She was a consistent and faithful member of the Methodist Church. Being strong in faith and hope, she exemplified the fact that God's grace is sufficient in all the trials and conflicts of this life. She was the subject of protracted sickness, but she rejoiced in the realization of the truth that "these light afflictions work out for the Christian a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." May the God of all grace bless and sustain the bereaved.

JOHN A. MILLER.

ELLIS MONROE, youngest son of Greene and Amanda Hussey, died in Baton Rouge parish, La., June 2, aged eight years, ten months, and twenty days. Little Ellis was a pure, sprightly child, promising fair for a useful manhood; but, alas! death blights the fairest prospects. His place is vacant in the circle at home, for he is gone to visit the five sweet brothers who preceded him to Canaan's happy shore. Mother and father, mourn not for your little Ellis, for your loss is his gain.

A FRIEND.

BRO. JOHN A. HOUSER died of pulmonary consumption, at his residence in Autauga county, Ala., July 5, 1876. He was born April 26, 1818, and married August 2, 1836. He joined the Methodist Protestant Church in early life, in which he was an active and official member for several years. Afterward he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in which he lived an upright life and an official member until his death. Bro. Houser was a good and true man, and died as he lived, in the triumphs of faith in God.

HIS PASTOR.

DIED, very suddenly, in Carroll parish, La., July 30, 1876, of congestion of the kidneys, ROBERT, son of E. M. and E. Fleming. Aged about four years. Little Robbie was a most affectionate and lovely boy, and in his death we hear the voice of the chief Shepherd saying to the stricken parents: "Suffer him to come."

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Whereas, In the dispensation of God's providence, our young friend and schoolmate, Isaac John Ward, has been removed by death from our number; And whereas, we, on account of his great affliction, the more highly appreciated his zeal, and his great interest he manifested in our school; therefore,

Resolved, That while we desire to humbly submit to the will of our Heavenly Father we do deeply deplore his sad and sudden death.

Resolved, That we commend his example and devotion to the Sabbath school to others and to each other, and hope we may be able to emulate the same.

Resolved, That we offer our sympathy to his aged parents and his relatives in the sad bereavement.

OAKLEY SABBATH SCHOOL.
OAKLEY, FRANKLIN PARISH, LA., July 9, 1876.

DEPARTED this life, on the morning of the first of July, 1876, MCCARROLL PURDY, Mc. was born February 17, 18— in Putnam county, Ga. His widowed mother now in the winter of life, and to all human appearance that winter far advanced, having raised a large family, and seen them one after another leave the parental roof, some to find a soldier's grave, and some in the homes of their own, had come to lean upon this one, and look to him as the staff and comfort of her last years.

But how vain are human hopes! While these plans are forming, death receives his commission, and delays not his fatal work. Mc. was confined to his bed about ten weeks during which time he suffered the most excruciating pains, but he bore his afflictions without a murmur, until the slumbers of death closed the scene. He was by nature endowed with a bright, genial temper, and his social qualities won for him a host of young friends, many of whom he admonished and warned that they too one day had to die. He has been snatched away from his friends, and they will miss and mourn his untimely death; but, most of all, that home of which he was a beloved member will miss him. They can listen for the footfall of a familiar, but beloved one, that voice merry and cheery, but we hear it not. Mc. the God of mercy pour the oil of consolation into the hearts of the bereaved family, and help them to look beyond the grave, to that home where sorrow never comes, where God has wiped away all tears, and where friends never part. Weep not, your son and brother is not dead, but sleepeth; not lost, only gone before. God's ways are always right, and love is over them all; though far above our sight. It is well; it is well.

JERUSALEM THE GOLDEN.

For thee, O dear, dear country!
Mine eyes their vigils keep;
For very love, beholding
Thy happy name, they weep.
The mention of thy glory
Is unction to the breast,
And medicine in sickness,
And love, and life, and rest.
O one, O only mansion!
O paradise of joy!
Where tears are ever banished,
And smiles have no alloy;
Beside thy living waters
All plants are green and small,
The cedar of the forest,
The hyssop of the wall;
With jasper glow thy bulwarks;
Thy streets with emeralds blaze;
The sardius and the topaz
Unite in thee their rays;
Thine ageless walls are banded
With amethyst unpriced;
Thy saints build up its fabric,
And the corner-stone is Christ.
The cross is all thy splendor,
The crucified thy praise;
His hand and sentence
Thy ransomed people raise.
Jesus, the God of Beauty,
Thy never-failing Garden,
The ever golden ring:
Thou hast no shore, fair ocean!
Thou hast no time, bright day!
Dear fountain of refreshment
To pilgrims far away.

Bishop Asbury and Two Houses.

LETTERS FROM LOVICK PIERCE, D.D.

The following letters, says the Methodist, are furnished us by Dr. Perrine, to whom they were written:

SPARTA (GA.,) August 9, 1876.

Dear Bro. Perrine:

Yours of August 2 came to hand on the seventh. . . . As to Bishop Asbury's talk to me, and about which you inquired, it took place in 1811. In those days it was made the presiding elder's duty, when the bishop in his annual round entered his district, to meet him and accompany him through it. I was at that time a presiding elder, and was in the discharge of this duty—when in a long and lonely day's ride he said to me, I judge the time will come when our people will ask a representative power in our legislative conference. And if so, I judge it would be best to have two houses: a house of representatives made up of a mixture of laymen and local preachers; and a house of old, well-tried loyal itinerants." The doings of the latter house was accustomed, in his own peculiar Asburian way, to denominate the locus consultum. His idea was to let every special department in the church, made subject to any special law in its discipline, be represented as law-making council. And his safeguard for American Episcopal Methodism was in the coming of some State legislature—that no thing should pass with both houses parsed it. His object was to insure against wild theories from without so that, if our original economy was ever metamorphosed, it should be at last by us. He was a wise man, and saw from the first that no policy that ignored the will of the people would be safe in America. Hence, he would not ordained a bishop over American Methodists at Mr. Wesley's nomination, unless he could be chosen by the preachers. Indeed, he was their choice. I do not recollect of his ever a word in disapproval of such election. His idea was to let the American political policy in regard to representation into our legislative policy, with such constitutional guards as would render harmful changes by mere legislation impossible. I do not recollect Bishop Asbury saying a word in reference to the called up General Conferences of lay and clerical delegates, all voting together as one single mass. His idea was of the three estates, two houses. I will say now, this table-talk made a deep impression on my mind. I was young, and could not see why he should mention a matter of this kind to me. But next year was the inauguration of the Delegated General Conference; itself a proof that the call for direct representation at that time applied to all parts of our great and extant pastoral field. Bishop Asbury was a far-seeing man, and looking into the probable future of American Methodism, he saw that the church he wished to preserve intact might be rent in twain at this point. The going off of the Protestant Methodist Church in 1829 was largely upon the ground—upon what they called Lay or Manual Rights.

It has always been a strange circumstance that Bishop Asbury should have made this wonderful communication to me, now sixty-five years ago in September, and that I have been spared so many years, it seems, to declare this wonderful conception of our pioneer Bishop, of Episcopal Methodism, at the only time, I think, in which it has ever been called for by the pending issues. This Two-Thirds General Conference is going to be a question and the question. I do not throw with your argument yet. I am well pleased with your views, as far as I am sure I get your meaning. I am sorry and sore every time a sensible man says anything that leaves me in doubt. When Elliott's "Great Secession" is quoted, whether it is in approval or in condemnation, any one that had been present and heard and seen what I did in Dr. Elliott, could never cease to wonder and grieve that he should ever write a book, and call it by this name.

We never were a secession, nor never intend to be. We intend to be genuine Episcopal Methodists. I love to correspond with my Northern Methodist brethren, but could not with any one that would call me a secessionist. Write me if I am misled in any way. Would not be surprised if we all become two-house Methodists at last. I am yours in brotherly love,

L. PIERCE.

SPARTA, August 30, 1876.

Dear Bro. Perrine:

Allow me first to congratulate the North and the South on the success of our fraternal commission. Such harmony was proof—what makes it best of all—that both sides had made peace in their hearts before, and only wanted some suitable way to give it formal expression. The commission idea was the right one. I wonder if there will be any one, North or South, silly enough to offer a caveat. I hope not. If we are God's building, this fraternal union will be the beginning of a new era in Episcopal Methodism. We ought in some way to celebrate this event as the great moral issue of the centennial year. But my object in this writing is to say I have read all your speeches on your proposed two-house General Conference plan, and that on your main ground, a safer legislation, I am a thorough convert. Nothing has worried me more in my General Conference life than a hurried excited legislation in the last week of a tedious session. In a word, to see a Methodist General Conference get into a mass like a partisan legislature, seeking to defeat or to carry through a measure by parliamentary legerdemain, was a mortification to me hard to bear. I am satisfied that a two-house General Conference would do safer legislation than the present. I would like the triennial feature; although out here some would like to jump, to once in seven years, just because of too much legislation. But it is really hurried legislation that does the mischief. Two houses are the only relief I can see, and even that would not be perfect. If there was any way by which a joint board (of the two houses) could make out a calendar of resolutions and proposed revisals within the first week that might be discussed and decided as worthy of consideration, it would greatly aid in wise deliberation. I am not sure about your organization plan. I am not prepared either to admit or unread just now.

But how is it that there was so much speaking by you in favor of your scheme, with such clear and undeniable proofs of the wisdom and even necessity of two houses for good legislation, and so much mercurial sensibility displayed, and yet not a man that I have seen that ever attempted to show any fallacy in your argument. Your majority (of 25) might have been, and as I think you think, were, the mental strength of the house. If so, the triumph of your scheme will only be a question of time. Bishop Asbury's forecastings of the future of American Methodism, as far as even hinted to me, were close by prophetic inspiration. As lay representation is now a fixed fact, I hope the two-house General Conference question will be calmly considered. The Lord will provide for it, if it is in any wise its ultimatum. As to our future, I hope we will respectively and harmoniously run upon our common plan as to leading Methodist features. O for peace, for fraternal love, for oneness in all great missionary work! It fill he comes us in foreign fields to seem to be setting up two Episcopal Methodisms. Let us desire one in sweet accord. Yours ever,

L. PIERCE.

The Deluge Tablets.

The publication in this country of a book by Mr. George Smith on recent discoveries in Assyria has given new interest to the marvelous story of this discovery and translation of the Babylonian inscriptions, so confirmatory of the Bible account of the flood. The story is well worth telling anew, with such additions as the more recent researches of Mr. Smith enable us to give.

The site of ancient Nineveh is covered with immense mounds, the largest and most interesting of which is called by the Arabs Koyunjik. It covers nearly one hundred acres, and rises in height from seventy to ninety feet. This mound attracted the attention of Mr. Layard, and, as we once before noted, he was the first of its excavators. From it he dug out those colossal winged bulls and eagle-headed monsters which fairly amaze the visitors to the British Museum. This mound proved to be a vast platform which bore up many palaces of gigantic proportions. The most beautiful of these was that of Asshur-banipal. In the course of Layard's excavations he reached this palace. He found in a series of rooms which he called "chambers of record" they were small apartments filled with clay tablets, from one inch to nine inches in length, covered with fine writing. These tablets were sent to England and deposited in the British Museum. This was seventeen years ago. Among the learned men who devoted themselves to the mastery of these unknown writings was Mr. George Smith, promoted by Sir Henry Rawlinson to be the greatest Assyrian scholar living. Many tablets were deciphered by him which were of great importance as having a direct bearing upon Bible history. In 1872 Mr. Smith came across a fragment which, to his amazement, belonged to a Babylonian account of this deluge. His eager search now was for the other portion. He was in part successful. Missing pieces were found to such an extent that the scholar was enabled to make out quite a connected narrative of the deluge, as recorded by the writer in stone.

The discovery and the translation forced the subject of a lecture by Mr. Smith before one of the learned societies of London. The interest awakened was intense. The proprietors of the Daily Telegraph, London, offered to advance five thousand dollars to secure fresh researches at Nineveh. An expedition was equipped with Mr. Smith at its head. Many important discoveries were made, but the most interesting of all were of portions of the mutilated deluge narrative. The story, as now translated, is almost entire.

As to the age of the record, this can be said: The tablets themselves belong to the time of Asshur-bani-pal, who lived about 660 B. C. But the tablet-record is only a copy. The original text, as shown by the tablets, belonged to the city of Erech, which is mentioned in Genesis x: 10. The date thus given to the Chaldean record is 2000 B. C. The narrative as translated by Mr. Smith is, perhaps, familiar to all scholars. For the benefit of the less learned readers we give it in an abbreviated form. It begins with a description of the building of a great ship in obedience to the command of the deity. The succeeding events are thus stated by Sisithrus, (Noah:) "All that I possessed of the seed of life I gathered together, the whole I made to enter my ship; all my servants, male and female, the tame animals of the fields, and the wild animals of the plains, and the young men of the army. And Samos (a deity) caused a great flood, and he spake, speaking in the darkness of the night: 'I will cause it to rain from the heavens abundantly; enter within the ship and close the door.' . . . I entered into the ship and shut its door. . . . The fury of the tempest arose in the morning. . . . Destruction marched over the mountains and the plains. . . . The flood of Bin touched the heavens; the brilliant earth was changed to a desert. . . . the waters destroyed all life from the face of the earth. . . . I was borne over the sea. Those who had done wickedness, all the human race who had turned to sin, the bodies of these floated like reeds. . . . The ship was borne to the country of Nigir, and the mountain of Nigir arrested it. . . . Upon the seventh day I sent forth a dove. And the dove flew away, and sought a place of rest; but it found none and returned. I let go a swallow, and it flew away. It searched for a place of rest, and found none and returned. I let loose a raven. The raven flew away, and it saw the dead bodies on the water and it ate them; and it wandered a great way off, and it returned not. I let go animals to the four winds; I poured out a libation; I built an altar on the summit of the mountain." The general parallelism between this record and the scriptural account is remarkable. What can be said of it? What can men who have laughed themselves hoarse at the Bible account of the deluge say of this new correlative testimony to the actual historical character of the event, and to the truthfulness of the scriptural narrative of it?—Watchman and Reflector.

PARAGRAPH HOMILIES ON FAMILIAR SUBJECTS.

BY JOSEPH PARKER, D. D.,
Minister of the City Temple, London.

"ALL THESE THINGS ARE AGAINST ME."

Mrs. Wear always said that Jacob had taken the word out of her mouth. Why the affliction came to her house she never could fully understand; and why the minister should have preached from "Turse ye Meroz," when he knew that she was in a weak, nervous state, and would have preferred "Jesus wept," was a mystery greatly to the disadvantage of Providence; and why the postmaster should always begin to give out letters at the other end of the row was just a bit of spite on his part, and nothing better could be expected of such vermin. When the doctor told Mrs. Wear that he could do nothing more for her, she said she had always wondered what doctors were for. Her end was peace—to her family.

UNAVAILING SORROW.

When Mr. Blank lost his wife he lay down on the floor, and for seven hours without intermission, except for meals, he beat the carpet vehemently with his boot heels and cried: "What shall I do?" When his elderly servant, mildly said "She's in a better place," he beat the ground still more violently, and roared more piteously than ever. Still nothing seemed to come of it; and when merely sent his wild question back again upon his swelling heart. In a sympathetic tone his faithful attendant warned him that he would wear himself out, whereat he became inconsolable, and frantically exclaimed: "What shall I do?" The elderly woman advised him to look out of the window awhile. He looked out, and in six months he was a newly-married man. His neighbor who had sustained a similar loss never groaned, and never married again.

"LET THY GARMENTS BE ALWAYS WHITE."

This passage of Scripture, though supposed to have been written by the wise man himself, wholly upset the domestic peace of my friend Mr. Bell, of Southwark. In a moment of unwonted inspiration he began to teach his wife to read, and this was the lesson which she learned first and loved most, a circumstance which in its effects strongly disposed Mr. Bell to listen to some rumors which affected the unmerited credit of Ecclesiastes. The quantity of soap consumed by Mrs. Bell, and the amount of bleaching done by that industrious woman, will never fully be known in this world, but it may give some faint notion of their extent, if I say that they led Mr. Bell to suggest to his wife that Ecclesiastes ix. 8 was mistranslated. It had been a very expensive passage to him, and only being a retired clerk, he felt that he had a just grudge against Solomon for turning his humble dwelling into a costly laundry. Mrs. Bell began "posing" at three o'clock in the morning, and continued ironing until midnight, thrice every week, and was so strong on this one virtue of cleanliness that every other virtue was simply ignored. Like a man who was so particular about keeping his boots clean that he had no idea that birds were building nests in his neglected hair!

"FOR THY STOMACH'S SAKE."

It is surprising how many religious people are delicate, and how "God moves in a mysterious way" in affecting their health. Up to Saturday night they are in the stop; but as soon as the last shutter is closed a sudden qualm comes over them which continues until Monday morning, and then as suddenly takes its departure. But so curious and inscrutable are the ways of Providence, that the same qualm threatens to return just before the prayer meeting, and continues precisely long enough to prevent their attendance. It is, however, most pleasing to notice the sweet resignation with which such untimely troubles are accepted.

If you put a hot coal in your pocket it will burn its way out. Aye, and so will a bad deed that is hidden make itself known. A fault concealed is a fault doubled; and so you will find it all through life. Never hide your faults, but confess them, and seek through God's help to overcome them.

Religious Intelligence.

—The Protestant Episcopal Mission Committee propose founding a new station in Liberia, which, from its situation, may have an important bearing on the evangelization of the country. The place chosen for the station is Cape Mount, a bold promontory 500 feet high, jutting into the sea about 40 miles north-west of Monrovia. Owing to its height and exposure to the sea-breeze, it is the healthiest spot on the Liberian coast. A small Liberian village has been built on the mountain-side, and the Veys, one of the most intelligent races in Western Africa, live in the country around. Cape Mount is the termination of a mountain range extending far inland, and much used as a kind of natural highway into the interior.

—SOME BIG CHURCHES. The following table showing the size of some of the big churches in Europe will be apt to astonish some:

	Persons.
St. Peter's church at Rome will hold	54,000
Milan Cathedral	37,000
St. Paul's at Rome	32,000
St. Paul's at London	25,000
St. Petronio at Bologna	24,000
Florence Cathedral	24,000
Antwerp Cathedral	24,000
St. Sophia's, Constantinople	23,000
St. John Lateran	22,000
Notre Dame at Paris	21,000
Pisa Cathedral	13,000
St. Stephen's at Vienna	12,000
St. Domitic's at Bologna	12,000
St. Peter's at Bologna	11,000
Cathedral of Vienna	11,000
St. Mark's at Venice	7,000
Spurgeon's Tabernacle	7,000
Dr. Hall's church, Fifth Av., New York, seats	2,000

—Two missionaries have founded missions in New Guinea. They describe the people whom they minister to as very vicious and degraded. They are born thieves, and stick to their trade. "They have no religion of their own, no temple, priest, or god. This total absence of religious feeling is one of our greatest difficulties in trying to bring the truth to bear upon them. We seem to have nothing to start with—nothing to work upon. All are inveterate smokers. They would care little about a description of heaven, unless it contained an unlimited supply of tobacco."

—While William Taylor, who has planted Methodism in Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Lucknow, Cawnpore, Allahabad, Poonah, and Kurrachee, is visiting this country a large church is being built in Calcutta, the scene of his hardest and most successful labors. He will in the future be known as the Indian evangelist, rather than as the California street preacher.

—From the 20th May to 30th June, 1877, there will be an exposition held at the Vatican of articles devoted to divine worship, in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the episcopal consecration of Pius IX. It will embrace four distinct groups: 1st, articles in stuff; 2d, articles in metal; 3d, books; 4th, articles belonging to religious art.

—The oldest church building in America, erected by English settlers, is believed to be St. Luke's, of Isle of Wight County, Va. It has been standing since 1632. It is proposed to restore it, and as the Episcopalians of that part of the State are "few and poor," the church in general is appealed to for funds for this purpose.

—The town council of Perth, Scotland, while recently furnishing bread and wine to be used at communion refused by a vote of sixteen to four to furnish either sherry or brandy, arguing that clergymen and elders should abstain from any intoxicating liquor in the observance of the Lord's Supper.

—The Rev. C. H. Brigham, of Ann Arbor, Mich., at a recent meeting of the Western Unitarian Association said it was undeniable that Unitarianism has not been as prosperous as it was expected to be, and that it still is a leprosy outside the Christian gate.

—A fifth church, presided over by Dr. Cooper, has just joined the Reformed Episcopalians in Chicago. It is said that a sixth will soon be organized. Such men as Bishop Whitehouse and would-be Bishop DeKoven are a godsend to Bishop Cheney.

—The Rev. John W. Davis in the Western Advocate has compiled from the Chinese Recorder the statistics of the missions in China, Japan, and Siam. The total missionary force foots up: in China, 136; in Japan, 100; in Siam, 21.

—There are nine hundred religious journals in the United States. The Methodists have forty-seven, the Catholics next, and the Presbyterians something over half as many as the Methodists.

—The Presbytery of Japan licensed two of the young men under its care as probationers to preach the gospel. Several other young men are pursuing studies with a view to the ministry.

—Professor Swing has entered upon the career of an independent preacher in M'Vicker's Theater, Chicago. He designs organizing a "Central Church."

—The Reformed Episcopalians have a school at Victoria, British Columbia, under the charge of the wife of Bishop Cridge. It numbers 32 scholars.

—A remarkable religious revival has been inaugurated among the river thieves, drunkards, and gamblers of the slums in Water street, New York city.

—In Constantinople eighteen evangelical congregations meet every Sunday. Half of them are composed of natives of the country.

—The Harpoot normal school has about 50 pupils and the female seminary has 25 boarders—a larger number than ever before.

—Protestantism is known in China as "Jesus doctrine." Roman Catholicism is called the "doctrine of the Lord of heaven."

—Two Baptist churches in Boston and one Presbyterian church in Cincinnati held watch night services on New Year's eve.

—The additions to the Campbellite or Disciples Church during the past year were about thirty thousand.

COUNTING THE FINGERS.

Davy, dear, your fingers hold,
Listen till my story's told:

Thumb's a rogue, and whispers, "Come,
Let us steal the sweets," says Thumb.

Straight First Finger heeds to hear,
She's a rogue when Thumb is near.

Second Finger says "Pitgo;"
Cries Third Finger, "Count me, too."

Little Finger stands alone;
Says, "The sweets are not our own."

Thumb says, "Let no finger say
Where the sweets have gone to-day."

Finger First cries out, "No, no!
Not a word from me shall go."

Finger Second shakes her head:
"Ship would suffer, health lost end."

Finger Third is full of fear,
Lest the marks of guilt appear.

Little Finger cries, "For shame!
I shall tell where lies the Blame.

If we are all made to smart,
With his yes I'll bear my part."

"And I think that through and through Little Finger's right," cried Sue.

From Our Little Friends.

COMMERCE, CONNECTICUT, Aug. September 17, 1876.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: As I see so many little boys and girls writing to you, I thought I would try too. I am a little boy thirteen years old. Pa has been taking your paper for some time. I like it very much, especially the Child's Corner. We have a good Sunday school eight miles from here. Our celebration came off on the sixteenth instant. We had a fine time. We had one hundred students; but our school has adjourned until next spring. Our camp-meeting will come off on Thursday night before the first Sunday in October. We would like to see you there, Mr. Editor. Our camp ground is situated on the south edge of Monroe county, Ala. There will be some twenty-five or thirty tents. I wonder what has become of Grandpa Goodale. I haven't heard from him in a long time. Well, I must close.

From your little friend,

J. E. MIXON.

PEARLINGTON, Miss., Sept. 2, 1876.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: I see so many girls writing for the ADVOCATE, so I thought I would like to write a short letter. In answer to Sophia's and Sallie's question about girl, I could not find girl, but found girls in Zechariah eighth chapter fifth verse. We have a kind, good pastor, whom we all love very much. We are regretting that the time will soon come when he has to leave us. We also have a nice Sabbath school of more than sixty scholars, and we will soon have a large library. For fear of taking too much room in your paper, I will bring this to a close, hoping to have your permission to write again.

Your young friend, ELLA.

WOODVILLE, Miss., August 28, 1876.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: We read your good ADVOCATE every week, and, as you are so kind as to devote part of it to the children, we concluded to write you a short letter. We have a Sabbath school here, and we attend every Sunday. We love to get our Sabbath-school lessons, and we love to recite them.

Tell Misses Sophia and Sallie, at Canerly's, Miss., we have found where the word girl is in the Bible. They are mistaken. It is found in two places instead of only one. In Joel, third chapter and third verse, also Zechariah, eighth chapter and fifth verse. We have referred for help in finding it.

Your little friends, A. & V.

SUMNER, MISS., Sept. 2, 1876.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: As you are kind enough to devote a column of your good ADVOCATE to the children, and I see so many girls writing to you, I too concluded to write a short letter for the Child's Corner. I will proceed to answer the question asked in the Child's Corner: Where is the word girl found in the Bible? It is found in Joel, third chapter and third verse. I will also ask another question in connection with this: What is the meaning of the word damsel in the Bible?

God's Care.

A lady was once riding in her carriage over a mountain road. She saw a beautiful flower springing up by the side of a great rock. She got down from her carriage, and thought she would take up the little flower and plant it in her green-house. But small and delicate as that flower was, she found it impossible to remove it, because its roots ran under the great rock by whose side it grew. And as she took her seat in her carriage again she thought to herself: "Just so, Jesus, the Rock of Ages, shelters those who trust in him." And that little rock-protected flower seemed, as it grew in its beauty, to be saying to all who went by: "Jehovah-Jireh."

Little Bessie was in bed. Norre came in, and found her lying wide awake.

"Ah, alone in the dark," said Norre, "and not afraid at all; are you, Bessie darling?"

"No, indeed," said Bessie, "for I am not all alone. God is here. I look out of the window and see the stars, and God seems to be looking down on me with all his eyes."

"To be sure," said Norre; "but God up in the sky is a great way off."

"No," said Bessie, "God is here, too; and sometimes he seems to be clasping me in his arms, and then I feel so happy."

That little child might go to sleep saying: "Jehovah-Jireh, the Lord will provide for my protection."

A young widow with two children was living in the city of Berlin. She was a Christian woman, and trusted in Jehovah-Jireh to take care of her. One evening she had to be away for a while. During her absence a thief entered her house for the purpose of robbing her. But "the Lord who provides" protected her from this danger in a very singular way. On returning to her home she found a note lying on her table, which reads as follows:

"Madam, I came here with the intention of robbing you, but the sight of this little room with the religious pictures hanging round it, and those two sweet-looking children quietly sleeping in their little bed, has touched my heart. I cannot take anything of yours. The small amount of money lying on your desk I have counted, and I take the liberty of adding 50 besides." The Bible tells us that "the hearts of men are in the hands of God, and he turneth them as the rivers of waters are turned." He turned the heart of this robber from his wicked purpose, and in this way he protected the widow who trusted in him.

One morning a Christian farmer in Rhode Island put two bushels of rye in his wagon, and started to the mill to get it ground. On his way to the mill he had to drive over a bridge that had no railings to the sides of it. When he reached the middle of this bridge his horse, a quiet, gentle creature, began all at once to back. In spite of all the farmer could do, he kept on backing till the hinder wheels went over the side of the bridge, and the bag of grain was tipped out and fell into the stream. Then the horse stood still. Some men came to help the farmer. The wagon was lifted back, and the bag of grain fished up from the water. Of course it could not be taken to the mill in that state. So the farmer had to take it home and dry it. He had prayed that morning that God would protect and help him through the day, and he wondered what this accident had happened for. He found out, however, before long. On spreading out the grain to dry he noticed a great many small pieces of glass mixed up with it. If this had been ground up with the grain into flour it would have caused the death of himself and his family. But Jehovah-Jireh was on that bridge, the mule, the horse back and throw the grain into the water to save that family from the danger that threatened them.

Protection in danger is one thing that God will provide for his people. The recollection of this should help to free care, or to keep us from being too anxious.—Sunday School World.

Queen Elizabeth's Industry.

Since I can tell you very little more about this famous Queen, the greatest of the Tudors, I will show you how in the beginning of her reign she carried on her studies at Windsor, and worked hard, as every one must do who wishes to fill a great position well, or to acquire a great position if they are not born to it. She was an absolute monarch, obeyed by everybody around her. Now listen to what Roger Ascham says about her, who was one of the great scholars of the day:

"Ascham was so extremely taken with his royal mistress' diligence and advancement in learning that once he broke out in an address to the young gentlemen of England: 'That it was their shame that one maid should go beyond them all in excellence of learning and knowledge of divers tongues. Point forth,' as he made the challenge, 'six of the best given gentlemen of the court, and all they together show not so much good will, spend not so much time, bestow not so many hours daily, orderly, and constantly, for the increase of learning, as doth the Queen's majesty herself. I believe that besides her perfect readiness in Latin, Italian, French, and Spanish, she readeth here now in Windsor more Greek every day than some prebendaries of this church do read Latin in a whole week. And that which is most praiseworthy of all, within the walls of her privy chamber she hath obtained that excellence of learning to understand, speak, and write, both wittily with head and fair with hand, as scarce one or two rare wittes in both the universities have in many years attained unto."

Some years later than this, one winter, when the Queen was at Windsor to escape from the plague, or some other pestilence such as was more common in those days than they are now, she amused herself by making a translation of Boethius, a Latin philosopher; and there is quite a curious calculation among the State records, made by one of the royal secretaries, of the exact number of hours which Elizabeth occupied in this work—so many hours one day, so many hours another. "And then accounting two hours only bestowed every day, one with another, the computation falleth out that in four and twenty years your majesty began and ended your translation." From this you will see that Queen Elizabeth, who had (as we say) so many things to be proud of, was proud of her work and her industry most of all.—Mrs. Oliphant, in St. Nicholas.

FORGIVE AND FORGET. I heard two little girls talking under my window. One of them said, in a voice full of indignation: "If I were in your place I'd never speak to her again. I'd be angry with her as long as I lived." I listened, feeling anxious about the reply. My heart beat more lightly when it came: "No, Lou," answered the other, in a sweet and gentle voice, "I wouldn't do so for all the world. I'm going to forgive and forget just as soon as I can."

Christian Voters.

We have entered upon the most important and stirring month of the political canvass. In a short time the result of the State elections in Ohio and Indiana will be known, and, with these results known, the final result in November can be determined with some degree of probability.

Vastly important as the election of a good national ticket is to the whole country, it is of more vital concern to us in the South that we should have good local governments. Herein the Christian voter will especially exercise himself. He will not vote for bad or incapable men of any party. He will cast his ballot intelligently and conscientiously, and in the fear of God.

We take it for granted that all good men will be at the trouble to register and vote. Our institutions, for their success and perpetuity, depend largely upon the interest which the citizen exhibits in the popular elections. It is by them that policies and measures are decided upon, and offices of trust and emolument are to be filled. Every man has a personal interest in the result. Protection to life and property is involved, and the general prosperity and welfare are at stake. The Christian voter represents the best independent element in the politics of the country. He ought to be free from partisan bigotry, and capable of judging and acting for himself. If a ticket does not meet his approval, let him scratch it freely, or throw it out altogether for one he likes better. He will not countenance nor wink at intimidation or trickery of any kind, even in the interest of his own candidates. A fair and honest victory, or none at all, will be his desire.

It is difficult as the heat of political excitement increases, and in the midst of which there is so much of the worst of human passions exhibited, for the Christian man to keep cool, and keep himself clear of the evil spirit which infects the political body. There is lying, slander, and calumny without stint, and abundance of selfish greed and unworthy motives. Every man must do his duty—a duty he owes to his country, to his family, and to himself. He should in the meantime study to be quiet, to mind his own business, and to work with his own hands. And the Christian will not forget to pray that God may be pleased to give us wise and honest rulers, and that the country may be delivered from wicked and unreasonable men.

Good government will no doubt act most beneficially upon our material interests. It will secure confidence and encourage enterprise. But it cannot do everything. Only by public-spirited endeavor, by building railroads, by the industrious tilling of the soil, by establishing manufactories, and by fostering education and religion, can we hope to be a prosperous and happy people. If we could adjust political affairs to our own liking, we should still have to build up our own fortunes by energy and personal thrift; and society must be leavened with the principles of the gospel in order that it may be sound and healthy.

A Decision.

We have received the decision of Bishop McTyeire rendered at the recent session of the St. Louis Annual Conference in the case of an appeal by the Chouteau Avenue Quarterly Conference from the decision of the Presiding Elder to the Bishop. The decision is published in pamphlet form at the special request of a large number of the members of the St. Louis Conference. The decision is elaborate, carefully drawn, and able and clear. In the Quarterly Conference the Presiding Elder decided that Logan D. Dameron was not a member of that body, because, although a Sunday-School superintendent, he was not a member of the Church. Two points were presented for the Bishop's decision: 1. Is it the right of the Presiding Elder to decide on the legal qualifications of a person who claims a seat in a Quarterly Conference over which he presides? 2. Allowing the right of the Presiding Elder to make a decision, was his decision, in this case, right? On the first point the Bishop decides: "That it was not only his official right, but his duty, to decide the question of the legal qualification of L. D. Dameron for membership in that body."

On the second point the decision is: "It appears, as a matter of fact, that L. D. Dameron was received into the communion of the Church and readmitted to its privileges and sacraments by the pastor of Chouteau Avenue Society. For any irregularity or breach of rule that occurred the pastor is accountable to the Annual Conference which has jurisdiction over his life and official administration; but by the transaction L. D. Dameron did acquire membership. Therefore, the decision of the Presiding Elder, ruling him out of the Quarterly Conference, is not sustained."

In his reasoning and citation of authorities the Bishop characterizes the reception of Mr. Dameron to membership in the Chouteau Avenue church as irregular and censurable. He says:

Surely a little time might well have been required to test the genuineness of repentance and reformation in this case. If repentance had been professed. A year would have been modest; six months, moderate. But the expelled person is seen here to be received into full fellowship within sixteen days! We respect the faintings and longings of pious souls for the courts of the Lord. As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so do they pant for the sacraments and privileges of his house. They pine for the communion of saints. Their tears are their meat day and night, while they cry continually: 'When shall I come and appear before him?' But this undue haste to be reinstated in the church is suggestive of contumacy rather than of devoutness. What ever legal or technical rights may have been acquired in the transaction, its moral effect was to frustrate church discipline, and bring it into contempt.

Another thing to be considered is: To whom shall application for restoration be made? The society that expelled him is properly the one to which the expelled person should apply, bringing "satisfactory evidence of repentance." His offense, with all extenuating or aggravating circumstances, is best known there. By that congregation of Christians the sentence was bound on him; by the same let it be unloosed. There are exceptions, as where a traveling preacher has been expelled, who held his membership in no particular congregation. Distant removals may have taken place, or death may have swept away a generation and the original society with it. But the society that began a course of discipline if in existence and accessible, ought to finish it; and comity, to say the least, forbids the interference of another.

The connectional character of our church enforces these proprieties. He who is expelled from one society has no rights in any other; and a member of one society, by presenting the testimonial of that fact, has ready access to the privileges and sacraments of every other. A certificate of membership is every where a legal tender. Now, according to the practice before us, a person expelled for slander, libel, or other grievous sin against his brethren, may, without change of residence, go a few squares to another society, and, easily satisfying them as to his "repentance," be admitted into full fellowship, obtain a certificate, and return with it defiantly to the society that had cast him out.

Again:

Expelled from St. John's on November 27th and received into Chouteau Avenue on December 13th, L. D. Dameron might have called for a church-letter on December 14th. The pastor, of course, would give it according to the canonical text:

"The bearer hereof, L. D. Dameron, has been an acceptable member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in Chouteau Avenue station, St. Louis Conference.

(Signed) F. A. OWEN, Pastor."

"The bearer" might have taken this certificate to Rev. J. W. Lewis, Pastor of St. John's, and been snugly ensconced in membership there before the meeting of the Quarterly Conference to which he had appealed! The St. John's pastor and people are offended; the world looks on derisively; the committees of investigation and of trial are virtually overridden; the Quarterly Conference has been flanked. He is back again; and that, too, without any "satisfactory evidence of repentance," except such as satisfied the pastor of Chouteau Avenue.

Prudent pastors, liable to such interference from a neighboring society, might ask themselves: Is it not better, for the honor of religion and the peace of the church, to let the worst offenders go without arrest, if such consequences may follow an attempt to exercise gospel discipline?

The answer is: Such consequences cannot follow the proper administration of our law.

And again:

No form is prescribed among us for restoration. The main point having been secured, the manner of it is left to the discretion of pastors, inasmuch as circumstances may vary.

The position has been imitated rather than avowed, by some whose opinions are entitled to great respect, that reception and restoration are two modes of re-entering the church, equally open to the expelled person, between which he may choose; repentance for his sin being required in the latter, but not in the former. If this be so, the door of restoration had as well be closed up; few, if any, will come that way. Reception admits equally to all rights and privileges, and by a shorter route, and it avoids the humiliation of confession, and of submission to church censure.

Perhaps it may be said that the necessity and obligation of repentance are taught in the word of God and written by his spirit on all truly awakened hearts, so that a true and thorough penitent will prefer the conditions of restoration, though the church should not make them a prerequisite of readmission to her communion. The answer is: First, the church will hardly maintain her purity or authority by lowering or waiving the requirement of God's word. Secondly, while a few in y re-enter by this way, the multitude of offenders and the worst of them will accept the tacit invitation to regain membership without "contrition, confession, and proper trial," as the law formerly read, or "satisfactory evidence of repentance," as the law now reads.

To readmit, under the form of reception, one who had been judicially cut off from the communion of the church—thus evading the conditions of restoration—is more than a misuse of the Ritual; it is an abuse of pastoral prerogative. The receiving of an expelled person even into the same society, is an irregularity subversive of wholesome discipline; but the receiving of him into a neighboring society is a still greater breach of rule, for it also invades church unity.

In vindicating the validity of Mr. Dameron's membership, notwithstanding the irregularity in his reception, the Bishop reasons as follows:

Irregularity of administration, though it may deserve correction and even rebuke in the administrator, does not necessarily work invalidity in his acts. The Episcopal college has adopted and published the following general principle:

"When it is decided that a pastor has been guilty of mal-administration in receiving or expelling a member contrary to rule, this decision has the effect of restoring the member so expelled, but not excluding the member so received."

And the reason of this is sound and broad. Ministers, who are charged with the responsibilities of pastors, are supposed to understand the law. In the name of the church and her divine head they are sent forth to invite men to join, and they are clothed with authority to admit them. Those who accept, in good faith, the ministers sent to them, and are governed by their directions, ought not to suffer for it. Ecclesiastical rights, acquired by the official acts of accredited agents, cannot be repudiated to the injury of any, while the church must extend redress to those who may have been injured by them. The pastor is to open the door to the worthy, and to guard it against the impenitent. If he is careless, or incompetent, or unfaithful, let the church call him to account; let him be instructed, or reproved, or removed; but it would be impolitic, embarrassing, impracticable, and lacking in high equity to correct him by depriving their legal status to persons who had been admitted by his official act to the privileges of the church. We must take care in condemning one pastor's work not to discredit all other pastors. The people are confiding; they do not generally study these questions, but leave them to those who watch over their souls. Better let one person be allowed his claim to membership, though we condemn the way it was acquired, than raise in the breasts of thousands this painful doubt: "Am I a member of the church or not?" One duly authorized professed to admit me. I supposed the induction to be regular, and that I had acquired the rights of a member. I have had access to class-meetings, to love-feasts, and to the Lord's table. My name is on the church register, and I am recognized in the church conference. By every token the pastor set over me by the church has assured me that I was a member. Has there been any blunder committed by him? Was it done according to rule? If my particular case ever comes to be investigated, may not a fatal flaw be found?"

This would produce wide unrest and grievous uncertainty. The foundations would be disturbed. By thus settling one case we should unsettle every other that had not been specifically adjudicated.

That construction of law is to be preferred which gives security to our members, great and small, learned and unlearned, and is also consistent with the maintenance of order and purity. The abuses of pastoral prerogative can be restrained; but the confidence of the people if lost may not easily be recovered. The honor and authority of God's ambassadors, sent into all the world to preach the gospel to every creature, must be upheld. Their commission requires confidence. In order to this, their official administration not less than their personal character, should often and closely be inquired into; and if the peace of the church, its unity, its protest against sin, its faithful dealing with offenders, its discipline or doctrine, be compromised by any pastor, let him be dealt with so faithfully that the scandals of mal-administration shall cease. A large discretion in admitting persons to the communion of the church is necessary in carrying out the gospel commission; let those who abuse it answer for it; but leave the rest free to do their work, without the suspicion of having it repudiated upon critical inquiry afterward.

We have given large space to this decision because of its importance, and because many of our readers desire to know it. We are glad that the decision has been rendered and published. It is calculated, we think, to give general satisfaction, and to secure the peace of the churches.

Worthy of Imitation.

There were four of us occupied the same room at the session of our Conference held at C. S. in 1870; H., L., M., and W. As preachers will, like soldiers, fight their battles over, and rehearse the scenes through which they have passed, we found ourselves going over the past and stating many incidents in our ministerial lives. But whoever began, or whatever route we went, L. was almost sure to end with some incident connected with J. circuit, the work of his third year. It was in the mountainous part of Alabama, had over twenty appointments, a great many people in its territory, and a great many of them that were poor and ignorant. Yet it seemed to be the green spot of his life. A year of the hardest work and yet of the grandest results—seven hundred additions to the Church!

But I wish to refer to one thing as related by him. In the pastoral work among many of his people he found many of them destitute of books and papers. They were poor, and could not be got to subscribe for our papers. Seeing the destitution to be so great, and the influence of the paper so much needed, he wrote H. N. McTyeire, not then doctored nor a Bishop, of the deplorable condition of the people, and suggested that if he would send the New Orleans CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE to a number of families, gratuitously, he thought it would do a great deal of good, and result in his getting subscribers that would pay in the end. H. N. Mc. replied, proposing to send as many papers gratuitously as L. would. "Now, sir, what will you do?" That was bringing the matter right down to him. So he set about making his lists. He would write a name on M.'s list, then one on his own list, till he had twenty for each. The papers came to forty families, the gift of two Methodist preachers. The people were astonished, but managed to read them or have them read. They were objects of interest, and attracted the people to the houses where they were. L. mentioned particularly the house and family of an old man, a potter by trade, whom he had visited in the early part of the year and found to be very untidy, and whom after they had been receiving the paper about two months he visited again. He found everything changed for the better; house clean, children all as tidy as their clothes would allow them to be, table cloth clean and white, knives and spoons bright, a daughter about grown very neat in apparel and appearance. After supper she came into the sitting room, which answered for other purposes as well, and entered into conversation. She had been the reader for the family and neighborhood, and been a careful reader of all the items, editorials, communicated and selected, politics, agriculture, domestic, house, garden, etc. She had many questions to ask as to what was meant by the editor or writer of certain articles. She was an inquirer after truth, and was becoming intelligent. She began to realize the object of her creation. She was being made useful to her family and neighbors. She had to read every number through to the neighbors on Sunday afternoon. So all had something of which to think and talk. Well, those papers were among the things which were means of bringing about the great work on the circuit. They opened the way for other subscribers, so that intelligence was increased and piety built up.

Nor did L. sustain any pecuniary loss by the plan. Every man paid up for his paper. The old potter came with a long knit purse one day and counted out two dollars in five cent pieces and said: "Here, these belong to you; you did that, and it has been worth a heap to my gal, more than to any of us."

Now how many persons might do a great deal of good by putting the ADVOCATE into some family in that way? Faith in God and a burning desire to do good would open many hands to do good deeds. M.

NOTE BY THE EDITOR.—The above suggestions are from one of our wisest and most devoted preachers, and they are worthy of being noted upon. We have no doubt the present publisher of the ADVOCATE will make just such a proposition to any of our pastors who may be willing to accept it. It is a good plan for many works, and can be adopted with little risk of pecuniary loss, and with the certainty of doing much good. A good religious paper freely circulated would put new life into many communities and churches.

Death of Rev. E. H. Myers, D. D.

A dispatch from Savannah announces that this eminent minister of our church died of yellow fever on the twenty-sixth of September. Dr. Myers was chairman of our commission to settle difficulties between the Northern and Southern Methodist Churches. He returned at once from Cape May to his pastorate in Savannah, although the fever was beginning to assume serious proportions, and remained at his post, ministering to the sick and burying the dead, until he was himself prostrated by the fearful pestilence. He did his duty in this respect as a good minister of Jesus Christ, and has fallen, where every good minister would wish to fall, at his post. While we sorrow over this sad dispensation, it is better so than that he should have saved his life by a betrayal of his high trust. Dr. Myers was for many years the popular and able editor of the Southern Christian Advocate, afterward president of the Wesleyan Female College at Macon, Ga., and for the past two years pastor of our principal church in Savannah. He was a clear and forcible writer, analytical, cogent, and facile. His late work on the Disruption of the Methodist Church placed him among the strongest and best writers of the church. It was never our privilege to hear him preach, but he stood among the first in our connection as an eloquent preacher, and as a laborious and useful pastor. He has been called away in the prime and maturity of his powers, and at an age that promised yet many years of useful service to the church. Heaven help the desolate family of our brother, the stricken community, the bereaved church!

Health of New Orleans.

The weekly reports of the Board of Health show that the city is remarkably healthy. There have been a few cases of yellow fever, and these have been mostly confined to a limited section of the Fourth District. In six weeks perhaps as many as thirty cases have occurred, which shows that it is not likely to spread to any dangerous extent. Physicians who have the most practice in the section where the fever has prevailed inform us that no new cases have lately appeared. The following correspondence gives the opinions of our Board of Health and of a number of our leading physicians:

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 26, 1876.

To W. H. Hand, Health Physician, Galveston, Texas:

Dear Sir: We have only five cases of yellow fever now on hand. No case has been reported for the last two days. All the cases originated in and are confined to a restricted locality in the Fourth District. The total number of cases this season is only twenty-six, of which sixteen died. The fever is evidently on the decrease.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, P. B. GAUDET,
President Board of Health.

Dr. W. H. Hand, Health officer, Galveston.

"The undersigned concur fully in the statement of Dr. Gaudet, President of the Board of Health. Only a few cases of yellow fever have occurred in a limited portion of the Fourth District, and these cases have been scattered over a period of seven weeks. The entire number of cases up to the present moment does not exceed twenty-six, and the disease shows no disposition to spread. No case of yellow fever has been admitted to Charity Hospital up to date.

Dr. WM. AUSTIN,
Dr. C. J. BICKHAM,
Dr. JOSEPH D. SCOTT,
Dr. B. STILLE.

The sudden death of Gen. Braxton Bragg, at Galveston, Texas, on the twenty-seventh of September, will inspire general regret and sorrow. Gen. Bragg won unfading laurels in the Mexican war, and, among our Confederate commanders, he was one of the ablest. An illustrious soldier, he was a good citizen, pure and unblemished in private life, and a devoted and unselfish patriot. He was a man of great nobility of character, firm and strong in his convictions, and uncompromising in his loyalty to principle. After the war he accepted the situation in good faith, and settled down to the quiet avocations of peaceful industry. His memory will be cherished and honored by his fellow-countrymen, and by his old comrades in arms.

Mrs. Edith E. Foust, wife of Rev. Enos B. Foust, of the Louisiana Conference, died in New Orleans, September 26. Sister Foust was on her way to north Mississippi, seeking a change of climate, but was prostrated by the disease which had long preyed upon her, and died in spite of the best medical attention. Her last hours were peaceful and happy.

Opposing Fraternity.

We believe, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, that the great body of Northern Methodists want fraternity—the Northern Conference orators say so. Then we respectfully ask the Bishops and the Annual Conferences why they allow such intemperate language to be used on the Conference floor as that which is reported in the secular papers? A correspondent of the Chicago Times, speaking of the Michigan Conference at Niles, September 15, says:

"Presiding Elder H. P. Henderson took occasion to turn his report into a Hayes and Wheeler stump speech, by asserting his trust in the dawning of better times upon the election of Hayes and Wheeler. No one questioning the right of a Methodist preacher to his political proclivities the same as 'any other man,' it occurred to your correspondent that it was a little out of taste to express politic preference at such a time and place. Several members of the Conference have expressed themselves as strongly condemning such remarks in the sessions of a religious body, and it is but due the Conference as a body to say that not one member with whom your correspondent has conversed approves of Brother Henderson's haggling in of laudations of Hayes and Wheeler, when he is paid to labor for his Lord and Master. Yesterday evening, Prof. Isaac N. Lansing presented to the Conference the claims of Clark University, located at Atlanta, Ga., of which he is president. Prof. Lansing is an enthusiastic friend of the colored man, and gave a rather mild imitation of Morton's bloody-shirt speech, and wound up by begging the Conference to give him $200 to aid in educating their colored brethren. The boys came down with a hundred and then stopped the deal. Prof. Lansing has resided in Atlanta two years, and during that time he says he has not received the slightest courtesy from any Southern brother, and from his abuse and vilification of the Southern people I should infer he is worthy of none. Could Elder Henderson and Prof. Lansing run the machine to suit themselves, the Michigan Annual Conference would be converted into a Grant electioneering association, but better counsels have thus far prevailed."

We ask again, why did not the Bishop and the Conferences put that intemperate speaker down? and why did not they do the same thing in the Western Wisconsin Conference? The dispatches say:

"MADISON, Wis., Sept. 15.—The Methodist Western Wisconsin Conference assembled at the Baptist church, and listened to a political harangue from A. J. Kynett, agent of the Church Extension Society. Kynett takes Republican views stronger than Bob Ingersoll, and swings the bloody shirt fearfully. He denounced the secular press in general, but the Democratic press in particular. He denounced the South and insisted that Grant's policy had not been severe enough. His speech was a disgrace to the cause which he pretended to advocate."

The new hall in Chicago built for the meetings of Messrs Moody and Sankey is announced as about complete. The meetings were begun October 1. The cost of the building is $21,000. Its dimensions are one hundred and ninety feet in length by one hundred and sixty feet in depth. The Northwestern Christian Advocate says:

"The principal floor, like the Cooper Institute hall in New York, is the basement or ground floor. It is made by levelling the clay and covering it first with a layer of sand, and then with a coating of tar and gravel, after the manner of the new tar and gravel pavements. This makes a floor that is solid, dry, level, smooth, and still. To this main story there are four double entrances, with aggregate openings of sixty feet; two of them by flights of steps down ward from the wide stone sidewalk on Monroe street, and two from the open lot at the south side of the hall at the level of the ground.

"A gallery forty feet deep extends around three sides of the hall, to which there are six entrances, twelve feet wide, and entirely separate from those to the main floor. Thus the whole place can be cleared in less than five minutes.

"The platform occupies the whole west end of the building, between the gallery posts, and is large enough to hold Mr. Moody and his Bible, Mr. Sankey and his organ, and five or six hundred singers, ministers, and other distinguished people. The platform entrance is at the northwest corner on Monroe street.

"The wide corridors under the sloping galleries will be used as inquiry-rooms, offices, etc. There is also to be a room fitted up for the use of members of the press.

"A heavy truss roof, supported also by posts from the ground, covers the hall, at a hight of thirty-eight feet. It is lighted by two rows of large windows on the north and south sides; and at night by gas. The heating is to be by steam."

We deeply sympathize with Col. Levi W. Reeves and his excellent wife on their bereavement. Writing from his home, Dayton, Ala., Sept 24, Col. Reeves says:

"Our sweet little boy, William Byrd, one year old, named for his distinguished and pious kinsman, Judge Byrd, late of Selma, Ala., died on the 21th of this month.

"We now have three children in heaven, and the balance of us profess to be on our journey to that blissful land, where we shall be separated no more."

There is only one stimulant that never falls, and yet never intoxicates, Duty. Duty puts a blue sky over every man—up in his heart maybe—into which the sky-lark Happiness always goes singing.—George D. Prentice.

Religion among the Choctaws.

FORT SMITH, ARK., Aug. 28, 1876.

MR. EDITOR: I came from Alabama to this Choctaw nation last winter, and am now living in the bounds of the Indian Mission Conference. I have friends in Alabama who are readers of the ADVOCATE, and it is them, as well as you, Mr. Editor, that I would interest about religion among the Indians. If you think proper, please give this space in one of your columns.

Since my arrival here I have attended meetings among the Choctaws. I find them at church and at Sabbath school, and in most of their schools they study the English language to some extent. Although they are not so much enlightened, they are civil and devoted people.

On Thursday, the seventeenth instant, I had the privilege to attend District Conference in company with Bro. E. R. Shapard, P. E. After riding 20 or 25 miles over hills and large prairies, all covered with fine grass, about sunset we reached the camp-ground. Our attention was attracted by the jingling of bells on the horses turned loose to graze, and the camp ground seemed to be all alive with Indians, old and young, preparing for the meeting. Then, turning our eyes, we saw standing there the frame of a new church-house being built by the Indians, which house, when finished, will be sufficient to seat 400 people comfortably. Such an effort as this is very uncommon among the Indians. This, and like interest in other things, foretell a great spiritual work among these people.

On Friday and Saturday the business of the Conference went on with much interest and good feeling, and then closed. By Sabbath morning people had come from far and near, and not less than 600 were present, mostly Indians, and great interest was taken that day; several children were baptized, many persons took of the Lord's Supper, some were made happy in so doing, and there seemed to be a general renewing of spiritual strength.

Reports were favorable from every part of the district, and evidence of a good work going on. We hope and pray that it may continue, and while we thank God for many blessings, we conclude that it is sometimes better to be in the Indian camp than in the king's palace.

Yours truly,

JAS. W. HAMNER.

Conference Claimants.

To Pastors, Stewards, and other Members of the M. E. Church South in the Mississippi Annual Conference:

DEAR BRETHREN: Once again I call your serious and prayerful attention to the cause of the claimants on our collections for superannuates, widows, and orphans of deceased ministers.

And, first, let me say: Let every steward feel bound to assist his pastor in the collection of this fund. Brethren of the stewardship, you can do much in this matter if you will only try. Now try this one time if you have not tried before this. Don't forget it. And, second, let every member of the church contribute to the bounty for these worthy deserving ones. Suppose every member should give $1, and many of them and some even $10 each. And, third, let no pastor feel satisfied with this year's work until he has every dollar assessed to his charge for this fund.

Let the preachers bring the subject often and prominently before the people, preach on it, talk about it in private, and on all hands solicit contributions to this laudable end. Much good may be done to both preacher and people by preaching earnestly and in the fear of God on the blessedness of giving. I beg every pastor, steward, and member to read this appeal, to show it to others, and get everybody awakened on the subject. If my dear brethren could read some letters that I have received from aged ministers on this subject during this year they would feel more deeply than they have done before. Let every one do something to help to care for their dear ones, for whom the church is pledged to care. — R. D. NORSWORTHY.

Jackson City, Miss., Sept. 21, 1876.

Will You Do It?

MR. EDITOR: Within the last few weeks, and a few to come, a great many sons and daughters have been and will be sent to schools out in the vicinity of their homes. They will need good papers and magazines, as well as text books, for the improvement of their minds and hearts and lives while at the school. Will you, parents, see that such periodicals are sent to your children? It will pay well to send them to get them all in their own names. Then, after you have read your county or town or city paper, send it to them at the school. It will do them good to get it. It will do others good in the school. Then be sure and write every week to that son or daughter. While you write of graver things, you can tell them all about the baby, the cats, the dogs, the cows and calves, the horses and colts, the hens and little chickens, etc. Anything from home, from ma and pa, and huddle and sis, will be prized by them while away. They want to keep up with the history of all at home. Will you do it all? H. H. MONTGOMERY.

Gov. Tilden's Income Tax.

The New York Herald's special disposes of the charges against Gov. Tilden as follows:

The New York Sun of the twenty-first says: The statement which we publish this morning from Judge Sinnott, with the letter from Mr. Hewitt, completely explodes the absurd calumny which has been set on foot against Mr. Tilden in reference to his income tax in the year 1862. The allegation has been made by the New York Times that whereas Mr Tilden had in that year an income derived from various specified sources of $108,000, he only returned $7,418 as his true income; and thereupon the Times accused him of fraud in concealing the real amount, and perjury in swearing that his return was true.

These broad and sweeping charges were made by the Times without any other evidence than its own supposition that Mr. Tilden's income was large in that year; and now Judge Sinnott, who at that time was Mr. Tilden's confidential law clerk, and quite as familiar with his business as Mr. Tilden himself, comes forward to contradict this statement flatly and fully. Taking up the different items stated by the Times amounting in the aggregate to $108,000, Judge Sinnott shows that most of them are entirely destitute of truth; that Mr Tilden was not employed in that year by the corporations alleged by the Times, and received nothing whatever from them; that of thirteen different items nine were purely fictitious; that one item of $25,000 was true only to the extent of $1,000; and that the other two items of $10,000 each were true, but that the money was mostly earned in years before the income tax was imposed, and, accordingly, was not subject to taxation; and finally he realizes that after deducting interest and losses which accrued during that year Mr. Tilden's whole net income was $7,418, and no more.

This disposes of the allegation both of fraud and perjury, and it leaves the Times in a very unenviable position as having made charges of such gravity without any foundation or any reason other than the imagination and ingenuity of their authors. Further light is also shed on this subject by the fact stated by Mr. Hewitt in his letter, that, immediately after the publication of these charges, he applied to the Secretary of the Treasury for an official copy of the income tax returns of both Mr Tilden and Mr. Hayes, and that up to this day the Secretary has not seen fit to make any reply to his request.

Meanwhile, however, and without any delay, he has furnished to the Times one of the documents which he has thus refused to Mr. Hewitt, in order that the Times might have a fac simile of it engraved for publication. This indicates very clearly a conspiracy against Mr Tilden, on the part of certain Federal office-holders, in which they use their power as agents of the government to propagate false and groundless charges against an eminent citizen, simply because he has been nominated as a candidate for President.

The Last Hours of Henry A. Wise.

The last hours of the statesman were painless. At his bedside stood his wife, his two sons (Dr. Richard A. Wise and Capt. John S. Wise), his three daughters (Mrs. Garnett, Mrs. Hodson, and Mrs. Maya), two of his grandsons, an old negro servant, and the housekeeper. He was conscious to the last. He talked distinctly to within an hour of his dissolution. In the morning, early, he appeared to be much stronger than during the previous night. He remarked, "I never robbed the poor, and, what is better, I never robbed the rich." Later in the morning he was talking to his son John, and giving him advice as to how he should rear his children. He said: "Take hold, John, of the biggest knots in life and try to untie them; try to be worthy of man's highest estate; have high, noble, manly honor. There is but one test of anything, and that is, is it right? If it isn't, turn right away from it." He told those standing by his side that he had seen a heavenly vision, which he described in the grandest, most beautiful and eloquent language that they had ever heard fall from his lips, and to said it was not a fearful thing, but a wonderful thing, to stand in the presence of the living God. It was only toward the last that his mind wandered a little. — Richmond Whig.

"Go, girl, young man. She's not here!" said a Pennsylvania preacher the other Sabbath, in the midst of his sermon, to a youth whom he saw standing hesitatingly in the doorway.

Probably you have heard why a minister delivering his peroration is like a ragged boy? Because he's torn his close, you know. It is hardly a logical reason, however.

THE JELESO WATER. — A new mineral water is advertised in these columns. It is highly spoken of by those who have tried it for dyspepsia and throat diseases. Messrs Warren & Co, 26 Chambers street, New York, are the proprietors, to whom orders may be addressed. Druggists will do well to note the advertisement, and it can already supply it to correspond with Messrs. Warren & Co.

CLOTHIERS. — Messrs. Freeman & Woodruff, 241 Broadway, New York, advertise in our paper to-day, to send samples of their goods and price list on application. By the system of self measurement, introduced some few years ago, parties can have clothes made to order at a distance as well as if they were present to secure a fit. Many of our readers will find it to their interest, we doubt, to correspond with the above-named house.

KEEP'S SHIRTS are advertised in another column. The Keep Manufacturing Company will send samples of goods and prices to any one applying. Their partly made shirts can be bought cheaper than the others, and the work necessary to finish them cost very little. For further particulars we refer our readers to the advertisement.

DAVID W. WATSON, 73 Cornhill, Boston, offers his Centennial Printing Press, for printing cards, labels, etc., for the very low price of $5. It will be very interesting to ministers, as well as instructive to any who may purchase. Circulars will be sent free. See the advertisement on this page.

ELKIN & CO. — This old and reliable carpet house is advertised in our issue of to-day. Having been established here for so long a time, and possessing a thorough knowledge of the business, Messrs. Elkin & Co. are able to offer inducements to purchasers which few houses can extend. Mr. Stringer, the junior partner, has very lately returned from the North, where he has been engaged in purchasing the latest and best goods in their line. Our friends needing carpets will do well to give them a call.

We direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. Sheehan, Russ & Co. in another column. These gentlemen are dealers in provisions and Western produce, and invite purchasers to note the advantages they possess of being able to sell at the best rates. Their stores are located at 88 to 92 Poydras street.

SCHOOLS and colleges can be supplied with philosophical apparatus by applying to Jesse S. Cheyney, 1 and 3 Bond street, New York. Mr. Cheyney has also for sale magic lanterns, and other instruments instructive and useful. His advertisement on this page will be found interesting.

CHARLES W. KING, of Boston, whose advertisement is in our paper, has for sale pumps of all kinds, and will give any information to parties writing to him. He makes a specialty of the "Peoples' Pump," which will be found useful in case of fire, or for watering garden plants, etc.

TEACHERS needing situations are directed to the advertisement of the American Educational Union on this page. By corresponding with this union they may be very much benefited.

AMERICAN HOUSE, BOSTON. — This hotel has, for a long series of years, well deserved its good name. If people on this side of the water are not yet aware of the fact, it is worth knowing that the Americans have a quarter of a generation's reputation behind them for the excellence of their table. Long since established as the "People's Hotel" of Boston, and thoroughly renovated, refurnished, and generally improved, it is the unexceptionable first class as a first class hotel, where both comfort and economy are combined. These are facts worth knowing to those who expect to visit Boston in the season. Prices have been recently reduced to $2.50, and $3 per day.

WE HAVE TESTED ITS virtue personally, and know that for dyspepsia, biliousness, and shrinking here the article from it is the best remedy the world ever saw. We had tried forty other remedies before Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, but none of them gave us more than temporary relief, but the Regulator has entirely relieved us. — Telegraph and Messenger, Macon, Ga.

NEW HOTELS, more popular with the cultivated and refined classes than the Grand Hotel, corner of Broadway and 31st street, New York, it occupies a commanding position on Broadway, is near Fifth avenue, and is of easy access to all parts of the city. The Grand is conducted on the Europ an plan.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE JELESO WATER,
NO. 20 CORTLANDT ST., NEW YORK.
WARREN & CO., PROPRIETORS.

URAL MOUNTAIN

is a concentration of all the curative qualities of the most celebrated Mineral Springs in the world. Each bottle contains eighty doses, and is equal to over one hundred bottles of the Natural Spring Water.

As a tonic it is unsurpassed, having had most remarkable success in curing some of the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Nervousness, and General Debility. It is tasteless, harmless, and pleasant to take. If used as a beverage in its pure state, on the first appearance of Typhoid and all other throat diseases it works like a charm. It arrests the progress of and cures such complaints in less than twenty-four hours. It is a greatly efficacious remedy in the worst cases of Rheumatism.

Eczema, and all other diseases of the skin, Prickly Heat, Poison Ivy, Ivy, Sumac, or Oak are quickly cured by the use of Jeleso Water. We will forward three bottles of the medicine to any part of the United States, free of express age, on receipt of $5 per bottle. Send for Circular, containing testimonials and directions.

Address as above, as per the above advertisement.

As a mild, pleasant and tonic it simply invigorates. In my own case it has cured Dyspepsia of long standing.

JOHN F. MINES,
Managing Editor N. Y. Sunday Mercury.

Permit me to add my testimony to the efficacy of your water in cases of Dyspepsia of long standing. I have used two bottles of it, and I am now thoroughly cured. I shall most cheerfully recommend its use to all my friends; and I consider it an indispensable medicine in every family. I am yours, truly,

J. M. BARRON,
Supt. Flushing, North Shore and Central R.R. of Long Island.

MEDICAL.

A STRING OF PEARLS!

Extract of a letter from Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872:

I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator with good effect. It is mild, and acts more like nature than more active remedies.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens has greatly improved in health of late. — The State Line News, West Point, Ga.

Testimony of the Chief Justice of Georgia.

I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver, at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it. — Hon. Warner, Chief Justice of Georgia.

Opinion of the Clergy.

Simmons' Liver Regulator is certainly a specific for dyspepsia of complaints which it claims to cure. I have a number of our fellow-beings are suffering from dyspeptic disorders, and have reasons to recommend the efficacy of this purely vegetable preparation, we can only offer them the simple and candid arrangement of Pickett to Nathaniel — Come and see. Try the proposed remedy, and then you can judge for yourselves. — Rev. David Hillis, Pastor of Presbyterian Church, Macon, Ga.

Always Keep It On Hand.

I have used Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator myself, and in my family for years and pronounce it one of the most satisfactory medicines that can be used. Nothing would induce me to be without it, and I recommend all my friends, if they want to be free from pain, to always keep it on hand. — R. L. Mays, Columbus, Ga., Congressman.

CAUTION!

Buy no Powders or Prepared Simmons' Liver Regulator unless in our engraved wrapper, with trade mark, stamp and signature unbroken. None other is genuine.

Handling Bees.

To make smoke, we use a piece of rotten wood. It burns with smoke, and without any flame. To open and visit a movable frame hive, blow smoke in at the entrance for a few minutes; then open the hives, blowing smoke again on the bees. If the bees are Italian, no more smoke will be required. The frames should be lifted slowly and carefully. No quick motions should be made around the hives.

If bees are properly tamed, they can be taken by the handful, and handled even by the most inexperienced. A bee can be caught with the hand, when on the wing, and released without stinging.

We have many times opened hives of Italian bees, and have taken out the frames covered with bees, carried one of them in the house with the bees and queen on it, and showed it to a company of ladies. The frame would be passed from hand to hand, brood in all stages would be examined, and frames returned to the hive without a single bee offering to sting or even to fly off.

In the olden times of superstition it was generally believed that bees would sting those who swore or used improper language around the hives. This belief was due to the bees stinging angry persons sooner than others, simply because angry, quick people are apt to make many quick gestures and motions. Therefore quick motions should be avoided.

If a bee tries to sting you, don't fight it with your hat, nor throw your hat down, trying to drive it away, for that is the best way to get stung. Stoop down quietly, and keep still until it goes off. If you get stung, do not leave the stinger in at all, but immediately rub it out. Do not pinch it out, for then you drive all the venom in the wound by pressing sidewise.—Correspondent of Western Agriculturist.

STRAWBERRY SHORT CAKE.—Having noticed several recipes for strawberry short cake, I have not seen my way, which I think will equal mine. I always make mine when I make bread. Take dough sufficient for one good-sized loaf of bread, and into this knead one tablespoonful of lard and butter, and two tablespoonfuls of sugar; put in the pan and let it rise one hour, when it will be fit to bake. Pick and rinse two quarts of berries, lay them in a deep dish, and to every layer of strawberries add a sprinkling of sugar; turn on these a pint of cold water, and let them stand a half hour. Cut the short cake in three slices, butter them, and to every slice of short cake add a layer of the berries. Pour this liquor in which they have stood into a bowl, and send to the table with the short cake; and when it is divided pour several spoonfuls into each plate. I think the short cake is better for cooling a little while after coming from the oven. This short cake is excellent for raspberries, peaches, and pineapples. I have used it for all of these.

We clip the above from an exchange, and, after pressing it to a lady friend for approval, receive from her another which she has tried, thus:

Use "prepared flour," mixing with ice-cold water, and with but little "shortening," roll it out, and bake in two or three layers, spreading butter between the layers before baking. Prepare the strawberries as in the above recipe.

HOG CHOLERA.—The loss by this disease at the West is enormous. The State Board of Agriculture of Illinois reports from the information so far obtained, it is proved that the losses for the last year were fully equal to $10,000,000. So far the answers show that there is no general conviction of the origin and cause of the disease, so widely acknowledged preventive, and no remedy that is a remedy oftener than one time in five hundred. It is agreed on all hands, among swine-breeders, that profound darkness envelopes the origin and cause of the disease, and that its cure is among the things which are just finding out. Those who have mixed salt, flour of sulphur, and ground charcoal in their food, or placed these things in a trough where the hogs are fed, report that they don't have the cholera.

In a communication to the Soc. d'Acclimat. des Hospitaux, MM. Dujardin-Beaumetz and Hardy make known the results of the employment of oatmeal in the alimentation and hygiene of infants. According to them, oatmeal is the aliment which, by reason of its plastic and respiratory elements, makes the nearest approach to human milk. It also is one of those which contains most iron and salts, and especially the phosphate of lime, so necessary for infants. It also has the property of preventing and arresting the diarrhœa which are so frequent and so dangerous at this age. According to the trials made by M. Marle, infants from four to eleven months of age, fed exclusively upon Scotch oatmeal and cow's milk, thrive very nearly as well as do children of the same age suckled by a good nurse.

WAFFLES.—Beat well the yolks of three or four eggs; add two and three-quarters pints of sweet milk, one half-teaspoonful of salt. Mix through it part of the flour, one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder, then add enough sifted flour to the milk and yolks to make rather a stiff batter. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, and stir in carefully at the last. Bake in waffle irons. Eat while hot with butter and sugar, or powdered cinnamon.

Alcohol is sure destruction to the mealy bug. With a small soft brush give them a coat of alcohol, or let a drop fall upon a cluster of the bugs.—Moore's Rural

OILS, LAMPS, ETC.

ILLUMINATING OILS

AND

FLUIDS!

THE

PUROLINE AND PORTABLE

GAS LIGHT CO.

offer to the trade the following list of their superior and popular brands:

INSURANCE OIL.

The Insurance Oil is the best Family Safety Oil, and is urgently recommended by all our Insurance Companies as a substitute for common Coal Oil or Kerosene. It may be used in ordinary lamps Without Change of Burner.

THE NEW ORLEANS BOARD OF UNDERWRITERS SAY:

"It is our opinion that the general use of the Insurance Oil would greatly reduce the number of lamp fires and explosions, and lessen the risk of destruction of life and property."

It will not evaporate or tumble in a lamp, and the process has been so arranged as to place it within the reach of all classes of consumers, and take it the great FAMILY SAFETY OIL.

As an Illuminating Oil for family use, or for general use in ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil lamps, the Insurance Oil has the indorsement of the New Orleans Board of Health, the Fire Commissioners, and all the American and European Insurance Agencies, as PERFECTLY SAFE.

Refined Carbon or Coal Oil.

THE WELL-KNOWN CROWN BRAND.—This is a pure, high fire test Kerosene or Coal Oil, generally known as the Crown Oil, and recommended to the trade, and to consumers who buy CHEAP OIL, as the best and safest oil in the LOW-PRICED ILLUMINATING OILS in market. By five years' experience no accident from its use has ever occurred. The Puroline and Portable Gas Light Company have the exclusive agency of the Crown Oil for the States of Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

PUROLINE FLUID.

For Portable Gas Lamps and Portable Gas Burners. Manufactured and sold only by the Puroline and Portable Gas Light Co., 93 and 97 Gravier street, New Orleans, La.

This celebrated Fluid, prepared by a process known only to the proprietors, is the best and most reliable article for all the purposes of Petroleum for use in Metallic Portable Gas Lamps and Lanterns. It burns clear and bright; is free from smoke or disagreeable odor, and does not char the wick or gum the burner. No other fluid or oil should be used in Portable Gas Lamps or Lanterns.

Puroline is especially recommended for use in Portable Gas Lamps and Chandeliers, in Street Lanterns, Sugar-House Lamps, Cane Shed Lanterns and in Torches and Gas Barriers for Steamboat Landings, Mooring Picques and Street Processions. Giving a light equal to the best city Coal Gas, it enables the people of the remotest villages to illuminate their Stores, Warehouses, Saloons, Hotels, Churches, Streets and Gardens as brilliantly as the favored residents of a great city. Depots.

Gasoline for Gas Machines.

Distilled expressly for the Laurel-hill Portable Gas Light Company, and with peculiar regard to the changes of temperature, so common in this latitude. Commended for generating gas, or for furnishing coal gas.

Proprietors, patentees and owners of Gas Machines cannot overestimate the importance of having their Gas made of reliable gravity and quality, as excess of gold so much on their gas bills.

The Editors of New Orleans have given this book a strong indorsement.

Opinions of New Orleans Booksellers.

It is a book which has long been wanted and often called for. I am selling copies daily that are mailed to all parts of the world.

GEORGE ELLIS, Bookseller,
Opposite the Postoffice.

During my long experience as a bookseller in this city I have had thousands of inquiries for such a work. Mr. Dennett's LOUISIANA, AS IT IS is precisely the book that has been called for. It gives general satisfaction to my patrons in the city and country. If its true character were generally known it would require ten times the present edition of 10,000 copies to supply the demand.

C. C. HALEY, Bookseller,
19 Commercial Place,
Branch, 153 Poydras street.

As a reference of twenty-five years as bookseller in New Orleans will justify me in saying that the book just issued by Mr. Daniel Dennett, LOUISIANA AS IT IS, supplies a want long felt by residents and strangers. The demand for the book is active, and is steadily increasing.

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
92 Camp and 118 Canal street.

Dealers in the city and country can obtain supplies of the above book at the wholesale establishment of ROBERT J. HARE, 110 and 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

BUCHUPAIBA.

SANDERS' CELEBRATED

PECTORAL BALSAMIC SIRUP.

NEARLY half a century has elapsed since the discovery of this wonderful compound, its established virtues and its high reputation in all parts of the United States, Europe and Australia have made known, and has been tested, for so many years, by such extensive patronage, that it would be superfluous at this late day, to dwell at any length on its efficacy in Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Inflammation of the Throat, Chincough or Bowels, Croup of Bleed and Whooping Cough.

It has been found highly beneficial in all inflammatory disorders, such as Rheumatism, Dysentery and Summer Complaint, and especially in those cases of Cholera Infantum, for which, for want of timely discrimination, it has been found most effectual in checking the most awful scourge whenever resorted to.

In short, its acknowledged certainty of cure, this extraordinary medicine has, over most compounds of the same nature, the decided advantage in its agreeable flavor. It can be administered without the least difficulty to children, and requires no particular diet. It is also the cheapest, because the bottles contain more syrup than any other, owing to its peculiar composition, and being so concentrated as to require only a few drops to be taken at a dose. It can be carried in the pocket, and will keep for years without injury, if the bottle is occasionally shaken. Taken in season, a few spoonfuls dissolved in a little water, a tea-spoonful at intervals of three or four hours, is found, during the night, may be valuable assistance of the Syrup of Squills to expel it will stop the wheezing and procure a good night's rest.

Children from the age of two to five years old may take from one to six teaspoonfuls during the day, in small quantities, at intervals of three to four hours.

COTTON.

The movement this week has been marked with great irregularity, owing to the fact that receipts have been large and the maturity of factors paper on 1-4 for October. The steamer Robert E. Lee's cargo of 4,219 bales shows that the planters are taking advantage of this fine weather for picking. Prices are not remunerative, still we should allow none of the hard-earned staple to be wasted.

We select this extract from the cotton report of W. C. Watts & Co. dated September 15, 1876, that our planting friends may see what their competitors are doing:

The following interesting remarks in reference to the growing crop in Egypt we take from the circular of Messrs. Quentell, Kelly & Co., dated Alexandria, 1st September: "The season 1875-6 will result in a crop of 3,000,000 cantars; few, if any, estimates even at a later period than this last year pointed to more than 2½ million cantars; the extraordinary fine open autumn, with hot forcing weather during October and November, caused the backward pods to fully develop and yield a considerable quantity of sound useful cotton unprecedented in any previous year. The yield per fedden (per acre) in many districts was greater than ever previously known; this can be accounted for from the high Nile of the previous year, which deposited a larger quantity than usual of rich soil on low lying land, and no doubt materially increased the quantity and improved the quality of the past crop. Last year the plant had an unfavorable start; the sowing season was late, and replanting had to be resorted to in many districts on account of an unusual cold spring. This year the reverse is the case; the spring was fine and mild, planting was finished early, the season so far has been highly favorable, and the plants are further advanced by ten to fifteen days than they were last year. The pods are said to be well developed, and are looking fine and healthy. The amount of land under cultivation is said to exceed that of last year by about 8 per cent; the proportion of white is expected to give an increase of 10 per cent, and as the yield of white is greater per feddan than the brown, the crop, with the same favorable weather as last year for the next three months, should result in about 3,300,000 cantars. As, however, heavy night dews, fogs, etc., some years cause great damage to the plants, cutting off the quantity 20 to 30 per cent., and materially injuring the quality, it would not be safe to calculate on a full yield like last year's until the crop is further advanced."

From Bombay our mail advices are to 17th ultimo, and represent that owing to the want of rain both the cotton and grain crops were in a very precarious position, and serious fears were entertained of a famine in some of the districts next season. Later advices, however, by telegraph, report good rains, which, it is hoped, will avert the impending calamity. From northern China we have accounts of a fearful famine from a failure of food crops, consequent on a drought. This, it is thought, will to some extent check exports of goods thence.

VOL. 22. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1876. NO. 41.

TO MY BELOVED VESTA.

Miss, I'm a Pensive Protoplasm,
Born in some pre historic chasm,
I and my humble fellow men
Are hydrogen an l oxygen,
Add nitrogen, and ca bon, too,
And so is Jane, and so are you.
In stagnant water swarm our brothers
And sisters, but we've many others,
Among them animalcules,
And lizards' eggs—and so, you see,
My darling Vesta, allow no pride,
Nor turn coquettish head aside,
Our pedigrees, as thus made out,
Are no great things to boast about.
The only comfort seems to be
In this—philosophers agree
That how a Protoplasm's made
Is mystery outside their trade;
And we are pa ts, so say the sages,
Of life come down from Long Past Ages.
So let us haste in Hymen's hands
And spend our gay organic life
As happy man and happy wife.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

PEKIN, ILL., Sept. 25.—Quite an excitement exists here to-day, growing out of the stopping over of some Methodist clergymen at the residence of H. P. Westeman last night. The Central Illinois Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is in session here, and some twenty of the ministers are the guests of Westeman, the chief of the whisky ring. The Hayes and Wheeler Club, in full regalia, with torches and music, marched to the residence of H. P. Westeman last night for the purpose of giving the ministers a serenade. In response some of them made the most bitter and incendiary speeches, urging the boys in uniform to persevere in their drill and exercise; but they had a great work to accomplish, which ought to be performed carefully, but if peaceful work failed they would make good soldiers. The editors of the Times, happening to be present, came out in a supplement this morning, in which the offensive preachers, with Mr. Westeman and the whisky ring were handled without gloves. The consequence is that the Radical party, some of the preachers, and the whisky ring are in a terrible stew, and may probably make application to Father Hoyt for military aid to suppress the Times and its backers. It is said the ring is preparing a reply; if so, the Times is not yet.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—The noon prayer meeting to-day, led by Moody and Sankey, filled Upper Hall. About one hundred ministers of Chicago and vicinity were on the platform. Moody gave a running commentary on the fifty-first psalm. Dr. Mitchell spoke on penitence, advising those who were weeping to dry their tears, count all their sins, and do works meet for repentance.

Mr. Moody, at the evening meeting and the noon meeting, with his usual religious power, was even more encouraging than the great crowds in the Tabernacle on Sunday.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—It is proposed to conclude the State day observances at the Centennial Grounds with a reunion of all the Governors of the States and Territories on the 6th of November, or upon a later day, at which the outgoing and incoming Presidents of the United States will be present.

Arrangements are in contemplation for combining the State day of Virginia with that of Maryland, on the fifteenth instant, and the day of the grand national tournament. Accommodations for seating 100 000 persons will be provided within the grounds, near George's Hill.

SHREVEPORT, Oct. 3.—From full official information received up to date, from Prof. Joseph Jones, M. D., Joseph P. Scott, M. D., R. Sevier, of New Orleans, the Board of Health of Shreveport, La., is fully convinced that the sanitary condition of New Orleans is excellent; that the sporadic cases of yellow fever have been confined to a limited portion of the city; that no case has occurred among the shipping. Only twenty-nine cases have occurred during the past two months. No case has occurred during the past three days. The occurence of a heavy frost absolutely precludes the possibility of any spread of the disease either in New Orleans or any part of the Mississippi Valley. There is no necessity for quarantine, and it is consequently raised. F. G FOND,

President Board of Health.

SWEETWATER, Dej., Oct. 4.—The 11th session for inspectors throughout the State, a sure indication of the success of the State in the big election, resulted in favor of the Democrats. Governor Bayard was serenaded last night.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 4.—Both of the local station officers are sick.

Total interments to-day 24, of which 17 were from yellow fever. Of the burials 10 were colored persons.

Hon. Gabriel Rengler, Catholic priest, died to-day.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Texas advices state that twenty-five Indians struck the Pecos river on the eighth ultimo, and swept down the Sabine river, between Erie City, attacking ranches and sheep camps, killing three men, and several Mexicans are now following up the Nueces in the direction of Fort Clark with over one hundred head of horses. Citizens and rangers are in pursuit. This party committed more devilry than any party for several years.

ATLANTA, Oct. 5.—Later returns indicate a light vote polled. Official figures point to a probable Democratic majority of 75,000.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—A remarkably powerful religious impression was manifested at the noon prayer meeting to-day. Nearly every one of 1,500 pastors and members of churches present desire prayers that they may be personally fitted to work in the revival. The deepest feeling prevailed and many were in tears. Both the Moody and Sankey meeting at the Tabernacle to-night there were nearly 5 000 persons present in spite of the rain.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—A dispatch from Mr. Wilson, Chairman of the Republican State Committee of Colorado, to Postmaster Edmunds, claims that Tuesday's election carries with it the Presidential electoral vote of the State. This, whatever the law may have intended, effectually decides the matter.

Democratic majorities in Delaware: Newcastle county, 322; Kent, 1079; Sussex, 631.

Dispatches from Colorado and New Mexico report that serious Indian outbreaks are threatened.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Mail advices from Havana, of September 30, say the insurgents took possession of the city of Las Tunis on September 22.

The Diario confirms this news, saying the garrison was probably in connivance with the insurgents. The Diario says henceforth it will give the news, whether good or bad.

The strategic importance of Las Tunis is very great.

It is reported Jovellar desires no more troops be sent to Cuba unless money is sent to support them. It is feared there will be mutiny unless the soldiers are paid. They have had no pay for seven months.

ATLANTA, Oct. 7.—The Democratic majority in 92 counties is 60,000, with 45 counties to hear from, which will make the majority 80 000 at least. The Legislature stands—Senate and House both Democratic.

DENVER, Oct. 7.—The Republican majority is about 1,304.

SAVANNAH Oct. 7.—Total interments to-day 22, of which 13 were from yellow fever; nine of the burials were colored persons.

COLUMBIA, Oct. 7.—Gov. Chamberlain issued a proclamation wherein he stated it has become impracticable, in his judgment, to enforce by ordinary course of judicial process the laws of the State within certain counties, and it having been made known to him that illegal organizations known as "rifle clubs" exist in the State, and as they are forbidden by State laws, he forbids their existence and orders they be disbanded within three days. If disregarded he will exhaust his own powers and then appeal to the United States Government.

HOUSTON, Oct. 8.—A fire last night destroyed the entire block on the east side of Main street, between Preston and Congress streets. Among the buildings destroyed were some of the handsomest business structures in the city. The Western Union Telegraph office was burned and communication by telegraph interrupted, but it has been restored. Loss $350,000. Insurance $220 000.

COLUMBIA, Oct. 8.—The State Democratic Executive Committee issued an address denouncing Gov. Chamberlain's proclamation as unwarranted by law or facts and as issued only to furnish a pretext for asking for troops.

In response to a letter from Gen. Hampton, Chief Justice Moses says he knows nothing to lead him to conclude that South Carolina is an armed camp, or that any army is needed more potent than the law.

Associate Justice Willard and Judges Mackey and Cook, Republicans, have written a letter, denying any knowledge of the facts as stated in the proclamation. Mackey charges Chamberlain with a conspiracy against a full ballot.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 9.—Total interments to-day 22 of which 15 were from yellow fever. Five of the interments were colored persons.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Eight hundred bales of cotton, valued at $37,000, and belonging to Inman, Swann & Co., were destroyed by fire in Brooklyn last night. The fire was caused by sparks from a tug boat. The cotton not destroyed by fire was thrown overboard. The property is fully insured.

MOBILE, Oct. 10.—Two conflagrations occurred last night. One in the neighborhood of the county jail, destroying thirteen small dwellings and stores; the other on the corner of Dauphine and Joaquin streets, destroying three buildings occupied as stores and dwellings. Among those burned out were S. H. Salmon and Eberlein's grocery store. The loss is upward of $21,000; insurance $15 000, most in local companies and agencies of W. A. Carroll and J. C. Russ. Both fires supposed to be incendiary.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 10.—The Harvester Works at Minneapolis, with a portion of its contents, was burned last evening. Loss $50-000.

NEW YORK Oct. 10.—Pat Maguire, a saloon keeper at Mount Vernon, quarreled with his wife on Sunday—accusing her of infidelity. Finally grasping each of his four children, he lifted them as high as his head, and dashed them to the floor, exclaiming: "This is not my child." One of the children has since died—the others are in a precarious condition. Maguire was arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—The Centennial Commissioners in answer to inquirers adopted the following: Therefore be it

Resolved, That in accordance with our previous action, we hereby declare that the Centennial Exhibition shall be closed on the tenth day of November next.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 10.—Total interments to day 19, of which 13 were from yellow fever. Five of the burials were of colored persons.

John J. Ward, who came from Charleston as a volunteer druggist; George N. Thompson, printer; and Sister of Mercy Mary Blandina, a native of Augusta, died to day. Dr. B. S. Purse, and Capt. J. F. Wheaton, President of the Savannah Benovolent Association, were taken sick to-day.

SALT LAKE, Oct. 11.—At Beaver, Utah, to-day Judge Boreman passed sentence upon John D. Lee for the participation in the Mountain Meadow massacre, nineteen years ago. In doing so, he called attention to the atrocity of the crime, the inability heretofore of the authorities to procure evidence; that the conspiracy to murder was wide spread; that Lee was finally offered up as a sacrifice to popular indignation, but that others equally guilty might hereafter expect punishment. The prisoner having the right, under the laws of the Territory, to choose death by hanging, shooting, or beheading, and having chosen to be shot, was sentenced to be shot to death January 26, 1877.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11, 2 A. M.—The Herald's special from Cincinnati says: Alexander Sands, chief editor of the Times, (Republican,) says he fears Barnes has dropped fully 8 000 behind his ticket, which would give the State to Bell, the Democratic nominee.

J. A. McMahon, Democratic candidate for Congress in the Fourth District of Ohio, telegraphs to the Tribune that his election is conceded by about 5,000 majority.

The Herald says, editorially: The returns thus far received indicate that Ohio has been carried by the Republicans with a moderate increase over their majority of last year, and that Indiana has gone Democratic by a majority somewhat less than that of 1874, the date of the last election.

There have been no very marked political changes in either State; there is nothing in the returns to encourage either party to hope that it will walk over the course in the direct contest for the Presidency.

FOREIGN.

HONG-KONG, Sept. 14.—International disorders in China are increasing, insurrections are numerous, and assaults on Christians are reported from all quarters.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Lord Derby's dispatch to Sir Henry Elliott regarding the Bulgarian atrocities was issued last night. The British embassador is directed to demand a personal audience with the Sultan, communicate Mr. Baring's report, demand reparation and justice, urge the immediate rebuilding of houses and churches, provide for the restoration of industries, and give assistance to persons who have been reduced to poverty.

An envoy has been sent to Gen. Tchernayeff to request him to discontinue the use of the royal title in addressing Prince Milan.

From the Work.

ALEXANDRIA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The Alexandria District Conference met at the Castor Sulphur Springs, twenty miles southwest of Columbia, La., on the ninth of August, and together with the camp meeting which commenced on the same day, and closed on the fourteenth of August.

Our presiding elder, Rev. S. H. Cooper, presided over the deliberations of the Conference with great ease and dignity. The preachers were all present, except Bros. Jackson and Shepherd. The spiritual condition of the church was closely investigated, and found to be in a good condition. A number of revivals were reported, and the preachers looked forward to the fall meetings with considerable hope.

The ADVOCATE finds its way into many families in this district, and preachers and laymen all resolved to do all in their power to give that valuable paper a more extensive circulation here.

I have not the minutes of the Conference, but noticed that there were nine traveling preachers in the district, whose aggregate assessment was $1,000, one-fourth of which has been paid. This section of the country never before witnessed such an outpouring of the Spirit. There were thirty one accessions to the church, and about thirty-five or forty conversions; the church and ministers were greatly revived. This revival spirit is still going on in the surrounding neighborhoods, and sinners are being happily converted to God at prayer meetings, and around the familiar altar. To God be all the praise.

MERIDOSIA.

VERNON WORK, Mississippi Conference.—Mr. Editor: The Spirit of the Lord is with us on this work. At our second quarterly meeting, which was held at Lane's chapel, our worthy presiding elder was with us full of labor. On Sabbath we had a pentecostal shower; fifteen were added to the church on that occasion, and seven have joined since, which gives us a membership of twenty-two at that place.

On the twenty-ninth of July we began services at Tinnin's church, which resulted in twenty-five accessions, nearly all of whom were converted. A wonderful reformation was wrought in that vicinity. Rev. Mr. Pridgen, a local minister, assisted us in the early part of the meeting. Seven were added at this appointment previously, which makes the membership at Tinnin's, added this year, thirty-two. There is residing in this vicinity an aged father in Israel who has spent fifty-two years in the Lord's service. He says not a day of that time has passed without his having the witness of the Spirit. If the ministry and the laity lived thus walking and talking with God, what a grand and glorious work we would accomplish. How intimate our relationship with Christ might be. We closed last evening, the twenty-fourth of August, a meeting at Woodlawn, which resulted in seven additions, and a deep spiritual awakening in the church. So much so that the church has resolved to erect a handsome edifice to worship in. Rev. C. B. Galloway, of Jackson, was with us in the Spirit of the Master. Pray for us.

Yours in Christ,

W. D. DOMINICK.

JACKSON, MISS., August 25, 1876.

HOMER DISTRICT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: This part of north Louisiana is looking up. The Homer District Conference convened in Arcadia. The spiritual condition was reported good from a large portion of the district. There was a good report of Homer College, claiming to be the cheapest male college in the South. Rev. J. L. Bordan, of the Vernon circuit, has accepted the charge of a female college in Monroe, La. He and the trustees have got the departments all arranged, and the school is to commence in September.

The Dowsville camp meeting closed last Tuesday the eighth instant, leaving seventy-five or one hundred penitents. I did not learn the number of converts. I know of nine camp meetings on the Homer district that will be held soon. Prayer meetings and class meetings and family altars are on the increase. The United Friends of Temperance are alive, and doing good in the temperance reform. We are having good rains; and the best prospect for a good crop that I have ever seen in this part of the State. We have heard that they have suffered about Monroe for rain. R. PARVIN.

CLEAR SPRINGS CHURCH, POLAND CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Pastor W. P. Dickenson and his people commenced a meeting on the fourteenth of July, and continued ten days. And oh, such times of rejoicing on account of the refreshing showers of the grace of God so freely given us there my poor heart had never before realized. Old soldiers of the cross said it was the best. It must have been, as there were no idlers on the ground. All hands worked; both saint and sinner. Whole families came over on the Lord's side, and brought their babies with them, and consecrated them to God. The church was astir—fully awake to its duty. There were many conversions during the meeting. Some of the hardest sinners were converted to the Lord, and found work to do in his vineyard. Forty were added to the church. The interest was good to the last. W. H. JENNINGS.

HENRY CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Last night we closed a very interesting meeting at this place (Lawrenceville,) to six days continuance. The congregations were large, the church revived, several penitents converted, and fifteen promising members added to the church.

At Clopton we held a meeting of six days, embracing the second Sabbath in August. Attendance large, the church blessed, some conversions, and seven valuable members united with the church.

We held a meeting at Union Hill of six days, embracing the fifth Sabbath in July. Congregations numerous, the church powerfully revived, many were converted, and thirteen good members joined the church.

Embracing the third Sabbath in July, we held a meeting at Liberty, which continued five days. Congregations good, the church somewhat refreshed, a few conversions, and two substantial members connected with the church.

All the above mentioned additions were upon profession of faith. Total, 37.

Bro. W. H. Weatherby, a local preacher on this charge, gave a hearty, helping hand in all my meetings. Bro. H. L. Tiller also helped at this place for several days.

ANGUS DOWLING.

LAWRENCEVILLE, ALA., September 8, 1876.

DESOTO CIRCUIT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Our camp meeting for De Soto circuit, Shreveport district, at Bethel camp ground, commenced Friday night, August 18, 1876, and closed Tuesday night following. We had a good corps of preachers, thirteen in number, all of whom were fully in the spirit of the work. The congregations were larger than usual, from the beginning to the end. We had twelve tent holders, and a great many in wagons bivouacked around the encampment. We need a half dozen other good tents to complete the camp ground, and to make light work of it. We hope that parties will arrange to have their tents built now, while they are in the notion. The meeting resulted in thirty-one accessions to the church, half of them, perhaps, by baptism. The conversions were variously estimated, some more, some less; suffice it to say that there were quite a number clear and satisfactory. The church was greatly revived, and the good done can only be revealed by the light of eternity.

We are satisfied that camp meetings, on the basis of being self-supporting, are the most efficient of the ordinary means which we have of doing good. Then, in the summer time, instead of hunting, fishing, and lounging, let us have a camp meeting. J. P.

MANSFIELD, LA.

MADISON STATION, MISSISSIPPI.—Mr. Editor: Last Sunday I saw the dedication of one of the handsomest country churches in the Mississippi Conference, and this church is ours. It stands on the Jackson and Canton wagon road, seven miles north of Jackson, and about one mile east of Tougaloo. Built on a gentle slope, surrounded with forest trees, elegantly painted inside and out, with handsome pulpit and chancel, comfortable pews, etc., it is a thing of beauty. Costing, in round numbers, $1,000. It is a thing of value. This church was built by a small neighborhood, although considerable help was received from that prop and stay and comfort of Methodism in this country—the Jackson church. Work was commenced on it scarcely two months ago, and yet, as I have already said, it was dedicated last Sunday. We have named it Wesley chapel.

BEVERLY CARRADINE, P. C.

AUGUST 16, 1876.

OAK BOWERY, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: As making up record of good news from churches, allow me to state that on Saturday before the second Sunday in this month a protracted meeting commenced at Oak Bowery church, which continued several days. There were two conversions and three additions to the church. Although the conversions and additions were not so numerous, yet the blessings of God were poured out in abundance. The pastor, E. W. Solomon, is laborious and efficient. Our church stands now more united and hopeful than ever before, and long may it thus stand. The result of our meeting has been a thorough work of grace in the church, reviving the lukewarm and reclaiming the backsliders. A. E. P.

AUGUSTA, 1876.

OAK GROVE, LA.—Mr. Editor: Our camp meeting at Oak Grove, La., has just closed, and in many ways was a remarkable meeting. The weather was fine, congregations fine, and the interest was good from the beginning. There was but little to disturb the peace and harmony of the occasion. This being the first camp meeting that was ever held in this section of the country, there were many from a distance, all of whom appeared to come to get good and to do good. The preaching was clear, pointed, practical, and good. We were assisted by Bros. Vaughan and Hasskew, of the Little Rock Conference, Owen, Alexander, Cornell, and our presiding elder, C. W. Carter, of the Louisiana Conference, and a number of local brethren, all assisting and contributing to the interest of the occasion. There were thirty-five accessions, and about as many conversions, together with nearly the whole membership revived. It was truly a time of refreshing from the Lord. Many old members were converted for the first time in their life, who, uniting with valuable material just enlisted, give a new and enlarged interest to the cause, never before realized here.

T. H McCLENDON.

FLOYD, LA., September 19, 1876.

Never turn a corner without looking around, to see whether it has a dark side to it.

AUTUMN.

They have come—the Autumn days,
When the red sun's glassless rays,
In the wood,
Glimmer bright in shade and hue
That the summer never knew,
And pierce the thicket through
Where I stood.

In the Spring, content to greet
All the beauties at my feet,
And to stay,
Never caring what beside
Nature's Verdant veil might hide
Far away.

Ah! the view is clearer now;
Dead, the tendrils on the bough,
Shut the vail
And the ocean in sight,
Spreading gloom and flashing light,
Where the sun will rise at night—
Dim and pale.

It has come—the Autumn time;
Passed the Sun-ner and the prime
Of my days.
Careless I of joys or fears,
For the soul was dank with tears;
Willered fell the hopes of years
In my gaze.

When the magic of thy love
Let the sun in from above,
So fit and bright,
And I saw with altered mind
That the Autumn, too, was kind
In its light,

For, just as the brighter sheen
Glorifies the passing green
Of the leaf,
And the vistas open long clear,
Let the wider scenes appear
Free from grief.

So might it be in life,
When the glory and the strife
Of its Home
Had shed their ripe seeds and fruits,
From pure or poisoned roots,
Late or soon.

We may find a grander view
With a wider passage through
To our rest
And that love which blossoms last,
When passion's dross is past,
Is the best.

Temple Bar.

Health of New Orleans.

The following official statements were made at the meeting of the Board of Health on Thursday, October 5:

Present, Drs. Gandet, Lemonnier, Devron, and Messrs. Clay, Bryant, and Shaw.

The only business of importance transacted was the reading of the reports of the sanitary inspectors, from which it is found that the health of the city has been, and is, unusually good, notwithstanding the presence of yellow fever.

First District.

Dr. Hire, sanitary inspector, reports one case of yellow fever, since the 11th of September. The number of inspections for the past month was 1120 50 premises were disinfected, and 5 fumigated. The capacity of the cisterns in the district is 1,498,390 gallons of water.

Second District.

Dr. Taylor reports health of district excellent; only one case of yellow fever during the season. Inspections, 989; disinfections, 35; fumigations, 33; cases of small-pox, 6; children vaccinated, 16.

Third District.

Dr. Pratt reports that the health of his district has been unusually good. Inspections 553; vaccinations, 82. There were two cases of malarial fever, but none of yellow fever.

Fourth District.

Dr. Holt reports that 37 cases of yellow fever occurred up to date in the infected section. Of these only about 4 remain on hand, and the disease is fast disappearing, not having prevailed outside of the infected area. The general health of the district is particularly good. Inspections 714.

Fifth District.

No cases of yellow fever; inspections, 272; vessels fumigated, 1; vaccinations, 4.

Sixth District.

Health good; one death from yellow fever during the summer. Dr. Bayley reports 65 children protected by vaccination.

Deaths in September.

Total number, 583; whites, 348; blacks, 185; mulattoes, 50; not stated, 10.

Males, 257, females, 210; not stated, 36.

Of these deaths 102 were from all fevers, 19 being from yellow fever, 75 from consumption, 23 from congestion of the brain, 13 from heart disease, etc. There have occurred this year 48 cases of yellow fever, all told; there remain on hand 4 cases. The number of cases in 1875 was 74. This year the disease has not prevailed so extensively as many other fevers, and has been confined exclusively to a certain small area of the Fourth District. All persons who reside outside of the infected section and were taken down with the disease contracted it by visiting the infected area.

THE FEVER AT BRUNSWICK.—As will be seen by the following dispatch, received by Mr. Southmayd, Secretary of the Howard Association, from Dr. Hruns, now in Brunswick, the deaths from the fever have considerably diminished, but the new cases had slightly increased on those of Tuesday:

Brunswick Ga. Oct. 6 1876.—J. H. Southmayd, Secretary Howard Association, New Orleans: Three deaths by yellow fever yesterday. Weather very warm. Number of new cases slightly increased on those of day before. Doctors and nurses well. The mayor and Rev. Mr. Boone convalescent.

J. DICKSON HRUNS, M. D.

Advices to the Howard Association from Brunswick on Sunday morning, October 8 stated that the force of the epidemic was broken; that nearly all cases on hand were convalescing; that the few new cases were easily managed, and that the storm then prevailing would probably be followed by cold weather.

LOVE AND PAIN.

When upon the earth were sent
Love and Hope and calm Content,
Love, impatient of delaying,
From his comrades wandered, straying
Into orchards that lured his feet
With their buds and blossoms sweet,
Plucking many a fruit and flower
On he sauntered hour by hour,
Taking little heed of space,
Till, grown weary in his race,
Hopelessly he cried to track
Through the gloom a pathway back
To his missing mates again.

Near at hand stood aged Pain,
And to him, with looks appealing
Ana with tears, his fears revealing,
He besought his figure bent
To restore him to Content.
Pain to whom such matchless grace
Never had turned so fair a face,
Felt himself grow strangely coy
In the presence of the boy.
And, without a questioning look,
On himself the task he took
To restore the truant child
To his comrades fair and mild.

On they journeyed, day by day,
Found them still upon their way.
Only Hope, of patient choice
Gladdened them with cheerful voice,
While before their ever went
The sweet vising of Content.

Many ages have rolled o'er,
And the world is young no more;
Yet, together through the land
Love and Pain go hand in hand,
But beside the weary pair
Walks sweet Hope with golden hair,
And her gaze is always sent
After and for, until Content.

Los Angeles.—The Country.

MR. EDITOR: As this city is the acknowledged metropolis of southern California, when we speak of this half of the State, we call it "The Los Angeles Country." I have seen a portion of it only, and propose to speak of that portion, viz: that nearest the city.

The soil is dark, very closely resembling the swamp lands of Mississippi and Louisiana; the sandy land here is very similar to that you have in your swamps, and our adobe land answers to your "buckshot." All of the land here is very productive. It is all prairie save the mountain-sides. The valleys are very broad, and the foot-hills are not abrupt generally. In the winter every spot of untilled prairie is covered with luxurious grasses, interspersed with beautiful flowers, making the landscapes lovely beyond comparison—so Fan told. I have not seen winter here yet. In the summer the whole face of the country outside of the farms—here called ranches—kept green by irrigation—wears the dingy, blackened appearance of winter's desolation. But as black and as barren of sustenance as these plains appear to a Mississippian, they afford ample subsistence for vast droves of sheep, cattle, and horses. The grass is only cured, and, having no rain upon it, retains all the nutriment of garnered oats, timothy, or clover. Stock of all kinds, if permitted to run at will on the plains, live and keep fat without being fed throughout the entire year. The ranches are irrigated with water taken from the streams which come down from the mountains, or from wells furnished with pumps run by wind-mills. If from streams, the water is elevated by dams across the streams, and conducted in shallow ditches to where it is wanted. The plains are so level, and the beds of the streams so little below the surface of the plains, that irrigation is effected with great ease. If the ranch be on a hill-side, resort must be had to a tank or some other elevated reservoir, from which the water is distributed through pipes and hose. The land is so very productive that the ranchero is fully repaid for the trouble and expense of irrigation.

There are many places, however, which need no irrigation. They are either on a hill-side, facing the ocean, and are fed by the fogs, or they have a peculiar subterranean formation which forces the subterranean water near the surface. There is a large valley of this last named quality near this city, where 125 bushels of corn are raised per acre, and not a particle of rain, nor the least irrigation upon it. Other things grow in the same proportion.

I have seen the finest specimens of vegetable growth here that I have ever seen. On my recent visit to Los Nietos (a beautiful valley near here, settled by a colony of Southern Methodists) I saw a beet fully two and a half feet in length, and seven or eight inches in diameter; and yet I was assured that the minister was tender enough for the table. They are fine to feed milch cows on, and also for making sugar. I saw barley unreaped, on which hogs were feeding, having grown fat enough for a Cincinnati pork house with no other food than the unreaped barley. I saw a pumpkin patch with a barn full of pumpkins in it, many of which were two feet in diameter; and this patch did not cover more than a quarter of an acre, and had never been plowed or hoed since it was planted.

Los Nietos is the loveliest community of farms I ever saw. The "ranches" are small, laid out in squares, with a plenty of good roads running between them, are well cultivated, and are generally graced with tasty cottages. It is blessed with railroad and telegraph, schools and churches, and a moral population.

So much for the country. The next time I propose to say something of our church and its wants in this blessed land,

"Where every prospect pleases,
And only man is vile."

OBITUARIES.

Correspondents, please write names and dates very distinctly. We follow copy on proper names.

Obituary notices should be forwarded promptly and immediately. Give only points of general interest, such as will help the living. Details of funeral services, and such phrases as "mourn their loss," etc., are not edifying. Verses, either original or select, not admissible in this department. Give the locality distinctly and in full. In the case of infants only a simple announcement of the death, with names and dates, will be published.

☞ All obituaries received are published as soon as convenient. If, after a reasonable time, any such communication fail to appear, let a duplicate be sent instead of a complaint.

EVANDER A. MALOY was born in Covington county, Ala., August 3, 1833; was married to Mrs. Carry W. Singleton August 1, 1863, and died of consumption in Whistler, Ala., August 31, 1876. For two years he had been a laborer in the railroad shops at this place, where his health began to fail. During the latter part of last summer the distressing disease increased to such an extent as to compel him to desist from labor, and in the fall, at the suggestion of his friends, he made a visit to his brother in the northern portion of Louisiana, hoping it might prove beneficial.

He soon found that neither medicine nor change of climate would produce any good results in his case, and seeing that his days were about numbered, his mind turned to the future, and to the obligations he owed to him whose providence and power had protected his life up to the present, and he became an earnest and prayerful inquirer after salvation.

Soon after his return to his home and family I visited him, and found him praying almost constantly. He expressed a desire to join the church having, as he thought, received a change. But there was not that evidence of regeneration so desirable in every man who professes to trust in Christ for deliverance from sin and its consequences.

On the thirteenth of February, accompanied by a few members of the church, I went to his house and received him into the church, and administered to him the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. He now expressed entire resignation to the will of God; yet he was to my mind, and that of his deeply spiritual wife, without the witness of the Spirit, in which state he remained until the second of May. Being greatly burdened at heart, he began to agonize with the Lord, and in a short time the Spirit was poured out upon him in great power. I was immediately sent for; and, hastening to see what was the cause for which he had sent for me, on entering the room, instead of finding him dying, as I expected, I found him in the raptures of a new-born soul, his countenance radiant with joy. In a feeble voice he greeted me with: "I am all right now; God has converted my soul; glory to God! I am so happy! I now know what religion is: to think that I have been in this world forty-three years without knowing anything of the power of redeeming grace." Having the door opened, and the window curtains turned aside, he looked out upon nature, and, clapping his feeble hands, said: "How beautiful! I never knew before how beautiful the works of God are; glory to God! If this world is so beautiful, what are the glories of heaven!"

I visited him frequently, and found him all the time in a state of peace, resigned, and sometimes happy in the love of God. It was his request that "the well-known burial hymn, 'Hark from the tomb a doleful sound,' should be sung at his grave. Another soul saved by grace.

JOSEPH T. CURRY.

MRS. NANCY SARAH ANN ENLOW.

Departed this life, April 30, A. D. 1876, in Wilkinson county, Miss., Mrs. Nancy S. A. Enlow. The beloved wife of Benjamin E. Enlow, and daughter of Stephen and Sarah Day, Sr., was born January 1, A. D. 1818; was baptized in infancy by the Rev. Samuel Dawson; joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1856; was converted at a prayer meeting in 1865, and was married July 10, 1870. In many respects Sister Enlow was a remarkable woman. And one among the rest, was as warm, generous a heart as ever beat in a human body. The few years she lived, she was a bright and happy Christian, identified with all the interests of the church, and enjoying all the means of grace in her sphere, and not until she was laid aside by affliction was she ever absent from her place in the house of God, tarring a husband that fully sympathized with her in all her plans, she showed forth her generous, hospitable feeling, both at home and abroad. She always loved her minister, and aided him in every way she could. She never heard a poor sermon, or found fault with the most feeble efforts of those who were laboring for the glory of the Master. These were the happy days and years of her youth. But amid these happy scenes, her bleeding bosom permitted sorrow and affliction to fall upon her pathway. And her sufferings were as severe as ever fell to the lot of any one we have known. But in all her sufferings she was the same good Christian woman. Her faith in God sustained her to the end.

It was my privilege to see Sister Enlow often, and it was a great privilege to visit her. She enjoyed religious service in her sick room. The sweet songs of the church, reading the Scriptures, and prayer were her constant delight. Having known her for several years, it was a pleasant duty to attend her in her last affliction. She has left her husband with one sweet little boy, and with many other friends to mourn her loss. Oh, may the great Head of the church incline their hearts to follow her example.

WILLIAM FINN.

DIED, in Carroll county, Miss., July 15, 1876, at the residence of her son, Dr. J. A. Applewhite, Mrs. MARY ANN APPLEWHITE, widow of the late Rev. James Applewhite, one of the pioneers of Methodism in Mississippi. Mother Applewhite was born in Roberson county, N. C., November 10, 1797, and immigrated with her father, Rev. John Regan, to Mississippi, and settled in Marion county in 1811. She made a profession of religion and joined the Methodist Church when quite young, and was married April 17, 1817.

Thrown thus in early life into the hardships and privations of a new and unsettled country, she acquired those habits of industry and energy of character that fitted her for the important position she was called to occupy in after life. Her husband was for many years an itinerant preacher, traveling large circuits, and receiving but little support; and on the wife, to a great extent, fell the care and support of the family, and well did she meet its demands, toiling day and night, clothing her household by her wheel and loom, encouraging her little boys on their farm, thus upholding her husband's hands, that he might continue in his "loved employ." "She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness." "Her children rise up and call her blessed," is descriptive of the character and reward of Mother Applewhite. On the death of her husband, some five years ago, her mind and memory seemed to fail, and she could never realize that he was dead, but was off on his circuit, and would be at home by and by, ever applying herself to have this or that garment ready against his return. But the Master called; she laid by her distaff; ceased her toil; and is gone to join her husband in their long home. May their children all meet them there.

W. H. HOLMES.

Z. H. NORWOOD, son of Z. G. and Mary B. Norwood, was born in St. Helena parish, La., March 16, 1855; was baptized by Rev. H. Pipkin in infancy; and received into the church, I think, by Rev. J. A. Godfrey, in 1871. He moved with his father and mother to East Feliciana parish, La., in 1866, and emigrated to Fort Worth, Tarrant county, Texas, last January with his mother.

How uncertain is life! One year ago I bade him good-bye. He was then in the bloom of life, and promised many years of usefulness to his widowed mother and sisters, He being the only grown unmarried son, much devolved upon him. Zechie was a quiet, unassuming, sober boy. When he moved to Fort Worth, he attached himself to a temperance society, of which body he was a faithful member until his death.

Though among strangers, he found many friends to visit and minister to him during his sickness. When apprised of the near approach of death, he was submissive to the will of God, but expressed desires to recover. Could we expect otherwise, having seen none of the sorrows of life, and looking into the faces of a kind mother and loving sisters and brothers, who were so anxious for his recovery? Especially was he desirous to return to the "old homestead," and be buried by his sainted father. But after suffering from fever for twenty-eight days, he fell asleep in the arms of Jesus, August 24, 1876, leaving evidence of his acceptance with God. He left a fond mother, several brothers and sisters, among them the wife of Rev. D. P. Bradford, of the Mississippi Conference.

A FRIEND.

PERESE BONNEY was born in the province of New Brunswick on the twenty-sixth of November, 1795; professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church early in life; and was united in marriage to Nancy Floyd, May 16, 1819, at Saco, Me. In 1838 he sought the South from Portland, Me.; located in Holmesville, Pike county, Miss., where he lived for forty-eight years; then departed this life, in great peace and triumph, on the twentieth of March, 1876.

Bro. Bonney had for many years been a devoted member of the church in Holmesville. His seat at the prayer and class meeting, as well as at public preaching, has seldom been vacant. He was ever a liberal supporter, according to his means, of our church.

Bro. Bonney was a sufferer for years before he died, yet I never heard him murmur or complain. It was my privilege to visit him several times during his last illness, and I do not think I ever saw any person more submissive to the will of Providence, while suffering as he did. He read his Bible regularly, prayed constantly, and was usually in good spirits. Just before he passed away he requested some one to read the twenty-third psalm; after which his favorite song, "The star of Bethlehem," was sung to him. After these exercises he uttered the expression: "I am waiting," in a few moments more he passed away.

H. P. LEWIS.

P. S. Four of our oldest and among our most substantial members in Holmesville have died within the last eighteen months.

H. P. L.

DIED, at the residence of her mother, in Franklin parish, La., on the first of July, 1876, Sister AMELIA D. RANDELL, wife of George W. Randell and daughter of Ward T. and Angelia H. Doggett. Sister Randell was born in Madison parish, La., on the eighth of March, 1849; moved to Franklin parish in 1865, and was married to George W. Randell on the sixth of February, 1868, by the Rev. T. H. McClendon. She united with the Baptist Church in August, 1873, and remained a member, in good standing, until called to the church triumphant. It was her lot to suffer affections for several years prior to her death, yet she never murmured, knowing full well to her it was given in behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake. Not like some could she point to the day of her conversion, yet she knew she had a friend and Savior in the friend of sinners. She loved the house of God, and loved to attend all its ordinances. She delighted in associating with the people of God, and singing praises to his name. Indeed her conversation was of heaven. Her house was a home for the preacher, and he was made to feel at home in her company. To know her was to love her. She was universally loved and esteemed by all who knew her. She was a devoted wife, a kind and loving mother, and a faithful daughter. She leaves a husband, four little children, an aged mother, two sisters and brother that weep over her departure.

C. T. MUSGROVE.

BRO. PARKER: It becomes our painful duty to announce through the ADVOCATE the death of little SARAH J. and JENNIE E. HARVEY, children of Bro. Franklin A. and Sister Martha Harvey. Little Sarah was born near Fannin, in Rankin county, Miss., on the twenty-eighth of November, 1866, and died on the ninth of September, 1876, aged nearly ten years. Little Jennie was born on the twenty-fifth of November, 1868, and died on the ninth of September, 1876, aged about eight years. These precious little ones were called away from earth to heaven on the same day. One about ten o'clock A. M., the other about seven P. M. This was indeed a sad stroke to the bereaved parents. But they do not mourn as those who have no hope. Faith penetrates the vista of futurity, and assures their wounded hearts of reunion in the infinite realms of a blissful hereafter, where no more sods will be broken for the dead, and where the ties of affection will never be severed. May the great Head of the church comfort the hearts of the bereaved parents.

W. W. HURST.

MRS. SARAH DUKE was born in Hancock county, Ga., March 7, 1801. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was converted at Concord camp ground, Putnam county, Ga., in 1819, in her eighteenth year. She was married to William Stubbs, February 9, 1825, in Putnam county, Ga. Sister Stubbs lived a consistent Christian life, and died in the triumphs of the Christian's faith, July 10, 1876, in Leake county, Miss., aged seventy-five years, four months, and three days.

Sister Sarah Stubbs was made a life-member of the missionary society at Society Hill, Macon county, Ala., in 1850. She was the mother of eight children, six of whom are still living, all members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. One of her sons fills the office of steward in his church. The house of Sister Stubbs was a home for the way-worn itinerant. Her greatest pleasure and delight was to make them comfortable and happy while under her roof. She loved the class-room and love-feast, and her seat in church was never vacant when she was able to fill it. This mother in Israel said to her husband, children, and friends that she was ready for the change, but wished to live that she might wait upon her aged and almost helpless companion. She said to him: "God will take care of you." Many friends mourn their loss. The church at Good Hope, of which she was a member, has lost a strong spiritual guide and pillar. Sister Stubbs was able in public prayer, for she always led in prayer when called on. May the grace of our Heavenly Father sustain and bring all to join her in glory.

SPICER DICKSON was born in the State of Georgia, February 27, 1795; was married to Lidia King, August 31, 1820, and joined the Methodist Church South in the year 1821, and died December 29, 1875. The subject of this notice emigrated to the State of Alabama in the year 1820, which was the same year of his marriage, and in the year 1825 he moved to the State of Louisiana, and remained there eight years, and in the year 1835 he moved to the State of Mississippi, where he lived until his death. He died in Jasper county, Miss., where he had lived for many years. Bro. Dickson was much beloved. As a citizen, he was true to the government in which he lived. As a Christian, he was truly devoted to all the interests of the church to which he belonged. He was true to the principles of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. His house was always a home for the preacher; his hands were always open to the suffering poor.

Bro. Dickson departed this life in the triumphs of a living faith in God, and could cry in the last moments that he had gained the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. He has left an aged wife and many devoted children and relatives to mourn his loss.

JOHN H. EVANS, P. C.

MRS. MARGARET A. DOLLINS, daughter of Rev. T. Y. and A. S. Armstrong, of the Mississippi Conference, departed this life August 7, 1876, aged twenty-seven years, two months, and fifteen days.

She was baptized in early infancy by the Rev. A. J. Croford. Maggie was confined to her room over two months. Her suffering was great, but she bore it patiently. She died in Noxubee county, Miss. Her greatest wish was to see our parents. They were sent for. Pa was absent, and when ma got there she was dead. She prayed constantly. She asked those around her to send for a minister, and Bro. Rass was sent for. He came, and prayed and talked with her. He asked her if she was ready and willing to go. She said if it was the Lord's will, she was willing to go. Her last words were: "Glory to God, I am going home." She leaves a husband, three little girls, parents, brother, and sisters, to mourn her loss. She was an affectionate wife, mother, daughter, and sister. She has now entered into the rest that remains for the people of God.

Her sister, SUE.

JOHN R. LEMASTRE was born August 29, 1859, and died near Pleasant Grove, in Elmore county, Ala., April 15, 1876. He professed religion and joined the church August 2, 1871, under the ministry of Rev. R. F. Perdue. From the time he joined the church to his death he was a consistent Christian; remarkably so for one of his years. He loved the church and the Sunday school, and was ever punctual in attending, and took great interest in the lessons learned there. His young soul seemed to be athirst for religious knowledge. His illness was long and painful—a cancerous affection in the nose and mouth—yet he was cheerful and often happy, especially so for some time immediately before his death. He gave utterance to many expressions of the triumphs of faith, among others was to tell his pastor that he went safe up yonder, pointing heavenward with his hand. The members of the church and Sunday school all say: "Johny was a good boy; all loved him."

W. P. H. CONNERLY.

MRS. PARALEE E. GAUGH, the subject of this notice, was born in Marengo county, Ala., February 1, 1832, and united herself with the Methodist Episcopal Church South in her seventeenth year, at Uniontown, Ala.

After the death of her father she moved to Jasper county, Miss., to live with her brother, W. M. Brame. She was married to F. C. Gaugh November 24, 1870.

Another strong evidence have we had of the power of the grace of God to sustain the Christian in afflictions, and support and make them cheerful in a dying hour.

Several weeks before her death she was anxious to depart and be with Christ. At last the messenger came with the glad news to her: "It is enough, come up higher." Surrounded by many warm friends, besides a sister and brother and fond husband, she fell asleep in the arms of Jesus, August 21, 1876.

D. P. BRADFORD, Pastor.

DIED, in this place, on Thursday, the seventeenth instant, GEORGE NEWMAN, the son of Dr. Albert G. and Mrs. Susan E. Brock, aged nearly eight years.

The death of this little boy was very sudden. But, sudden and terrible as this bereavement is to the surviving parents, they can find abundant consolation in the certain assurance that he is now an angel of light, and that he constitutes another glittering link in the golden chain which binds them to the better land.

Surrounded from his infancy by pious influences, he was sensibly impressed by them; and, while intellectually bright, he manifested a more than ordinary appreciation of the moral and religious precepts so faithfully taught him: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

A FRIEND.

FLOYD, La., Aug. 30, 1876.

MARY TREACY BEAVER was born March 13, 1862, and joined the church, under the ministry of the Rev. J. F. Wynn, in the year 1873, and died June 17, 1876.

Mary was not converted until a short time previous to her death, which was caused from a disease of the lungs. Her suffering was great, but she bore it with the fortitude of a Christian; and seldom do we leave such bright testimony from one so young. Her admonitions and exhortations exceeded anything of the kind heard here for years. She seemed to dwell in a holy atmosphere, and to have joyful anticipations of heaven.

She was sometimes, during her sickness inexpressibly happy. She was sensible to the last, and died without a struggle, calmly falling asleep in Jesus.

J. L. P. SHEPPARD.

FRANCIS WILLIAM, son of H. H. and H. A. Crawford, was born July 30, 1869, and died of congestion, at Johnston station, Miss., at ten o'clock on Sunday morning, September 19, 1876.

Willie was a member of our Sunday school, and seldom absent from his class, and though the cold hand of death had laid his chilly embrace upon him he "remembered the Sabbath day," and said to his ma: "I am not well yet, and cannot go to Sunday school;" not knowing that the angel hands were there, standing around, willing to bear him away on their snowy wings, to join the Sabbath school above, to be taught by him who is meek and lovely, and who said: "Suffer little children to come unto me."

P. HOWARD.

LITTLE LUCY, daughter of W. C. and F. M. Johnson, died of congestion, near Morganville, Lowndes county, Ala., August 18, 1876. She was five years old, and has gone to sweet heaven, where she so often talked about going to see her little sister Alma, who went before to welcome sweet Lucy there. The day before she died she sung: "I belong to this band," etc. She possessed a rare, sweet voice, and often sung: "Come to Jesus." Just before she expired she raised her eyes and said: "Papa, don't cry; I am not sick now;" but calmly breathed her last. I will never again hear my darling, sweet, and lovely pet repeat her little prayers. She is gone. May God comfort her bereaved parents in their sore affliction.

HER AUNT.

CARRIE LOU TAYLOR, daughter of S. S. and Louisa Taylor, was born February 28, 1856, and died June 23, 1876.

She was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South at Citronelle, Ala., in the year 1869. Though young, she experienced many afflictions, all of her immediate family dying before her. Her home for the last two years of her life was in Mobile, Ala., with her aunt, Mrs. A. A. Griffen. She died after a short illness. She seemed conscious that death was approaching, and said that she was going home. She had no abiding-place here, but expressed herself as being forgiven, and expectant of rest. Her last hours were spent in unconsciousness.

F. M. P.

"Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God."

JOSEPH REITZEL and JAMES LANE, twin sons of Calvin A. and Martha J. McClary, were born December 2, 1875. Joseph R. died June 20, and James L. died July 13, 1876, of whooping cough. Brief was their existence here; but, brief as it was, love had twined a wreath about them whose tendrils were hard to unloose, and the cords of parental affection bound them so closely that nought but the grace of God can enable them to say: "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

M. A. DAVIS.

DEPARTED THIS LIFE, on the fifth of August, 1876, in Carroll parish, near Floyd, La., of congestion, little JANIE, daughter of Charles and C. M. Atkins, aged five years, six months, and five days. Darling little pet, although thy little form is no longer seen, and thy sweet little voice is hushed, yet thou art not forgotten—still we would not call thee back. Thou hast crossed the silver stream, and art now enjoying the blessings of that bright, glorious, and eternal home, where papa, mamma, sisters, and brothers will endeavor to meet thee, where parting will be no more forever.

SISTER NANNIE.

WE WERE called to preach the funeral and to perform the burial service of little JOHNNIE, son of J. D. and S. E. Barksdale, who, after a short and painful illness, was taken from this world of sorrow by him who said: "Suffer little children to come unto me." Though our bright little friend had been with us only two years and a few months, he had been there long enough to create many strong ties of affection. His illness of congestion, in Natchitoches parish, La., on the first day of August, 1876.

JESSE FULTON.

ON Sunday last, the tenth inst., the death-angel came and bore away to the spirit-land a sweet cherub from the household of John F. and Elizabeth A. Hutchinson, near Bolton, in Hinds county, Miss. The dear little LENA, only five years old, was sick only three days. God took her to himself. She was a sweet, intelligent child—a model of every virtue that could adorn the life of our young. The mother and another little daughter both lie dangerously ill, and may soon join the angel one in heaven.

H.

DIED, in the triumphs of faith, after a lingering illness, Mrs. JANE SHEPPARD, wife of David Sheppard, of Autauga county, Ala. She was born in Bahlwin county, Ga., October 27, 1808, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South soon after she was grown, in which she lived a very consistent member until August 7, 1870, when God called her to heaven. She was the mother of ten children, five of whom have passed over the river to welcome her home.

A. C. H.

DIED, in Carroll parish, La., on the twelfth of July, 1876, little WILLIE, son of John and Louisa Rayner, aged four years and four months. Though his sweet voice will be heard no more on earth, yet there is consolation in the Savior's words which were: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

GATHERED FERNS.

Numberless, seemingly, as stars at night
These lovely fern leaves grow: and far away,
In lone dim woods, veiled from the careless sight,
Where only nature's truest lovers stray,
They rise from out the sod with careless grace;
Flinging their brightness round each shadowy place.

Unfilled of man, they feel the soft caress
Of the warm summer wind that searches through
The tangled tree-tops; and their loveliness,
Born of the sun and breeze and crystal dew,
Gleams through the long receding winter hours,
Less fair, less fragile, than the peerless flowers.

From the recesses of those grand old woods
We bring into our lives their loveliest part—
The spirit that amid their silent shrouds,
And fills with peace each unreluctant heart;
And may memory threads each path anew
Where once these ferns and soft gray mosses grew.

We hear again the rustling of the leaves,
The long, sweet, murmuring sounds of summer days;
See how again the sun lights network weaves
O'er the gray moss that loves these pleasant ways;
And feel, far searching through each life's trembled deep,
The peace, the bliss, the hope, that sometimes sleep.

Oh, fair and solemn woods, where winds float by Laden with scent of pines and hidden flowers,
Where rills the bird from shrub and tree-top high,
Calling its mate through misty autumn hours,
Be your sober memory bright when far away
The feet that lovedly our paths in exile stray!

David Livingstone.

David Livingstone possessed in the rough qualities that were as grand as they were exceptional in their grandeur. It is impossible to recall the name of a man, except from among those who are called the Christian martyrs, in whose breast there dwelt together such fortitude and such love of God. His prayers to his Father were perpetual, and they besought protection, not for his own sake, but for the sake of the people who would be blessed by a proper completion of his work. On the first day of each year, and on the anniversaries of his birthdays, he made, in his journals, new ascriptions of his life and endeavors to the Most High, and these ascriptions, written as they were amid records of wars, marches, slave-tortures and personal sufferings, sound like notes of harmony amid fearful discords. Dr. Livingstone was not in the general deception of the word, an educated man. A good knowledge of science would have doubled the value of the thirty years that he spent in Africa, and would have saved him months of time, and hundreds of leagues of travel. He started out upon his life-work poorly equipped for the strife, but this shortcoming enables us to praise him for an extraordinary persistence and fidelity. His records geographical, topographical, barometrical, geological, and others, are monuments to his unswerving industry and perseverance. The constitution of Livingstone's temper forbade his happy association with people of his kind. Impatient of superstition and criticism, he was constantly exposed, when in the company of his countrymen, to what he fancied was stigma and contumely. He was essentially a hermit, and it was not with an ill grace that he gave up his fellow-travelers for the pleasures and dangers of solitary exploration. He knew the general qualities of the African nature, and that he used his knowledge well is proved by the general regard with which he was received, and by the almost universal confession of his endeavors by the chiefs and chiefs whom he met in his travels. He spoke invariably to intelligent men of their religious beliefs, and then of Christ. He never received presents without returning an equivalent, or more than an equivalent. He always punished depredations committed by men under his command, and he never intruded upon the etiquette observed in any town through which he passed. Yet he never ceased to declare his hate of slavery and oppression, or to set his face against war and treachery. In a few words, he bore the name of Englishman with true dignity; and while never attaching to it a remembrance of bloodshed or coercion, he made it a synonym, among the wild people that he met, of strength and heroic purpose.

He died while upon his knees. It was fitting that he should be permitted to render back his soul to his Maker while in that devout attitude—it was natural to him, and could he have chosen, he would have taken it with gratitude.

Pope Pius on His Enemies.

The Pope has been making an extraordinary address to the sacred College on the occasion of the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of his accession to the Pontificate, in which he dwelt strongly on the example of Tobias, who, when carried into slavery, did not abandon himself to grief, but kept a stout heart, till Sennacherib was killed by his own sons and the virtuous Tobias was enabled to return home; and his holiness called the particular attention of the cardinals to the fact that when he got back he recovered all the "rich possessions" which were his own before he was carried off, and assured them "that the church must triumph and the Revolution perish;" "that the fathers would kill the sons, the sons would kill their fathers, and all those born of the Revolution would devour each other,"—which is a very unpleasant prophecy or suggestion as to what is to happen or ought to happen, and is capable of a somewhat repulsively literal interpretation. He threw some light on the kind of comfort he drew from the case of Tobias afterward in his remarks to a deputation of the Roman nobility, when he pointed out that the humiliation of France and Austria by Germany was due to their having, though Catholic powers, successively abandoned the holy see, and the late sultan lost his reason and committed suicide owing to his having "taken upon himself the protection of a handful of schismatics in the East." He said he would not speak of "the fearful punishments with which God had specially stricken now one and now another of the impious sectarians, dying in terror and fright and abandoned to the powers of infernal darkness."

Fairs and Their Failings.

Thoughtful men are beginning to ask themselves a question or two in respect to our agricultural exhibitions. It is getting to be pretty generally believed, and quite as generally lamented, that in our State, county and district fairs have, in late years, been undergoing a steady deterioration. They are now nearly all of them of one kind, and everywhere we see them perverted from their rational and original purpose. The object around which they are chiefly made to center is one in which farmers, as farmers, can have no special interest, for it is in no sense agricultural; one, in fact, which is repulsive to the most intelligent and industrious tillers of the soil. We know good people, not a few, who keep away from the usual annual fair on principle, and promise to do so, so long as "horse race" is made its uppermost concern. And these are people who are not only interested in agricultural progress, but they are the very ones who would prove the most serviceable helpers to it. In any exposition which should have the interest of the farm primarily in view, and which should strive to foster rural industry in any of its forms, they would take a willing and anxious part; but they will not lend their character or their presence to the racing and jockeying that now usurp nearly the entire field and time. The capture of the agricultural associations by the jockeys, which has been a gradual affair, has now become so complete and general that, setting the moral aspect of the question aside, it is worth asking, of how much real value their exhibitions are to agriculture itself. What contribution to his real knowledge, what new idea, even, does the farmer get who attends them? Are the products collected by them arranged in any scientific order as respects their history or mode of growth, or are they, when taken together, a mere jumbled up museum of accidental successes and curious monstrosities?

What the farmer wishes to ascertain and might be helped to know, is the way to agricultural success. He would like to know how to grow the best possible crops with the most effective application and economy of labor; he would like to be instructed in the worth of fertilizers, in the value of new rotations, in the applicability of soils to specific crops, in the results of selling, and the conditions under which it has failed or succeeded. In short, whatever information the best farmers and experimenters have to give he wishes to avail himself of, but he has it must be confessed, small opportunity to get any of this knowledge at our ordinary fairs. In addition to the fact that the fairs make no effort to elicit or set forth such a contribution of orderly intelligence, there is the other fact that the premiums mostly go to the valuable horse. Directors who make nothing of giving $25 or $50 to a serpentine, think from a few shillings to $1 sufficient for exciting emulation in respect to the growth of a prominent and staple crop. New York Tribune.

Mr. M. D. Conway, the well-known lecturer and correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, says the Christian Intelligencer lately sent to that paper the following account of the last hours of Mrs. Harriet Martineau: "She had just been shown a letter asking if she believed in 'immortality and she replied: 'I have no reason to believe in another world. I have had enough of life in one, and can see no good reason why Harriet Martineau should be perpetuated.'" The writer adds that she was "a believer in magnetism and electricity," that she had never the slightest belief in spiritualism, and that she was "quite resolute in her philosophical opinions to the end."

Miss Martineau was of Huguenot descent, and a sister of the distinguished English Unitarian preacher and author, James Martineau, LL. D. She was a prolific writer of novels, tales, and contributions to reviews and magazines. Her volume of Travels in the United States in 1835 made her name familiar to American readers. Late in life she abridged and translated one of Comte's works on Positivism. Her first publication was a volume of Devotional Exercises for the Young. Her literary career became more and more faithless until she died denying her own immortality, satisfied with "one world" and without hope of another. The martyr race from which she sprang gave their lives by thousands for the faith which she repudiated. She could see no good reason why Harriet Martineau should be perpetuated." And so this woman of culture and philosophy died with no more hope beyond the grave than a horse or dog.

Learn to quench all slavish creature fear in the reverential fear of God. This is a cure by diversion. It is a rare piece of Christian wisdom to turn those passions of the soul which most predominate into spiritual channels; to turn natural anger into spiritual zeal, natural mirth into holy cheerfulness, and natural fear into holy dread and awe of God; this method of Christ prescribes, "Fear not their fear." But how shall we help it? Why, sanctify the Lord of hosts himself, and let Him be your fear and dread. Natural fear may be allayed for the present by natural remedy, or the removal of the occasion, but then it is but like a candle blown out with a puff of breath, which is easily blown in again; but if the fear of God extinguish it, then it is like a candle quenched in water, which cannot be rekindled. Baxter.

The late Dr. Macadam used to tell of a tipsy Scotchman making his way home upon a bright Sunday morning, when the good people were wending their way to the kirk. A little dog pulled the ribbon from the hand of a lady who was leading it, and as it ran away from her she appealed to the first passer-by, asking him to whistle for her poodle. "Woman," he retorted, with a solemnity of visage which only a drunken man can assume, "woman, this is not a day for whistling!"

Library for Our Brazilian Mission.

Shall we cripple our work in this grand empire? or shall we give it a fair chance to succeed? Brother Ransom has twice written to me for books. Any books which would be of value to the library of a preacher and scholar here will be of value there. I would suggest that all persons having valuable books which they are willing to contribute, send them, before the 1st of December, to the Mission-rooms, Nashville, Tenn. Since this matter has been pressing upon and giving me anxiety, a ray of light has beamed from Arkansas in the following letter:

"Rev. J. B. McFerrin, D.D.—I received some time ago a letter from Brother Thomas D. Smith, of Brazil, proposing to pay to our missionary there two dollars for every one we would send him in Sunday-school books. He stated that a very interesting Sunday school had been organized in the neighborhood, numbering thirty-eight scholars. I thought the proposition a very liberal one, and made mention of it to the brethren of the Fayetteville District Conference, at Cincinnati, Ark., last week; and they were only a few minutes in raising twenty-five dollars and twenty-five cents to purchase said books. Now we will turn the matter over to you, hoping that you will make the selection and purchase for Brother Smith. He lives near San Paulo, Brazil. Perhaps you had better send them to Brother Newman's address. I hope Dr. Redford will give us the benefit of his fifty-dollar proposition. With an effort upon the part of our preachers, I think that the Sunday schools of this conference could be induced to support a missionary, either in Brazil or China. T. F. BREWER.

"Fayetteville, Ark., Aug. 21, 1876."

I wish to ship all books sent so as to leave by the steamer, Dec. 20. Two classes of books are important—Sunday-school books for our English-speaking church. 2. Works of permanent value for the Mission-library. Please forward us either books or money for this purpose. If you forward the books at the cost of the missionary treasury for transportation, please send the list beforehand, that I may judge of the value and notify you whether we already have such books.

Art and Religion.

Kaulbach, the famous artist, wrote to his wife the following graphic account of a scene that will recall similar experiences to many a foreign tourist:

"I had long believed myself the only inmate of the church; suddenly in a side chapel I observed a charming young girl kneeling and praying devoutly before the picture of a saint. I glided nearer to her. I could not make out the picture, it hung too obliquely for me, but I saw the girl all the better. She moved her little head so gracefully toward the picture which I could not see; she gave the saint such enchanting glances from her lovely languishing blue eyes, that I began to have a great opinion of this saint. Greater and greater became my desire to see the picture which could make so fine an impression—what a masterpiece it must be—the maiden looked more and more inspired. I would not move from the spot where I was lest I should disturb her in her devotions. At length she stands up, takes a consecrated candle, lights it before the picture, makes a humble courtesy, crosses herself and vanishes from the church. I sprang at one bound from my retreat and stood before the picture. I felt myself grow red with vexation. The picture shows how the skin of St. Bartholomew was drawn over his ears, the executioners who perform the job are just pressing to sharpen their knives. One holds his in his mouth and pulls with both hands. And yet some say that art does not further devotion!"

The Congregationalist has nearly a broadside on the "Fermented Wine" question giving the written opinions of a large number of eminent missionaries in the East, including the names of Drs. Perkins, Ed. Smith, Van Dyck, Calhoun, etc., men "who have won the respect and confidence of the world of scholars by the distinguished ability and thorough fidelity which they have manifested in the translation of the Scriptures, and in the creation of a Christian literature in the Oriental tongues." It sums up their testimony in the following statements:

"These gentlemen unanimously declare: (1) that no such thing as unfermented wine is known in the East at the present day; (2) that there is every reason to believe no such thing was known there in the time of Christ; (3) that the idea of any such wine is an absurdity, which is instantly rejected by the men of the East; (4) that in doing what they can to combat the manifold evils of intemperance on their mission fields, they would find it a hindrance, and not a help, were they to take the so-called advanced theory that fermented wine is in itself, and of necessity, a curse."

A minister who lately preached some anniversary sermons insisted upon helping to count the collection given by a large and prosperous congregation, containing, moreover, several wealthy persons. He reported thus: 1.—No golden coin. 2. Only four half crowns. 3.—A lot of sixpence. 4.—A great preponderance of threepenny bits. 5.—A heap of copper and tid. A very bad sixpence. He means to preach a sermon on The coins we give.

An Englishman visiting Sweden, noticing their care for neglected children, who are taken from the streets and highways and placed in special schools, inquired if it was not costly. He received the suggestive answer: "Yes, it is costly, but not dear. We Swedes are not rich enough to let a child grow up in ignorance, misery, and crime, to become afterward a scourge to society as well as a disgrace to himself."

Religious Intelligence.

—The interest in the Presbyterian mission churches at Canton, China, still continues and frequent additions are made to the number of communicants.

—The missionaries and native evangelists in the Turkish Empire now address on every Sunday an aggregate of from 18,000 to 21,000 hearers.

—The Christian denomination has taken, as its appropriate work for the Centennial year, the erection of a memorial church in Brooklyn, New York.

—The revival on Corisco Island, one of the stations of the Gaboon mission, West Africa, still continues. The church now numbers about 100 members and there are 78 inquirers on the roll.

—The Presbyterian missionary in the Laos country, Northern Siam, needs an elephant. It is the only means of conveyance through the mountainous region in which the mission is located.

—The Moravian Unity's Elders' Conference reports receipts for the year $76 594, and expenses $95,454. The Moravian is not satisfied with the amount of the contributions of the American province.

—An anonymous friend has offered $5,000 to the Church Missionary Society toward commencing a mission in one of the countries of Central Asia where no Protestant missionaries are as yet stationed.

—A brothers' prayer meeting has been organized in connection with the mission church at Santander, Spain. Of the sixteen women who attend it some have suffered severely for their attachment to the gospel.

—The Examiner and Chronicle speaks of the diminishing number of the Anti-mission Baptists. They have become so few that they are now omitted from the enumeration of Baptists in the American Baptist Year Book.

—The Protestant Episcopal congregation in Victoria, British Columbia, which to the number of 400 persons lately seceded with its pastor, the Rev. E. Cridge, to the Reformed Episcopal Church, intends to erect a larger chapel than the one now occupied.

—Joseph Smith, Jr., son of the founder of the Mormon church, is preaching in California. He denies the headship of Brigham Young. He says that he has from 12,000 to 15,000 personal followers, and that the headquarters of the reformed church are at Plano, Ill.

—The mission in New Guinea, under the directions of the London Missionary Society, is more than meeting the sanguine expectations of its friends. The mission has several stations, at nearly all of which a religious interest prevails, and the prospects are most encouraging.

—The 50th anniversary of the laying of the Church Missionary College was observed by a meeting, recently held at the college, Islington, London, under the presidency of the Bishop of Melbourne. It was stated that nearly 450 missionaries had been sent forth from the college to all parts of the society's mission fields.

—The secularization or confiscation of the monasteries and convents in Greece, is proposed. There are now 138 monasteries and 7 nunneries, with 1,727 monks and 165 nuns in Greece. The yearly income of the conventual property is about $800,000 and the full value of the monasteries is estimated at from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000.

—The Episcopalians claim to be doing one-fourth the educational work in Utah outside of the common schools. They have two schools in Salt Lake City, one in Ogden, and one in Logan! One of their graduates is now in the General Theological Seminary, and two others will come East this fall for theological education.

—At the opening of a new Roman Catholic church in Bradford, Eng., to the erection of which a number of Protestants had subscribed; Monsignor Capel remarked that it was right for Catholics to receive such contributions, but they could not in return give to Protestant churches, because they believed the fundamental principles of Protestantism to be wrong.

—The Manbhum Baptist Association of Burmah reports 18 churches, 80 baptisms for the year, and 1,881 members. There are 878 pupils in the schools, and nearly 1,000 rupees were contributed. These operations are carried on by American Baptist missionaries, who have achieved a greater success in Burmah than is recorded of any heathen country.

—Rev. E. P. Hammond has closed his labors in San Francisco. A committee of about forty of the ministers of various denominations, of which Rev. Dr. A. L. Stone was chairman, have adopted a report expressing their grateful sense of the value of his seven weeks of evangelical labor there. The daily union prayer meetings are to be continued. Mr. Hammond has begun his labors in Oakland.

—The members of the American Board of the Methodist and other missions in Foo Chow, China, publish a child's paper called the Glad Tidings. It is sold to the Chinese for three mills per number. The twelve numbers if bound at the end of the year will make a story book, every other leaf containing a picture. The ladies of the American Board prepare it in the colloquial every other month, the Methodist ladies prepare it as often.

—One of the common instructions of a Hindoo mother to her son is this: "Take all the secular learning you can; but directly the padre speaks to you about religion, don't believe a word he says." Thus much of the good done at school is undone at home. When the lady missionaries bring Christian influence to bear upon the secluded inmates of the Hindoo zenanas they are sapping heathenism at its foundation, for the home is the citadel of the idolatry of India.

Our Young People.

BABY ARITHMETIC.

Rosebud dainty and fair in size,
Flower of all this world to me,
Come this way on your pretty feet—
Say, how much do you love me, sweet?

Red little mouth drawn gravely down,
White brow wearing a puzzled frown,
Wise little baby face intent
Trying to measure her love for me.

"I love you all the day and night,
All the dark and the sunshine bright,
All the candy to every store,
All the dollars, gold coin and more!

"Over the tops of the mountains high,
All the world, way up to the sky!"

Jessie's Rash Charge.

Jessie Munn lived in a grand house, with gable and bay windows, plate glass and gilding, and over the front porch there was stretched an extensive blue and white awning to keep the rays of the sun from beating into the wide hall. A little way back in an immense green-house sheltered every plant that was beautiful or rare, and far more than we could take the time to enumerate.

You would never understand how fine everything was until you had contrasted it with the place where Widow Slater lived with her only son, Fred. Neat and clean everything was, from the pane of glass over the door to the shining milk pails that hung on the pickets of fence; but a plainer house, and rooms more devoid of all that we call beauty, you could not imagine.

We are only peeping at things, to understand that Jessie Munn was very rich, and Fred Slater was very, very poor. Now surely you will decide that she ought to have been extraordinarily kind to Fred; that it would have been right for her to have remembered that God had made them both, and that while Fred was so happy in his poor-looking home he was as sensitive as she, and that a kind word now and then would have given him pleasure. God so loves to make us happy, and does so much for us that we ought to be ready to share at least kind words with those who are not so favored as we.

Jessie had a young brother named Gyp, and it happened that the two boys were what they would call great cronies. They had often a great deal of fun with Gyp, and Gyp was a pet crow that someone had given to Alick, because he was so satiated with other toys and pets.

Was that not an ugly pet? He was very black and very tame; but he had a great long bill and rather long legs, which looked all the longer because his tail feathers had not fully grown out. When Gyp was good, and didn't call "Caw, Caw," all the time, it was not so bad; but, like little boys and girls, Gyp was sometimes very naughty, and had to be punished, and then Alick would shut him up in a dark closet; and, would you believe it, Master Gyp did not care anything for the punishment, for he went to sleep. I guess he thought it was night. Was he not a funny crow?

One day there was great confusion in Mr. Munn's house, for something had been lost—nothing less than a handsome ring and ring belonging to Jessie's mother. They searched and searched, but nowhere could they find it; no one had seen it, and there was no one to accuse of taking it, not even the servants, we all know they often get blamed for what they have not done, for these had been in the house since Jessie was a wee little baby.

But when they had become tired of looking for the ring Jessie came running into her mother's room, out of breath and full of excitement and exclaiming: "Oh! mamma, I know who has taken the ring."

"Do you, Jessie? Tell me quickly, that I may find it," said Mrs. Munn.

"Fred Slater."

"Impossible, my daughter; how could you think so?"

"Oh! because, I feel most sure; but you must ask him."

Jessie's manner was a little mysterious; so her mother, thinking that there might be some truth in it, called Fred into the library. He denied it over and over, and was so shocked by the accusation that he burst into tears and ran away home to tell his mother; and the boy was really so much excited that he had quite a serious fit of illness.

When Jessie was questioned closely it was proved that it was a very rash charge for her to make against an innocent boy, and she had never stopped to consider the consequences of what she had said.

Be careful, little boys and girls, not to be guilty of Jessie's fault, but try to remember that your playfellows have feelings as well as yourselves; and always be sure that your charge is right before you make it; for God never forgets to look at your wheres you do wrong.

I must not omit to tell you who was really the thief. Naughty Gyp was the one who had caused all the trouble. He stole something else pretty soon, and Mr. Munn, who knew that his nature led him to hide away what he had taken, watched him, and thus discovered the thing hidden as snugly as possible in a crevice of an old tree in the garden.

Fred did not lose by all this, for Mr. Munn has shown him so many real kindnesses that he has long ago forgiven Jessie for the suffering that she caused him.

Gyp was not put into the closet at that time, but was sent away altogether, for even Alick was disgusted by his wicked tricks.

If you ever feel inclined to do a mean thing, remember what trouble Gyp caused, and think before you speak.—New York Observer.

Tom's Victory.

"I hate Ned Lane," said Tom Bixby, dabbling up his tasks, and stamping his feet. "He's a mean, spiteful, wicked boy. I wish he was dead, I do!"

Then Tom broke down and fairly burst into tears. His mother, who had heard his angry words, came out to the garden to see what had caused them. She, too, was indignant at what she saw. There was Tom's pet doggie, Fawn, stretched out cold and still on the grass. Around his neck a string was tied, from which dangled a card. On it these words were written in a scraggy, blustaf hand:

"He'll never chase my chickens no more. NED LANE."

"Oh, mother!" cried Tom, "look at poor, poor Fawn. See what that cruel Ned has done. Oh, how I hate him. I'll be revenged!"

Fawn had been a favorite with the Bixby family, and in spite of the fact that he would pursue chickens, and tear the dresses of passing ladies, or catch and hide away stockings and handkerchiefs when they were laid upon the grass to bleach, Mrs. Bixby and Jane were thinking with Tom. She knew that Ned Lane had been very angry because of the loss of his own rare fowls which Fawn had killed and torn to pieces, and he set the Fawn had been a great annoyance to the neighbors' plants and trees.

But what to do with Ned was the question, for Tom's heart was almost broken.

"Tom," she said, "you say you hate Ned. Do you wish, what I heard you say just now, to be really revenged?"

"Yes, mother, I want to see him suffer. I wish all his chickens were gone."

"Ned has done a cruel deed, and I do not wonder that you are deeply grieved at it, my son, for he that hateth his brother is a murderer."

"He's not my brother."

"In one sense he is; yet I am sure you do not mean that you would really like to see him dead, or feel like your dog. If you think of the grieving of your words I think you would wish him no such ill. I think there is a way by which you can make him very sorry for this, and yet keep your own self-respect."

The gentle tones went their way to Tom's heart. He sat down by his mother, and she passed her soft hand over his hot brow, and soothed him tenderly. Then she gave him her plan for being quits, as he called it, with Ned, and for getting the victory.

The next day, when Ned Lane met Tom Bixby on his way to school, he was rather mortified to hear nothing about Fawn. He was prepared to defend himself if attacked. But Tom passed in silence. He tried to say "Hello, Ned!" but failed in the attempt. All the morning, however, when the boys were in the classes together, Tom looked and acted as usual, and at recess he engaged heartily in games with the other boys.

When Ned, feeling more and more uncomfortable, went home to dinner, a surprise awaited him. A superb pair of Brahma pootra fowls had arrived, with a string and card attached:

"For those my poor Fawn had chased. TOM BIXBY."

I cannot say truly that the two from this time became fast friends, but this I know, that Ned Lane was thoroughly ashamed of his mean and unworthy action, and never after was guilty of the like cruelty, while Tom felt, even at Fawn's grave, that forgiveness is sweeter than revenge. Christian at Work.

"WOMAN!" A gentleman took his son, a drunken bow in a car, where the inmates were lighting and swearing and said he:

"Do you know what caused all this?"

"No, sir."

Hesitated, pointing to the fighters, said: "The devil will soon take a hand in."

The boy started back with terror and exclaimed:

"No!"

Then he took the child to the edge of a pool with delirium tremens. The boy gazed upon him affrighted, as the drunkard raved and tore, and, thinking the demons were after him, cried: "Leave me alone! Leave me alone! I see 'em coming!"

"Do you know the cause of this, my boy?"

"No, sir."

"This is caused by drink. Will you have some?" and the boy shrank back with a shudder as he refused the cup.

Next they called at the miserable hovel of a drunkard, where was squalid poverty, and the drunken father beating his wife, and with oaths knocking down his children.

"What has caused this?" said the father.

The son was silent.

When asked if he was sure, he declared he would never touch a drop in his life.

But suppose the lad should be invited to a wedding feast where, with fruit, and cake, the wine cup is passed, and all scenes of cheerfulness and gayety, where all the friends are respectable, beloved, and kind to each other, and he should be asked to drink, would he refuse?

Or suppose him walking out with his father on New Year's day to call on his young lady friends, to enjoy the festivity of the ushering in of the new year. With other things, wine is handed to him by a smiling girl. His noble hearted father, whose he loves, presses the wine glass to his lips, and compliments the young lady on the excellence of its quality; what wonder if the son follow his example?

"I wonder at you, Rab, setting there on such a fine day, reading that trash o' novels. Can'ye no gang out and tak' a walk and leave the blackguard books for a time?" "But, my dear aunt," replied the studious Rab, "I am not reading novels. This book holding it up before the old lady, contains an account of the conquest of Peru." "The conquest of Peru," indignantly exclaimed the old lady, "an' who was he but a blackguard."

When a boy was asked "Where was the text this morning?" "It was somewhere in hatchels." "In hatchels?" No, it was in Acts." "Well, I knew it was something that would cut," said the boy, triumphantly.

Treasure in Heaven.

It is evident that where the treasure is there will the heart be also. If the affections be set on things above, it is because these things are loved and desired above earthly things. If, on the other hand, the affections are set on earthly things, it is because these are the treasures—the absorbing objects of thought and pursuit. Heaven, with a large class, is simply the last resort of the worldly mind when the world must be given up. For the present the world is the main thing, and the heart clings to it as the chief good. When the inevitable comes it will be time to break away from what can no longer be enjoyed, and to accept the hope of something hereafter. The heart is here while there is anything for it to love, and the mere thought of exchanging earth for heaven is the saddest subject that crosses the mind.

The Christian's treasure is in heaven, and his heart is there also. He may have much earthly substance, and his lot may be exceptionally pleasant and prosperous. Success crowns his temporal enterprises, domestic felicity gladdens his home, and the smiles of a benign Providence are upon his affairs. But he has learned to estimate these for what they really are, not as his permanent and abiding heritage, but as things temporal and soon to pass away. His treasure is above, and his occupies his thoughts, and is his principal concern. This habitual sense of the unseen, and the lively enlistment of the affections in it, is one of the best tests of the basis of our hopes. If our hearts are in the world it is not likely that we have any well assured interest in the incorruptible inheritance.

Christ never uttered anything more conclusive or more self-revealing than the declaration: "For where your treasure is there will your heart be also." There may be a heaven, but it is nothing at present to those who have no treasure there, and the heart is not there because it does not love heavenly things. We might infer that heaven is utter emptiness—a moral vacuum—until each individual, for himself, has made it the storehouse of his treasure and the dwelling place of his heart. If no treasure is laid up there beforehand it will be as an unfurnished house, or as a wilderness or desert waste. If such a thing could be, heaven, with no personal treasure, and with no heart in it, would be hell. The traveler to foreign countries, by bills of exchange or other means, places his money there before he starts, that he may enjoy his tour, and not be left beggared and desolate in a strange land. What well grounded hope can we have if we come to the frontiers of eternity, and are conscious that we have made no preparation for our security and well being beyond the grave?

A condition of having treasure in heaven would seem to be that we have none on earth. Not, of course, in the literal sense of being divested of earthly possessions, but that these possessions have not to us the character of treasure—objects of our supreme love and trust. God and mammon are the two masters, one of whom must be chosen. The heart must go to one or the other, and it always goes along with its treasure. To use the world without abusing it, and so to possess and enjoy it that our happiness is in spiritual and heavenly things, is the solution. The money-making man may also be making an estate in heaven, if his treasure and heart are there. But "how hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God?"

By being good and by doing good we may lay up treasure in heaven. Character is the essential. There is for us but one way of attaining it. The blood of Christ must cleanse, the Holy Spirit must renew the nature. The work of holiness wrought in us enriches us forever. Heaven cannot be an unfurnished place to the pure in heart. With sins forgiven, and a regenerated soul, there is room and treasure for us in the Father's house. By every grace attained, by the growth and completeness of it, and by the perfecting of our faith and patience through trial, we are adding to our store in heaven. To lay up treasure in heaven is to be rich in faith, and to reach after the uttermost of perfection in the spiritual life. The millionaire carries about him all his wealth. That wealth may be in lands, stocks, mortgages, bonds, and bank deposits, but the titles to all is here in his own person. The Christian's title to the heavenly treasure is in himself, in his acceptance of Christ as his atoning sacrifice, and in the character which grace has wrought in him. Without holiness no man shall see the Lord. For a sinner, unconverted, to talk of treasure in heaven, would be as wild as for a pauper in the alms-house to claim the real estate of the parish.

To lay up treasure in heaven we must do good. In the use of money there is a way of transmuting it into the gold of eternal life. By a sanctified use of it we may make to ourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness. Timothy was to charge them that are rich in this world, "that they do good, that they be rich in good works, willing to communicate, laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life." All good works wrought in faith and with a single eye have their reward. They that work for Christ may have small wages here, but they are accumulating the true riches elsewhere. The inheritance may dwindle here, but it is growing yonder. It may be a hand-to-mouth business with them in this world, but an imperishable store is gathering for them in the world to come.

The hour is coming with us all when this question of treasure in heaven will have for us a supreme meaning. With all lost here, shall we then have the joy of feeling that we have the riches of everlasting life?

Perplexed.

How to write anything about the support of the ministry that has not been written would perplex anybody. Moses, Christ, and Paul have delivered their teachings on the subject, and from the fathers down to the present hour we have had homilies, exhortations, tracts, volumes, and newspaper articles without number. And yet the preachers are not supported, and probably never will be.

Good comes out of this evil, perhaps, in keeping ambitious and covetous persons out of the ministry, and it puts God's embassadors in a position to sympathize with the most of their flocks, who are also filled with anxiety concerning their daily bread. If money came too freely and abundantly it might work to the detriment of our spirituality. In some respects the meagerness of the contributions to religious purposes is decidedly conservative, and it may be well that our church and mission funds are always short. Stinginess and inconsiderateness may have their mission for good.

But, on the other hand, they have serious drawbacks. The progress of the gospel is retarded, starving preachers are embarrassed in their work, and the blessedness of the duty of giving is a lost and forfeited boon to a great many people. A preacher who goes to his appointment, leaving at home a family suffering for comfortable food and clothing, can have but little heart for his work. To preach to those who are careless and indifferent about his support is up-hill work for the very best and most devoted. If driven to supplement his support by secular pursuits, so much time and strength are taken from his ministry, and the church is largely the loser by the operation. A comfortable support would, we believe, nearly double the effectiveness of our ministry, and for the carnal things bestowed the churches would receive back a hundred-fold in spiritual. The cry of lack of bread and raiment comes up to us from various quarters—from the mountains of Arkansas, the uplands of Mississippi, from the rich alluvial of Louisiana, from remote sections of Alabama, and in some instances from the towns and cities.

The support of the ministry with us is a connectional unit. In this interest are included Bishops, effective pastors, superannuated preachers, and the widows and orphans of preachers who have died in the regular work. These all have equal pro rata claims upon us, which should be punctually and fully met. Last week we published an appeal for the superannuates, and the widows and orphans. If the preachers will present this cause to the people, and urge it with such force as its merits demand, there will be a generous response. Ordinary philanthropy, justice, and even the most sordid type of piety, must feel the obligation. The pastor cannot well talk for himself, but he can and ought to plead for these needy and deserving ones for whom the church is pledged to care. The following from the New York Christian Advocate was written with reference to the support of their Bishops, but it applies equally to ours, and is broad enough to apply to the whole subject of ministerial support:

What the church wants is average men, concentrated into greatness. It may require time to extend this care and conviction down the entire line. But we must keep the few men who are now intrusted and loaded with our vast interests free from diverting care for bread. It is not necessary to endow them in such a way as to send large fortunes down their line to after generations. Their children, like themselves, and like most of us, can start even, and as e all they can make. But the men themselves must be kept about their one work.

Let us meet their necessities and comforts, and see to it that they meet the necessities of their places. Secure them by our policy in a good support; then demand their undivided attention to the work that is too great even for the greatest among us.

Bishop James, who grew to such majestic stature, gave undivided attention to his work. Having a little place out in the country, he visited it a half a day each year for a settlement with his tenant, and that was all of the church's time he gave to it. This scrupulous devotion exalted him into great usefulness—doubtless, the greatest usefulness of any man of this or the last generation—and, consequently, into the most substantial greatness. This we take to be a model life. The church must make such lives possible. Average preachers with single eye are the demand. Average men in the episcopacy with single eye are also the demand.

Our system has worked well so far. We have distanced all our associates. Let us keep it in good order! It does cost something to keep up our superintendency, but it is good economy. It costs less in men and money than any other system yet developed. Churches with settled pastors, who care for themselves (both churches and pastors,) show some sad figures. Less than one-half of their preachers are settled—that is, on the average their preachers spend one-half of their time hunting for a settlement. Look at the thousands of vacant pulpits in this country! Hundreds of empty churches in needy communities without services for months at a time, while there are hardly a score of vacant Methodist pulpits in the whole number. All our people have preaching, and all our preachers have work. Surely we can afford to pay something for a system of superintendency that keeps us on with so little waste and cost of both men and money. Six cents a member per year will pay all the salaries, and house rent, and traveling expenses.

In looking at this question we must remember that this care is now on the church. The book agents cannot loan any more than enough to pay the house rent an traveling expenses. And we cannot afford to put our Bishops into the hands of a few wealthy men. They belong to the whole church, and must not be mortgaged for living expenses. Wealth has its full influence, even in the best of hands. And our way to keep our Bishops independent is to give them the backing of the entire church.

Not Disappointed.

"I am not disappointed," were the last words of Bishop James. This was his response to the question as to his feelings and prospects as he was passing through the valley and shadow of death. It is a unique and very comforting testimony. There is a tone of moderation and understatement about it, and yet it is strong, comprehensive, and significant when interpreted by the life and character of him who uttered it. It was his rendering of the promise: "And he that believeth in him shall not be confounded." The good Bishop had lived for that hour, labored in view of it, had assuredly counted on the divine support, and when the trial came he was not disappointed. Dying grace came in the dying hour, and the rod and staff were there to comfort him. Such witness should be worth something to convince unbelievers, and to strengthen the faith of God's children. It will be true of all faithful Christians, as it has been of those who have met the last enemy, that "whosoever believeth in him shall not be ashamed." We append an extract from the address of Bishop Simpson delivered at the funeral of the deceased Bishop:

My last interview with him was on the day of the funeral of his precious wife. I have not since seen him. On that occasion I spent some two hours of the afternoon in his society, and, while his soul was oppressed with deep affliction, when we turned in conversation for a moment from his personal bereavement, his heart was on the church and its interests—on its general outlook, on the coming Conferences he hoped to attend, on the probable revival of the work of God, on our missionary field, and on the anxiety he had for the enlargement of the work. His soul seemed to be breaking out with energy, above even the grief he felt in consequence of his own affliction, on behalf of the interests of the church of Christ. The last time I took his hand was just beside the casket, as he sat on one side of it, and I was compelled to say farewell. A tear was in his eye and on his cheek, but he sat with all the calmness and placidness of manner that was so uniformly his. And I can only think of him to-day as he sat beside that casket with a hope of immortality, a beautiful trust in the resurrection of the dead. And little did I think that so soon we would be called to mourn him. But he has gone.

His character has been analyzed to-day very beautifully; and all his characteristics existed in force—his clear and vigorous intellect, his very quick perception, his logical powers, his vivid imagination, that gave him grasp of all surrounding circumstances, and his deep piety, bringing all to the foot of the cross. But I believe, after all, the great and striking feature in Bishop Janes' character was the strength of his will. He had one of the most indomitable wills that I think ever was placed in a man's bosom, fitting him for any work or for any enterprise. If he had been a general he would have been like Charles the Twelfth, or Napoleon, sparing neither himself nor his army. As a statesman, he would have led this country forward without regard to health. But the manifestation of his will was modified by his loving spirit, his deep devotion, his tender regard for the feelings, the reputation, the interests, and the honor of his brethren; and, only occasionally did you see its outbursts, at some moment of decision, some moment requiring energy. Then, just as if from the bosom of some placid flood, where you never suspected winds or lightning flash or thunder blast, there came an outburst that almost startled you; his whole nature would rise at once; and you knew you were in the presence of a master mind when Bishop James was aroused, and he displayed the power of his will. But this will was manifested more in its government of himself. He controlled his feelings; he was naturally quick and impulsive, but in all perplexity and trial he was affectionate and tender. The strength of his will made him consecrate his whole powers to the church. In his journeys I have known him to travel night after night, and preach day after day. Where his appointments could not be reached I have known him to hire wagons, and where they could not convey us he would procure horses, and ride the whole hours of the night through to fill his appointments the next morning. I never knew a man who spared himself so little, and was so determined to meet all engagements that he had made.

I remember very well one sermon in particular which he preached. I admired it for the grandeur of its scope, for its knowledge of character, for its inspiration on the church. I was no little surprised, when he finished it, to find that the greater part of the time he had spoken with a heavy chill upon him. It commenced just before he went into the pulpit, and it was on him the greater part of the time, leaving him only just about the close. But he would preach; chill or no chill; sickness or no sickness, if he had an appointment he would fill it. Dr. Chapman spoke of his resemblance to some of the apostles. In that sermon to which I alluded, and in his peroration, Bishop James used language which I shall never forget. After showing how that the workers with Christ would be sharers of his glory, he urged upon the ministers a holy ambition; he urged them to set their mark high, and, among other things, said he intended, God helping him, if he could, to get as near the throne as the Apostle Paul. It was strong language, and yet, such was the ardor of his soul, he seemed to feel it all. It was a holy ambition. For depth of emotion, for perfectness of consecration, for dedication of the whole life and power to the service of God, especially in the church of which he was a member and an instrument for good, I have never known his superior. My belief is that few wiser, holier, more consecrated, and more successful ministers have ever gone up to glory.

Rev. Dr. Myers.

The editor of the Southern Christian Advocate in a feeling and excellent sketch of Dr. Myers gives an outline of his record as follows:

With the profound sorrow of a personal bereavement we announce the death of this distinguished and devoted minister of Christ, who fell a martyr to duty, in Savannah, Ga., at 7 A. M. of Tuesday, September the 26th. Scarcely was the fact of his prostration by the prevailing pestilence generally known, when the wires thrilled the hearts of thousands with the melancholy tidings of his death. Having completed the important task committed to him as chairman of the Southern Commission at Cape May, he proceeded to New York to supervise the preparation for the press of the Journal of the Joint Commission. While performing this service intelligence reached him of the outbreak of the pestilence in Savannah; and, true pastor that he was, he instantly recognized the supreme claims of his flock upon him, and returned without a moment's delay to lay down his life, if need be, in their service. With the unflinching fortitude and self-forgetful assiduity which characterized his discharge of duty in every field he entered at once upon his merciful ministrations to the stricken community; nor did he falter until himself arrested by the foe whose ravages were calling forth all his energies of heart and hand. His recent sojourn in a higher latitude doubtless predisposed his system to imbibe the infection, while its powers of resistance were impaired by exhausting labors. For a few short days he wrestled with the destroyer, and then, o'ermastered in the unequal struggle, he fell, to be numbered with the noblest victims of the deadly scourge. A devoted wife and large family of loving sons and daughters suffer by this blow a bereavement which may not be estimated, save by such as have drained a like bitter cup. A whole church quivers under the stroke which has felled one of its foremost champions. The Providence which permits a visitation, to our seeming so calamitous, is not less wise than inscrutable, and reverently, though with tears, we obey his speech: "Be still, and know that I am God."

Dr. Myers was born in Orange county, New York, in 1816, and had just completed his sixtieth year. His father emigrated to Florida in his early childhood, and he was reared to manhood in that State. After thorough academic training he entered Randolph-Macon College, Virginia, and graduated with distinction in 1838. Upon leaving college he was employed in the Georgia Conference Manual Labor School—an educational enterprise which subsequently developed into the present Emory College, at Oxford, Ga. In January, 1841, he was admitted on trial into the Georgia Conference, and was regularly engaged in the work of the pastorate until 1845, when he was elected to the professorship of Natural Science in the Wesleyan Female College, at Macon. This position he filled with such conspicuous ability and faithfulness that when Dr. Ellison resigned the presidency the trustees judged it unnecessary to go beyond the faculty for a worthy successor, and promptly called Professor Myers to that responsible position. With eminent success he met all its onerous and delicate claims, until he was elected editor of the Southern Christian Advocate, upon the resignation of Doctor now Bishop Wightman, in 1854. His editorial career covered the long period of seventeen years, and was marked throughout by such distinguished service to the church as won for him an unquestioned place among its wisest counselors and most trusted leaders. In the autumn of 1871 he retired from the editorship, to resume the presidency of Wesleyan Female College, to which he was called upon the death of the lamented Dr. Bonell. After devoting three years of ripened scholarship and enlarged experience to this field of his earlier toil, he determined to resume regular ministerial work. At the conference held at Savannah in December, 1874, he was appointed to Trinity church, in that city, and at the ensuing session he was returned to the same charge—from the bosom of which, loved and lamented, he passed to his reward on high.

Rev. G. G. N. McDonell, presiding elder, writing to the Southern Christian Advocate of September 28, gives the following particulars of Dr. Myers, last hours:

About the first object that met my gaze upon entering Savannah was the hearse on its sad mission—and next a wagon with two coffins. The city does not look as deserted as in 1854—but the large majority of houses are closed, showing that the occupants are away. I had an affectingly sad interview with our bereaved sister Myers and her sister. She seems overwhelmed at the sense of her great loss, and yet is trying to be fully resigned to the will of God. The doctor was taken sick last Thursday. He did not have the usual accompaniments of chill, headache and backache; but his attack seemed more like physical prostration, followed by light fever. He seemed to be doing very well up to Sunday night, when his nervousness increased, and the brain became excited. From that time onward he grew steadily worse until his death. He made light of his attack in the outset, thought it was foolish to be in bed when he was not suffering, but gave himself up to the doctor's directions. When he was informed that his end was most probably approaching, he said, "I am ready, and have been for a long time." His mind was evidently troubled about the church and his family, and he made several ineffectual attempts to express himself, but his tongue seemed paralyzed, and he could only utter unintelligible words. He then motioned for paper and pencil. Brother Walker supplied his hand while he tried to write, but with the same result. He then seemed to realize his inability to express his wishes and laid back upon the pillow, and very quietly, without pain or struggle, breathed his last in a few minutes. Thus closed the useful life of our beloved brother. Truly he fell at his post, in the fearless discharge of his duties as a minister of Christ, and a pastor honored and beloved by his flock, and admired and esteemed by the community in which he lived and died.

I got only admired Dr. Myers, but loved him as a friend and brother. The more I saw of him, and the nearer I got to him; the more I found to appreciate and love. My heart feels sorely bereaved, and I cannot restrain my tears as I pen these hurried lines to you.

Reinterment.

On Tuesday, October 3, the reinterment of the remains of Bishops McKendree and Soule took place within the grounds of Vanderbilt University. The Nashville Christian Advocate, giving an account of the event, says:

They had been conveyed the night before to the university, inclosed in new coffins and substantial cedar cases. At three o'clock they were brought out in front of the university, and while the bell with solemn toll was sounding the knell at every half minute, the procession moved silently and slow to the lovely site selected for the last resting-place of the sacred remains. Bishop McTyeire and Dr. McFerrin moved in advance, then followed the remains of Bishop McKendree, borne by the Revs. Garrett Martin, S. P. Whiten, J. G. Ray, Joel W. Whitten, W. D. F. Sawrie and John F. Hughes. Then followed the remains of Bishop Soule, borne by the Revs. C. B. Faris, A. Mizell, G. W. Winn, W. A. Turner, James Atkins, T. J. Duncan, R. P. Gray, R. A. Wilson—other ministers, as T. L. Moody, T. H. Hinson, J. A. McFerrin, etc., were close by to give relief. A large number of ministers came next—then the faculty of the university—then citizens. Places were reserved near the head of the grave for the friends of the deceased who expressed great satisfaction with the site chosen for the last resting-place of the sacred remains. A part of the hymn, "And let this feeble body fail," was sung, and the sweet notes of that sublime hymn rolled in rich volume over the campus. An impressive prayer was offered by the Rev. F. A. Owen. Bishop McTyeire then delivered a most appropriate address, portraying the characters and lives of the two bishops. The remains were then laid in their "earthen bed"—side by side—there to sleep together till the resurrection. They were "true yoke fellows" on earth—they are bright Gemini in heaven—it is well that their remains are united in the grave. Dr. McFerrin followed in another suitable and affecting address, "How firm a foundation"—followed by the doxology in Old Hundred—was then sung—the benediction was pronounced by the bishop, and the capacious grave was filled by students of the university—and nothing now remains to be done but the erection of a monument to mark the sacred spot. Let it be plain, let it be simple, let it be solid—like the men it will commemorate—and let it be erected without delay.

DEATH OF H. W. DRAKE, ESQ. A note from E. W. Wiles and Joseph Gorlon informs us that this active and gifted layman of our Church died at his residence in Waterproof, Louisiana, on October 6. His disease was pneumonia. Bro. Drake was a son of Rev. Dr. B. M. Drake, of the Mississippi Conference, who in his time was a leader in our Church. The son proved himself worthy of so honored a parentage. A noble man he was, a Christian gentleman, and a devoted Methodist. He stood high in his profession as a lawyer, and was unusually loved and respected. We greatly mourn the loss of our friend and brother. May God sustain the bereaved family. We doubt not a suitable obituary will be furnished soon.

Rev. J. C. Miller, the recently elected president of Soule University, Chappel Hill, Texas, was so unfortunate as to be detained ten days in New Orleans by the Galveston quarantine. President Miller was in our office on Monday, October 9, and expected to get off on Tuesday for his destination. He is an experienced teacher, for several years president of Centenary College, and a man of energy and enterprise. He will, of course, receive a cordial welcome in Texas, and we trust that his labors at Chappel Hill may be crowned with abundant success.

There are few, if any, institutions of learning more deserving of patronage, or more highly indorsed and recommended, than Bethel Academy, Virginia. We are glad to learn that the fall session has opened prosperously with an increased attendance of thirty per cent. over that of last year. Boys in this institution are prepared for university or business. By reference to the advertisement our readers will find full particulars concerning terms and all needed information.

Rev. S. B. Suratt, formerly of the Louisiana Conference, and at present one of our pastors in Memphis, kindly invites the publisher and editor to attend the approaching session of the Memphis Conference. We should like it much if we could pay the brethren a visit, but we fear it is a hopeless case. We pray that there may be a good time at the Conference, and that the Spirit may be poured upon the preachers and people.

In the published appointments of the Columbia Conference we missed the name of Bro. J. S. Bradley. We learn by a private letter from Rev. T. B. White that Bro. Bradley has been transferred back to the Louisiana Conference. Bro. Bradley will be heartily and gladly welcomed by his brethren on his return. Bro. White is appointed to Albany and Corvallis, and writes hopefully of the prospects of our church in Oregon.

HONORARY.—Mr. Editor: Please publish that the degree of Artium Magister, pro causa honoris, was conferred on the Rev. John W. Atkisson, president of the East Mississippi Female College, at Meridian, Miss., at the last commencement of Centenary College of Louisiana. It has been overlooked in the former notices of the commencement.

Conference Claimants.

To the Preachers of the Mississippi Conference:

BRETHREN: As a member of the Joint Board of Finance, I would add a few words to the urgent appeal made by Bro. Norsworthy in the ADVOCATE of the fifth instant, and remind you of the report made by the board, and published in the minutes of the last Annual Conference. We had great difficulty in obtaining satisfactory information concerning the claimants in all cases, and in some cases we could get no information whatever; hence there was some dissatisfaction with the distribution of funds made by us. No member of the board was fully satisfied with the distribution made, but it was the very best that could have been made under the circumstances. At the coming session of Conference we want to do better, and render an exact distribution. This we can do if the preachers will take care to get correct information as to the health of the claimants, the number of persons in the family, their respective ages, and what property or sources of income they have; and to bring this information to Conference, and give it to the board. We can then act advisedly, and not be annoyed by contradictory rumors. It is not asking too much of the preachers to make the above request. We not only ask, but insist respectfully that it shall be done.

Truly, etc., LAYMAN.

NATCHEZ, October 7, 1876.

Columbia Annual Conference

This Conference met at Corvallis, Oregon, September 15, Bishop Marvin presiding. Conference adjourned on Monday, September 18. The following are the appointments:

Willamette District.—N. M. Skipworth, P. E. Eugene and Coast Mission, to be supplied; Harrisburg, to be supplied by B. R. Baxter; Lebanon and Tangent, Peter A. Moses; Junction City, E. G. Michael; Corvallis and Albany, T. B. White; Dallas, D. C. McFarland; Yamhill and Tillamook, Thornton P. Haynes; Oregon City, R. C. Martin; Joseph Emery, Corvallis College.

Jacksonville District.—J. W. Stahl, P. E. Jacksonville, J. R. N. Bell; Little Rock, to be supplied by A. C. Newlett; Applegate, Horlin T. Berry; Kerbyville, to be supplied by Wm. Slagle; Coquille, J. B. Perkins; Scotland, J. W. Stahl.

The Mountain District.—R. C. Oglesby, P. E. Baker City, J. W. Greve; Grand Ronde, J. W. Compton; Weston, R. C. Oglesby; Pendleton, S. W. Davies; Walla Walla, F. D. Mays; Dalton and Waitsburg, J. James; Louiston, to be supplied; Boise and Piatt, to be supplied.

Publishing Committee, E. W. D. Boyd, D. C. McFarland, Joseph Emery.

The Conference then adjourned sine die.

JOSEPH EMERY, Sec.

Kentucky Conference.

The Kentucky Conference held its session at Nicholasville, Sept. 13—19. Bishop Keener presided. The Rev. F. Vanmeter was secretary, assisted. The conference was entertained in the noblest Kentucky style of hospitality. We are obliged to the courteous secretary for prompt copies of minutes, from which we learn that there were seven admitted on trial, to wit: John W. Hughes, Alexander Jones, James M. Carter, Taylor W. Barker, John J. Dickey, Jerome H. Pearce, J. S. Sims. Re-admitted on trial, J. F. Davis, R. B. Owen, F. A. Savage, T. W. McInteer, J. H. Williams. Admitted in full connection, H. A. Smith, W. Spates, Alexander Redd, C. Newton, L. D. Shaw, R. H. Whitman, C. F. Reid. Readmitted, Z. Lelon. B. Arbogast, located. Supernumerary, J. Holmes, S. Noel, H. M. Linney, P. E. Kavanaugh, E. P. Burkner, G. B. Poage. Transmitted, J. C. Crow, Elkanah Wilson, J. C. Hardy, W. C. Atmore, B. Landrum, J. Strother, T. P. C. Coleman, W. Mead. Abbett. The name of W. A. G. Emmerson was restored to the Presiding Elder. White members, 20 008; last year, 19,306—increase, 702; colored, 121; last year, 117—increase, 4; local preachers, 94; last year, 111—decrease, 17. Please compare the manuscript minutes of last year with our printed minutes. Infants baptized, 368; last year, 1,171. Sunday schools, 180; officers, 1,279; scholars, 8 543. Necessary for claimants, $3,000; collected $1 95. For missions, $3,463 45. Next session is to be at Winchester.

The Rev. Dr. A. T. Scruggs, as we learn by letter from him, says the Western Methodist, is transferred from the St. Louis to the Memphis Conference—not to the North Mississippi Conference, as published before. Just as hearty a welcome awaits him in transferring to the Memphis Conference as he would have received from the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference; and in this country he is and will be at home. The doctor was induced to ask a transfer on account of the effect of the rigorous climate of Mississippi on his health, and that of his family. We trust they both will realize all-expected benefit from the change of climate.

NOTICE.—The committee to locate the District Parsonage for Brandon District, Mississippi Conference, will meet at Forest Line on Thursday, November 9, as Tuesday, the 7th, instead of day formerly appointed, is election day.

WILL H. LEITH, Chairman.

MURDER OF A PROTESTANT.—The Church Journal publishes the following letter from P. G. Hernandez, Bishop elect of the church in Mexico, addressed to a friend in New York city, giving intelligence of the murder of one of the Protestant missionaries. The death of a second, from wounds received nearly a year ago, is also announced.

"MEXICO, Aug. 7, 1876.

"The Church of Christ moves forward grandly in this beautiful land, in spite of the obstacles that it has to meet.

"A few days since, in the town of Chatlinchan, in the district of Texcoco, the enemies of the gospel cruelly assassinated our brother Jose Angeles, and very seriously wounded Hilario Lopez, simply for their faith.

"When the brethren of the church in that town came to see me, announcing the violent death of Jose Angeles, although startled and sorrowing, they yet, full of Christian courage, were determined to sustain the holy cause of Christ, even though one after another of their number might have to die the martyr's death. With Christian charity they had forgiven their persecutors.

"What motive had those persecutors to assassinate a Christian who had done them no harm? None other than that he had confessed Jesus, believed in him as his only Savior, and searched the Scriptures.

"The twenty-third of last month—day of rest and prayer for it was the Lord's day—was the day selected by the assassins of that martyr of the gospel to put him to death most cruelly. They stabbed him twenty five times."

A letter from Mrs. Hooker, in the city of Mexico, of the same date as the above, also mentions the death of "Senor Bonillo, who in company with Mr. Belmeonart, was assaulted by the mob in the Cemetery of Canutla Moreles, last November. His widow told me that his death resulted from the blows he then received."

James Lick, the California millionaire, died on Sunday morning in San Francisco, from exhaustion and old age. He was born at Fredricksburg, Lebanon county, Pa., August 25, 1796, and went, when a young man, to Buenos Ayres, where he accumulated a small fortune. He went to San Francisco in 1847, and invested his money in land, which rose immensely in value on the discovery of gold. Two years since he assigned $2,000,000 from his estate to trustees for various public and philanthropic purposes. In 1875 a reviled deed was made, and the trustees say the business is in such shape that no complications can ensue in carrying out Mr. Lick's charitable designs. The total value of the trust fund is estimated at about $5,000,000.

Canon Tristram, in a recent speech, quoted a saying of John Wesley. Some one once said to him: "Ah, Mr. Wesley, God has no need of any man's learning." To which he replied: "No, friend, and he has far less need of your ignorance."

Saints may have many wants in time, but they shall have all fullness in eternity.

MARRIED.

WICKER—CAUGHMAN.—At the residence of the bride's mother in Smith county, Miss., Sept. 28, 1876, by Rev. R. A. Sibley, Mr. J. W. Wicker to Miss Amanda E. Caughman.

GRAVES—MATTINGLY.—At the residence of the bride's mother in the city of Natchez, Miss., Oct. 4, 1876, by Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, Mr. Edward E. Graves, of Waterproof, La., and Miss Ida W. Mattingly.

BAHIN—PURNELL.—In the city of Natchez, Miss., at 8 P. M., Oct. 5, 1876, by Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, Mr. Alphonse Bahin and Mrs. Louisa C. Purnell, daughter of Walter Irvin, Esq., of the city of Natchez.

Publisher's Department.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now on a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

WE call the attention of superintendents of Sunday schools and others to the advertisement of the American Sunday School Union. The books of the Union are so well known throughout the country that it is unnecessary for us to do more than call attention to the prices at which they are offered. All orders addressed to the Philadelphia house, of which Mr. Kirkpatrick is in charge, will receive attention. There are branches also in the principal cities.

THE statement of the Factors and Traders Insurance Company will be found on this page. This company established some ten years ago, has constantly grown in public favor until now. It stands in the front rank, as a reliable, well-managed institution. We notice the company has lately purchased a considerable amount of their own stock, thus enabling them to reduce their expenses, and adding materially to the profits.

PARTIES visiting the Crescent City are reminded that the "Grand Hotel," considered to be the finest in the South, is in the very centre of the principal streets, and convenient to the business portion. Each room has been refurnished with new furniture, improvements, a large amount of new furniture added, making it the most elegant hotel in the city, and the building has been re-painted in a style that for elegance of design surpasses anything of the West or South. The proprietors are gentlemen of long experience, having had charge of the Grand Hotel for many years, and will spare no pains to make the stay of their guests pleasant. Rates reduced to suit the times. We would again remind our readers to mention this paper.

MOORE'S SOUTHERN BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga., is a first-class institution of learning, and we can recommend it to our readers. See the handsome cut of the building in our advertising page. The college is located in the very heart of the growing city of the South, and is under the charge of experienced officers. We notice that Moore's Business Guide, which so many of our readers will remember in connection with Bellmeade College, of this city, is in charge of the department of penmanship. Send for catalogues and circulars.

SWAIM'S PANACEA has been before the public for more than half a century, and this, of itself, bears testimony of its value as a standard remedy. Has it not been tried sufficiently to establish its claims to the confidence of the people? Many of the so-called blood purifiers of the present day have had a short existence, and are now forgotten, while Swaim's Panacea has stood the test of time, and is still in the front rank. Some of these have failed from the want of merit, while others have died from the want of proper support. Swaim's Panacea has had both, and will continue to live as long as there is a sick person to be benefited by its use. See advertisement on page 8.

KING SOLOMON AND THE IRON WORKER is the title of the masonic engraving which Messrs. Bradley & Co. publish for sale. We judge it would be very interesting to collectors as well as Masons. The engraving is made by John Sartain, chief of the Art Bureau of Centennial Exhibition. We do not quarrel over advertisements, but we do call attention to the fact that many persons suppose a patent cure for all diseases desirable to help to sell, having enjoyed an established reputation for more than fifty years on account of its great value in diseases of the throat and lungs, having been the means of restoration to health of thousands of diseased persons, it has received the indorsement of distinguished physicians who know its merits, and is recommended to all who suffer from diseases arising from impurities of the blood, or even as a preventive.

The value of Chemic Rheumatism Oil Liniment, Chronic sores, White Swellings, etc., is known to those who have used it.

THE AMERICAN HOUSE hotel coaches meet every train coming into Boston. For the moderate sum of fifty cents each passenger with his baggage is carried to the hotel. Once at the "American," all places of business, amusement, or interest are easily reached as the hotel is located right in the heart of the city, and in the neighborhood of all these places. Notwithstanding the increase in travel, the American has recently made a reduction in rates, which in these stringent times will make it more popular than ever.

A CORRESPONDENT says: "No hotel is more popular with the wealthier and cultivated people than the Grand Hotel, at the corner of Broadway and 31st street, New York. This elegant marble building presents a beautiful picture from the street, while the same in the interior is equally interesting and imposing. The broad stairways, spacious parlors and dining room, and luxurious suits are all in perfect harmony and most perfect taste."

THE BEST GIFT to give your enemy is forgiveness; to your opponent, tolerance; to a friend, your heart; to your child, a good example; to a father, deference; to your mother, conduct that will make her proud of you; to yourself, respect; to all men, charity; ask in the sick, Simmons' Liver Regulator. I found it excellent for sour stomach, indigestion, dizziness, and headache. A. J. ADKINS.

MEDICAL.

A STRING OF PEARLS!

Extract of a letter from Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, dated March 6, 1874:

I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active remedies.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens has greatly improved in healthor late.—The State Line Press, West Point, Ga.

Testimony of the Chief Justice of Georgia.

I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it.—Hiram Warner, Chief Justice of Georgia.

Opinion of the Clergy.

"Simmons' Liver Regulator is certainly a specific for that class of complaints which it claims to cure. If any of our fellow-beings are suffering from hepatic disorders, will have doubts in relation to the efficacy of this popular preparation; we can only offer them the simple and candid argument of Philip to Nathaniel: 'Come and see.' Try the proposed remedy, and then you can judge for yourselves.—Rev. David Wills, Pastor of Presbyterian Church, Macon, Ga.

Always Keep It On Hand.

I have used Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator myself, and in my family for years, and pronounce it one of the most satisfactory medicines that can be used. Nothing would induce me to be without it, and I recommend all my friends, if they want a sure health, to always keep it on hand.—R. L. Moll, Columbus, Ga. (Congressman.)

CAUTION!

THE FINEST AND BEST.

CIRCULAR.—To those engaged in mercantile pursuits, any invention that will facilitate their labors is highly worthy of notice, as well as of extensive patronage. One of the most important inventions of the present age is that of a pen that possesses the necessary qualities of firmness in mark and durability in use. Preeminently such are those of JOHN FOLEY, manufacturer of Fine GOLD PENS AND PENCILS, No. 2 Astor House. Their superior value is tested by the long time he has been engaged in exactly in their manufacture. We, the subscribers, who know the value of FOLEY'S PENS from constant use of them for a number of years, cheerfully recommend them to those who wish for the best and most perfect Hold Pen ever made.

Laying Hens.

All granivorous birds and fowls must be provided, if kept in confinement, and during winter months, with gravel in some shape, to grind and thus digest their food, or they will substitute some unnatural substance to answer instead, which often proves fatal. Any close observer of the habits of fowls has learned the fact that a material to grind the food is necessary as the food itself. Fowls will pick the coarser parts of discarded coal ashes and bits of hard black coal. Every one knows that a millstone must be picked to grind grain, so also does the bird choose hard, white, flinty stones, with sharp edges. When the stones become so smooth as to be of no use, they pass from the gizzard into the intestines and are discarded, and a new stock is taken in. Stone by stone they pass away as they become useless, and thus is the bird kept in a healthy condition. If clam shells, broken in bits the size of a kernel of corn or less, be kept in abundant supply within their range, the fowls will give over hunting gravel stones, and there will be no complaint of their eating glass or any other foreign substance. Some recommend oyster shells, but I prefer clam shells, as they are much easier broken, and are not so scaly, and are better relished by the fowls, which, if accustomed thereto, will look for and depend upon them as much as their daily feed. All granivorous birds have two stomachs or receptacles for food. In the first it is received; in the second it is digested, and if all the organs be in good working order, the bird will replenish the first receptacle often, if feed be within reach, thus keep it filled, which is better than to allow this receptacle (called in fowls the "crop") to become entirely empty, in which case the bird, when access is had to food, especially grain, is apt to over eat, and thus bring on indigestion and hard crop, which, if not taken in hand as soon as discovered, proves fatal. Many diseases termed chicken cholera, roup, and canker arise from hard crop.

Indigestion is generally easy to manage if taken in season. If allowed to run, there is no remedy that will reach it. When first discovered, the bird is eager for drink—there appears to be a burning thirst. There is no remedy so simple, and yet so sure, if given in time, as a good dose of homemade yeast, two tablespoonfuls being a dose for a full-grown bird, and less for a chick, administered according to judgment. All granivorous birds are more or less insectivorous, but purely insectivorous birds never eat grain, and have no crop or first receptacle. Among these may be classed, with but few exceptions, all our migrating birds, and many aquatic fowls are granivorous to a certain acquired extent, but those in a natural state feed largely on insects, and forage about marshes and sedgy waste, where they procure also tender succulent vegetable matter, which is highly relished by the larger varieties. Both insectivorous and granivorous birds feed largely on vegetable matter. Hens, especially laying ones, relish green grass at all seasons of the year. It gives the coloring to the yolk of the egg. Observe the yolk of an egg from a hen that has been confined and kept entirely from all vegetable food, and you will find it pale, barely distinguishable from the white.

Exercise in the open air is also beneficial to laying hens, and it is just as natural for a hen to scratch as it is for her to eat. There is a difference in breeds about scratching. The Dominiques and Brown Leghorns are great scratchers, being light in the body and active in limb. The docile, gentle Brahma hen seldom scratches, neither does she lay like the non-sitting varieties. Every breed requires separate and different management and food, or it is profitless. Laying hens are great foragers, and are subject to various diseases, which are sudden, and generally prove fatal. Frequently we find a dead hen on her nest, heavy and fat, yet still an animate and in a natural position.

THE BEST BUTTER IN BERKSHIRE.—"Take some butter," said the farmer, "M—— makes the best butter in the county." I took some. The roll showed care, and glistened like glass, and tasted beautifully. "What do they pay for butter in your place?" asked the lady, in monotone. "I think 25 or 30 cents." "Wal," said the farmer, "I git 40 cents. I have got an agreement with two families in your place, to furnish each 20 pounds of butter a week, for five years, at 40 cents a pound." "Change in the market does not affect us any," remarked the damsel, slowly speaking. "Yer see the glaze on that butter?" said the farmer proudly. "That's what sells it. You big folks like that shine. I never see any only my butter that was glazed." "How is that done?" "Well," said the lady, "I am not averse to telling, now that we've made this five years agreement. Formerly my success was a mystery, but now I don't mind telling. I go by rule," she said, artlessly fingering a bean. "My milk I set just two inches deep; my cream I skim the third day; I churn Friday; my cream is just so hot. In five minutes it comes. I then wash out the buttermilk. It stands in the bowl till night. I then make it into balls and stamp them. They are spread in rows on a wire-cloth shelf, and are done. I have usually twenty-five pounds at a time. I then glaze each ball, as you see this one is, to polish them. The way to do it is this: I take a gill of water and dissolve in it a teaspoonful of sugar. I have this hot. My butter is on a wire shelving. Then I turn it on each ball. When it touches the butter it just melts the outside, and when it cools it is just icy." This is the first I have heard of "glazed butter," and when I saw the glassy polish on the rolls I resolved they were worth forty cents.—Berkshire Eagle.

The Plain of Esdraelon.

No one in present days has passed this plain without seeing or hearing of the assaults of the Bedouin Arabs, as they stream in from the adjacent desert. Here and there, by the well-side, or among the bushes of the mountains, their tents or their wild figures may always be seen—the terror alike of the peaceful villager and the defenseless traveler. What we now see on a small scale constantly, is but a miniature representation of the one great visitation which lived for ages afterward in the memory of the Jewish people—the invasion, not of the civilized nations of Assyria or Egypt, or of the Canaanite cities, but of the wild population of the desert itself—"the Midianites, the Amalekites, and the Children of the East." They came up with all the accompaniments of Bedouin life "with their cattle, their tents, and their camels;" they came up and "encamped" against the Israelites, after "Israel had sown," and "destroyed the increase of the earth," and all the cattle (in the maritime plain) "till thou come unto Gaza; as' locusts' for multitude, both they and their camels without number." The very aspect and bearing of their sheykhs is preserved to us. The two lesser chiefs, ("princes" as they are called in our version,) in their names of Oreb and Zeeb, "the Raven" and "the Wolf," present curious counterparts of the title of "the Leopard," now given to their modern successor, Abd-el-Aziz, chief of the Bedouins beyond the Jordan.

* * * * * * * * *

The Israelites fled into their mountain fastnesses and caves as the only refuge; the wheat even of the upland valleys of Manasseh had to be concealed from the rapacious plunderers. The whole country was thus for the first time in the hands of the Arabs. But it was in the plain of Esdraelon that then as now the Children of the Desert fixed their head-quarters.

* * * * * * * * *

To one whose appearance was "as the son of a king," and whose brothers, already ruthlessly slain by the wild invaders on the adjacent heights of Tabor, were "each one like the children of kings"—was entrusted the charge of gathering together the forces of his countrymen. All Manasseh was with him; and from the other side of the plain there came Zebulun and Naphthali, and even the reluctant Asher to join him. On the slope of Mount Gilboa the Israelites were encamped by a spring, possibly the same as that elsewhere called "the spring of Jezreel," but here, from the well-known trial by which Gideon tested the energy of his army, called "the spring of trembling." On the northern side of the valley, but apparently deeper down in the descent toward the Jordan, by one of those slight eminences which have been before described as characteristic of the whole plain, was spread the host of the Midianites. It was night, when from the mountain side Gideon and his servant descended to the vast encampment. All along the valley, within and around the tents, the thousands of Arabs lay wrapt in sleep, or resting from their day's plunder, and their innumerable camels crouched for the night in deep repose round about them. One of the sleepers, startled from his slumbers, was telling his dream to his fellow, a characteristic and expressive dream for a Bedouin, even without its terrible interpretation, that a cake of barley bread, from those rich corn fields, those numerous threshing floors of the peaceful inhabitants whom they had conquered, rolled into the camp of Midian and struck a tent, and overturned it, so that it lay along on the ground. Reassured by this good omen, Gideon returned for his three hundred trusty followers, the trumpets were blown, the torches blazed forth, the shout of Israel, always terrible, always like "the shout of a king," broke through the stillness of the midnight air; and the sleepers sprang from their rest, and ran hither and thither with the dissonant "cries" so peculiar to the Arab race. "And the Lord set every man's sword against his fellow, even through all the host;" and the host flew headlong down the descent to the Jordan to the spots known as the "House of the Acacia" (Bethshittah,) and the "border" of the "meadow of the dance" (Abelmehotah.) These spots were in the Jordan valley, as their names indicate, under the mountains of Ephraim.—Stanley.

He would not Enter, and Perished.

There was a poor, blind child, friendless, and homeless, and when humanity built an asylum for the poor and blind he was taken by the hand, led to the very door, and the guide said: Here is an asylum for the blind; enter and you shall find welcome and rest and ere long your sight will be restored.

Child. But I am blind.

Guide. The asylum was built for the blind.

Child. I am friendless and poor.

Guide. It was built for the friendless and poor.

Child. Wait till I recover my sight.

Guide. Then you will not need it.

Child. But I cannot see, and my clothes are ragged, let me go. And he threw off the hand which was guiding him to safety, plenty, home and light, and went out through the darkness and cold howling night winds to die.

God has built an asylum for sinners, and when we invite a sinner to enter he says: My wounds are ghastly, and my soul is filthy, and my garments defiled, and I am poor and miserable and blind.

Guide. The asylum was built for such as you.

Sinner. But I am a sinner.

Guide. Jesus Christ built His gospel for sinners.

Sinner. But not for such as me.

Guide. Yes, for such as you.

Sinner. Wait till I am better.

Guide. When you are better you will not need the asylum.

Then the hapless man turns away and goes out among the dark mountains and stumbles and falls to rise no more.

Put one work before a poor hardened soul—you might as well put a million.

WARREN & CO., PROPRIETORS.

URAL MOUNTAIN

is a concentration of all the curative qualities of the most celebrated Mineral Springs in the world. Each bottle contains eighty doses and is equal to over one hundred bottles of the Natural Spring Water.

As a tonic it is unsurpassed, having had most remarkable success in curing some of the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Nervousness, and General Debility. It is simple, harmless, and pleasant to take. If used as a gargle in its pure state, on the first appearance of diphtheria and all other throat diseases it works like magic. It arrests the progress of and cures such complaints in less than twenty-four hours. It will greatly alleviate or entirely cure the worst cases of rheumatism, eczema and all other diseases of the skin, Prickly Heat, Poisoning by Ivy, Sumac, or Oak are quickly cured by the use of Jeleso Water. We will forward three bottles of the medicine to any part of the United States, free of expressage, on receipt of $1 per bottle. Send for Circular, containing testimonials and directions.

Appended are a few of the many certificates sent us:

As a family medicine and tonic it is simply invaluable. In my own case it has cured dyspepsia of long standing.

JOHN F. MINES,
Managing Editor N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

Permit me to add my testimony to the efficacy of your "Jeleso" in cases of Dyspepsia of long standing. I have used two bottles of it, and I am now thoroughly cured. I shall most cheerfully recommend its use to all my friends; and I consider it an indispensable medicine in every family.

I am most truly yours,

It is a book which has long been wanted and often called for. I am selling copies daily that are mailed to all parts of the world.

GEORGE ELLIS, Bookseller,
Opposite the Postoffice.

During my long experience as a bookseller in this city I have had thousands of inquiries for such a work. Mr. Dennett's LOUISIANA AS IT IS is precisely the book that has been called for. It gives general satisfaction to my patrons in the city and country. If its true character were generally known it would require ten times the present edition of 10,000 copies to supply the demand.

C. C. HALEY, Bookseller,

DUCONGE'S
TORAL BALSAMIC SIRUP.

EARLY half a century has elapsed since the discovery of this wonderful compound. Its established virtues and its high reputation in diseases of the Chest, Lungs, Breast and Bowels are known, and has been tested for so many years on such extensive patronage, that it would be useless, at this late day, to dwell at any length on its efficacy in Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Inflammation of the Throat, Stomach or Bowels, Spitting of Blood and Whooping Cough.

It has been found highly beneficial in all Inflammatory disorders, such as Rheumatism, Diarrhea, Dysentery and Summer Complaint, and especially in those cases of Cholerine which, for want of proper remedies, so often degenerate into confirmed Consumption.

Consumption of the Lungs, verging on Consumption, it has been found most efficacious in checking that most awful scourge whenever resorted to.

It is acknowledged certainty of cure, this extraordinary medicine has, over most contagious diseases of the same nature, the decided advantage, owing to its agreeable flavor, it can be administered with the least difficulty to children, and without particular diet. It is also the cheapest, because the bottles contain more syrup than any other, but owing to its peculiar composition, the syrup will keep for years without fermentation, and can be used in families whenever required, by keeping the bottle well corked.

Directions for Taking the Syrup.—Grown persons should take four to six spoonfuls in the course of the day, either pure or diluted in a little water; children of three or four years old may take one to six teaspoonfuls during the day, in small quantities, at intervals of three or four hours.

THE ONLY TRUE AND PERFECT HAIR COLORER!

THE MYSTERY,
or Turner's Hair Dye!

GLOSSY, BEAUTIFUL, PERMANENT!

This preparation has received the indorsement of the scientific world, and wherever introduced has excelled all other preparations of the kind. Nothing but a preparation of the hair is necessary before using.

It is free from all Deleterious Ingredients, containing no Lead, Sulphur or other compounds which are injurious to the Hair or Prejudicial by Absorption.

It not only saves both time and labor, as a few applied with a comb, once a month or so, to the Moustaches or Whiskers, answers the purpose, the hair being so perfectly assimilated as to defy detection. Its great recommendation is in its variation of tint, producing any desired shade, from light brown to the deepest black and will remove that dry and burned appearance produced by other Hair Dyes. The Mystery can be used on a single hair, or spots that have changed in color restored to their original shade without application all over the head, as is necessary when using other Hair Dyes.

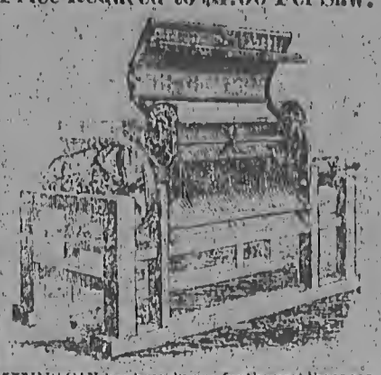
DANIEL PRATT'S IMPROVED

"Revolving Head" Cotton Gin

PATENTED JULY 18, 1871.

Price Reduced to $4.50 Per Saw.



THIS GIN has been in use for the past three seasons, and several recent improvements have been added. It obviates all friction at the ends of the cotton box, prevents the roll from breaking, and gives a Larger Yield of Lint from the Same Amount of Seed than any other Gin in use. The Revolving Head lightens the draft and causes the Gin to run faster with less driving power, thus doing a great deal more work within the same time, while economizing steam or animal power than any other Gin. The seed being ginned very close, the length of the staple is increased, producing cotton on the account of a greater market value. This improved value, given by length of staple, with extra production of lint, added to increased amount of work done, more than covers the cost of the Gin in every 100 bales ginned. Testimonials sent by mail on application.

New Orleans Markets.

ADVOCATE OFFICE,
Noon, Tuesday, Oct. 10, 1876.

Market somewhat firmer. demand for money increases, though rates are unchanged. A1 paper, with good collaterals, can be placed without trouble at most of our banks. Stocks are quite firm, as the business season promises fair. Parties holding securities prefer to hold. State consols and premium bonds show a slight decline. The former are quoted at 58½@59, the latter 33½. We hear that 97 has been refused for Factors' and Traders Insurance Company, and that recently they have purchased $100,000 of their own stock, which shows the able management this reliable company is under. Many think its stock will go to and perhaps beyond par. We append the statement of the clearing house, which gives the monetary condition of our banks at a glance:

L. N. MAYNARD, Manager.

The following extracts we take from the circular of Messrs. Miller, Delhonde & Co. Oct. 9, 1876:

The yearly average number of hogs packed in the west during the winter, regular season, for 10 years before and 10 years since the war, is as follows:

Average number of hogs packed for 10 years before the war, 2,152,315, and the yearly average number of hogs packed since the war, 4,104,000.

To show the large increase in the production and consumption of hogs and their products, the following is necessary, and we give the regular pork packing in the west during the winter, for the past five years:

1875-6.	1874-5.	1873-4.	1872-3.	1871-2.
4,850,195	5,537 124	5,383,810	5,456,101	4,782,403

The new season will commence on the 1st proximo. It is generally believed the crop of hogs for the coming season will be large, if not larger, than any previous year, with large grain crops to increase it in numbers and weights.

For comparison we give the present prices of Standard Mess Pork here and in the west, to wit:

In New Orleans, Oct. 9, 1876	$19 00 ₱ bbl.
In Chicago, Oct. 9, 1876	14 00 ₱ bbl.
In Cincinnati, Oct. 9, 1876	17 50 ₱ bbl.

The stocks of pork and other meats are very light here and throughout the west, and with reasonable prices for hogs and their products the coming season the markets will be active and demand large for the foreign and domestic markets, especially for the former. High prices generally curtail consumption, and force substitution to large extent of such other foods as beef, poultry, molasses, sorghum, vegetables, fruits, flour, and rice, which have sold and are likely to sell the coming season at low prices.

WORK.

Strong gales keep the clouds from raining;
Work lulls the sad heart's complaint, q;
Through the task and the toil runs the yearning ache;
Yet Duty grows dear for her own grave sake,
And muscles are stronger for straining.

Each life has some prize for gaining;
Each woe has a balm in its paloing;
We seek for it long in faith and prayer,
For the finger of God is everywhere,
While the days are dawning and waning.

Though the mildew its bloom is staining,
The rose has some scent remaining;
Through the darkest hour still trust to the light;
What the hand has to do l t it do with its might—
Strong gales keep the clouds from raining.

DOMESTIC.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—A steamboat of the express line from Fall river collided with a local freight steamer. One person killed and several wounded.

FARMINGTON, ME., Oct. 13.—During the progress of the Franklin county fair to day a portion of the upper floor of the Exhibition Hall gave way, carrying 200 persons to the floor below. Several were seriously and one fatally wounded.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—A special meeting of the House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church was inaugurated here this morning, the presiding Bishop, the venerable Right Rev. Dr. Smith, of Kentucky, occupied the chair, and there were present Bishops from all sections of the union. After the celebration of holy communion the house organized for business. Their proceedings are secret and may extend over two days.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 13.—J. W. Lathrop, president of the Savannah Cotton Exchange, died at Greensboro, N. C., of yellow fever. He left here a few days ago to see a dying son, at that place. C. W. Thompson, of the firm of Walter & Thompson, died last night.

CHEYENNE, Oct. 13.—Gen Merritt left Custer City, with 500 men, on a scout to-day, destination not positively known but surmised to be the Middle Fourche fork of the Cheyenne river. The remainder of the command are still at Custer. The party of Indians who killed Monroe near Fort Laramie a few days since also raided the ranch of Nick Jones on the old Red Cloud road, stealing twenty-five horses. Monroe's body was pierced by eight bullets.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 13.—Total interments to-day 26, of which 20 were from yellow fever.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Senator Ferson, with some persons claiming to be from South Carolina, called on Gen. Sherman, representing that more troops were necessary to secure a peaceful election in that State.

Gen. Sherman is of opinion that more troops are needed, as Gen. Ruger is in command of, or has to obtain call a sufficient number of troops to secure peace in the State.

Persons purporting to be from Mississippi called on the Secretary of War, urging like need of troops in that State. Secretary Cameron's reply has not transpired yet.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The steamship Necker from Liverpool, brought $50,000 in gold coin to-day.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 14.—Total interments to-day, 16, of which 9 were from yellow fever. Sister Mary Lehmann, formerly Miss Mary Whelan, a native of New York State, died to day.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—Among a lot of short horns yesterday, at Winchester, Ky., were the following: Lemon Rose for $3100; Geneva Rose, $2500; Rose of New River, $2200; Lady Duchess, $1300. Eighty animals were sold and $45,000 realized. The sales of short horns in Kentucky this week have been well attended and the amounts realized were very large.

AUGUSTA, GA., Oct 14.—The quarantine regulations have been removed by the Augusta health officers, so far as Charleston is concerned.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 14.—The case of Ann Eliza Young vs. Brigham Young came up before Judge Boreaefler to day, who decided that unless the money, previously adjudged to the plaintiff was paid in ten days an attachment would issue requiring the defendant into court for contempt.

QUEBEC, Oct. 14.—A severe snow storm occurred here, blocking the streets and causing a suspension of the street-car line.

OTTAWA, Oct. 14.—A heavy snow storm is prevailing in this section. At nine points up the Ottawa river the snow is six inches deep and still falling.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—Returns from all the counties in the State have been received. They give Williams, Democrat, a majority of

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The Tammany and anti-Tammany organizations both held meetings yesterday, but failed to come to an agreement with regard to the distribution of offices in city and county. The anti-Tammanyites were offered one third of the offices with specifications, but rejected the proffer by a majority. The minority under the lead of Morrissy were in favor of accepting, but were out voted.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The survey of the river bottom at Hell Gate, which has been in progress since the wreck, was completed on Saturday. The survey shows a depth of not less than ten feet below mean low water in any spot save one near the shore, a point where the reef before the wreck used to project two and a half feet above low water, and even that is probably but a small heap of stones which will easily be removed by dredging.

The Bridgeport steamer on Saturday afternoon ran close in shore, over the site of the old cofferdam.

Work is progressing finely, though only a small force of men is employed as yet. About thirty-five men are at work in three gangs, which relieve one another—spending eight hours in the rock—so that the work goes on without ceasing, night and day. Three drills are kept running, and each drill is supposed to bore ninety feet every twenty-four hours. Holes are drilled in the floor of the headings, about three inches in diameter, while those in the walls are one inch smaller. The depth of the holes varies from four to ten feet.

The stones of Flood Rock, while being part of the same stratification as the Hallett's reef and lying very near to the side of it, are of a much softer nature. But eight ounces of dynamite are placed in the ordinary paper cartridges used, and that quantity is found sufficient to tear away as great a quantity of rock as it is expedient to shake down at any time. On Wednesday last a large portion of the roof of the main heading fell in, but fortunately nobody was standing beneath it. Should the stone be found to increase in softness, as the shaft is sunk deeper and the headings penetrate the body of the rock, it will seriously enhance the difficulty of the works, and render extreme caution necessary at every blast.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamer Colon was seized this morning at her dock by the City Marshal for $180,000 taxes due the city for 1874.

Tweed's escape from Cuba was under the most painful circumstances to him. The United States Consul at Havana on discovering his presence in that city reported the fact by telegraph to Secretary Fish at Washington. The secretary directed the Consul to at once secure Tweed; the latter obtained information of these orders and escaped to Santiago de Cuba, but the pursuit there becoming very warm he was forced to go aboard the Carmen, a vessel about to sail for Spain.

It has been supposed heretofore that Tweed sailed as a passenger, but information from Vigo states that he went aboard the ship as a landsman and was compelled to serve as a deckhand, and bare footed and bare legged and bare armed and forced with squillgee and swab to wash down the decks. In this disguise he was discovered and taken in custody in Vigo Bay. This harsh experience, it is added, did not seem to have in any way discouraged Tweed or impaired his health. When he was placed on board the Franklin he was given the most commodious and elegant quarters on board the ship.

It is stated that Hunt, Tweed's companion, sailed with the latter on the Franklin; both will be surrendered on the arrival of the vessel at Quarantine until after the examination, when she will sail, after surrendering her prisoners, for Norfolk, Va.

Charles Sedgewick Hunt, a well-known journalist, died here yesterday, of inflammation of the brain, thirty-four years old.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—The railway postal commissioners continued their session to-day and examined several railway men, bankers, and merchants. Some of the evidence given by business men was that the fast mail, while running, was a great benefit to some branches of business, and all that was required to make the fast service almost inestimable to all branches of trade and commerce, was a double daily service, by East and West, run so as to reach here and New York early in the morning as well as in the afternoon. It was also claimed that St. Louis should have postal advantages equal to her railroad facilities, and that the former should be increased and extended to all the principal points in the territories tributary to the city.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—There was ice in the gutters this morning.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 16.—During last night mercury fell to 30 and thin ice formed.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 16.—Total interments yesterday 15; yellow fever, 8.

Total interments to-day 8, four whites and four colored; yellow fever deaths 3.

BISMARCK, Oct. 16.—The Indians at Standing Rock signed a treaty relinquishing the Black Hills so modified as not to insist upon their removal to the Indian Territory.

RICHMOND, VA., Oct. 16.—There was a snow storm at Norfolk yesterday; also here and mountains, and the weather is extremely cold. The thermometer here at sunrise yesterday and to-day 31 degrees. It is feared that the heavy gale which prevailed off the capes was disastrous to vessels.

A special to the Dispatch reports yellow fever in Hampton Roads. Several cases have occurred on a schooner from Savannah.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Times, in a grave article on the situation, concludes: The Turkish rulers have, we fear, determined not to yield much more, and Russia may soon be at the mercy of the storm she has raised.

It is not too late to keep Russia back. If any country can thus save the world from a tremendous war, it is Germany.

The Standard's Vienna dispatch says: Turkish statesmen desire peace, but not with dishonor. A majority agree, if the foreign pressure becomes intolerable they might prefer separate terms with Russia.

The Times in its leading editorial article says: Turkey could not possibly have been more conciliatory. The note judiciously abstains from denouncing foreign volunteers as Russians. There is nothing in it at which Russia or any other power could reasonably take offense. The Times further says: The fact of Russia's having reverted to the demands originally made by England would be encouraging if we could regard with confidence the animus which prompted this course.

The Times Paris correspondent refers to the fact that this is the first time Russia has clearly accepted solidarity with Servia and Montenegro in advising them to reject the Turkish propositions. She has accepted the responsibility of such refusals.

A Times dispatch from Berlin, dated Sunday evening, announces that the Russian objections to Turkey's proposals are stated in a calm, argumentative tone, indicating a desire for negotiations. There seems to be no danger of an immediate collision.

The Desther Lloyd newspaper reports that M. Ristics, the Servian Prime Minister, has informed the English Consul at Belgrade that Servia would consent to an armistice till December 31.

The Daily News has a special from Belgrade which says: Servia is willing to accept statu quo, provided the Turks give guarantees for the proper government of Bosnia, but Servia will not consent to any armistice longer than December 31. If that is rejected now, she does not bind herself to accept it at any future time.

The prospects of an armistice or peace are not flattering.

The Pall Mall Gazette has a strong leading article on Russia's position. It says it believes the Porte will and ought to regard the alternative demand for a short armistice as the proposal of an almost undisguised belligerent seeking military advantages, rather than of a mediator sincerely desiring peace, and as such will and ought to reject it. It believes it would be mere weakness on the part of the other powers to admit Russia's demand. To urge the Porte to accept these demands is not a hopeless course but one which no independent power of Europe can adopt without loss of self-respect, and without risk of becoming the tool of diplomatic trickery. It observes with profound regret, that an opposite course had vocated in language which is almost the language of panic. This refers to the leading editorial in the Times of this morning in relation to the crises.

The Pall Mall Gazette says it does not see the advantages of such a course. It hopes the English Government will withdraw from diplomatic attempts which are too plainly exposed to frustration by disguised or enforced hostility. It says: If we withdraw from interference at this point nothing worse can happen than if we go further into parleys so hopeless of good results. It is with an almost inexpressible shame that we read and know that all Europe will read, the abject entreaty of our leading journals to Prince Bismarck to save us and all mankind from the terrible Muscovite. With what scorn will this be read, and how well calculated is a panic like this to restrain the Russian war party. We may rely upon it that Prince Bismarck will do what he thinks good for the Empire in his keeping, and it may be he thinks Russia at war with Turkey rather a desirable eventuality. Russia must begin by fighting somebody, and somewhere if she is to be shattered and be no longer a menace in actual date and possible alliances against the German Empire.

VIENNA, Oct. 16.—The Tagblatt of this city announces positively that the issue of a national Russian loan of 300,000,000 roubles has been resolved upon at Livadia.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—The National Gazette of this city, discussing the reference to Germany in the London Times leader this morning, says: The power of Germany neither gives her the right nor imposes upon her the duty of placing her own peace in jeopardy for the advantage of others.

The North German Gazette says the Times, in its article ignores the existence of the alliance of the three imperial powers.

ENGLISH MISSIONARY SOCIETIES.—The London Nonconformist gives the receipts of the leading missionary societies in England as follows:

Church Missionary, £195,216. Propogation of the Gospel, £183,291; Wesleyan Missionary, £159,106; London Missionary, £118,183; Baptist Missionary, £44,762; Moravian Missionary, £18,380; Colonial and Continental £33,487; United Methodist, £16,512; South American £13,659; Christian Vernacular Education, (India) £12,843; Colonial Missionary, £4,597; Evangelical Continental Society, £3,287; Ladies' Zenana Association, £1,903.

It adds:

Our impression is that as wealth is increasing in advance of the population, so public benevolence is increasing, and that the test of national decay indicated by self-indulgence on the one hand, or self-sacrifice on the other, can be at present favorably applied.

Sweet Savior! should any of thy servants love thee more than I? Should any of thy disciples be more obedient than I? No, Lord, for none of them are so much indebted to thy passion, because none has so many sins to be forgiven. How amiable are thy commandments! My soul thirsteth to be the nearest of them that stand before the living God. Lord, let me love thee as Peter did. Let me love thee more than these.—Jeremy Taylor.

Los Angeles—Our Church.

MR. EDITOR: Our church in this city was very small until the Rev. A. M. Campbell came here from Georgia, nearly four years ago, and took charge of the church. He is a pious, energetic, and talented young preacher, and under the blessings of God built up the cause here considerably. We now have about eighty communicants, and a beautifully built and well situated church edifice. It is all we could desire for the present, and, save one, is the finest Protestant church in the city. Besides, ours there are the following church organizations in the city: The Presbyterians, who have no church edifice, but are moving for the one occupied at present by the Protestant Episcopallans; the Protestant Episcopallans; the Methodists (North,), who have a fine church nearly finished, which they now use; the Congregationallists, who have a neat church and a good pastor; a disunited Baptist church without a pastor; a Presbyterian Chinese mission church with a neat chapel and a devoted missionary; and a German Reformed Independent minister who owns himself a church edifice, but has no membership, and little or no congregation. Besides these, there are a few suburban Sunday schools and preaching-places, at one of which I preached last Sunday evening. The Romanists have two cathedrals; one, the new one, a very costly and magnificent building. They also have two large schools, which have orphanages attached to them—one male and one female. They have also the county and city hospital under their charge, through which they have succeeded in perpetrating a neat little swindle on the county—at least so reported by the last grand jury.

There are within this city over 16,000 souls; not 1,000 of these attend any evangelical service; fully 15,000 are beyond the reach of the evangelical pulpit; and if converted they must be reached through strictly missionary effort. All of the evangelical churches should have two or three men each in this field. Here we have Chinese, and there are plenty of holy men and women willing to aid a missionary in conducting Sunday schools and Bible classes among them; but there is but one missionary, viz:: Rev. Mr. Condit. He has spent a portion of his life as a missionary in China, sent out by the Presbyterian board. He told me that the missionary among the Chinese here has great advantages over the missionary in China, from the fact that here he can utilize so much efficient help at no cost. There is another great advantage in the fact that the Chinamen here are anxious to learn the English language, and hence are easily brought into the Sunday schools. Here we have the Mexicans in considerable numbers, and there is not a single missionary among them. The Romanists have been converting the Protestants to their faith through the instrumentality of their orphanages and schools. Ah! how wise they are. Oh, that we had an orphanage here! We must have! How soon, is for the church to say. We have two schools near here—one at Wilmington, on the beach, under the presidency of my predecessor, Bro. Campbell, and one at Los Nietos, under the presidency of Rev. Prof. Riddick and wife, from North Carolina. Both of these colleges are now promising well. The Northern Methodists have just established an academy in this city. There are no other Protestant schools in southern California.

We want a missionary here among the Chinese and one among the Mexicans. I do not know our wants at other places in this Conference. Perhaps some one may ask: "Why don't the pastor already there do this work?" We trust we shall do some work in that line; but the pastor here has just as much to do among the Americans as he possibly can do. Indeed, here is another imperative need of our church in the Los Angeles Conference—i. e., more preachers among our own people; we need young men devoted to the cause, educated, and talented, to transfer to this Conference. Bro. Campbell's success here is an evidence of this fact—we need more like him.

Our church in this city has just had a revival, during which the church members were spiritually warmed; several were converted, and six were added to the church. We have a Sunday school prosperous and increasing. Our church is in debt, but we hope that it will not long be so. The prospects are bright.

We thank God and take courage.

CHINA GROVE CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The third quarterly meeting for China Grove circuit was held by Rev. James A. Godfrey, presiding elder, on the fifth and sixth of August, which was the beginning of a series of meetings in which we have had the ministerial aid of Revs. P. Howard, W. J. Ball, H. P. Lewis, and Ruffin Davis. There have been conversions, fourteen added to the church, and eighteen children baptized. Our best meeting was at China Grove, where I was assisted by Bros. Lewis and Davis. Sinners were deeply convicted, and penitents crowded to the altar for prayers. One day the interest was so great that it was necessary to renew the service of singing, with two young ladies, after the congregation had been dismissed, which called to mind the scenes of other days, when there were greater displays of God's power in the church than we see in these days. One of the most interesting scenes of this meeting occurred on the last day. Three little girls, aged nine, ten, and eleven years, with hands joined, came forward as applicants for membership in the church. As I gave them my hand, I said from my heart: "God bless the little girls." This is some of the fruit of the Sunday school at China Grove. The brethren are moving in the right way to hold fast what has been gained. Knowing the power of prayer, they have agreed among themselves to meet together often for prayer and preparation for work in the Lord's vineyard. The Lord help them!

Bro. Davis closed an interesting meeting on last Monday night at Mount Hermon, Franklinton circuit, at which I labored with him for three days and nights. This was an unusual occasion with many of the people in that neighborhood, it being chiefly a Baptist community. Some of them had never seen the sacraments administered by a Methodist. The Lord's Supper was administered on Sunday, and baptism on Monday night. The meeting was a profitable one to the church there, which is weak, but gradually gaining strength. The number of conversions was not ascertained, six were received into the church, four of whom were baptized. One young lady found peace while riding home from church, in company with her pastor, singing the song: "Oh, love divine, how sweet thou art," etc.

J. W. SANDELL.

MAGNOLIA, MISS., August 30, 1876.

PROVIDENCE CAMP MEETING, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr Editor: We have just returned home from the Providence camp meeting. The result of the meeting was about one hundred conversions, forty accessions to the church by profession of faith, three by letter, and nine infants baptized. Our meeting only lasted five days. Such a wonderful outpouring of the Spirit of God I think I never witnessed before. The revival commenced at the commencement of the meeting. The very first service was a very profitable one. Soon the altar was crowded with penitents, and remained so until the close. Monday, the last day, was the great day. The eight o'clock service was a deeply solemn occasion. The eleven o'clock service was a sacramental occasion. The subject of the sermon was the unity of the church. We are one family in Christ. We learn that two members of the Baptist Church communed with us. At the three o'clock service the pastor received into full connection all that were present that had united with the church up to that time. A short exhortation to the penitents then followed, in the very midst of which there was a general rush to the altar. Some fifty or sixty of as deeply penitent seekers of religion as I ever saw knelt at the altar. In a few moments afterward there seemed to be a wonderful movement throughout the whole assembly. Seekers kneeling at their seats, friends talking and praying with them, and lukewarm Christians praying for a blessing. Thus the work went on till nearly sundown, when we were requested to retire to the tents with the remaining penitents. Some would not go, and were soon converted at the altar; others were converted before they reached the further end of the shed; others reached the tents. And in every direction, all over the encampment, singing and shouting and crying for mercy could be heard.

As we attempted to subdue the excitement, and called the people again to the stand, simultaneously they seemed to start again for the stand, some shouting and singing: "Oh, how I love Jesus." In less than one hour we again had the altar crowded with penitents, and the work went on until nearly midnight. The next morning we met at sunrise, and received into full connection those that still remained; had an exhortation from the presiding elder of the district, and then pronounced the benediction, and were soon wending our way to our homes.

Your brother in Christ,

CRYSTAL SPRINGS, September 8, 1876.

GEORGETOWN CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: I see a communication in the ADVOCATE from Bro. H. H. Montgomery, presiding elder of Brookhaven district, Mississippi Conference, giving an account of the religious interest at the camp meetings, and on several charges, but he omitted the Georgetown circuit. So I rise to explain. Georgetown circuit is ring fired by the two camp meetings mentioned in his letter. Thirteen of the tent holders at the Crystal Springs camp ground are from one church on the Georgetown circuit. So you see a large portion of our material is worked up at these camp meetings, yet we have had revivals on the work. We have had as many as twenty-three conversions at a meeting. We have received into church fellowship forty-eight, by letter and from the world, at one church. Eleven at one, with several to be received soon. Three at one, about seventy in all, and the work is not yet done, yet in some instances it is robbing Peter to pay Paul, when we receive persons by letter; but I am speaking of what we are doing on Georgetown circuit. So I question very much if there is a charge in the Brookhaven district increasing in membership and religious force to the extent Georgetown circuit is, I suppose, however, Bro. Montgomery is not aware of what is being done, as he has not been able to visit our circuit but once this year, and that early in the year.

A. H. NICHOLSON.

TALLAHATTA, CLARKE COUNTY, ALA.—Mr. Editor: Our camp meeting at Union commenced on the eighth instant, and closed on the fifteenth, with great and glorious results. When we arrived upon the ground, we found, besides the tent-holders and familiar faces we met there one year ago, some of our beloved ministers, and I can assure you, Mr. Editor, it was a happy reunion. We had with us Revs. George F. Ellis, W. Ira. Powers, John S. Frazer, C. W. Calhoun, and also Bros. Montgomery and Gayle, laboring for the conversion of sinners, and the promotion of Christ's kingdom upon earth. We also had with us Profs. McVoy and Holcombe, from Summerfield, preaching in the Spirit, and with great acceptability to this people. We deeply sympathize with Bro. Glenn, the pastor on this work, for the affliction in his family which debarred him from attending each hour's service, and trust ere this his companion has been restored to health.

Besides these faithful itinerant preachers who have labored so long and zealously in our Master's cause, we had of the local ministers Bros. Chapman, Cowan, Calhoun, Cox, Martin, Gilbert, and Woodward, working for our dear Redeemer's kingdom here in this part of old Clarke.

Mr. Editor, we had a great and glorious meeting, which will ever be a green spot in memory. From what I could ascertain there were forty or more conversions during the meeting, and twenty persons of that number testified that their sins had been pardoned during the last hours' service. Many connected themselves with the church. Many in the congregation who had long resisted the woolings of the Holy Spirit, Felix like trembled, and cried out: "What must I do to be saved?" Christians wept together for joy, and shouted aloud the praises of God, as they looked upon a scene on which angelic beings in heaven gazed with

CONSCIENCE AND FUTURE JUDGMENT.

I sat alone with my conscience,
In a place where time had ceased,
And we talked of my former living
In the land where the years increased.

And I felt I should have to answer
The question it put to me,
And to face the answer and question
Throughout an eternity.

The ghosts of forgotten actions
Came floating before my sight;
And things that I thought were dead things
Were alive with a terrible might.

And the vision of all my past life
Was an awful thing to face
Alone with my conscience sitting
In that solemnly silent place.

And I thought of my former trem blings
Of the judgment day to be;
But sitting alone with my conscience
Seemed judgment enough for me.

And I wondered if there was a future
To this land beyond the grave;
But no one gave me an answer,
And no one came to save.

Then I felt that the future was present,
And the present would never go by;
For it was but the thought of my past life
Grown into eternity.

Then I woke from my lonely dreaming,
And the vision passed away,
And I knew the far-away warning
Was a warning of yesterday.

And I pray that I may not forget it
In this land before the grave;
That I may not fly in the future,
And mingle come to save.

So I sit alone with my conscience,
In the place where the years cease,
And I try to remember the future
In the land where time will be.

And I know of the future judgment,
How dreadful soe'er it may be,
That to sit alone with my conscience
Will be judgment enough for me.

Shreveport District, Louisiana Conference.

MR. EDITOR: You have heard but little from the Shreveport district this year. It is not because we have had nothing worthy of being told. As for the presiding elder, almost constant, unremitting work gave him no time. The breathing spells, coming now and then like spots of restful sunshine, were all absorbed by his recuperative forces. From far and near chidings have come from friends: "We hear nothing from you through the ADVOCATE." With your permission they shall hear something. Allow me, please, to say just here, that in a ministry of eighteen years I have never had a pastoral charge that has more completely enlisted all my sympathies, or more fully exhausted all my resources. Always believing that my appointments were of God and not of man, I was never more strongly assured of the Divine Providence in my work than in the one of this year. This has at once been a source of strength and comfort—a living inspiration to effort.

My first round, beginning at Shreveport, January 22, closed at North Bossier, April 8; time, twelve weeks; miles traveled, eight hundred; sermons preached, fifty-seven; thirteen Quarterly Conferences held, etc.

The second round, beginning at Shreveport, April 22, closed at North Bossier, Red River church, July 2; time, eleven weeks; thirteen Conferences; distance, eleven hundred miles; sixty-five sermons preached, etc.

The third round, in order to have thirteen full weeks before Conference on the fourth round—"the home stretch"—had to be crowded into nine weeks, and one of the nine given to the District Conference. Of this partial round there is but little to be said. In addition to the physical impossibility of holding fourteen Conferences in nine weeks, I was sick nearly the entire time.

My present design is to give you some account of this, the first of the fourth round of quarterly meetings.

Not having fully recovered from the last attack of chills, and my little household being in transitu—on a visit to family and friends in Morehouse—I did not reach Shreveport until Saturday morning. I was in time to take part in the closing services of a sweet-spirited, old-fashioned Methodist prayer meeting. It had been in fact, by previous arrangement between the pastor and myself, "a week of prayer." Bro. Goodwyn reported "precious seasons" for each day. Here was certainty a gracious preparation for the quarterly meeting. The very atmosphere in and about the dear old church tendered the heart and softened the spirit. The Discipline contemplates something of this preparation in the fast and special services enjoined on Friday preceding each quarterly meeting.

The Sabbath congregations were large and serious. The nine o'clock morning prayer meetings and night services have continued thus far through the week, and will doubtless close to-night. To-morrow I must leave for Mooringsport, the place of my next Conference.

So far the results of the meeting here are not seen in the numbers at the altar, or new members received. Manifestly there is and has been a deep work of grace in the hearts of God's children. As you know, we have some noble men and women of God in Shreveport. They have been severely tried, and have labored under difficulties the past three years. The epidemic of 1873 swept away twenty per cent. of our membership. The business community has never fully recovered, and, of course, the temporal interests of the church have suffered loss. Still through the thick clouds we think we see the light of a coming change. For in their losses and afflictions the little band left have heard and obeyed the urgent voice to special efforts. The spirit of double duty is in a large measure resting upon them. Bro. Goodwyn is the same tireless, indefatigable, watchful, earnest pastor that he has always been. May he yet have, before the year closes, the one burning desire of his heart—a gracious revival of religion.

This week of work has been one of great peace, enjoyment, and strength. Open doors and open hearts largely compensate the pastor for all his privations and toils. He has a full inheritance of labor in this life, and, humanly speaking, of sacrifices too. But what a rich indemnity in warm hearts and willing hands!

The pleasure has been greatly added to in the visit of my dear old friend and Bro. A——, of the Northwest Texas Conference. In other years we labored and lived almost as one—the bond between us something akin to that of Jonathan and David. He will spend a week or two more with me in my district, and I have in fact and in anticipation a feast of fat things.

Wife and children are in the Friendship neighborhood. Never was a place better named. It maintains its old spirit, and you, Mr. Editor, in your younger days, had an experimental knowledge of what I say. A few days under the hospitable roof of Mr. Jett Sullivan, with the thoughtful attentions of his sisters, Misses Sue and Mary, was an introduction to them to this delightful neighborhood never to be forgotten. Now in the equally careful and hospitable hands of Robert E. Moore, Esq., the presiding elder is as comfortable in mind concerning them as it is possible to be in a necessary absence.

The time approaches for service, and I must away to the pulpit. God permitting, you shall hear from me again soon.

Affectionately yours,

JOEL T. DAVES.

SHREVEPORT, Sept. 14, 1876.

The Great Fish Catch at the Camp Ground.

MR. EDITOR: I have many times been greeted and twitted about the "Fish Story" of Biloxi camp ground on the first day of the meeting. There lingers about it with many a sort of unbelieving curiosity, an interest that keeps up a lively inquiry to know more, and to know all about it. Anything under this head, however well it may be authenticated, seems to give the general reader a sort of license to doubt or believe just so much as he thinks proper. I have tried to describe it on certain occasions, yet the seeming reaction of the listener impresses you that after all he thinks it a little overdrawn; and yet, strange to say, thousands of our intelligent people will read a bundle of novels in which neither the reader nor the writer make any claim to truth or fact, and with an interest tireless and all-absorbing they will read on and on till away in the wee hours. But those who saw it are certainly not over anxious to make others believe who prefer to doubt. But, nevertheless, it was a fact; nor was it less enjoyable to those who did see it and were partakers of the existing sport. Some of the papers call it a "Fish Story." I did not read it. I shall therefore write as I saw it. And I am prompted to do so, as I believe, after due inquiry, that nothing of the sort has ever been seen before; and, possibly, may never again. There are many who hesitate to believe it. Possibly some of them are great lovers of the sport, and now and again have gone hundreds of miles on fishing frolics with great pretensions and ended in small results, and with all their try have never seen anything like this. Hence a free and ready admission of so strange a sight is more than could be expected in favor of those who never had much interest in fishing beyond the few days they might be dwellers in these rustic tents. And those who saw it and took part in the general massacre were equally surprised and elated that such a sight had come to their very doors unexpected and unsought; and, not less so, knowing that hundreds make it a business to spend their pleasure days in looking up a sport that might have satisfied them if they had ever seen a thousandth part of what fell to our lot.

I have been on the ground for several weeks for the last five years, but have never seen a fish near the shore except an occasional crab or a darting mullet at night, or the tiny schools of minnows which play along the rippling shore.

Although I am not a great lover of fish sport generally, yet while on the ground I have often sought all the information I could gain from fishermen as to the best way to supply our daily need. But all they seem to know, and much of our best practice is rather uncertain, they tell us it depends very much which way the wind blows. This, somehow or other, is a poor satisfaction to a hungry family. In our many efforts, which I suppose are about equally divided between necessity and sport, we try various ways to get what we need. The spear, hook-line, and cast-net. With these sometimes we do well enough, but not always. There is another way that seems to be always a certainty—money is a sure instrument to catch a supply from those who draw the seine.

On a calm night, with a rising tide, armed with a spear and a good pine torch, we sometimes catch flounders very freely. But, again, when all the signs and surroundings known to us seem favorable to a great catch, even then it sometimes fails; but our inexperience is evidently the cause, as the more knowing ones generally succeed when we, a part of the same company, look on with disappointment; but, after all, we find the very best fail at times and don't know why. But, alas! these are only some of the lighter afflictions and disappointments in the path of daily life—the whole way is dotted with them. But if we read the long, long catalogue rightly they never fail to whisper one mighty truth: That one thing only is certain in this uncertain world.

It was early in the morning of the first day of the camp meeting, the ladies, coming from bathing, told us that fish of all sorts and sizes, in vast numbers, were close to shore. With my spear I was quickly there, and no description or anything but the actual sight can ever rightly impress the mind as it was there spread out before us all along the shore. I have never heard how far it did extend, or how early in the morning they first came to shore. It was not long before a large gathering of people were catching fish, with spears hurriedly made out of the first stick they could get, with various other primitive appliances that first came to hand, and this was going on, as far as we could see, on either side of the camp ground.

Flounders were the greatest in numbers and in variety of sizes, from the largest down to the countless thousands about the size of a silver dollar, and so close to land that every retreating wave would leave them on the bare sand. While looking over this wonderful sight I was many times impressed that it was the only time in my life that I needed the word billion to rightly estimate the vast numbers that covered the white sandy shore. It extended out seaward as far as we could see, which was perhaps twenty or thirty feet, as it was high tide at the time.

Flounders generally lay partly covered with a thick sprinkling of sand, some were entirely hid, leaving only a distinct outline. About one-half of those which lay open on the sand would dart away as we tried to spear them. The water angle often deceived us in our mark or thrust, but, without going out of sight, they would return, as before, a little way behind us. What could have brought this extraordinary exodus from somewhere away out in the deep, so near to land? The older fish may possibly have been driven by some instinct known to the older part of all creature life to find a refuge from some common enemy. But can the same law of instinct draw to the ripple edge these countless thousands of miniature flounders, little, tiny things, just only large enough, seemingly, to contain life? Some places where the larger size lay very close together, I have stepped in behind, and scooped them out with my hands. In doing this I may, perhaps, claim, without any fear of competition, to have done what no one else ever did, or ever may again.

We generally speared the largest of everything nearest, including a great many of the largest stingrays over thirty inches wide. I speared one, a very large fellow, from which I could not withdraw the spear, and being the stronger, he started with me on a voyage; not willing to lose my spear, I followed as far as I dare, but, fearing that others of the tribe might show fight, I had to let him go; he slowly retreated to sea with the spear waving from side to side like a dismantled mast and wreck. By this unlooked-for mishap my sport seemed abruptly terminated; but on going to my tent, I got another spear and gave a general invitation to the late sleepers to come and join us; and very soon the sport became general and lively all along the line. Men, women, and children in highest glee for nearly three hours, till near nine o'clock, when they slowly disappeared. But long before this everybody had gathered ten times more than they needed, and later in the day the carts hauled away what was left. It was amusing to see every now and again a large wave roll in and tumble crabs, trout, mullet, and stingrays in one mass of confusion right over the flounders as they lay flat on the sand, yet with all this confused mass they all seemed agreeable and harmonious. Stingrays and flounders were the only fish that lay quiet, and were caught without difficulty. The mullet and trout were generally in schools twelve or fifteen feet long, and densely thick. These schools were perhaps one hundred feet or more apart. As we came near them, they would retreat a little from shore, but with a quick movement they were easily caught or lashed with a stick.

It was a splendid chance to have thrown the castnet over them. But I did not think of it soon enough. I could have caught a cart-load, and for once, at least, supplied the whole camp, as we seldom get many of these fine trout.

During the night previous a train from Montgomery, Ala., brought a great many people to the ground; and this first night was a rough and tumble sort of sleeping. Many of them were early in the morning down to the sea shore, and, seeing such an abundance of fish within easy catch, they speared them with sharp sticks, and various other rude implements not found in books; they enjoyed it freely, and supposed it was the same every day. The reader may guess their surprise when they learned that they only had made the discovery. No one before them had ever seen such a sight, and, possibly, no one might ever see it again.

Many causes have been given for it by old residents. Several very low tides, causing the water to become very fresh, then followed by a high tide of very salt water. But these various tides take place many times every year, just as they have now, only minus the fish. In the city I have heard it spoken of as a miracle, believing the camp was at the time in need of provisions. I shall not dispute with those who think so. A miracle in the Bible sense only takes place when nothing else seemingly could bring deliverance, or meet the necessities of the occasion. But there was no one day when we had such an abundance of supplies, as it was the first day of the meeting. The most I heard said about it was by some who thought it a good omen for a great and good meeting; and such we certainly had the like of which has never been seen so far South before.

In spite of a thousand interveulings, the whole scene often crowds the memory, and is in some measure lived over again; and especially that morning it was a sight not one of us, perhaps, will ever see again. But, for once, the crowd certainly had their full measure of sport in that direction.

EDWARD NATLEE.

The excellent effect produced by the evangelistic services of Messrs. Moody and Sankey in New York last winter, says the Christian Intelligencer, has suggested the revival of similar services this fall. Among other movements of the kind is one under the direction of Rev. Samuel Colcord, which will be inaugurated on the 1st of October in Chickering Hall, which has been leased for a term of three years for Sabbath services, morning and afternoon. A volunteer choir of two hundred singers, under the leadership of Mr. Charles L. Gunn, formerly of the Church of the Disciples, is in training for the enterprise. It is not designed by this movement to interfere with any existing church or denomination, but its purpose is to reach the outlying non-church going masses of high degree as well as of low. Mr. Colcord's enterprise has the sanction and fullest confidence of Drs. Taylor, Tyng, Jr., Ludlow, Elder, Chapman, Sabine, Tucker, Wedekind, Hepworth, Deems, Rylance, Ormiston, and many other leading clergymen of the different denominations in this city. Hence it will be seen that the services are to be entirely undenominational. Besides Rev. Mr. Colcord, the following are engaged to preach during the months of October and November: Rev. Drs. T. DeWitt Talmage, S. H. Tyng, Jr., J. D. Fulton, A. C. Wedekind, James M. King, Joseph T. Duryea, Rev. Messrs. C. S. Harrower, George H. Hepworth, and R. S. MacArthur. Mr. Colcord has lately resigned the pastorate of the Church of the Alliance (Congregational) to take charge of this work.

During the recent tornado a couple of Pennsylvania boys were up in a cherry tree stealing cherries. The tornado carried off the cherry tree, and neither the boys nor the tree have been seen since. Moral: Never tell a lie.

It was a printer who perpetrated this double-barreled, breech-loading pun-conundrum: Why is an old man's farm in Texas like the faces of a sun-glass? Because it's the place where the sons raise meat.

Said one man to another, "If it wasn't Sunday, how much would you take for that lumber?" "If it wasn't Sunday I'd tell you," was the proper reply.

Saints must not only be earnest in prayer, but active in working; while Moses was pleading in the mount, Joshua was fighting in the plain.

OBITUARIES.

Correspondents, please write names and dates very distinctly. We follow copy on proper names.

Obituary notices should be forwarded promptly and immediately. Give only points of general interest, such as will help the living. Details of funeral services, and such phrases as "mourn their loss," etc., are not edifying. Verses, either original or select, not admissible in this department. Give the locality distinctly and in full. In the case of infants only a simple announcement of the death, with names and dates, will be published.

☞ All obituaries received are published as soon as convenient. If, after a reasonable time, any such communication fail to appear, let a duplicate be sent instead of a complaint.

DIED, on the twenty-second of May, 1876, near Covington, La., Mrs. EUNICE DAVIS, in the sixty-fifth year of her age. She was born in the city of New Orleans, in March, 1812; married Mr. Daniel Davis about 1828, and left nine children and many grandchildren to mourn her departure.

Sister Davis united with the Methodist Episcopal Church in the year 1832. She was an upright, consistent Christian all her life. She was daily in the enjoyment of the peace of God, and though she did not often attend the services of the sanctuary, she always arose early, and dedicated the first hour of the day to singing and prayer. How often, when at her house, has the writer been awaked by her morning devotions. She lived in a godless community, surrounded by those who did not fear the Lord. And while we wonder that none of her children are even attendants at the house of God, we cannot but admire the firmness and constancy of her life to religious principle. She informed me that she once received so powerful a foretaste of the word to come that for awhile it was her daily prayer to leave the world and go to Jesus; and I cannot help but view such a state as the highest point of Christian experience—a point which so few of us reach—"to desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better." And the apostle certainly make it a test of the true Christian, though a high one, "to love the appearance of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." This, however, requires such deadness to the world, and such relish of heavenly things, that I fear comparatively few of us ever reach it.

Being brought up among the French, she was fluent in that tongue; and once being casually visited by a Romish priest, who, supposing from her speaking in French that she was a Catholic, asked her why she did not attend church. "I do attend church," she answered; "I go to my church." "What church is that?" said the priest. "The Methodist church," she replied. "The Methodists!" responded the priest; "do you think there is any good in them?" "I don't think anything about it," she answered; "I know there is; I know my sins are forgiven, and that if I were to die to-day I would go right straight to glory." "Well lady," said the priest, "if that is your faith, you have a stronger religion than ours; and I would give all this world to say in truth as much."

Thus lived and died this good woman. She has now found her long-desired rest; and how blessed would it be to see all her children and neighbors come and partake of that holy, apostolic faith, which even a Romanist acknowledged was a stronger fortress of hope than his.

GEORGE T. VICKERS.

MRS. ELLEN C. DENSON, daughter of Richard and Louisa Jeffries, was born in Madison parish, La., January 15, 1838, and died in Louisville, Ky., April 23, 1876. She was married to Mr. John Denson, of Carroll parish, August 7, 1865, and was left a widow, with two little children, in 1871.

I first knew Sister Denson in 1872. In the summer of that year she joined our church at Pecan Grove, Lake Providence circuit, and lived afterward a devoted servant of God, praying with and for her two little boys, and teaching them to pray to her God and their God.

The Lord's servants, and especially her pastor, ever found glad welcome at her home. She esteemed it a precious privilege there to have the prayers of her minister for herself and little ones. In the spring of this year, she removed to Kentucky, that she might have better facilities for the education of her sons; but in a little more than one month, in a strange country, far from her loved native Southland, she was called away from her new home to "that better land," where sorrow and death cannot enter.

Though here only a short time, yet the graces of character shown in her life won for her the esteem and love of those who knew her.

I was not present when she died, but learn from my brother, N. G. Alexander, and his wife, with whom she was boarding, that her victory in the last hour was complete. Her death was a good illustration of the triumph of faith in Jesus in life's last conflict.

Almost from the first of her illness, she said she would not get well, but said she was not afraid to die, that she would love to live for her children, but that she had prayed for resignation. The Lord heard and answered this prayer. She told her pastor, Bro. Bond, the evening before her last morning on earth, that if it was the will of God, she was perfectly willing to die. When the end was very near, she bade each one present a loving farewell, and said she was going to a better world. Then raising her hands she prayed: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," and shouted in blessed God-given triumph while her strength lasted, and gently fell asleep.

WILLIAM F. ALEXANDER.

ROSANA JOSEPHINE WILSON, eldest daughter of G. W. and A. J. Paton, was born in Jones county, Miss., March 24, 1853, and died near the place she was born, May 13, 1876. Josephine, as she was familiarly called, was a good child; she was an example of a failing a child in the way it should go. Both her parents were consistent members of our church, and attended to its ordinances; they taught their children to love Jesus. Josephine was a child of sorrow; her parents, in common with their section, suffered by the ravages of the late war, and still worse was to be hers; her father was murdered when she was only a child, which left her widowed mother to struggle for the support of herself and six little girls, the subject of this obituary being the oldest. The widow, however, trusted to the Father of the fatherless with a faithful widow's reward. Josephine was a good and obedient child; she had not departed from the way she was brought up. The time was fast approaching that the great Shepherd desired her to enter his sheepfold, to adopt her into his family, and to write her name in his book of life. During the pastorate year of Bro. J. H. Holland, on the then Leaf River mission at Hothel meeting house, the light of the holy Spirit broke into her soul, and she was happily converted and made an heir of heaven.

She forthwith united herself to the church and her course was; to the day of her death, heavenward. Her seat was not often vacant on days of worship.

In the year 1871 she was married to Bro. Joseph Wilson. She lived us for eternity, as she would die. Her death-bed sufferings were short. She was attacked at ten o'clock on Friday, and died just twenty-four hours afterward—on Saturday at ten o'clock. Her friends did not think her in immediate danger until a few hours before her death. When I arrived, as her physician, she had already entered Jordan's cold, cold stream. After making examination to see if anything could be done for her restoration, I asked her if she was ready and willing to go. Her ready reply was, "yes." I will not soon forget the expression of her face; it seemed to say to me, "I am bidding this world a long, long farewell; I am tasting the joys of heaven."

Thus passed away a Christian whose example we should imitate. She is forever gone. Let us follow her, and be forever at rest.

H. H. WAYNE.

DEPARTED, this life, July 12, 1876, in Wilkinson county, Miss., JOHN BAIRD. Although he had far passed the years allotted to man, even fourscore and ten, and notwithstanding we have every evidence of his preparation for a better mode of existence from a consistent Christian life for more than half a century, yet we mourn to give him up. For many years previous to the late war he was an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. His home was the home of all good men, and especially ministers of the gospel. He never failed to attend preaching when in his power. Many years ago he became afflicted with rheumatism of the spine, and since that time he has been a constant sufferer. Yet he bore his affliction without murmuring. He was a pure spirit, bearing the affliction as evident to man with great patience. As was remarked by one at the grave, "one of the best examples our country afforded." A man of prayer, a man of one book." He reared nine children, six sons and three daughters; six of them have passed away to join a beloved mother, we trust, in a better land. His troubles, as well as afflictions were great, yet he would exclaim: "The Lord's will be done." For two years past he had been an intense sufferer, yet his Savior, who had borne him up through these long years, gave him grace to bear it. At times he would be so happy, and talked so beautifully that we felt it good to be around the resting-place of a dying saint. He had prayed for an easy death, and his prayer was answered. For a short time his sufferings seemed to cease; with his friends around him, he sweetly slept his life away. The writer often visited him, and always found him humble, distrustful of himself, but expressing strong confidence in his Savior. His disease was of long standing and very much complicated. The community has lost a good citizen, his children a kind father, and the church a devoted member.

WILLIAM DAVIS.

DIED, near Belmont, Ala., [illegible] children of Zack and Clarinda Tutt, of diphtheria, LAURA and BIRDIE. Birdie died August 19, 1876; Laura died a few days before. After the death of Laura, Birdie seemed to lose sight of earth. She would tell her ma not to grieve after Laura, for she was an angel. Birdie professed religion and joined the church about three weeks before she died. After she joined the church a great deal of her time was spent in singing. A few days before she died she was seen in her play-house, and heard singing "Happy people over yonder," and then seen on her knees. What visions she must have had of loved ones and the better land before she died. What a bright face I see. Laura, wait for me. With her arms around her mother's neck, she sang "Rock of Ages" and "Jesus lover of my soul." She again exclaimed, "What bright faces I see; come, all of you, and help me to pray." With her eyes turned toward heaven, and clasping her hands in shouting, she passed away. Her triumphant death has made a wonderful impression on the community. Those that witnessed Birdie's death will never doubt the propriety of young people professing religion and joining the church. It is a great source of pleasure to the parents that Birdie joined the church. They think there was a vacant place in heaven, and they are gone to fill that place. We may say of them what David said of Saul and Jonathan, they were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in death they were not divided.

J. W. MCCOY.

SISTER THIRZA A. MCNEIL, eldest daughter of Philip and Mary McGee, was born in Wilkinson county, Miss., October 2, A. D. 1817, and died in Mount Pleasant May 10, 1876.

In the month of October, 1841, at a camp meeting near where she lived, she professed the religion of the Lord Jesus, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church south, henceforward, until her death led a life consistent with the high profession she had made in her youth. June 1, 1859, she was happily united in marriage to Mr. R. C. McNeil, with whom she lived, faithfully discharging the duties of wife and mother. She was the subject of severe affliction for two months previous to her death, but with Christian fortitude she patiently endured her affliction. While the blessed hope of immortality loomed up before her, she calmly waited the solemn hour of dissolution. She leaves a husband and four little children to mourn their irreparable loss. Her funeral was preached, before her interment, to a large congregation of her kindred and neighbors.

"IF I SHOULD DIE TO-NIGHT."

If I should die to-night,
My friends would look upon my quiet face
Before they laid it in its resting-place,
And deem that death had lent it almost fair;
And laying snow-white flowers against my hair,
Would smooth it down with tearful tenderness,
And fold my hands, with lingering caress,
Poor hands, so empty and so cold to-night.

If I should die to-night,
My friends would call to mind with loving thought
Some kindly deed the ley hand had wrought,
Some gentle word the frozen lips had said;
Remember how the tired feet had sped,
The memory of my self, I pass and pride,
My nasty words would all be put aside,
And so I should be loved and mourned to-night.

If I should die to-night,
Fond hearts estranged would turn once more to me
Recalling o her days remorsefully,
The eyes that oft no with averted glance
Would look upon me as of yore, perchance,
And soften in the old familiar way,
For who would war with dumb, unconscious clay?
So I might rest; forgiven of all to-night.

O friends, I pray to-night,
Keep not your kisses for my dead, cold brow,
The way is lonely; let me feel them now;
Lift gently off me I am travel-worn,
My fainting feet are pierced with many a thorn,
Forgive; O hearts estranged, forgive, I plead!
When dreamless rest is mine I shall not need
The tenderness for which I long to-night.

PROFANE WORDS.

As pollshe I steel resolves a stain
From drops ar-random flung;
So does the child, when words profane
Drop from a parent's tongue.
The first cuts heard off we find
That nought that we can do
To cleanse the incnal ar flog mind
The blight ness will renew.

The spring hath birds, however late,
The June must bring her roses
To sainted hearts that faithful wait
For what God's love discloses.
We look along the shining ways
To see the angels' bows;
They come to cheer darkest days,
And in the bleakest places.
Weak is God the strongest way,
He answers with a sorrow;
We labor beneath the cross to day,
We wear the crown to-morrow.

Richard Lion-Heart.

Richard of England was "the flower of chivalry, the pearl of crusading princes. His battle-ax seems to have been the weapon most familiar to his stalwart arm. He had caused it to be forged by the smith in England before he departed for the East, and twenty pounds of steel were wrought into the head of it that he might break therewith the Saracens' bones. 'Nothing,' it was said, could resist this mighty ax, and whatever it fell, horse and man went to the ground.' His name became so tremendous in the East, that it was employed, says Gisbon, by the Syrian mothers to silence their infants; 'and if a horse suddenly started from the way, his rider was wont to, exclaim, 'Dost thou think King Richard's in that bush?'' He had, marched, as far as Ramla and Bethania, places within a short stance of Jerusalem, 'but the winter became tempestuous, provisions grew short, sickness spread through the ranks of his host, and many in despair, abandoned it. It became then evident that the must either return to Jaffa, or make the useless attempt of storming a walled city defended by a garrison of numerous than his worn and wasted army, which he found himself compelled to lead toward the coast. All discipline was now abandoned, and after some conflicts among themselves, the remnants of the French and German crusaders returned homeward. Richard was now looking back upon Acre, and the vigorous Saladin, descending from the mountains of Judea, took by storm the town of Jaffa, all but the citadel. The moment Richard heard of this, he ordered such Christian troops as he could keep together to march further by land, while with only seven vessels he hastened by sea to the relief of Jaffa, the Joppa of the Scriptures. On arriving in the roadstead he found the beach covered with the enemy. Then, turning a deaf ear to the advice and fears of his companions, he cried: "Cursed for ever be he that followeth me not!" and leaped into the water battle-ax in hand. The knights in the ships were too high-souled to abandon their lord, and all their head he routed the Saracens and retook the town. On the following day, about dawn, Saladin appeared with the main body of his army, and Richard, who had now been joined by his approaching troops, set forth to meet him in front of the city. There he, of the lion-heart, made up for his immense inferiority in point of numbers by his judicious arrangement; and he gained a victory which was most decisive, and is generally deemed the greatest of his warlike exploits. Full of admiration at his bearing in the field, Saphadin, brother of the Sultan, seeing his horse wounded, sent him two magnificent horses, on one of which he pursued his success till night fell. The Saracen who met him had been wont, whenever he led the charge, to be said to have taunted and defied the sight of him. This was the best affair in Palestine, and a great fever, brought on by his exposure in Jaffa, alone prevented him from visiting Jerusalem in the character of a pilgrim. A three years' truce was concluded, and so ended this crusade. If Jerusalem could have been won, says Dr. Lingard, by personal strength and bravery, it might have been won by Richard."—Cassell's "British Battles by Land and Sea."

Gratitude is the fairest blossom which springs from the soul, and the heart of man knoweth none more tender. While its opposite, ingratitude, is a deadly weed, not only pernicious in itself, but impregnating the very atmosphere in which it grows with fetid vapors.

A man who has evidently been demonized writes: "Fifteen thousand years in gold will now buy an American lady a decent outfit to be married in, and there's no use talking about prices going any lower."

What does 'Good Friday mean?" asked one school boy of another. "You had better go home and read Robinson Crusoe," was the withering reply.

Slade's Slate before the British Association.

Slade's slate, direct from this city, has the undoubted honor of having concentrated the forces of the anthropological section of the British Association at Glasgow upon the marvels of spiritualism. Prof. Barrett introduced the mysterious phenomena of clairvoyance and kindred arts in a formal paper. During the discussion that followed, Slade, who has been coining guineas in London with his slate and pencil, was the subject that excited the intensest interest. Dr. Carpenter denied that he had been converted to spiritualism by what he had seen at Slade's. It was urged by several that a committee be appointed to investigate "the facts" presented. Prof. E. Ray Lankester, F. R. S., Fellow of Exeter College, has relieved the British scientists of all responsibility. He and his friend, Dr. H. B. Donkin, of Queen's College, Oxford, have investigated Slade so thoroughly that London knows him and his slate as well as New York knows Flint and his tea pot. Dr Lankester's letter to the London Times tells the old story, that has been so often told here, of the suspicious aspect of all of Slade's absurd performances from beginning to end. Such fourth-rate juggling would not be tolerated by an audience in any public performer. Yet this is the kind of "phenomena" which is discussed by a section of the British Association, and seriously defended by the President of the section, Alfred Wallace. We give the closing paragraph of Dr. Lankester's letter:

"This morning I went with my friend, Dr. H. B. Donkin, of Queen's College, Oxford, to test my hypothesis by this crucial experiment—I had determined to seize the slate at the critical moment—at the moment when Slade professed that it was entirely untouched—and if the writing was already on the slate before the spirits were supposed to have begun their work, I considered that I should have a demonstration of the truth of my hypothesis which would be convincing to persons not already lost to reason. I explained to Dr. Donkin my hypothesis and my intention, and the result has completely justified my anticipation. As on last Monday, so to-day, Slade allowed me to hold the slate against the table in order to receive the writing, saying that the spirit would probably write more distinctly for me than for him. The slate had been cleaned, and was now declared by Slade to be devoid of writing, but writing was to appear on it in the usual way, accompanied by the scratching noise of the pencil. There could be seen the usual delay and fumbling on Slade's part when I put out my hand and immediately seized the slate away, saying, 'You have already written on the slate. I have watched you doing it each time.' And there, sure enough, was the message, already written, as I had anticipated."

"Dr. Donkin, who accompanied Prof. Lankester on his second visit when the imposture was discovered, also writes to the Times corroborating the above account in every particular.

When Robert Dale Owen introduced Katie King into the the society of the Psychic Monthly, she and her doctors were very soon extinguished, with much shame and contempt. When distinguished professors introduced Slade into the learned society of the British Association, he and his slate pencil—and soon consigned to the limbo of common swindlers. Let other mediums take warning and avoid a prominence that makes it worth while for some man of sense to take the trouble to expose their ineffable rascality.—New York Observer.

A Singing Mouse.

The Rev. Samuel Lockwood, Ph. D., contributes to the Naturalist a detailed account of a singing mouse which was for some time in his possession. It was brought from Florida, where it had been trapped in the house of Philip Ryall, Esq. It was a species of the Hesperomys cognatus, which is popularly named the wood mouse, jumping mouse, and white-footed mouse. It was a tiny, agile, graceful little creature, gamboling and frolicking about its cage for hours together; but it suffered no approach to familiarity, always biting the finger that dared to touch it. It ate all sorts of food—bread, corn, nuts, sugar, bread, fish, etc.—with about the same relish; but it especially delighted in fresh grass and white clover. Whenever an unlucky fly caught its eye, it would spring and catch it with its mouth or its hands, and devour it with great gusto. It ate in a sitting posture, holding its food in its hands, and dressing it with much dexterity. Its song was varied, comprising several melodies of considerable length and harmony. It was invariably warbled while turning the revolving cage, and hence was termed the "wheel song." All the melodies were in the major keys, and so regularly delivered that they were susceptible of notation, and were indeed written out by Dr. Lockwood. There was no monotony in the strains; for though the theme was ever the same, it was diversified by endless new and charming variations. At one time the mouse sang uninterruptedly for nine minutes, and the muscles of the abdomen were all the while in vigorous action. The tones were soft and silvery, yet very distinct. Often while the mouse was taking violent exercise, flying about the cage or turning the wheel, it would pour out an uninterrupted torrent of song. Sometimes, while at its meals, it would literally eat and sing in the same breath.

A Norwich man calls himself on his card a "temperance boot maker." The need of temperance boots is apparent, for though they're not generally drunk, it's a notorious fact that they're often very tight.

An out-west minister asked an old lady what she thought of the doctrine of total depravity. "Oh," she said, "I think it is a good doctrine, if the people would only act up to it."

An Act of Justice.

The Charleston News and Courier, under this head, says:

Many of the residents of Charleston, particularly the Methodists, will remember the unrighteous suit instituted in 1855 by certain Northern Methodist preachers to obtain possession of the McKee property. It appears that Mr. John McKee, who died in this city in 1833, bequeathed his whole estate, at that time valued at about $40,000, and consisting of lands, houses, stocks, bonds, etc., to the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1844 the church became divided in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The Northern branch of the church made no claim to the property whatever until the close of the war in 1865, when the city became flooded with carpet-bag missionaries. Some of these instituted a suit in the Provost Court, claiming the benefit of the fund. The suit was brought against Dr. James R. Mood, the administrator of the executor of John McKee. The suit was decided in favor of the new applicants, and on appeal the judgment of the lower court was sustained, and the brethren from the North put in possession of the estate. The matter, however, was not allowed to drop; it was brought before the Joint Commission of the Northern and Southern branches of the M. E. Church which recently met at Cape May, N. J., and an order was granted in favor of the Southern branch of the church, requiring the whole estate and its revenues to be returned to the M. E. Church South. Owing to the shrinkage of values and to the disastrous results of the war, the estate is not worth as much now as it was when first bequeathed to the church, but the vexed question has been settled, and the high-handed proceeding of the military court has been overturned and a tardy act of justice done. Under this decision the colored people will have to give up the possession of Old Bethel church. It has been decided, however, that they will not only be presented with the edifice, but will be given by their white brethren a suitable lot of ground to which to remove the building.

There are 400 000 more persons engaged in the liquor business in the United States than in preaching the gospel and school teaching; and from the effects of intoxicating drinks 100,000 are annually sent to prison, 150,000 to drunkards' graves, and 200,000 children are reduced to want. The total number engaged in the business is 500 000, of which 56,993 are employed in making and selling annually 5,685,633 barrels of beer.

It is estimated that the clergy of the United States costs annually $12,000,000, the lawyers, criminals, prisons, etc., $90,000,000, and intoxicating liquors, as before said, $1,471 000,000.

The State of Pennsylvania spent during the year 1873, for liquors of all kinds, $152 663 945, and for schools and teachings, $5,863,729. She has engaged in the liquor business 78,800 persons, 16 870 school teachers, and 24,000 criminals—four-fifths of whom were made so by strong drink.

The city of Philadelphia had 4,160 drinking places, and spent for intoxicating drinks $30 000,000 in one year. Chicago had 2 300 liquor saloons, and spent for intoxicating liquors $14 000,000. Newark had 861 drinking saloons, and spent for strong drinks $1,500 000.

The city of New York had 7,000 licensed drinking saloons, which if placed in rows would make a street like Broadway thirteen miles long. She spent for intoxicating liquors $50,000,000 during the year 1870, and there were employed in the business 35,000 persons. She had 450 churches and chapels, and there were engaged in preaching and teaching the public and private schools 3,000 persons, all of which to support cost $1,505,000. The total sum invested in the liquor business of all kinds amounted to $140,000,000; in the manufacturing business, $60 000 000; in the banking business, $80,000,000. The police department cost $3 000,000, and in public amusements $5,000,000 was spent. The meat bill was $2 000,000, the flour bill $2,000,000, and the daily consumption of beer 40,000 Kegs. There were 65,000 arrests for intoxications and disorderly conduct, and 80 000 persons were in institutions under the care of the Commissioner of Public Charities.

The recent and serious disturbances in the Fiji Islands have been the occasion of testing the character of the converts to Christianity. The mountain tribes, who are still addicted to the old vices of the islanders, made repeated attacks upon the Christian villages, in one case murdering and eating eighteen women and children. In another attack they burned eleven of the smaller towns. Sir Arthur Gordon, English Governor, organized a military force, broke the power of the cannibal tribes along the whole line of operations, and captured a large number of the worst criminals. Thirty five of these prisoners were tried at or near the scenes of the murders of which they were found guilty. The governor commuted the capital sentence in the case of the greater number, but fifteen were condemned to death, without hope of remission, and all but one, who succeeded in breaking prison, were executed. The governor bears the following testimony to the excellent conduct of the native Christians during the late outbreak. He says: "The hearty co-operation of the people generally is worthy of all praise, and the manner in which Christianity seems really to influence their conduct as regards the treatment of prisoners and the wounded, even in moments of the greatest excitement, is most cheering and satisfactory." The correspondent of the London Daily News also appears to be impressed by the fact of the genuine Christianity of the Fijians. He writes that the work of the Wesleyan missionaries in Fiji "has been speedy, marvelous, and complete."—New York Observer.

Religious Intelligence.

—The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Algiers lately commissioned three priests to cross the Great Desert to Timbuctoo, partly for missionary purposes and partly to collect information with regard to the country and its inhabitants. The intelligence has now come that they were all killed in the desert and their companions plundered and dispersed.

—Dr. Withrow, the new pastor of Park Street church, is very highly commended by The Congregationalist as an admirable preacher and working pastor. The view of the old members who have had the anxiety of the enterprise on them is expressed in the words used by one of the gray-haired veterans after one of his sermons: "Isn't he grand? We'll see the house packed now."

—The Rev. J. Cunningham Geikie, formerly a Presbyterian minister in Toronto, was received into deacon's orders in the Church of England on Trinity Sunday last, and afterward appointed to the curacy of St. Peter's, East Dulwich, England, by the Bishop of Winchester. Dr. Geikie's brother was a clever but unknown etcher. He himself has written several books, one of which has been reissued in this country.

—Mr. George Smith, who recently deciphered a number of Assyrian tablets in the British Museum which were found to give an account of the creation, has delivered a series of lectures in relation to them at the Royal Institution of London. The tablets narrate the story of the creation of the universe and of man, man's fall from a state of innocence, the deluge and the building of Babel. The legends correspond closely to the account given in the book of Genesis.

—During the past four months the Roman Catholics in the province of Szechuen, China, have been the victims of a persecution of a very bitter kind. The remonstrances of the French legation have been quite unavailing. At other places the telegram brings reports of the massacre of priests and converts, and the Protestants have not entirely escaped. There appears to be a revival of the hatred of foreigners, and the failure to make proper redress for the murder of Mr. Margary is another indication of this hostility.

—The receipts of the American Missionary Association for the fiscal year which ends with September are so encouraging that, with a strong effort on the part of its friends, an increase of debt may be avoided. Its books will be kept open for the first week in October, that the gleanings may be gathered. Prompt remittances of money intended for the Association will be essential to the desired result. It will be a great point gained in these hard times to carry one of our benevolent societies through the year with no addition to its debt.

—There is in India a community of Jews called Beni-Israel. Their ancestors settled in India 900 or 1,000 years ago. They wear the costume, use the language, and conform to the social habits and manners of the Hindoos, but preserve the Jewish religion. They strictly observe the Sabbath, abstain from unclean fish or flesh, and observe the great feasts. Few of them are well versed in the Hebrew, but they have several books in the Marathi. There is little intercourse with the Jews, chiefly owing to the difference in costume and language, and there are but seldom intermarriages.

—Those are true words with which Rev. H. N. Barnum advocates the cause of American missions in the Turkish Empire: "So far as I can see, the only hope for poor Turkey is in the gospel. Without its renovating power her future will even be darker than the present. The leaven has been introduced. It has already shown by its effects on small communities—reforming, enlightening, educating, and preparing them for civil as well as religious liberty—that it is able to transform the whole empire and prepare it to become a civilized, Christian state. And I am bold to say that no other power can purify the corrupt mass."

—Efforts in behalf of heathen women are the order of the day through the world-wide mission-field. They form a new element of power and give promise of far greater results of gospel work among the heathen than the missionary annals have yet recorded. From the land of the Zulus in South Africa comes an account of kraal work among the women similar to the zenana work carried on by the missionary ladies in India. Miss Hance writes an interesting account of her labors to The Missionary Herald. Some four years have passed since a little beginning was made with this undertaking. Accompanied by a native Bible-woman, the missionary endeavored to gather the women for religious service in the kraals. The people did not at first understand or wish to understand what was intended. Men and boys and infants, together with the talkative women, kept the kraals in an uproar during the meetings. Gradually, however, the women were allowed to have the meetings to themselves, and quiet prevailed while God's truth was being taught. On one occasion particularly Miss Hance was enabled to speak to the Zulu women about the love of God with so much power that when the meeting was over the company separated into serious groups, talking the great theme over among themselves. Soon an aged and much respected heathen woman, who had been present at this meeting, lay on her death bed. She declared that she hoped to be saved by the Savior of whom Miss Hance had taught her; but that she did not know him well enough to be quite sure, and she urged upon her friends to attend the kraal meeting and learn all they could of God and his Son, that in their dying hour they might have more certainty than she had. This testimony made a deep impression, and lifted the kraal work into popularity. It is now carried on in five or six directions from the station.

Our Young People.

TIME ENOUGH.

Two little squirrels, out in the sun,
One gathered nuts, the other had none.
"There enough yet," his chestnut retorts,
"Summer is still only just on the wane."

Listen, my child, while I tell you his fate:
He roused from his nest at last, but he roused a little too late.
Down fell the snow from a pitiless cloud,
And gave little squirrel a pitiless, white shroud.

Two little boys in a school room were placed;
One always perfect, the other disgraced.
"Time enough yet for my learning," he said,
"I will climb by and by from the foot to the head."

Listen, my darling; their books are turned gray;
One is a sovereign sheriff to-day;
The other, a pauper, looks out at the door
Of the poorhouse, and bites his dry crust of yore.

Two kinds of people we meet every day;
One is at work, the other at play.
Living unregretted, or dying unknown—
The busiest hive has room for a drone.

Tell me, my child, if these stories have taught
The lesson I longed to impart to your thought;
Answer me this, and my story is done:
Which of the two would you be, little one?

For the Young.

GATHERED HOME.

Mr. George Lawrence, of Barcelona, who has just returned to his labors there, sends the following touching story communicated to him by a friend, relating the death of a youth in one of their schools:

On the thirtieth of last July, while we were celebrating the examination in our college, the burial of my young disciple took place. Luis Francesch, who fell asleep in Jesus the day previous. This youth, who scarcely counted fifteen years, has died rejoicing in the Lord Jesus.

In the last visit that Luis paid me the following conversation took place:

"Luis, do you find yourself better?"

"No, sir, I am getting worse."

"And, in case that death should surprise you, do you find yourself prepared to present yourself before God?"

"Yes, sir."

"And how have you prepared yourself?"

"By means of our Lord Jesus Christ."

"Do you believe that Jesus Christ is your Savior?"

"With all my heart."

"And have you no fear of death?"

"No, sir, because to die in Christ is to live."

A few days after this conversation Luis grew worse, and took to his bed suffering for two months and a half the most intense pain. The reading of the sacred Scriptures was calming and consolatory to the poor sick one in the midst of his sufferings.

Though he suffered so much often he might be heard calling to his mother in order that she might read to him some portions of the Bible, such as the Psalms of which he recited several by heart, or the second chapter of Matthew and eighth of the epistle to the Romans. He likewise asked his mother two or three times a day to sing to him some of the favorite hymns.

If at any time his mother wished to do something he besought her to let his little sister do it, because he desired to have her as much as possible by his side. But when the hour of worship arrived he besought her to leave him, so that she might be able on return to tell him what the preacher said about Jesus.

One day his mother asked him if she might send for the two gentlemen who came sometimes to read the Scriptures. He replied: "No, mother, I don't think we should trouble them so much; you read so well, and I love so much to hear your voice."

When he was almost choked by the strength of his cough, which at intervals attacked him, he indicated to his mother with his finger that she might take his hole, which was never for a moment far from his pillow, and, as soon as he recovered his strength, heard with gladness the portions of the word.

But the most interesting part of this history of our faithful Luis was his last moments. He had lost his strength to speak. His mother, going near to him, said: "My little Luis, raise your arms and embrace our sweet Jesus." Moved as by a spring, his face put on a peculiar brightness, and with a sweet smile he gave her to understand that his soul was rejoicing in the presence of his Savior. This he repeated several times, until his happy and joyful spirit separated itself from the mortal body, and was translated to the celestial dwelling-place prepared by Jesus for all those who, like the young Luis, die confessing his holy name.

Many things the good mother related to me about the departed, among which is the following: "According as I see," said Luis three months before the celebration of the examinations, "I shall not take part this year unless God restores my health; but I am sure that day will be the best prize in my life." And truly on the eve of that day, at ten o'clock at night, my beloved disciple received the prize of glory from the hands of his Lord. While the mother bestowed upon her son the utmost care, God gave her many occasions of announcing the gospel to the persons who visited her.

Only a Pin.

Only two or three days ago an overseer in an American mill found a pin which cost the company $500.

"Was it stolen?" asked Susie. "I suppose it must have been very handsome. What was it, a diamond pin?"

"Oh, no, my dear! not by any means. It was just such a pin as people buy every day, and use without stint. Here is one upon my dress."

"Such a pin as that cost $500?" exclaimed John. "I don't believe it."

"But mamma says it is a true story," interposed Susie.

"Yes, I know it to be true. And this is how the pin happened to cost so much. You know that calicoes, after they are printed and washed, are dried and smoothed by being passed over heated rollers. Well, by some mischance, a pin dropped so as to lie upon the principal roller, and, indeed, became wedged into it, the head standing out a little from the surface.

"Over and over went the roller, and round and round went the cloth, whirling at length upon still another roller, until the piece was measured off. Then another piece began to be dried and wound, and so on till a hundred pieces had been counted off. These were not examined immediately, but removed from the machinery and laid aside. When at length they came to be inspected it was found that there were holes in every piece throughout the web, and only three quarters of a yard apart. Now in each piece there were from thirty-five to forty-five yards, and at twelve cents a yard that would count up to about $500.

"Of course the goods could not be classed as perfect goods, so they were sold as remnants, at less than half the price they would have brought had it not been for that hidden pin.

"Now it seems to me that when a boy takes for his companion a profane swearer, a Sabbath breaker, or a lad who is untruthful, and a little girl for her playmate one who is unkind or disobedient, or in any way a wicked child, they are like the roller which took to its bosom the pin. Without their being able to help it, often the evil influence clings to them, and leaves its mark upon everybody with whom they come in contact.

"That pin damaged irreparably forty hundred yards of new print, but bad company has ruined thousands of souls for whom Christ died. Remember 'one sinner destroyeth much good.' Therefore avoid evil companions."

THE PEACHES.—A gentleman brought four beautiful peaches home one day. His children had never seen any before, and he gave one to each of his three little boys, and the fourth to the mother.

The three little boys were very pleased with the fruit, and ran with it into the garden.

The following day the gentleman asked his little sons how they liked the peaches.

"Oh!" answered Robert, the eldest, "I never tasted such delicious fruit, so sweet and soft; and its cheeks were as red as a rose. I have saved the stone to plant it, that we may grow some of it ourselves."

"You have acted wisely," answered the father. "And what did you do with yours, Thomas?"

"Oh, I ate it directly, and mother gave me half of hers. It was very delicious."

"I can't say it was wise," said the father, "but it was childlike. And you are the youngest, and still a child."

"And you, Edwin, what did you do with yours?"

"I took it to neighbor Bob," said Edwin blushing. "He has been ill six months. He would not take it, but I put it on the table by his bedside, and ran away."

"That was right," answered the father. "Who has made the best use of the fruit, children?"

"Edwin!" cried the other two.

The mother kissed Edwin, and said:

"You enjoyed the fruit as much as if you had eaten it; did you not, my boy?"

"Oh, yes," cried Edwin, "much more."

BELLS WITH WINGS.—Did you ever see a bell with wings? I never did; but I have seen such a beast carved in stone. It came from the old, old city of Nineveh. It was dug up out of the ground, for the city is ruined and covered with earth.

The people there were pretty good once, but they are gone, and we have to dig away down under the ground to find what they were and the grand things they made. I suppose they worshiped those bells with wings, and I am sorry for that.

Did you ever read about Nineveh in the Bible?

How many, many grains of sand it must have taken to bury Nineveh! Little things can do great works sometimes. Can little children do great works? Of course they can. I call to little ones in a school give little pennies every week they will grow to dollars by a year's end.

I wish you would do many little good deeds, and see if they do not be something a great deal. Can you think of any other little things that do great works? I have read a verse in the Bible about the ants and cones that are little and yet do much work. I have heard of little insects that build up great islands from the depths of the ocean. Do you know what insects I mean?—Apples of Gold.

VILLAGE WORDS.—A distinguished author says: "I resolved, when I was a child, never to use a word which I could not pronounce before my mother without offending her." He kept his resolution, and became a pure-minded, noble, honored gentleman. His rule and example are worthy of imitation.

Boys really learn a class of low, vulgar words and expressions which are never heard in respectable circles. The utmost care on the part of parents will scarcely prevent it. Of course we cannot think of girls as being so much exposed to this peril. We cannot imagine a decent girl using words she would not give utterance to before her father or mother.

Such vulgarity is thought by some boys to be "smart," the "next thing to swearing," and yet "not so wicked." But it is a habit which leads to profanity, and fills the mind with evil thoughts. It vulgarizes and degrades the soul, and prepares the way for many of the gross and fearful sins which now corrupt society.

Young reader, keep your mouth free from all impurity, and your "tongue from evil," but, in order to do this, ask Jesus to cleanse your heart and keep it clean, for "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

If you dislike to say potato-bug, it is perfectly proper to refer to the insect as the decemlineata.

Make Your Election Sure.

The great Teacher says that the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light—that is, the children of this world do in their own line, and according to their notions, act much more wisely than the children of light. In the matter of concentration of purpose, in persistent and tireless zeal, they are an example to us—an example we would be wise to emulate.

When men are candidates for election to the honors and emoluments of office how do they act? What are the characteristics of their conduct? They display great diligence. They talk, write, travel, and speak. They bring themselves in contact with as many communities and as many individuals as they can. They endeavor to influence as many minds as possible. They will early travel fast and far. They work hard and sleep little.

If we would secure our election to the fruitions of immortality we should be diligent. Indeed St Peter exhorts us to give "all diligence"—all we can—to add to our faith all the graces of the Christian character. This urgency and diligence are to be climacterically expressed. As ye have received Christ Jesus, the Lord, so walk ye in him. Then it is said: "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Then we are exhorted to run with patience the race set before us. As travelers marching toward the promised land, we are to "go forward." As laborers, we are not to "stand idle." As co-workers with Christ, we are not to be "at ease in Zion," but we are to be diligent, that we may be found of him in peace.

Candidates for election to desirable positions make sacrifices to secure the office—sacrifices of ease, sacrifices of time, and sacrifices of means. Here, again, is an example that should teach us wisdom. The world knows full well that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. The children of this world sow to this world to reap the world, its honors and rewards. These sacrifices are voluntarily and cheerfully made because the position sought is deemed worth them all, and will more than repay the outlay. It may be in order to secure our eternal election sacrifices may be demanded—sacrifices of some forms of profitable business, sacrifices of pleasant associations, sacrifices of the "pleasures of sin." But who that has been enlightened, that has tasted the good word of God, can hesitate a moment between a transitory pleasure and fullness of joy and pleasures forevermore? Is it a question of wealth? And will you weigh your deathless soul in the scales with money? Let wealth, all earthly treasure go, rather than lose the soul. Is it a question of fame and fame? Will you risk your everlasting all for a fickle breath? Soon it will little reck whether the world smiled or frowned. We shall soon be forever done with its fleeting distinctions. What madness to trifle with the interest of the soul, whose salvation is enough to raise an archangels' shout, whose loss is sad enough to hang the skies in weeds of woe! Remember for us the Lord of all did heavenly bliss forego, and died that we may live. Look over the long and illustrious roll of immortal names that were not born to die, and see how they, through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, and stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword; and others were tortured, and others had trials of cruel mockings and scourgings; yea, moreover, of bonds and imprisonments. In fine, have sailed through bloody seas, and have fought to win the prize.

Candidates seeking to secure their election have not only been diligent and self-sacrificing, but have been most persistent in their efforts. Some have pursued their aim for many long years, and under great and frequent discouragements. Disappointed, and for the time defeated, they have risen superior to disasters, and with indomitable persistence have held to their purpose. This is all the more noteworthy and wonderful from the fact that they could never be sure of success. They knew all the while that many aspirants must fall, and yet it did not daunt them. This persistence of purpose and effort to make the office seekers' election sure should instruct us. All the Scripture exhortations urge persistence, all the Bible promises are made to those who endure to the end—"they shall be saved." The faithful unto death have the promise of the crown of life. If we would win the prize we must so run that we may obtain—run all the length of the celestial road. All the biographies of those who have successfully fought in virtue's holy war relate that they were "steadfast," immoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, ceasing at once to work and live. But the spiritual candidate has this one great advantage over the political candidate. Our election through grace is in our own hands. We can ourselves determine the result. We can make our election sure; and, having won it, the possession and the rewards are eternal.

The Well of Water.

Men do not always see even visible things. A matter as big and deep and refreshing as a well is unseen. It is the very thing, too, of all things most needed. So it was with Hagar. A state of tears was the condition of sight. That which seemingly tended to obscure really assisted organs of vision. So with the blind man. The ointment clay with the washing opened his eyes. "When I am weak then I am strong." Hagar's strongest feelings were wrought upon, and tears from the deepest depths of her nature were wrung out by the hand of a seeming cruel destiny. Now at the asking-point—no help from man, none in self—"God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water."

Tears play an important part in the economy of nature, not less in that of grace. God thinks much of tears. He bottles up those of his saints. There is hope for a man if he weeps.

From the history of Hagar surely we may learn this lesson: That human distress and anxiety prepare man for a proper calling upon God. The heart is tendered. The nature is softened. It implies weakness and dependence. It reveals a paucity of resources. It is a time of tears. It is a season of remembrance. It is an hour of contrasts. Doubtless Hagar remembered the former season of sorrow, and the relief given. Not, however, it would seem until the bread and water, the resources of man, were exhausted. So when trouble comes and tears flow other days are remembered. The wax is now conditioned for the impression, the canvas for the painting. To be tendered receptive God must needs have a harbinger in the human heart. So we have before Christ the ministry of repentance, a baptism of fire. The gospel of John is as necessary now as in the days of Jesus. It went before in the case of Hagar. In a condition to feel our wants we are in a condition to see that they are not only not in self nor in the strongest arm of flesh. The gold is now in the crucible—the separating process is going on. The fine gold is coming out. Prayer flows out and up to God. The eyes are opened and the well of water is seen.

We learn also this lesson as intimated above: That human distress and anxiety is God's time of mercy and relief. Sacrifices thus baptized with tears of penitence are precious in God's sight. He cannot despise a broken heart and contrite spirit. In human distress looking to him for relief he often comes in his own unexpected grand way. Thus he appeared to the disciples in the midst of the storm. At a time least looked for, and in a way least thought of, he was with them in their trouble. So were dried the widow's tears, and the desolate sisters' Martha and Mary.

There is not only immediate relief, but promise of future enlargement. Ishmael was saved from death, and became a mighty nation. "Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not." Answer to prayer is prophetical of future greater blessings. The well of water is the type of refreshing fullness. On the calming of the storm immediately the vessel was at the land.

To the weeping penitent the "well of water" is close by. Looking away from man and up to God, through Jesus, the eyes will be opened, and through blinding tears it may be seen. To the sorrowing, to the afflicted, it is close by. It may be the mother weeping over the almost assured spiritual death of an only son. The well is near thee, praying mother. Look up to God. Jesus is near by. Perhaps in the dimness of the sorrowing day, in the garb of the gardener; but he is the blessed Master. He speaks. The well is seen. Son is saved, and with him also a mighty host.

China Letters—Interesting.

We are in receipt of highly interesting letters from both Bros. Lambuth and Allen. The health of the former is very precarious still. Notwithstanding the offer of the board to release him for a time from labor, and pay his expenses to this country, he has determined to continue at his post until the arrival of Bishop Marvin. The letters give us valuable and hopeful information from Bro. Allen's work. In regard to the magazine he has been publishing we have cheering news. We extract from the letters, which are private, as follows:

"In a few weeks more the magazine will enter upon its ninth year; and truly I may say, from an insignificant beginning, small constituency, and a doubtful future, it has grown until now it is recognized as a most powerful influence in the land, and has many friends and well-wishers. The success of the paper has, however, its own drawbacks—e. g., there is a tendency to multiply them, and thus, while adding very little to the force of those already in existence, to restrict the circulation, etc. However, while this is the tendency, but little has been done in downright competition to the Wan Kwoh Kung Pau, which was never so popular as now. Perhaps I have mentioned to you before that the Foreign Office in Peking has highly commended it, as have also many other of the highest officials in China, both foreign and native. The Court and Cabinet of Japan have long been subscribers to it—and mirabile dictu—I learned recently, by letter from Peking, that it was in demand by the inmates of the imperial palace, and each number eagerly looked for by them. These facts are significant enough to show that a new era is just dawning upon China, and that it is the part of wisdom, though it be somewhat ambitious, to strive to guide the nascent public opinion which is now setting in favor of change and progress. In my opinion, no more important work than this could possibly be undertaken, and that I am not alone in this view is fully proved by the greater interest now constantly manifested in it. So great, indeed, is felt to be the necessity of the hour in this regard that the London Tract Society have been prevailed upon to appropriate £150 toward establishing a monthly, the first number of which has just been issued. I am, as you will see, the editor, while Dr. Joseph Eakings, of Peking, and the Rev. W. Muirhead, of Shanghai, both of the London Mission, are the chief contributors. We work together, having a joint interest in the labor bestowed, etc., while the Tract Society has expressed a willingness to augment its contribution should it be necessary to give it greater facilities. You see, then, that while it has become a necessity that I should appeal to the board in behalf of the Wan Kwoh Kung Pau, it is a work that they can afford to sustain, and that should they withdraw their support, there are others who would gladly take up what I should, without some assistance have to let come to an inglorious end.

"I am just about putting to press an original work on China and her Neighbors, which has for its object the promotion of peace and the encouragement of progress by setting forth the true origin and objects of foreigners coming to China, and the right spirit and manner in which the demands of the situation should be met by the Imperial Government. It will be a work of some 150 pages, illustrated with maps, etc., and I propose to issue at once some 5,000 copies, to meet the large demand expected during the approaching Triennial Examinations. I propose to call it A Book for the Times, and already one foreign gentleman, who has seen the text, has engaged to take about 1,500 copies. Their excellencies, the United States minister and the British minister, have afforded me all the necessary information by allowing me to consult or use certain documents in their possession, and I feel sure that the work will do great good distributed among the people at large. My duties at the Anglo-Chinese College here—teaching and translating—take up nearly all my daylight, so that I have to utilize a good deal of gas, but as my health still continues good, I do not mind plenty of work. On the Sabbath I generally preach twice, at half-past ten A. M., and at eight P. M., resting during the afternoon.

"Bro. Lambuth's health is feeble, and he should have the change the board was so generous as to authorize. Mrs. Lambuth has just lost her sister, who was living with her. I have long felt that our mission in Shanghai is in a most precarious condition. We absolutely need and must have another man sent out for this station, or be seriously crippled soon. We want a thoroughly educated man—a man of force and character, one who can hold his own in society and in the work. It is a great mistake to suppose that any kind of good, pious, innocent individual will make a missionary. Such men would only serve to enervate and destroy a work. We need a man with a will, a purpose, and a judgment—one that can see through a Chinaman, and maintain the dignity and integrity of the Christian Church by keeping out parasites and vampires. But enough. Give us your best men, and send only best men for whatever station—men of robust constitution if possible, of sober mind and liberal education; for as the founders so will be the future church. Men therefore are needed that can keep the field, guide the work, and establish the church. I mean no insinuations as to the past; I speak only from experience of the work as it is now, and as regards the future.

"YOUNG J. ALLEN."

CHINESE ORPHANAGE.—In the recent supplement we called attention to our desire to get from Sunday schools and individuals $1,000 to aid in the erection of a new building for our female school and orphanage at Shanghai, China. We want to send the money by Christmas. We have this week one response—Woodbine Church, Nashville District, Tennessee Conference, $10. Who next?

Mr. Gladstone on Preaching.

The interesting memoirs of Dr. Norman Macleod (which are republished by Scribner, Armstrong & Co., of this city) have stirred the late Prime Minister of England to writing a review of them for the Church Quarterly. We make an extract, in which Mr. Gladstone makes some suggestions on "preaching:"

"The hint conveyed in these remarks does not principally touch the question that may be raised as to the relative merits of written or unwritten sermons. The sermons of Dr. Macleod were, it appears, to a great extent, written but not read. The sermons of Dr. Chalmers were certainly in some cases, if not in all, both written and read. But all Scotch ministers of any note who read their sermons take, or used to take, good care to read as if reading not. To a great extent, Scottish sermons were delivered without book, having been committed to memory. When notes were used, they were sometimes, as much as might be, concealed on a small shelf within the pulpit, for the people had a prejudice, almost a superstition, against the papers, and could not reconcile them with the Holy Ghost in the preaching of the gospel. Reading, pure and simple, was very rare.

"Apart from the question of the merit of this or that form in the abstract, there was a traditional and almost universal idea of preaching as a kind of spiritual wrestling with a congregation; and the better professors of the art entered into it as athletes, and strove habitually and throughout to get a good 'grip' of the hearer, as truly and as much as a Cumbrian wrestler struggles, with persistent and varied movement, to get a good grip of his antagonist. To give effect to this idea, in preaching or in other speaking, the hearers must be regarded as one. All fear of the individual must be discarded. Respect for the body must be maintained, and may be exhibited by pleading, by expostulating, by beseeching; but always with a reserve and underthought of authority, of a title to exhort, rebuke, convince. It is really the constitution of a direct and intimate personal relation, for the moment, between preacher and hearers, which lies at the root of the matter; such a relation as establishes itself spontaneously between two persons who are engaged in an earnest practical conversation to decide whether some given thing shall or shall not be done; and for this reason it is that we suggest that the mass of living humanity gathered in a congregation should perhaps be dealt with as one, and that, unless in exceptional junctures, the preacher might find a pathway of power, as the singer, the instrumentalist, or the actor does, in treating a crowd as a unity.

"What has been said is tentatively, and so to speak provocatively, not to offer the solution of a great problem, but at any rate to set others upon solving it. For a great problem it is; and a solution is required. The problem is how, in the face of the press, the tribune, the exchange, the club, the multiplied solicitations of modern life, to awaken in full the dormant powers of the pulpit, which, though it has lost its exclusive privileges, is as able as it ever was manfully to compete for and to share to the command of the human spirit and of the life it rules. The church cannot, indeed, do what she will; make her twenty thousand ministers produce good sermons at the rate of two millions a year. She knows very well that to be good preachers without book, they must be good theologians; and that with all the holy and watchful care they are bound to exercise in all the parts of divine service, it is far more difficult for them than for those who have no liturgy to collect and concentrate themselves with full power upon the act of preaching. If the priests have the highest office to discharge, they must be content and glad to face the greatest difficulties; and some aid in the task, we are confident, they may obtain from a careful study of the methods pursued in the Italian and in other foreign pulpits; or more generally, and for all who have not the continent within reach, by noticing and digesting the practice in our own country of non-Anglican, and, certainly not least, of Scottish Presbyterian pulpits."

"It was pitched without," said the clergyman, and an old base-ball player, who had been calmly slumbering awoke with a start and yelled "foul." The first bass came down from the choir and put him out.

As sin darkens the mind and hardens the heart, it should be hated cordially and forsaken utterly.

The path of duty is sometimes thorny; yet many a thorn do we escape by walking in it.

Remedy for Small-Pox.

Dr. Thomas Nicholson, of New Orleans, announces a new remedy for small-pox. He says in his pamphlet:

When conducting the "Science Column" of the New Orleans Picayune I published the substance of the following article:

That Gasoline is a great refrigerant is well known. It is also a wonderful disinfectant. When sponged carefully upon the whole body of a small-pox patient it reduces the humidity and heat, neutralizes the nasty odor which exhales from the body, and produces a most delightful sensation. By its rapid evaporation it abstracts the excessive heat from the inflamed surface, checks the ulcerative process of the true skin, and thereby prevents pitting. It also prevents other persons from taking the disease in the apartments of the patient, by thoroughly disinfecting the room. It has a very cooling effect, and does not smart. There is no danger of taking cold, in the common acceptation of the term, from its use. If the treatment commences when the eruption first appears, the disease will be completely aborted. The fever flame will be quenched, and hence the pimples will not be developed to pustules. This is equal to the stamping out or extermination of the disease. Gasoline being one of the best refrigerants and not inferior as a disinfectant, it is easy to understand theoretically why this simple remedy should act in at least modifying this loathsome disease, and I am sure there will be no disappointment in practice. In the treatment of eleven cases it was a triumphant success.

The following is my prescription and the mode of using it:

Gasoline, one pint.
Gum camphor, half ounce.
Pulverized sulphur of soda, one dram.
Pure carbolic acid, thirty drops.

Sponge the whole body with the mixture every one, two, or three hours, until all signs of inflammation have ceased. If scabs have formed and have been scratched off sponge with the Gasoline alone. No light should be permitted near the patient while sponging, because the Gasoline is a most inflammable substance.

I now use the mixture as a liniment in many cases of erysipelas, rheumatism, gout, boils, carbuncles, sprains, scalds, burns, etc. Its effects are often wonderful. As a remedy for reducing the rage of external inflammation there is nothing known to equal its soothing and gratefully cooling influence.

An amusing anecdote is related of Thomas Carlyle's father. On the occasion of the marriage of a brother of the writer's, the younger members of the household deemed it advisable to have the house adorned by a coat of paint, an idea which greatly displeased their worthy parent, who, being an advocate of truth, shunned deceit, and loved better to see the dear old walls in their original color than polluted by the brush of falsehood. However, the majority were in favor of the motion, and the house would be painted, and the painters were duly instructed to proceed with the work. But although old Mr. Carlyle was in the minority, and coaxings, persuasions, and all such like, were showered upon him on all sides, yet he was determined it would not go on if he could prevent it. The painters came on the day appointed, and Mr. Carlyle, as a last resource, opposed the entrance of the knights of the paint pot by placing himself in the doorway, demanding "what they wanted?" "They cam' tae pent the house," they replied. "Tae pent the hoose!" ejaculated Mr. Carlyle in his original manner. "Ye can jist slent the bog (i. e., go your ways) wi' yer ash bucket feet, for ye'll pit nane o' yer glaur on my door!"

A minister's wife once asked the late Dr. Eadie, of Glasgow, how he became attached to the Session Church when his father was a member of the Relief. "Oh," said the doctor, "I can easily explain that. Some of the children went with my father and some with my mother; but my father took nothing in his pocket for the 'interval,' while my mother always took bread and cheese, so I went with bread and cheese?"

It seems that childhood exercises its prerogative even over royalty. Our English exchanges tell us with much quiet satisfaction that Prince George Frederic, second son of the Prince of Wales, is a most turbulent little fellow, and full of tricks, which he plays upon the Queen whenever an opportunity presents itself. He is reported to be no more awed by the majesty of his Sovereign than ordinary lads are by their grandmother.

We often find in one man two distinct characters, according to one of which he thinks and judges, while according to the other he acts. Now, it is the acting character according to which we judge of a man, for we know it to be the true one; the other is only a prophetic shadow of what he might be.

An eminent clerical evangelist had been visiting an ancient cathedral, and as he went through it he said to his guide, "Have you many conversions here?" "Sir?" "Have you many conversions here?" "No, sir, but we have several minor canons."

The wise man is also the just, the pious, the upright, the man who walks in the way of truth. The fear of the Lord, which is the beginning of wisdom, consists once for all in a complete devotion to God.—Zochler.

All who are disposed to betake themselves to God under the crook in their lot may take comfort in this: let them know that there is no crook in their lot but may be made straight: God made it, surely he can mend it.

The Secretary of the Bible Society in Fayetteville, Ohio, says in his report: "Thirty-five years ago we had thirty distilleries in our county, and no church; we have now thirty churches and no distillery."

Books and Periodicals.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE. Volume I. Its Course, its hinderances, and its helps. Volume II. Its hopes, its fears, and its close. By Thomas Arnold, D. D. New York: N. Tibbals and Sons. The two volumes are bound in one, an octavo of 348 pages, large and clear print. Price $1.20.

These lectures were delivered by Dr. Arnold to his students while head master of Rugby School. They are adapted, however, to all classes of thoughtful and devout minds. Compact, forcible, and instructive. Dr. Arnold is strong and clear in his opposition to high-church prelacy, although leaning decidedly toward the high-church view of the sacraments. Dr. Arnold's position in literature and as a model educator is so well known that the announcement of this work in a cheap and convenient form is all that is necessary.

—The New York Tribune has again placed the public under obligations by publishing in its cheap and convenient "Extra" form all of Professor Huxley's public addresses during his recent stay in this country. All are given in full, and those which will attract the most attention and discussion, the three in New York on the Direct Evidence of Evolution, are fully illustrated by drawings from the diagrams used in the lectures.

—Part 16 of the Aldine has been received. Illustrations: On the Old Road to Ancaster, Ophelia, Deer on the Hillside, Waiting for the Ship, The Juniata, Lewistown Narrows, Jack's Narrows from Mapleton, Jack's Narrows, At Mill Creek, Dresden Porcelain Vase, A Confession.

—We have received the Centennial Supplement to Barnes' Centenary History, One Hundred Years of American Independence. The Supplement is handsomely illustrated and gives account of the great Exhibition at Philadelphia. A. S. Barnes & Co., publishers.

—Scribner's Monthly for October has: Notes on Salmon Fishing, The Man Who lost His Name, Massachusetts Agricultural College, The Bride of the Rhine, John Chinaman in San Francisco, In and about the Fair, and other articles.

—St Nicholas for October has The Morning and Evening Star, Dick Hardin in Philadelphia, Windsor Castle, A Colorado Woman's Museum, The Boy Emigrants, Sea Jellies, and many other interesting things.

—The Atlantic Monthly for October has: The Battles about Atlanta, The Thorsdale Telegraph, The Neighborhoods of Jerusalem, Old Woman's Gossip, Every Land, A Librarian's Work, and other articles.

—"The Encore" is the title of a collection of secular and sacred music by L. O. Emerson. Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, publishers. A very good collection we should say from a brief examination.

—Our Sunday-School periodicals for October are out in good time, and the quality is good. In the Magazine we have a very pleasant sketch of Dr. Winans, by his daughter, Miss Mary S. Wall.

—Lippincott's Magazine for October has: The Century—Its Fruits and Its Festivals, An African Fairy, Haven, Sicilian Folk-Lore, A Day with the Voivoda, From 61 to 65, and other articles.

—The Ladies' Repository for October among other articles has: Gems and Precious Stones; Vanities of Vanities; The Mystery of Life; The Olive Tree; Legends of the Rhine.

—Crown of Glory is the title of another book of songs for the Sunday School, by S. W. Straub. Jansen, McClurg & Co., publishers, Chicago.

—Golden Hours for October is handsomely illustrated, and abounds in entertaining and instructive articles adapted to young people.

—Wide Awake for October is filled with nice stories and beautiful and funny pictures. It will be a rare treat to the young folks.

—The American Agriculturist for October is a superior number of this excellent journal.

—Southern Cultivator for October, a valuable number of this able journal, has been received.

An anecdote is told of Dom Pedro in connection with his visit to Montreal, before leaving for England, which is creditable to his good sense. Having been urgently invited by the Roman Catholic priest to visit the French Roman Catholic church and see the relics it contained, the Emperor flatly refused, saying in reply to the priest's solicitations, "I have plenty in Brazil." Evidently the Emperor fully understood the sham sanctity of all such relics, as well as their sham genuineness.

An intelligent foreigner, passing along the streets of Philadelphia, took out his note-book at the end of a long walk and made a little memorandum to the effect that "eighty-nine per centum of the population of Philadelphia are members of the powerful family of Roomstolet."

delight. Many good impressions have been made and gone out from this happy reunion of Christians, and eternity alone will be able to estimate the good done upon this occasion. Many that had grown cold and careless in our Master's vineyard returned home rejoicing, and more determined to work for Jesus, and press his cause onward and upward to victory.

Your brother in Christ,

B. M. ALLEN.

SEPTEMBER 20, 1876.

ST. STEPHEN'S CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We held our camp meeting under a brush arbor, twelve miles east of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, and forty miles above Mobile. We had the efficient ministerial help of Bros. S. H. Cox, my presiding elder, J. A. Peterson, of Mobile, and A. J. Lamar, of Citronelle, with quite a number of lay brethren, who labored as if they were impressed with the idea that they ought to preach, and were determined to test the spirit of that time.

The meeting commenced on Friday, the fifteenth of September, and continued with increasing interest until Tuesday, the nineteenth. The Holy Spirit came down at the commencement, and remained with us all the time. Sinners, the hardest, were awakened, convicted, and converted. On Monday night the Lord let his irresistible power fall upon the people. Scores were made happy, and all seemed affected. Gray-haired sires trembled, and young and tender hearts were given to God. As the fruit of our labor, in connection with the Holy Spirit, the Lord gave us about forty conversions and thirty-seven accessions to the church. The glorious results can only be seen and realized in the light of eternity. Its effect will be seen and its power felt for many days. From the camp meeting I continued my round, and commenced a meeting at Escatawpa, on the Mobile and Ohio railroad, the Saturday following, and continued three days with as a result seventeen accessions to the church, and many strengthened and built up in the faith. The good people of St. Stephen's circuit say they intend to have another camp-meeting. If they do it will be advertised, no doubt, and you invited to attend. You have in our beloved ADVOCATE quite a number of subscribers over here, who would be delighted to see the editor, feed and strengthened by hearing him preach. Yours, etc,

J. C. JOHNSON.

STEPHEN'S, ALA., Sept. 28, 1876.

TRENTON CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: My first protracted meeting was held at Trenton, embracing the second Sunday in August. We held this meeting seven days. The church was greatly revived, backsliders reclaimed, six conversions, and one accession to the church. From this meeting we went to New Prospect, the third Sunday in August. We held this meeting four days, but did not do much from the fact that there was no material to work on. And from this meeting we went to Independence church, and began a meeting, embracing the fourth Sunday in August. The church at this place was greatly revived, backsliders reclaimed, several conversions, and seven new accessions to the church. And from this meeting we went to the Sykin church, and held a meeting there, embracing the first Sunday in September. The church was revived, nine conversions, and four were added to the church. And from this meeting we went to Piny Grove, and held a meeting there, embracing the second Sunday in September. The church at this place was greatly revived, several conversions, and nine accessions to the church. And from this meeting we went to Pokeville, and held a meeting, embracing the third Sunday in September. The church at Pokeville was greatly revived, several conversions, and fifteen accessions to the church, making in all thirty-six added to the church.

TRENTON, September 25, 1876.

PAULDING CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: I wrote you last spring that we were trying to build a house for the Methodist church at this place. I rejoice to say that we have a nice framed building, nicely finished, except painting. Last Sabbath we had communion service, and every member of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches in the house communed. Almost the entire circuit has been in a state of revival during the past two months. Up to date, we have received fifty-nine persons into the church by this work. Many have been happily converted. I think, when our camp meeting has done its work, we will have many more added to the church. All glory and praise be given to God for having visited us with power to save sinners.

D. P. BRADFORD, P. C.

SEPTEMBER 14, 1876.

CUBA, ALA.—Mr. Editor: We have just closed a meeting of great interest and signal success.

Assisted by Bro. G. M. Gilmore, we began under somewhat adverse circumstances. The rainy season presaged interference, but the hand of the Master was with us throughout. As evidence of the fact, 24 were added to the church.

We entered this field a year ago in the midst of a Baptist element, but found the few Methodists easily stimulated to build a house of worship, which was soon made ready for use, and received the name of Chappel Hill.

When the meeting was announced there was, like magic, a spirit "to do something for the Lord" diffused through the small membership; and that continued to work until the meeting began, and here the whole armor was put on, and, like men ready for the fight, they marched out "to the help of the Lord against the mighty." The brightness of the Lord appeared, and his glory shined, and souls were converted.

The church was made to cry aloud "glory to God in the highest." Aged men were convinced that "the wages of sin is death," and were made to feel that "the gift of God is eternal life" only through Jesus Christ.

Many thanks to Bros. Gilmore and Gilbert for their valuable help.

A. L. MCBRYDE.

SEPTEMBER 6, 1876.

POLLARD CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: I write to tell you of the good meetings we are having here upon this circuit. There has been one of the most powerful revivals at Clear Springs church that has ever been known upon this circuit. The meeting lasted ten days. Forty were added to the church, among whom were some of the most desperate men I ever heard of.

We have just closed a two days' meeting at Lathram's chapel, and we had a glorious meeting. The church membership was greatly revived and encouraged. Two were added to the church, and many came to the altar for prayer. The Master still meets with us at Pine Grove church. We met there on Friday before the second Sabbath in this month for the purpose of having a three days' meeting. Our ministerial aid was short, but we had a glorious meeting. There were three conversions, and the membership was wonderfully blessed.

Yours in Christ,

T. E. ROBINSON.

P. S.—Our dear Bro. Dickinson has been very sick, but, thank God, he is slowly recovering.

T. E. R.

AUGUST 28, 1876.

PROVIDENCE CAMP GROUND.—Mr. Editor: This camp ground is situated fifteen miles east of Hazlehurst. The camp meeting for this year commenced on the thirtieth of August, and closed on the fifth of September. We had a glorious meeting. The pastor in charge reported about one hundred conversions, and near half of that number joined the church.

We can say: "Let Israel rejoice in him that made him. For the Lord taketh pleasure in his people. He will beautify the meek with salvation. Let the saints be joyful in glory."

Your brother in Christ,

INMAN W. COOPER.

BROOKHAVEN, MISS., September 6, 1876.

VERMILIONVILLE, LA.—Mr. Editor: On the twelfth of August we commenced a protracted meeting at Plaquemine, Brulee, Vermilionville circuit, Opelousas district, Louisiana Conference, which continued till the night of the twenty-second of August.

On the nineteenth and twentieth of August was the time for our third Quarterly Conference at the same place, which was a blessed season of grace. The blessed Lord was with us in power. Bros. Frozee, Cobb, and Poynter were with us. The result of the meeting was seven accessions to the church. To God be all the praise. Yours fraternally,

R. A. DAVIS.

SEPTEMBER 11, 1876.

PENSACOLA, FLA.—Mr. Editor: The health of our city is good. No rumors of yellow fever, and it is thought we will escape it this year. Have had a meeting of nearly three weeks' duration, resulting in several conversions and accessions to the church, with very great improvement in the spiritual condition of the church. The Lord is still with us. Blessed be the name of the Lord.

Harrington has recently been added to my charge, giving much additional work.

Yours in Christ,

P. H. LIGHTFOOT.

SEPTEMBER 14, 1876.

SPRING CREEK CIRCUIT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The friends of Zion are always rejoiced to hear of her prosperity. We have held two protracted meetings on this circuit, and we have great reason to rejoice, because of the church being greatly revived spiritually. Some backsliders reclaimed with renewed faith and zeal, and seventeen accessions to the church. The Lord be praised. May he yet revive us more.

THE representatives of the ADVOCATE had the pleasure of calling on De Meconchie & Son, 705 Arch street, Philadelphia, who make a specialty of the cure of piles. The doctor has been practicing in Philadelphia for a number of years, and ranks high in his profession, being a very eminent man. He has built up a very extensive business, and enjoys the confidence of the people of that city. The doctor makes a complete cure of piles, no matter how long parties have been afflicted with that disease. He does not patch up or temporarily relieve those he undertakes, but makes a positive, radical, and permanent cure. The doctor can refer to thousands of citizens in this city as well as New York and elsewhere who were under his treatment, and are now perfectly cured. He uses neither instruments nor caustics, so that there is no pain or danger attending the treatment of them. Those who are suffering from this disease should communicate with Dr. A. McCandless & Son, 705 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

BEATCHLEY'S PUMPS.—Many of our readers in the country will find the advertisements of Beatchley's pumps of interest. These pumps are made from the best wood, and are in all respects first class. The prices range from $6 to $20, according to length required. The manufacturer has every pump in perfect order before it leaves his establishment, so that no trouble will be met with by purchasers. Full directions also accompany them. Messrs. Ira W. Porter & Co., of Mobile, are manufacturer's agents, and will be pleased to give any information and fill any orders.

CHAIR WAREHOUSE.—Mr. J. H. Wisler, of Philadelphia, advertises his chairs in today's paper. He has been established in business for twenty-two years, and possesses ample facilities for filling orders for churches, halls, and public buildings, of which he makes a specialty. All orders, whether large or small, will receive prompt attention. Send for his terms.

STAINED GLASS, for churches and private buildings, can be procured at Gibson's stained glass and decorative establishment in Philadelphia. Mr. Gibson will give particular attention to all orders intrusted to him. See his card on this page, and send on for prices and samples.

A. A. PARKER is opening at 178 Canal street a large and select stock of dry goods. We commend Mr. Parker to our friends in the city and country as a gentleman of integrity and well-known business capacity. Mr. Frank A. Parker and Mr. George McGibbon, the latter late of the firm of McGibbon, Allyn & Co., will be found in the establishment, and will be pleased to see their friends at the new house. Mr. Parker will pay particular attention to the manufacture of ladies' and childrens' underwear, and would call special attention to this fact. See his advertisement in to-day's paper, and give him a call.

E. OFFNER, late of the firm of Kayra & Offner, has returned to his former place of business, at 171 Canal street, where he has opened a fine stock of crockery, China, glassware, etc. He will be pleased to see his old friends and customers, and guarantees them cheap and good articles. Mr. Offner is thoroughly conversant with his business, and his customers can rely on his judgment. Orders from the country will receive special attention. See advertisement for particulars.

WE would call attention to the advertisement on this page of Mr. E. H. Adams, dealer in dry goods, fancy goods, notions, etc. Mr. Adams is known to many of our readers from his long connection as junior partner with the house of Brasselmann & Adams. He has lately opened a store, a few doors above the old stand, on Magazine street, and will give satisfaction to his customers, as heretofore, in all orders they may make of him. Our lady friends will do well to give his store a call.

THE U. S. CORSET COMPANY manufacture some four styles of woven corsets. The company claim for their corsets that they are perfect in fit and flexible to the move ments of the form; that being woven without seam they are more comfortable than any other; and that their stay properties are superior. We would suggest to our readers that if they cannot procure the article from their dealers they address the company, at Lock Box 4928, New York, for a circular.

MAGIC LANTERNS.—Mr. T. J. Harbach, of Philadelphia, invites our readers to send to him for catalogues of his magic lanterns and Centennial slides. They will be found interesting and instructive. See his advertisement.

VISITORS of the city would do well to inspect M. L. Navra's really fine stock of China and glassware. See advertisement.

FOR dress goods go to Levy Bros', 540 Magazine street.

ALMANAC FOR 2344 YEARS.—Knox's Time Almanac and Register of Days will give the days of the week for a period of 2344 years, commencing with the year B. C. 1, and ending with the year A. D. 2, so calculated for both the Julian and Gregorian Calendar, showing the corresponding days of the days of old and new style in each year. This almanac points out also without the use of a dial or resort to arithmetic the epact, or the decimal letter or letters of each year, the years of the Julian period, the metonic or lunar cycles, also the Dyonisian periods. The golden number of each year, the days and dates which were lost by the adoption of the reformation of the Julian calendar in the various countries of Europe. It shows the dates on which the sun enters the signs of the zodiac, the calendar used in France under Napoleon I, and the dates of Easter Sundays for all other movable festivals of the Christian churches.

This universal reference will be introduced to the public in chart or map form, and is now sold by sub-scription. It will be a useful and beautiful ornament for the office, the parlor, the bedroom, in hotels, steamboats, and railroad cars, in colleges, academies, and schools. Its circulation will be great, and as it is a book of reference it will soon be the favorite of the people.

To defray the expense of publication part interest of two-thirds in the publication will be granted by the author. John H. Knox of New Orleans, La., whom address, inclosing stamp.

LADIES will find relief from their headache, or dizziness, swimming in the head, colic, sour stomach, and dissiness, etc., by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator. Persons living in unhealthy localities may avoid all bilious attacks by taking a dose of Simmons' Liver Regulator occasionally, to keep the liver in healthy action. It should be used by all persons, old and young. It is now used and endorsed by a purely vegetable compound, is not injurious to the most delicate constitution, and will keep the liver in healthy action.

WHAT NEXT? Consumptive Cured. When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of Indian corn, which cured his only child of consumption. He now gives this recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night sweats in one dose. Address, with stamp, CRAGGS & CO., 1612 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

WHEN A TRAVELER can get the best accommodations at a strictly first-class hotel, possession all conveniences and appearances, at a price no higher than is asked at other first-class houses, he is sure to choose the best. This is the reason why so large a proportion of the first families and better classes make the Grand Hotel of New York their hotel for their city.

TOURISTS will find the American House, Boston, a most convenient point from which to visit places of interest. Its central and unsurpassing location of suits of rooms, which may be secured by post or telegraph by families traveling.

MEDICAL.

A STRING OF PEARLS!

Extract of a letter from Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1872:

I occasionally use, when my condition required it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active remedies.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens has greatly improved in health of late.—The State Line Argus, West Point, Ga.

Testimony of the Chief Justice of Georgia.

I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it.—Hiram Warner, Chief Justice of Georgia.

Opinion of the Clergy.

Simmons' Liver Regulator is certainly a valuable medicine for that class of complaints which it claims to cure. Many of our fellow-beings are suffering from hepatic disorders, and have trouble in relation to the efficacy of this pain or preparation, we can only offer them the simple and candid arrangement of Chills to Nathaniel: "Come and see." Try the proposed remedy, and then you can judge for yourselves.—Rev. David Wills, Pastor of Presbyterian Church, Macon, Ga.

Always Keep It On Hand.

I have used Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator myself, and in my family for years, and pronounce it one of the most satisfactory medicines that can be used. Nothing would induce me to be without it, and I recommend all my friends, if they want to secure health, to always keep it on hand.—R. L. Mott, Columbus, Ga. (Congressman.)

CAUTION!

Farm, Garden and Household.

A Wise Saying.

An English farmer recently remarked that "he fed his land before it was hungry, rested it before it was weary, and weeded it before it was foul." We have seldom, if ever, seen so much agricultural wisdom condensed into a single sentence. It would be difficult to avow an agricultural practice each particular of which would be more opposite to the practice of the land-killers and skinners of the South. Such persons do not feed their land at all. Though land may have nine lives, like a cat, yet it may die at last of starvation. "Weary land." How apt an expression. Not utterly exhausted, but tired, wearied. Reader, have you not some land which, this summer, will pant and blow and struggle under the burden of a starveling and sickly stalk of corn? "Weeded it before it was foul." Why, some of our planters raise weeds for manure. Vile pests, of no use to man or beast, are suffered to grow up and encumber the ground merely for the sake of the privilege of burying their dead bodies to supply vegetable matter to the soil. On a perfectly conducted plantation, no plant would be suffered to mature its seed which was not of some known and positive utility. Peas and clover are better than weeds; they feed both the soil and domestic animals, and give no trouble to succeeding crops. Remember the practice of the English farmer. Do not wait until your land begins to get poor before you manure it. If it is rich, make it richer. Do not wait until your land begins to fail before you rest it; give it rest in time to prevent its ever being tired. Do not wait until your plantation is stocked with weeds before you begin to destroy them. One weed destroyed this year will save much hoeing next year. Manure soon and well; give abundant rest, and cultivate clean. He is a good farmer who observes these rules.—Southern Cultivator.

DEATH OF THE APPLE-TREE BORER.—A farmer correspondent of the New York Tribune gives that journal his method of ridding his orchard of these pests as follows:

"I have waited for a long time for some one to invent an easy way of killing the apple tree borer; but the chisel, mallet, knife, and wire only are recommended, and in using them I have had to cut a six-inch apple tree until I could see daylight through it, to kill a single borer. My way of getting at this 'worm of the dust' is an easy one, and more effectual. I cut a sumac, or elder, one foot, more or less, long, punch out the pith, cut one end with a slope, hunt the borer's hole, clean it out at the entrance with wire, place the beveled end of my tube against it, take some putty-like clay that I get in our spring branch, plaster it water-tight around the end next to the tree, fill with very strong soapsuds, and the thing is done. No matter how crooked the hole is, or whether it goes up or down, the suds in the tube will force itself to the end. I have tried it two years, and have not failed once. Of course, any kind of small, hollow tube will do, anything that will make it water-tight will do to plaster it with.

CABBAGE.—I have made some experiments on the cabbage crop by the application of a small quantity of sulphate of soda (Glauber's salts,) at the rate of two hundred pounds to the acre, sometimes putting it in with the other manure used in preparing the land, and sometimes sprinkling it around the plant before hoeing, applying one half to three-quarters of a teaspoonful to the hill. The result has always been an increase of more than twenty-five per cent. in weight in good, hard heads over and above the portions of the field not so treated. The sulphate of soda is a cheap material, even when purchased in small quantity from the apothecary for experiment, the wholesale price being only two and a half cents per pound; the retail price should not be over five cents per pound. The dealers in chemicals and fertilizers sell it in its crude condition at $25 per ton, or one and a quarter cents per pound, when one barrel or more is purchased. This is as valuable for agricultural purposes as the crystalized article.—Moore's Rural.

STRAWBERRY FRUIT JUICE.—Cover the berries with an equal measure of water, or less, according to the flavor of the fruit; boil in a porcelain lined kettle for five minutes or more, if the fruit is quite firm, and then lay on a hair sieve to drain; return the juice to the kettle, sweeten if desired, and use for a dressing to mushes and cereal puddings; if convenient, add a little pine-apple fruit juice, not the extract, but the genuine article, squeezed from the fruit under your own supervision, so that there can be no mistake about it. The above mode of preparation will answer for the juices of many other kinds of fruit, such as cherries, raspberries, and whortleberries. These may be mingled more or less, and they will also bear the addition of currant juice. Altogether the preparation of these juices gives fine scope to taste. They may be preserved by cranium.

REMEDY FOR MILDEW.—Molasses mixed with half water and sprinkled over gooseberry bushes covered with mildew is said by Dr. Seedhoff to be an effectual remedy. The theory is that the molasses excludes the air from the leaves, and smothers the mildew. The first rain washes off the covering, and does no injury to the bushes. The common pulverized sulphur, or, better still, the flour of sulphur, is also recommended as a remedy for the same difficulty. It is supposed that the sulphurous acid it contains kills the mildew.

CREAM FOR FILLING.—One-half cupful of flour, one cupful of sugar, and two eggs, turned into one pint of boiling water. Flavor with vanilla.

Onions.

The productive capacity of an acre of ground is a problem yet to be solved. The farmer who estimates his wealth by the size of his farm, and is more desirous to add to the number of his acres than to increase their productiveness, has yet to learn the true secret of successful farming. The owners of land in Massachusetts, which is worth from five hundred to a thousand dollars per acre, the soil of which is far inferior in productive capacity to that of other locations, with hired help costing more than it does elsewhere, find it a profitable business to raise onions and transport them to the markets of Maine; yet the onion can be grown as well in Maine as in Massachusetts; it only needs to reduce the fields and enlarge the onion beds.

The Islands of Japan, with an area under cultivation only equal to that of the New England States, produce food enough to sustain a population of thirty-three millions, without the importation of a single article, but the largest farms are under ten acres, and many have but a single acre.

A practical farmer gives us the result of his experiments in the raising of onions as follows:

His first attempt was with two ounces of seed, on a piece of ground that had grown potatoes the season preceding. This he manured and plowed in the fall. In the spring he added other fertilizers, and was rewarded with a moderate crop. He had sufficient for his own family, gave away some, and sent twenty dollars' worth to market. The next year he took the same ground, adding enough to make one-eighth of an acre, plowed and fertilized it better than he had done the first year, and realized from his crop of onions nearly two hundred dollars. The third year he lengthened out his eighth to a quarter of an acre, with a piece of wet ground that was full of weeds. On this quarter he hauled six cords of manure, spread it evenly, and plowed it from five to seven inches deep. It laid thus through the winter, and in the spring a cultivator with a weight was put on, which cut it up five or six inches deep, and made it quite mellow. Twenty-five bushels of dry ashes were then spread over the ground and harrowed in, but even this quantity not being regarded as sufficient, forty bushels of well pulverized hen manure were added. When the onions were grown, the ground and crop were measured, and the quarter of an acre was found to have produced 392 bushels of merchantable onions, 25 lbs. to the bushel, which at fifty cents a bushel, would make the gross receipts from an acre of ground $784.

It requires four pounds of onion seed to sow an acre of ground properly; the yellow Danvers' are considered the best variety. They should be sown in rows fourteen inches apart and as straight as possible, to give an opportunity of weeding with the hoe, and save the trouble of hand weeding. If attacked by maggots, three bushels of Liverpool salt should be sown on a damp day.

Other productions might be mentioned which would yield the same or even larger returns for an equal amount of culture, but it would need to concentrate the labor spread over wide fields on small inclosures, and to employ the skill, forethought, and unremitting attention which secure success in any undertaking.—"Pomona," in Philadelphia Market Journal.

ADULTERATION IN COFFEE.—The American Grocer has a very interesting article on the coffee trade of the country, from which we extract the following:

The 600 coffee and spice mills of the country use over 1000 roasting machines, with a capacity of 1 200,000 pounds per day. These mills grind and put up coffee either in packages or in bulk, and as a rule, wherever grinding is done, there adulteration is practiced. A prominent manufacturer says the basis for this business is the following proportion to every 1000 pounds.

TO EVERY 1000 POUNDS	POUNDS.
Roasted peas	100
Roasted rye	250
Roasted chicory	100
Other ingredients	50
Roasted coffee (best qualities)	500
	1000

This can be sold at a profit to the jobber at 20 cents currency per pound, allowing a discount of 10 to 20 per cent, and is sold by retailers at 25 cents currency.

PUMPKIN SHORT-CAKE.—One cup stewed and strained pumpkin or squash, one cup of oatmeal porridge, and one cup of water. Beat these up together, and then add three cups fine Graham flour. Mix thoroughly, spread half an inch thick on a baking tin, and bake half an hour in a good oven. Cover for ten minutes, and serve warm or cold.

TOMATOES AND RICE.—Scald a tea-cup of good rice; scald and peel five to six nice ripe tomatoes; put both together in a stew-pan, add a tablespoonful of sugar, salt, and pepper to taste, and water enough to bring the rice when done to the consistency of plain boiled rice. Before taking up add a teaspoonful of butter.

SMOKED GEESE-BREASTS.—Cut out the breasts of young, fat, and well cleaned geese, rub them well with salt, and with a little saltpetre, place in a jar or other vessel, with a weight upon them. Let them remain thus for ten days, after which put them in smoke for two weeks.

DRIED BEEF FRIZZLED IN CREAM.—Chip the beef thin as paper with a very sharp knife. Melt in a frying pan butter the size of an egg, stir the beef about in it two or three minutes, dust in a little flour, and serve in a covered dish.

TO RESTORE AND STIFFEN VAILS.—Wash the vail in tepid water or soapsuds, then rinse in strong blueing; will restore it completely and stiffen like new.

WARREN & CO., PROPRIETORS.

URAL MOUNTAIN

is a concentration of all the curative qualities of the most celebrated Mineral Springs in the world. Each bottle contains eighty doses and is equal to over one hundred bottles of the Natural Spring Water.

As a tonic it is unsurpassed, having had most remarkable success in curing some of the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Nervousness, and General Debility. It is simple, harmless, and pleasant to take. If used as a gargle in its pure state, on the first appearance of diphtheria and all other throat diseases it works like magic. It arrests the progress of and cures such complaints in less than twenty-four hours. It will greatly alleviate or entirely cure the worst cases of Rheumatism.

Eczema and all other diseases of the skin, Prickly Heat, Poisoning by Ivy, Sumac, or Oak are quickly cured by the use of Jeleso Water. We will forward three bottles of the medicine to any part of the United States, free of expressage, on receipt of $1 per bottle. Send for Circular, containing testimonials and directions.

Appended are a few of the many certificates sent us:

As a family medicine and tonic it is simply invaluable. In my own case it has cured Dyspepsia of long standing.

JOHN F. MINES,
Managing Editor N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

Permit me to add my testimony to the efficiency of your "Jeleso" in cases of Dyspepsia of long standing. I have used two bottles of it, and I am now thoroughly cured. I shall most cheerfully recommend its use to all my friends; and I consider it an indispensable medicine in every family. I am most truly yours,

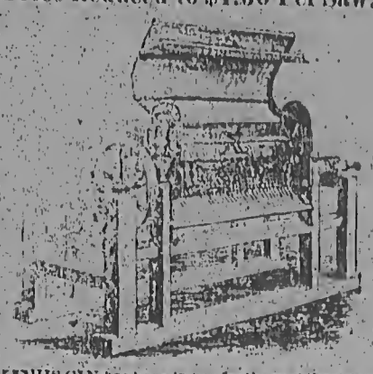
DANIEL PRATT'S IMPROVED
"Revolving Head" Cotton Gin.
PATENTED JULY 18, 1871.
Price Reduced to $4.50 Per Saw.



THIS GIN has been in use for the past three seasons, and several recent improvements have been added. It obviates all friction at the ends of the cotton box, prevents the roll from breaking, and gives a Larger Yield of Lint from the Same Amount of Seed than any other Gin in use. The Revolving Head lightens the draft and causes the Gin to run faster with less driving power, thus doing a great deal more work with the same time, while economizing steam or animal power than any other Gin. The seed being ginned very close, the length of the staple is increased, producing cotton on this account of a greater market value. This improved value, given by length of staple, with extra production of lint, added to increased amount of work done, more than covers the cost of the Gin in every 100 bales ginned. Testimonials sent by mail on application.

ADVOCATE OFFICE,
New Orleans, Tuesday, Oct. 17, 1876.

COTTON.

The following interesting comments are from the weekly cotton report of Messrs. W. C. Watts & Co., Liverpool, September 29, 1876:

That there have lately been good indications of an undercurrent of strength and confidence in many departments of business is generally admitted. The Times, in its money article of Wednesday last, says: "The market is so tired of depression and depreciation that its revulsion is no doubt to some extent justifiable, and certainly not surprising, for there can be no doubt that the pressure of money and of a natural recoil, so to say, is so very severe that if peace be assured, as Lord Derby says, the revival, not of stocks merely, but of credit and enterprise will be something quite startling." Now, so far as cotton is concerned, it has as yet shown less indications of strength than silk, sugar, rice, iron, coal, and most other of the chief articles of commerce. This is perhaps due to the fact owing to the exorbitant point to which prices were driven during the American war; there has been a downward tendency of prices ten out of the past twelve years, consequently the trade generally has not only suffered severely, but are, so to say, demoralized. Then again, the development of cotton cultivation in the United States since the close of the war, eleven years ago, has notwithstanding the declining tendency of prices, been such that there is now absolutely no apprehension of a short supply, and this too notwithstanding the apparent fact that low prices are diminishing production in many of the minor sources of supply, and of the equally apparent fact that low prices are stimulating consumption. That such should now be the popular view of the situation—that is that there should be continued depression and want of confidence notwithstanding the low prices now current is not to be wondered at in view of the common receipts at the American ports (so far 23 per cent larger than last season to same date), which, explain them as we may, are generally considered as the safest indication of the extent of the crop; for actual receipts are ascertained facts, whereas all the balance is theory or guess-work.

On the other hand, if, as there is much reason to believe, and as indicated by the table of crops in America, published in our last report, the port receipts should in a few weeks drop to, and then below, the figures for the corresponding weeks of last season, and thus give rise to decreased crop estimates, and some apprehension of a scarcity, there can be no doubt it would lead to an important improvement in prices. The question is how much lower, if any, can prices in the meantime be forced down? This of course, we cannot pretend to answer.

We have however reason to believe that owing to the present unexampled plethora of money there is a very large amount of outside capital awaiting to be invested in cotton when it is thought bottom has been touched; but our opinion is speculation will make no impression on our market so long as distant deliveries of shipments of new crop can, as at present, be bought below the party spot quotations.

The trade have taken from this port this week 75,350 bales, but it should be observed they have taken nearly four times their usual quantity of light weight bales—Brazils and West India—so that in point of fact they have only increased their stocks of cotton about 9,000 bales of average weight, etc.

The stock of cotton held by English spinners we now estimate at 77,000 bales, against 90,000 last year, and 127,000 the year before at the same date.

Manchester market this week opened firmly, and a good business was done for some days at full prices. During the past day or two the demand has fallen off, and the best prices of the week are barely supported. We now quote 8¼lb shirtings 6s 3d to 7s 9d per piece; No. 40 mule yarn 9¼d, 10d and 11¼d for common, good and best seconds; 32's twist 8¾d to 10d per lb.

At Bombay, for the week ending the twenty-eighth instant, the receipts have been 4,000 bales, against 1,000, and the shipments to Europe 4,000, against nil same week last year. The total receipts from first of January to the twenty-eighth instant have been 999,000, against 1,225,000 and the shipments to Europe 902,000, against 1,187,000 same period last year. Latest quotations are: For good fair Oomras 4¾d, cost and freight, and for 8¼lb shirtings 4r. 11a. at Bombay, and 4r. 7a. at Calcutta.

DOMESTIC.

BRUNSWICK, GA., Oct. 17.—F. R. Southmayd, Secretary Howard Association: I leave this evening, with druggist and six nurses. No new cases of yellow fever.

WM. R. MANDEVILLE, M. D.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 18.—Total interments to day 7, of which 3 were from yellow fever.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 18.—The aggregate vote on the State ticket is 351,430, of which Williams received 163,098, Harrison 207,979, Harrington, Independent, 12,226. Williams's majority over Harrison 5 119. The largest Independent vote was cast for Newsom, candidate for Treasurer of the State—15,945. The Legislature stands: House—Republicans 53, Democrats 45, Independents 2; Senate—Republicans 23, Democrats 25, Independents 2.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Wall street market opened in a whirl of excitement on account of the foreign news. Gold advanced, sterling was firm, and general stock quotations opened ¼ to 1 point higher. The war-like rumors from the East, from the possibility that the European powers may become involved in Turkey's troubles, has a marked effect on the Wall street and merchandise markets. This morning, all having been thrown into the greatest excitement.

The scene in the Gold Room has been without a parallel for years. Boisterous and excited brokers bid for any amount at almost any price, and the purchases, which opened at 109¾, rapidly carried the price up to 111. Yesterday morning gold opened at 109¾, so that in two days the price advanced fully 4 per cent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Francis P. Blair, journalist and statesman, is dead; age eighty-seven years.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Twelve companies of artillery equipped as infantry, and two companies of infantry, with several Eastern garrisons yesterday for Columbia, S. C.

KEY WEST, Oct. 19.—A hurricane has prevailed since six o'clock yesterday evening. The crew of the steamer Godfrey Kuhn, from Philadelphia for Galveston, before reported ashore, refused to leave the vessel last night; it is feared all were drowned; it is too stormy this morning to see the vessel. The wind is terrific.

COLUMBIA, Oct. 19.—Six white men in returning from a Democratic mass meeting at Edgefield court-house, near dark, last evening, were fired into by colored men lying in ambush. One was killed instantly and another severely wounded. Major Kilne and other United States officers, at the request of the whites, went to the spot. While they were viewing the body, a white man, sent for the coroner, was also shot from an ambush, his leg shattered and his horse wounded. The meeting had been quiet and orderly.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20.—Rev. Dr. Richard Fuller, aged 72, pastor of Seventh Street Baptist Church, died this morning, of carbuncle. He was born in Beaufort, S. C., ordained a minister in 1833 and came to this city in 1847.

AUGUSTA, Oct. 21.—Gen. Hampton, in a speech at Aiken to-day, said: People, offer no resistance to arrest; submit quietly to everything. If the United States soldiers are ordered to fire upon the people, the latter must not resist, but bare their breasts and be willing to die for the good of the country.

The people are determined upon a peaceful victory, and must give no pretext to their enemies to find the slightest grounds for the charges made.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 22.—Total interments to-day 7, of which 3 were from yellow fever. Three of the burials were negroes. Capt. Carparo Nadal, of the Spanish bark Olympia, died to-day.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Whaling bark Florence, from the Arctic Ocean, with 190 men aboard, parts of the crews of the whaling fleet, 12 vessels which were lost in the ice, with portions of the crews, remaining survivors, have gone to Honolulu on the bark Three Brothers. The fleet consisted of fourteen vessels. There is plenty of ice in Behring Straits and extreme cold weather.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 23.—Riotous demonstrations of the negroes are generally reported from various points of Charleston county, and are supposed to be the result of the Cainhoy affair. The serious demonstration of armed negroes at Mount Pleasant village, opposite Charleston, is causing great alarm to the white residents, who will petition Gen. Ruger for troops.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, Oct. 18, 12:30.—At this hour the Stock Exchange is greatly excited, and it is almost impossible to give accurate quotations.

Russian securities have declined 7 per cent., making a fall of nearly 20 within the week.

War between Russia and Turkey is considered already begun, and it is generally believed that other powers will become involved. A commercial and financial crisis in Russia and consequent fall in Russian exchange adds to the confusion.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—The semi-official North German Gazette this evening announces that it has received information from a good source in St. Petersburg, that the Czarowitch will probably leave Livadia for Vienna, Berlin, and London, for the purpose of personally promoting unanimous action of the great powers in the interest of a satisfactory solution of the Eastern question. According to assurance given in St. Petersburg circles, the Czar still adheres to his resolution not to act singly.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The missionary societies connected with Spain sent an address to Lord Derby, representing to him the dangers to which the Protestants in Spain were exposed in consequence of the intolerance of the clergy and the authorities, and suggesting that he should invite the co-operation of other powers, especially Germany and the United States, to protest against the continued persecution of Protestants and to afford them protection. In reply, Lord Derby says: Our Minister at Madrid is taking such steps as he properly can to induce the Spanish Government to put a lenient construction on the eleventh article of the constitution so as to secure full religous liberty to Protestants in Spain.

A special from Rome to the Daily News says: Cardinal Antonelli's secretary has apologized to the Spanish embassador for the discourtesy shown him by the committee which superintended the reception of the Spanish pilgrims by the Pope on Monday last, in refusing to admit him and his attaches, but the embassador having telegraphed an account of the affair to Madrid, has received instructions to demand an explanation from the Holy See.

The Post hears from a trustworthy source that the Egyptians altogether lost 2,700 men in the Abyssinian campaigns.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A Reuter dispatch from Ragusa says Dervish Pasha has evacuated Monte egro. The levy en masse which he recently ordered in Albania proved fruitless, only three hundred men responding.

A Reuter telegram from Vienna says: Intelligence received here states that the Russian War Minister has ordered the concentration of ten army corps. The Grand Duke Michael Nicolojevitch, brother of the Czar, will take command. It is said his staff has already been formed.

The Pesther Lloyd says peace even now is still possible, but war between Turkey and Russia, which cannot remain localized, is probable.

A Reuter telegram from Constantinople says: Friday's article in the London Times and the statement that England was averse to rendering military assistance to the Porte have produced considerable impression here. It is certain that after the Sultan has received General Ignatieff, the Russian embassador, there will be fresh deliberation at the Divan.

Shreveport District, Louisiana Conference.

MR. EDITOR: Leaving Friendship early on Wednesday morning, the twenty-seventh instant, accompanied by the "Texas Visitor" and Master Walter, we arrived in good time for an old-fashioned, honest farm dinner at the delightful home of Sister Haugarford, near Keachi. The "Home," deeply embowered in one of nature's groves, is truly inviting. The intelligent Christian inmates—an old-style mother, interesting grown up sons and daughters—render the interior in harmony with the charming "out works."

"The King's business requires haste." We could stay but a little while, Bro. A. led in family worship. It was a sweet season. How great in this the pastor's privilege! May we all be faithful.

Halting a few moments at Mr. Sidney Hall's, our "Brief Summer's" home—a home I can never forget—and making some "pop calls" on my merchant friends, in town, the heads of the Bishops were turned southeastward. A drive of twenty miles over dusty roads brought us in good time to Mansfield. On reaching the suburbs I was astonished to see in camps on the roadside a company of United States soldiers. Of all places in the nation where troops are not needed, Mansfield is the place. There is no shadow of an excuse. Troops, at heavy expense, from Little Rock for Mansfield! We found a pleasant home at Dr. Walker's. In company with Bro. Brown, the pastor, the evening was passed delightfully. That (Wednesday) was the opening day of Mansfield Female College. It opened well. I will have more to say, in subsequent letters, of this really noble institution. However, I would now delay to say this much just now and just here. That no institution of learning, perhaps, in all the land affords young ladies any better opportunities for a thorough classical education than Mansfield Female College, the only college of the kind we have in our State. Let our people and preachers see to it that home institutions do not fall for lack of home patronage.

Thursday morning still southeastward, via Greening's Ferry, on Bayou Pierre, on to Coushatta. The river crops are splendid. The cotton is opening rapidly, not being saved either as it should be. Oh, this curse of modern politics!

Thursday evening in good time across the river, now very low, and into the rather famous town of Coushatta. My pen is ready to move on and on in writing two or three letters for this week, instead of one. Some pen ought to do justice to these noble people; perhaps more oppressed, worse abused, and wrongly defamed than any in the State. But a readier pen than mine must be called to the task. Suffice it for the present for me to say that I have never met a more generous, hospitable, kind-hearted people anywhere. I have never failed to have large, attentive, serious congregations. The citizens are ready and anxious to build a church. An eligible lot has been offered us by C. D. Bullock, Esq., a prominent lawyer of the town. You may look for a "good report" from Coushatta. At present we occupy the lower room of the Masonic Hall, a large and commodious room; but it is not a church. There are prominent citizens, both Jew and Gentile, who, even from the lowest standpoint, a business one, appreciate the importance of building churches and maintaining strong religious influences. Coushatta has a handsome court-house and strong jail. It is building up, and has a promising future. It supports a high-toned, well-edited local paper, the Coushatta Citizen. There is a good hotel and several strong commercial houses. There are also quite a number of elegant residences. But it grows late. It is in my heart to say many things in behalf of Coushatta. It merits them all.

A drive of two miles brought us to the elegant home of Thomas L. Terry, formerly of your city, more recently of Mansfield. You have many readers, especially among the preachers, who will know what it is to be the guest of this dear family. The Methodist preacher's home—the old style—is always a sweet place to the weary Itinerant. Many such there are in the bounds of this district. What a favor it is to do the heavy work and possess the rich enjoyments of this district! And what a privilege it is to drive the Bishops, and such Bishops, and ride in the elegant leather-top "Texas Cord," belonging to the property of this district! But for fear that even you, doctor, might grow envious, I will stay my pen. When I began this, I expected to write under a different date, and tell you something of the camp meeting, but must now relegate the whole matter to the future, and away to the camp ground. So, good-by.

JOEL T. DAVES.

CHINA GROVE CAMP MEETING.—Mr. Editor: The ninth camp meeting was held at China Grove, Dale county, Ala., embracing September 29 and October 4. Many of the old tents had been repaired, and five new ones erected, making in all forty-one plank tents, including the boarding tent, besides scores of comfortable cloth and wagon tents.

The weather was cool and bracing, and the nights brilliant and charming. All nature seemed to conspire for the success of the occasion. The country was full of health, and plentiful in supplies for man and beast, and the people had the camp meeting spirit. By Friday evening all the tents were occupied, and the woods whitened with cloth tents, and the roads full of the approaching multitudes. Far and near the gently-ascending camp smoke could be seen. The hum and jar of motion could be heard and felt. The sun went grandly down, and nightfall brought a great hush and calm. Soon the soft swelling notes of the signal trump summoned the congregation to the place of prayer and song and worship. The solemn service was conducted by the Rev. T. J. Rutledge, of Opelika. The sermon induced deep thinking and careful heart-searching. The whole assembly was grateful to God for his goodness.

On Saturday morning the congregation grew immensely, and the preaching force also increased, and continued to increase till the preachers present and ready for duty, under the direction of Bros. H. D. Moore, presiding elder, and H. M. Gillis, preacher in charge, represented four districts of the Alabama Conference. All were in the Spirit of Christ, and in harmony in the work of preaching. The preaching, from first to last, was so fitted together, sermon connected with sermon, as to make a complete chain of sermons. The Holy Ghost so presided in the blessed work as to make every sermon effective for good. Consequently convictions in many were deep and pungent, and conversions clear and joyful. There were more than fifty conversions and twenty-six additions, and the whole church greatly blessed and sanctified.

At the close of the service, on Sabbath, at eleven A. M., a missionary and Conference collection was taken which resulted in $55 cash, and about $30 in subscription. On Monday, at eleven A. M., Bro. Rutledge took a collection for the Bible cause, which amounted to $76 cash. During the collection mourners were approaching the altar for prayer, the church was happy, and songs and shouts ascended to heaven. This was remarkable. Many preachers present said they had never seen the like before. Just think of it! The people praising God while giving money!

All the visiting preachers were delighted with the meeting and country, and all the people were delighted with the preachers and preaching, and ask for nothing better at the next meeting. The congregation pray God's blessing upon every preacher who was upon the camp ground.

The next meeting will commence on Friday night before the first Sabbath in October, 1877.

ANGUS DOWLING.

LAWRENCEVILLE, ALA., October 7, 1876.

P. S.—At the camp meeting last year a proposition was made for persons to read through the entire Bible by this meeting. To this proposition about two hundred agreed. At the last meeting about fifty answered to the call as having read the Bible through. Also the proposition of like character was made to read through the New Testament, to which about one hundred agreed. In answer to the call, on last Sunday morning, about forty answered as having read through the New Testament.

SALEM—PEARLINGTON—MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: This morning (October 9) the camp meeting at Salem closed, having been held only three days. This was too short a time, but such has been the custom, to go on the ground on Thursday and close on Monday morning. It was on the old style—free to all. The attendance was not so great as usual, on account of sickness. There were three preachers to do the ministerial work. As near as results could be ascertained there were twenty accessions and twenty-five conversions, and an overflowing cup of blessing for nearly every Christian. This camp ground is twenty-five miles north of Moss Point, and belongs to East Pascagoula circuit.

I have written the above notice at the request of the pastor, and would like to add more to express, in some measure, how deeply gratified I was with all I saw and felt among a people to whom I was almost an entire stranger. But I suppose I must forbear and be content to write in memory the special manifestations of grace to myself and the worshipers generally, that made me think and feel that there was a close spiritual affinity between Salem and heaven.

On this circuit there have been, to this date, eighty-four accessions, and more conversions than accessions.

Another quarterly meeting was held in Pearlington, October 7. Everything connected with the circuit is in a prosperous condition. The presiding elder and pastor paid in full, and gratifying tokens of esteem and Christian love given to both, which are duly appreciated. The meeting will continue for several days.

THOMAS PRICE.

UNION SPRINGS, ALA.—Mr. Editor: With your permission I will improve the occasion of making a remittance for subscription due the ADVOCATE to give your readers some account of recent events of interest in this charge. Our pastor, the Rev. E. P. Birch, is an excellent preacher, and faithful and diligent in the discharge of all the laborious duties of his responsible position. Though his health has been quite feeble during the summer, he has been indefatigable in presenting all the interests of the church, and advancing the Redeemer's kingdom. That he might the more certainly accomplish those important ends, and the better secure the earnest co-operation of the church, the entire membership has been divided into various committees, to each of which important duties have been assigned. In this way a feeling of interest and of unity has been created, and each member realizes the important fact that there is something for him to do. One good result, already realized, has been a thorough cleaning out and a comfortable carpeting of the pulpit, altar, and aisles, and other needed internal improvements of our beautiful church building. Other necessary repairs are in contemplation, and we hope before the winter is over that all these will be made.

The attendance upon our business and social meetings is good, and, I doubt not, all the assessments will be fully met. This has been a hard year in money matters, but we have managed to keep the parsonage supplied with a "little meal in the barrel, and oil in the cruse."

Some days ago Bro. Birch closed a protracted meeting of two weeks' continuance. It was a scene of great refreshing to the church, and deep religious feeling in the community. He was heartily assisted by the pastors of the Presbyterian and Baptist churches, Bro. Solomon, of the Tuskegee circuit, on his way to the Mount Andrew camp meeting, preached once with unction and power. Thirteen were received into the church. Of these, ten were baptized in the presence of a large and deeply interested congregation, on Sunday morning after the sermon. The young, manhood in its prime, and age in its feebleness, kneeling at the altar to receive this solemn rite, presented a scene of rare interest and deep solemnity. We hope confidently that the efforts of this protracted meeting will be as bread cast upon the waters to be gathered many days hence.

OCTOBER 9, 1876.

CHAPEL CHURCH, MOUNT CARMEL CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The Rev. William P. Long, a local elder, was passing through the neighborhood of Chapel church, and left an appointment for a two days' meeting at this place, embracing the second Sabbath in October.

The meeting began on Saturday, at eleven o'clock A. M., and continued at five o'clock P. M. without any unusual manifestations of interest.

On Sabbath morning, at nine o'clock, the congregation met for prayer meeting. This was conducted by our minister with rather an unusual degree of interest. At the close of the prayer meeting services, a short recess was given, after which Bro. Long delivered a delightful discourse. The sermon concluded, an altar was prepared, and penitents invited. The altar was soon filled with "mourning souls," and the brethren and sisters began to shout praises to God.

The door of the church was opened, but no accession. One brother and sister presented three children for baptism.

On Sunday evening there was one accession to the church. The time for the close of the meeting was now at hand, but the bright prospect for doing good, together with the urgent solicitations of the brethren, constrained us to protract the meeting. Accordingly, on Monday morning services were conducted as they were on Sunday. The Holy Spirit, who had by the word awakened sinners, now seemed to comfort mourners "to turn their mourning into rejoicing," and nine were added to the church, seven of whom were to be baptized, together with another child.

On Monday evening fifteen more accessions, twelve of whom were to be baptized. The meeting now came to a close, and as Bro. Long's circumstances would not admit of his leaving another appointment with them, I promised to visit them (God willing) on the second Sunday in November, 1876. Also on Saturday night before. I hereby tender my thanks to the brethren in that vicinity for the kind and hospitable manner in which they entertained Bro. Long and myself. "Continuing instant in prayer" for the new converts, I remain their brother in Christ Jesus,

J. M. WHITEHEAD.

CLINTON, LA.—Mr. Editor: Rev. J. W. McLaurin, preacher in charge of Clinton, La., is doing a fine work there, and is having good success. He prepares his sermons diligently, and preaches to the edification and acceptability of his people, but is not content with discharging this part of his duty. He is also a painstaking pastor, visiting and praying with his people. He held a [illegible] ing in his charge recently, assisted by Bro. N. R. Young and myself, which resulted in the accession to the church of twenty-six souls, among whom were several heads of families, and some of the best citizens of the place. "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

C. G. ANDREWS.

Yellow Fever in Georgia.

We are glad to see from our latest telegrams that the yellow fever epidemic at Savannah and Brunswick is about at an end. The editor of the Southern Christian Advocate writing on the subject says:

"The epidemic, we are glad to report, is retiring, though very slowly and sullenly, from Savannah, and has almost ceased in Brunswick from sheer want of material upon which to feed. There is abundant reason to hope that very soon we will be able to announce the total disappearance of the disease from both cities, and that the dark record of the most disastrous scourge that has ever visited our coast is complete. The amount of sickness, and the number of deaths, in proportion to the population in the infected communities, exceed, if we are not misinformed, the statistics of any previous epidemic of the kind. Surely those who have escaped with life, will not fail to recognize God's hand in their deliverance, and will, even while the shadow of this dire calamity lingers over their homes, signalize their gratitude by consecrating to him the lives he has so mercifully spared. We are short-sighted, and cannot penetrate the divine purpose in so grievous a visitation as that which has befallen Savannah and Brunswick, and which will enshroud "1876" in the memory of their citizens with saddest interest to the end of their lives. The sole visible compensation for the physical suffering and mental anguish which for months past have reigned in these cities is the revelation of the nobler instincts of humanity which their condition has evoked from the country at large. Political passions and sectional prejudices blind us to each others' virtues and engender hate. But the chords of human sympathy lie nearer the heart's core, and vibrate to the touch of sorrow. The wail of distress which went up from Savannah and Brunswick struck a responsive afford in every quarter of the land, and from every section such relief as material help and words of sympathy could convey was promptly and munificently forwarded to the sufferers. To the honor of humanity we report the ready and abounding liberality with which the whole country, irrespective of sectional lines, has responded to the call for help from our suffering cities; and we only express the universal sentiment of those unfortunate communities in gratefully acknowledging the widespread beneficence that has mitigated their distress, and in invoking upon every generous contributor the best blessings of Almighty God.

Our latest advices report Bro. Wynn and his wife steadily progressing to complete recovery from the effects of this fever, and Bro. Simmons, still among the very few in Brunswick who have wholly escaped the epidemic.

Sin is to be overcome not so much by maintaining a direct opposition to it as by cultivating opposite principles. Would you kill the weeds in your garden, plant it with good seed; if the ground be well occupied there will be less need of the labor of the hoe. If a man wished to quench fire, he might fight it with his hands till he was burned to death; the only way is to apply an opposite element.

"Always add, always walk, always proceed; neither stand still, nor go back, nor deviate; he that standeth still proceedeth not; he goeth back that continueth not; he deviateth that revolteth; he goeth better that creepeth in his way than he that moveth out of his way."—Augustine.

Though God came not to Adam till the evening, yet he came; although the fire came not on Sodom till the morning, yet it came; and so comes the Judge, though he be not yet come. Though he hath laden feet, he hath iron hands. Oh, to be ready to meet him in peace.—Henry Smith.

Never yet did there exist a full faith in the Divine Word which did not expand the intellect, while it purified the heart; which did not multiply the aims and objects of the understanding, while it fixed and simplified those of the desires and feelings.—S. T. Coleridge.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1876.

THE UNBOLTED DOOR.

An aged widow sat alone
Beside her fading hearth,
Her silent cottage never heard
The ringing laugh of mirth.
Six children once had sported there—but now the churchyard snow
Fell softly on five little graves that were not long ago.

She mourned them all with patient love,
But since, her eyes had shed
Far bitterer tears than those which dewed
The faces of the dead.
The child which had been spared to her—the darling of her pride—
The woeful mother lived to wish that she had also died.

Those little ones beneath the snow
She well knew where they are:
"Close gathered to the throne of God,
And that was better far."
But when she thought where Kate was, she saw the city's glare,
The painted mask of bitter joy that Need gives sin to wear.

Without, the snow lay thick and white;
No step had fallen there;
Within, she sat beside her fire,
Each thought a silent prayer;
When suddenly behind her seat unwonted noise she heard,
As though a hesitating hand the rustic latch had stirred.

She turned—and there the wanderer stood
With snowflakes on her hair;
A faded woman wild and worn,
The ghost of something fair.
And then upon the mother's breast the withered brow was laid—
"Can God and you forgive me all? for I have sinned," she said.

The widow dropped upon her knees
Before the fading fire
And thanked the Lord whose love at last
Had granted her desire.
The daughter knelt beside her, too, tears all unheeded falling from her eyes,
And prayed: "God, help me to be good to mother ere she dies."

They did not talk about the sin,
The shame, the bitter woe;
They spoke about those little graves,
And things of long ago.
And then the daughter raised her eyes and asked in tenderness,
"Why did you keep your door unbarred, when you were all alone?"

"My child," the widow said, and smiled,
A smile of love and pain,
"I kept it so, lest you should come
And turn away again.
I've waited for you all the while—a mother's love is true;
Yet it is but the shadowy type of this who died for you."

Dancing.

MR. EDITOR: If this subject has not been worn threadbare by other correspondents, I would be glad of a place in your columns for the following thoughts:

Dancing is very commonly practiced in fashionable circles, and, though condemned by the religious sentiment of the country, it is too often the case that young Christians are drawn into its fascinating mazes. In fact, in some churches, and Methodist churches at that, there are those who dance with impunity.

Now I am satisfied that the remedy for this evil among us may be found in the kind but prompt, firm, and uniform administration of the law of the church.

Changing pastors as we do every two or three years, if it is permitted one to denounce and another to encourage it, we may expect dancing to hold its own in the church in spite of law. I say encourage, for some people, judging both from their words and actions, think that not a few of our preachers and prominent laymen are rather in favor of this fashionable folly.

"But why make such a fuss about dancing while many things a great deal worse are tolerated in the church?"

I reply by denying the assumption that gives the question force.

Admit that lying, stealing, swearing, and drunkenness are worse than dancing. Are these things tolerated in the church? Are the members of our church habitually guilty of such sins as would exclude one from the "kingdom of grace and glory?" And is the pastor aware that such is the case? And are no steps taken to rid the church of these sinners? If so, I am not writing for the benefit of such a pastor or such a church.

I may then safely deny that there is anything permitted or tolerated in our Methodist churches that is worse than dancing.

When our people violate the express commands of God it is no difficult matter to mete out to them the due reward of their deeds.

But it is necessary that we "make a fuss about dancing," and keep making it, until that vice is driven forever from the pale of the church. There are many reasons for this, a few of which we will glance at in this article.

Dancing is declared by our church to be a diversion that cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus. It is, therefore, sinful. Let that be kept distinctly in mind. Now while I think that no real Christian believes dancing to be altogether harmless, I am bound to conclude that many really good men and women are of the opinion that it is not very wrong—that it is not so sinful as to justify the church in making much ado about it. Others, not Christians, but of good moral character and high standing in society, think it not wrong at all, while the great fashionable world indorse it as altogether right and proper.

How easily, then, may the ministers of Satan, drawing from all these sources, persuade young Christians that dancing is at the worst a middle ground between virtue and vice—an amusement in which they can engage without sinning against God.

When such opinion is entertained conscience ceases to raise her voice stern reprobation, the law of God seemingly hushes its thunders, and no restraint is left but the law of the church. Shall we remove this also, and open wide the door to destruction? God forbid.

Let us rather double lock the door, and throw away the key. If we are driven from our duty by the state and contemptible asseverations that there are worse things in the church than dancing, it may be that the blood of murdered souls will be required at our hands.

Another reason why we should "make so much fuss about dancing" is because it is such a fascinating amusement.

There are no amusements in which young people take so much pleasure as in dancing. There is something in the music, in the contact of the sexes, in the dizzy delirious ecstatic whirl, that when once experienced is remembered with pleasure, and its repetition longed for as elysian dreams. Consequently the habit once formed is hard to break. The pleasurable excitement repeated again and again, the desire for it growing with each repetition, becomes at length, like the brandy of the drunkard or the drug of the opium-eater, almost a necessity to existence. Why dancing is so fascinating would not be hard to tell. That it is will not, I suppose, be denied. If not, and if it is sinful, it must be turned out of the church.

Again, the commonness of this vice is another reason why we should "make so much fuss about it."

When young ladies preparing to visit cities are cautioned by their pastor in regard to dancing they will often say in reply: "Everybody dances in ——. If I do not dance I will be left to myself. Do you expect me to be a wall flower?"

"My parents," says another, "will not let me go to balls, and, as there is dancing at all the parties about here, I am shut out from society almost altogether." And these things are true. One can hardly go to a party of pleasure, whether in country, town, or city, without being confronted with the silly cotillion or lascivious waltz.

Then, as our young people are in danger of being led into the giddy mazes of the dance in proportion to its prevalence, and as it prevails everywhere, it would seem necessary that "a fuss" should everywhere be made about it until the danger subsides.

Again, the ball-room is the high way to grog-shops and to houses of ill-fame. The high way, I say, and that for women as well as for men. This, I think, can be established beyond the power of successful refutation; but, as I judge it will not be questioned by any of the readers of the ADVOCATE, I will not trouble you with arguments or statistics.

If I am correct, it will be granted that if dancing is not as bad in itself as some other sins, it is in its results equal to the worst. Whence it follows that the doors of the church should be strongly closed against this monster, and, if by any means he has effected an entrance, then, as a last resort, drive him out with the whip of expulsion.

The reader will see that I have thrown out the foregoing thoughts "all in a heap." Time and space forbid careful elaboration. Besides, I suppose a word to the wise is sufficient.

I will now notice some reasons that have been assigned why we should not make so much fuss about dancing:

"I have known," says an objector to my views, "young Christians to dance who afterward died happy."

The proposition to be proved is that dancing is not an evil in sufficient magnitude to call for the prompt administration of discipline in order to its suppression.

The argument, then, would stand thus: People who have danced after their conversion have, nevertheless died happy; therefore dancing is not very sinful. Or this: Those who die happy have never been guilty of anything very sinful. Some who have danced have died happy; therefore some who have danced have not been guilty of anything very sinful.

It seems to me that there is a fallacy in that argument. Perhaps the major premiss may be denied. I will leave that for the reader to determine.

Again, it is intimated that our young people will be justly offended if we persist in the attempt to restrain them from dancing, and that we will thereby lose in a great degree our hold upon them. Preachers and people talk as if efforts to keep church members from dancing would be a species of persecution.

This is the blight of puerility. That people who pay more heed to the clamors of desire than to the requirements of the church, the reproofs of conscience, and the voice of God will cry persecution when we try to keep them from doing as they wish may be admitted; but that there are good reasons for such a cry is denied.

Whoever heard before that the use of all legitimate means to restrain men from sin has in it the nature of persecution?

Is it persecution for a schoolmaster to insist on it that the pupils keep the rules of his school? Is it persecution if he punishes those who disobey, and expels those who will not be coerced into obedience? A murderer is arrested, brought before the proper authorities, and after a fair trial is adjudged guilty and sentenced to death upon the gallows, or to imprisonment for life. Is he or are his friends justified in raising the cry of persecution? No more are those who have been expelled from the church for "taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus."

But persecution properly is to harass for adherence to a particular creed or mode of worship. We therefore deny the possibility of persecuting dancers.

I think it would be an easy matter to satisfy our young people that while the authorities are in earnest about this matter, and are determined that the law shall, in every case, be enforced, the reason is not because it is desired to do them harm, but good. When once convinced that we seek their good, they will not be offended at what we do. Again, it is said that "a certain church stands ready to fold to her maternal breast all the young people cut off from us for this vice."

So be it. Let her stretch her arms like seas, and let whosoever will fly to her bosom. It is not material whether we have sixty or six thousand members, but is material how those live whom we do have. Suppose the Mormons were to set up an organization in our midst, and offer to take in all whom we turned out for polygamy, would it be right for us to talk sweetly about polygamy, and reprove with gentle insinuations regarding their wrong doings those who had fallen into that sin, meanwhile inviting them to our communion table as heirs of the kingdom of God?

For my part, I think that the effort to "retain our hold upon unregenerated men and women" has, in various localities, resulted in much harm, both to churches and preachers. It is devoutly to be wished that such efforts will cease. If people will not go with us to heaven, let them depart from us.

The church must be purified and kept pure. If men will sin, let them sin out of the church. If they will dance, let them dance as sinners. This vice has slain its thousands and tens of thousands. It is clothed as an angel of light, and trying to lead astray the elects of God.

Let the preachers everywhere strip the shining raiment from its loathsome body, that the people may see it as it is.

There must be no compromise here. Let dancing work according to its own sweet will, and the results will be deplorable. Our young people will become demoralized everywhere. Sins of various kinds will multiply among us. The hands of Christians will be weakened. Other compromises will be asked and granted. Internal dissensions arising from the heterogeneous elements of which she is composed will paralyze the energies of the church, and render ineffectual her spasmodic efforts for good. Her light will be turned into darkness, her friends will weep over her, her foes will scorn her, and God will forsake her.

With such views I must raise my voice against dancing as a gigantic and dangerous evil, and insist that pastors and churches cannot watch it too carefully, nor combat it too persistently.

LORENZO.

Let Us have Doctrinal Literature for the Sunday School.

MR. EDITOR: So far as my observation and knowledge extend with regard to indoctrinating the children of the Methodist Church 'tis that it is very poorly done. Our children have no intelligent, no clearly defined idea of those doctrines so much controverted by Calvinists and Arminians. They know nothing, I might say, of our position with reference to the vital doctrine of the gospel, and, strangest of all, the church has made no provision for them (the children) to come in possession of this knowledge. We do not believe, and, of course, do not wish our children to believe, the Calvinistic system of religion. Yet our press furnishes no Sunday-school works which will give them to understand what we believe and why we believe it, in so far as to grow them up in the strength and stay of Methodist theology; hence we frequently meet with Calvinistic Methodists—singular paradox, yet true. Very true we have all these Calvinistic peculiarities ably discussed and refuted by such men as Wesley and Watson, but what child reads them or understands them when read? or I might ask this of some grown persons.

No one but the preacher becomes familiar with these books—they are beyond the comprehension of youth. We have no doctrinal catechisms adapted to the capacity of children. I think this a great misfortune for us. It is not the case with other Protestant Churches. Their children grow up "well instructed scribes" in their doctrines, and remain so until death by at least nine-tenths of their number. Not so with Methodist children. We lose more from our communion than any other church, and 'tis because we do not educate and graduate them in the theology of the Methodist Church.

The Methodist press should furnish the church with a doctrinal catechism simplified and embracing every doctrine which we profess. The times are clamorous for such a thing, and in consequence of not having it the church is shorn of its strength and the ministry is inefficient in subjugating the kingdoms of this world to our God and his Christ. We need, we must have a Sunday-school literature that will succinctly and plainly set forth Arminian doctrine, together with its reason and proof, and after the same style an exposition of Calvinism as to what we deem erroneous and fatal. A great deal of mischief would be averted, our church family would be more of a unit, and we would unquestionably retain our legitimate material within our own pale. I want the sacraments in their nature and design clearly and forcibly explained, predestination, unconditional election, and final perseverance so exposed as to become obnoxious to their growing intelligence, and succession-ists church, clams snapped in sunder, so that our children may daily grow in favor with their parent church. Other churches spare no time or pains in weaving such information into the very nature, so to speak, of their children; hence their success.

Sir, why should the intelligence and forces of the Methodist Church be dormant upon such vital things? If I understand the catechetical functions of the church (the Sunday school,) the main idea is to indoctrinate, and I can see but little good resulting in this way in Sunday-school operations.

With shame, Mr. Editor, I am forced to say that our people are remarkably ignorant in doctrine, which thing necessarily weakens the church; and the only hope for the future of our church is for us to see to it that the plants in the nursery be doctrinally cultivated. This will be a great agency in restoring the primitive landmarks of Methodism. Sir, I hope to see such a thing, and pray that God may thus favor us.

Mr. Burroughs, of South Africa, having no dog to love, bought an ostrich, and now he advertises as follows: "£10 reward! Lost, a tame ostrich. Said ostrich was missed yesterday, directly after having devoured certain pieces of machinery which one of the ladies of the advertiser's household had apart and was cleaning on the front verandah at the time. He is supposed to have wandered off in a fit of melancholy directly after committing the deed. The above reward will be paid for the return of the pieces, as they are invaluable on account of the long time required to replace them from the manufactory in the United States. The parts wanting are a face-plate, needle bar, and shuttle of a sewing machine. I am not particular about the ostrich."

Here is a good Irish story. One morning a friend meets one of the Irish gendarmerie coming from one of the mysterious valleys beyond Killarney. The gendarme wears a smile of complacency. "Sir," he says, "they've been hiding a chap yonder, who gave himself out as the Ballypareen murderer; and for the last six weeks he has had his free keep and his shelter, and everything sing and handsome. Well, I've had my own suspicions about the fellow, and I went up this morning; and sure enough, just as I thought, he turns out to be nothing more or less than an impostor."

A gentleman who had been dining out the night before went into a barber's shop one morning to be shaved. He saw that the barber had been taking more drink than was good for him, for it made his hand shake very much; and his customer, naturally indignant, began to give him a little moral advice by saying: "Bad thing, drink!" "Yes," said the barber. "It makes the skin uncommon tender."

At a recent school examination the teacher was not a little surprised, on asking a little boy what the four seasons were, to receive the reply, "Pepper, mustard, salt, and vinegar." "Why, Johnny, how can you say so?" expostulated the teacher. "'Cause my mother always seasons with them, anyhow!" declared the observant scholar.

An old deaf aunt of the publisher Constable was on her death-bed, and her mind, always eccentric, had begun to waver and fail. "Ann," she said to her attendant, "if I should be spared to be taken away, I hope my nephew will get the doctor to open my head, and see whether anything can be done for my hearing."

OBITUARIES.

Obituaries, please write names and dates very distinctly. We follow copy on proper names. Obituaries should be forwarded promptly and immediately. Give only points of general interest, such as will help the living. Details of funeral services, and such phrases as "mourn their loss," etc., are not edifying. Verses, either original or select, not admissible in this department. Give the locality distinctly and in full. In the case of infants only a simple announcement of the death, with names and dates, will be published.

☞ All obituaries received are published as soon as convenient. If, after a reasonable time, any such communication fail to appear, let a duplicate be sent instead of a complaint.

DIED, near Campte, La., on the sixth of September, 1876, of swamp fever, MRS. TAMMIE E. DAVIS, wife of J. C. Davis, and daughter of Mr. Thomas W. Davis, deceased, and Mrs. D. E. Davis. She was born in Campte, La., February 4, 1853, and was married to J. C. Davis in October, 1871. She was converted at a camp meeting in Springville, La., in September, 1874, and attached herself to the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Though she was so young from that time until the close of her life she seemed to walk with God. She delighted to meet with his people in prayer meetings, and her presence and faith contributed largely to the life and spirit of devotion. She was a zealous and faithful laborer in the Sabbath school. I have heard her endeavoring to impress the truths of religion on the minds of her class, and regretted that her usefulness was so limited. But he who "hath done all things well" has taken her to himself; her work on earth is done; no more will we see her dear face in the sanctuary; no more hear her words of encouragement and instruction to the mourner; no more in the female prayer-meeting hear her sweet voice pleading at the mercy seat; no more, for she has gone to her reward. At twilight on the second day of her illness she felt that she was dying. She asked her mother to have the light brought near her, that she might see the faces of loved ones once more. She said to her stepfather: "Pa, I am dying." He asked: "Are you afraid to die, my daughter?" She said: "Oh, no pa, not at all. I am perfectly willing to go. I am prepared. I am going to heaven." She had her little boys brought to her, that she might, for the last time, hear them repeat their evening prayer, and receive her dying blessing. She asked her father and mother to help her husband to raise her little boys for God. Thus she continued to evince the utmost calmness and composure, sending messages of love to absent friends, requesting them to meet her in heaven.

Bethany Grange No. 241, amid audible sobs and tears, unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, From time immemorial, individual associations and organizations have had to mourn the early departure of their loved and valuable members. We recognize in the death of our loved Flora, Sister T. E. Davis, the common destiny of all, and while we bow in submission to this afflictive dispensation of our Heavenly Father, and mourn the loss we have sustained in the death of our sister, "we sorrow not as those without hope."

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with our afflicted brother and worthy steward, with the father and mother and aged grandmother, and other relatives of the deceased.

Resolved, That Bethany Grange No. 241, in the cause, in the noble order of patrons, has sustained a great loss in her untimely death.

IN MEMORIAM.

EDITOR NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE: The following memorial was adopted as a tribute to the memory of the late Rev. LAWRENCE BAKER, of Midway, Ala., by the Eufaula District Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at its recent session in Louisville, Barbour county. The occasion of its adoption was one of touching interest, and by a unanimous vote the undersigned were commissioned to furnish a copy for publication to your excellent paper.

JERE S. WILLIAMS.

The sad announcement has been made to us that our beloved brother, the Rev. Lawrence Baker, is no more. He departed this life on the nineteenth of July last, after a protracted stage of ill health. We are indeed moved to sorrow at our loss; but this sorrow is greatly soothed by the strong assurance that our loss is his gain, and while our hearts are strangely softened by the effects of these two opposing influences, joy and sorrow, it behooves us to pause for awhile that our minds may take in the great lessons of his useful life, and our souls catch new inspiration from his triumphant death. Bro. Baker, when about ten years of age, was happily converted to God, at Salem camp meeting, Newton county, Ga. He immediately presented himself for membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church South. His father, thinking his son too young to appreciate the responsibilities of church membership, did not allow his name enrolled. Young Lawrence discovering this, again presented himself for membership, and again was not enrolled. At the age of fourteen, his father having died, young Lawrence was informed that he was not enrolled, when his mother, at his own earnest solicitations, had him enrolled among the people of God. Thus Hannah gave Samuel to the Lord. This fixedness of purpose, thus manifested so early in the boyhood of our beloved brother, characterized him through life. No difficulties daunted him, no temptations allured him from the path of duty. After his father's death, he promptly took the place of priest in the family, and regularly led in the morning and evening worship. Frequently, while acting as a clerk, he was thrown in the company of wicked young men, who tempted him to gamble and drink, but he was never known to yield. When the late war between the States broke out, he left his home to fight the battles of his country. He carried with him, concealed in the hem of his pants, some gold which he had saved from the earnings of his boyhood; being captured and subjected to search, he was asked if he had any money about his person. The temptation was strong, but young Baker could not lie. He took out the gold and delivered it to his captors. His gold was gone, but he had that which was far better, "a conscience void of offense." He "bought the truth, and sold it not." Before going into the army, he revealed to his mother his convictions in reference to a call to the ministry. After his return, true to his convictions, he applied for and received license to preach from the Enon [illegible] Midway Quarterly Conference in 1868. As a minister, he maintained an unblemished character. On account of ill health he did not preach often, but when he did, he was with acceptability and with great unction. It was his burning desire to join the itinerant ranks, but the many responsibilities of a temporal nature which he was compelled to assume, together with his ill health, prevented him from carrying out his purpose. As a superintendent of Sunday schools, he had few equals. Naturally suited to the work by his tenderness and great love for children, he was more eminently qualified by the richer abundance of divine grace constantly abiding with him. He loved to talk to the children about Jesus, and we have reason to believe he was instrumental in bringing many lambs to the fold. As a steward, he was always faithful. He loved the itinerant system and ministry, and did what he could to sustain them. As a man of business, he possessed peculiar qualifications. His motto was: "Diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." A brother, who knew him well, said of him: "In all of his business transactions he never made a crook." As a citizen, he was a model worthy of imitation. He had an influence that few may hope to attain, and that influence was exerted for religion and right. The most wicked feared and respected him, and the pious and good did him reverence. His presence was a power, and his words soberness and wisdom. As a father and husband he was tender and affectionate, yet firm and dignified. The affairs of his household were ordered well. His death was triumphant. He had visited Blount Springs for his health, but, not being improved, he returned home very much emaciated. On the eleventh day thereafter he was a corpse. His pastor was with him often during this interval, conversing on religious topics, and found him at all times strong in faith, joyful in peace, and bright in hope. Any attempt to describe the scenes transpiring at intervals during these days would be futile. He had a word for every one of his family and friends. To the church he said: "Tell the brethren to be more holy." On one occasion, in the silent hour of night, while guarded by a mother's vigilant eye, he broke the quiet of the hour with the sweet voice of song, singing the following stanzas of his favorite hymn:

How sweet the name of Jesus sounds
In a believer's ear!
It soothes his sorrows, heals his wounds,
And drives away his fear.

It makes the wounded spirit whole,
And calms the troubled breast;
'Tis manna to the hungry soul,
And to the weary rest.

Dear Name, the rock on which I build,
My shield and hiding place;
My never-failing treasury filled
With boundless stores of grace.

Within a few hours of his death his pastor approached his bedside and asked him, "Do you still trust in the Lord?" He answered in measured tones: "I do still trust in the Lord." His pastor again inquired, "Is the Lord still precious to you?" and with the same emphasis he replied: "The Lord is still precious to me." He soon breathed his last in peace and triumph. So it is certain that "precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

SIMON T. MASSEY was born in Caswell county, N. C., June 18, 1817, and died in Yazoo City, August 14, 1876. He became a citizen of this State thirty years ago, and of this place thirty-five years ago. He has been a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South for about twenty years. He was a quiet and exceedingly unostentatious Christian, but true, good man, and highly respected by all. He lived an exemplary life. He was truly blameless. He loved the church of his choice; indeed it may be said of him: "He was devoted to his church." As long as his health would permit, he was ever in his place at the preaching of the word, prayer meeting, and at the official meetings of the church. For many years he filled the office of steward in this church. He fell in the office of trustee. He leaves a sorrowing widow and two manly sons to mourn his loss. But what is their loss is his eternal gain. May they follow him as he followed Christ. May they live as he lived, that they may die as he died—in peace. He suffered long, but murmured not. His disease was consumption. Well may we say of him, "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

DIED, on the ninth day of September, ARCHIE DACUS, after a short but severe illness of two days, aged four years, eight months and seven days. He was the son of A. T. Dacus and Louisa H. Dacus, Union parish, La. He was an intelligent and obedient child, and with joy and pride we watched the opening of this youthful mind; our hopes brightening as he passed his infantile years and promised to be a source of much happiness to us in the future. We had taught his little lips to repeat a short prayer each night before retiring to sleep, and if we neglected to do so he would put us in mind of it, and tell us we ought not to put it off till the morrow. Though young, he evidently had hopes, and trusted in Jesus his Savior. The Lord gave him to us, and the Lord hath taken him away; blessed be the name of the Lord.

EUGENIA GERTRUDE CARNES, infant daughter of Mrs. M. E. Carnes, was born January 12, 1870, and died September 1, 1876. It is comforting to her bereaved parent and friends to know that, as she was fatherless in this world, she now enjoys the blessings of him who says: "Suffer little children to come unto me."

NIGHTFALL.

Alone I stand;
On either hand
In gathering gloom all reach sea and land;
Beneath my feet,
With ceaseless beat,
The waters murmur low and sweet.

Slow falls the night;
The tender light
Of stars grows brighter and more bright;
The lingering ray
Of dying day
Sinks deeper down and fades away.

Now fast, now slow,
The south winds blow,
And softly whisper, breathing low
With gentle grace,
They kiss my face,
Or fold me in their cool embrace.

Where one pale star
O'er waters far
Drops down to touch the harbor bar,
A faint light gleams,
A light that seems
To grow and grow till nature teems

With mellow haze,
And to my gaze
Comes proudly rising, with its rays
No longer dim,
The moon; its rim
In splendor gilds the billowy brim.

I watch it gain
The heavenly plain;
Behind it trails a starry train;
While low and sweet
The wavelets beat
Their murmuring music at my feet.

Fair night of June!
Yon silver moon
Gleams pale and still. The tender tune,
Palm-floating, days
In moonlit bays
A melody of other days.

'Tis sacred ground;
A peace profound
Comes o'er my soul. I hear no sound,
Save at my feet
The ceaseless beat
Of waters murmuring low and sweet.

On Seeking God.

Assuming that there is a God—an assumption we can never deny without doing wrong to our nature—we feel that there are wants in the soul of man which such a one alone can supply, a hunger and thirst which he alone can satisfy. We cannot do justice to our nature without giving room to the sense of the Infinite. We demand an existence without end. Nothing short of immortality can meet the longing of the soul. We might possibly prefer utter extinction to an immortality of evil or of misery; but when the hope of an endless life of good is presented, the spirit of man rises with joy at the thought, and grasps it as his inheritance. If imagination would fix any limit to our existence and to our progress at which, when reached, there shall stretch before our memory a past embracing ages upon ages, during which we have advanced in knowledge, in the enlargement and enjoyment of a perfected social life, and during which our faculties also have become stronger and more capable of taking wider journeys through endless fields of knowledge, and our characters have become grander by increased means of action and love—and let this point be at once as the summit of a mighty range of heavenly mountains, and the edge also of a precipice plunging into an infinite abyss of annihilation, be end, in short of our existence—could we be satisfied in being thus limited and thus ending, because of the past we had enjoyed? Nay, we would not be satisfied were we permitted to live forever, and to feel only on the memory of all we had seen and heard and known and loved. Would we not yearn for the infinite beyond, and seek to pierce the darkness and to brave the abyss, and descend to it even as a grave, a second death, if we thereby could win another resurrection? Yes! The soul is made for immortality, because it is made for God! His eternal life alone is the assurance and certainty of ours. His infinite love is the eternal fountain of love to fill our hearts, and the hearts of all who are like us, made in his image. In him as eternal wisdom and power, in him as the everlasting source of all that is or can be of majesty or beauty, in him, the Infinite God and Father, and in nothing lower, nothing less, can man, the greatest work of his hands, find the perfect satisfaction of his being.

Shall we not, then, seek after him to know him? Without him, I am a creeping worm of the dust; finding him, I am a humble child of God! Without him and alone, I am a king in a dungeon, in darkness and in chains, poor and needy, and naked; with him, I am a king on a throne eternal in the heavens, rich and in need of nothing, and as seeing him and all his works, clothed in royal robes, and crowned with glory evermore.

First, as for the eye with which we should seek God. The intellectual eye is not enough. The intellect sees much truth, but it does not see love, no more do the ear perceive color. When the man of science speaks regarding a department in the field of knowledge which he has cultivated, I listen to him with the same respect which I would give to a great artist when he speaks of art; but in proportion as they have devoted themselves to any one subject, and as they have cultivated only one side of their being, I refuse to listen to them as necessarily speaking with authority on another side of truth which they have never perhaps seen, or the faculty to see which has been comparatively neglected by them. I would value more the spiritual judgment or insight of the poor but truly experienced Christian regarding God than that of the most cultured man of science who had not cultivated his spiritual nature, nor educated those higher moral powers by which spiritual truth is discerned. "He who loveth not, knoweth not God," is a fact which debars any eye from seeing God but an eye that can discern holy and righteous love as the highest possible excellence. Without this eye, God, who is love, can not be seen or known. Hence, our difficulty, but a normal and a necessary one, in finding God, and one that cannot possibly be got over except by the education of the spirit. If we could present God in a visible form such as the senses would discern, either as a superb ideal, embodying all that marble could express of beauty and strength, this could be understood, but not God; for God is a spirit, and God is love, and no marble can express that to the eye. Such methods have no power to educate the eye of the spirit. Outward figures which seek by representations to the senses to aid man to apprehend an invisible God, only hinder him from the cultivation of those higher powers by which alone he can be truly perceived. They do not lift up man to God, but bring down a man for men, instead of God. Nor could the Son of God himself as a mere man seen by the bodily eye, or judged of by the fleshly, carnal, or unspiritual mind, be a revelation of God. Herod saw Jesus, and so did Judas; but as they had not the right eye, the purity of heart, which is the purity of love, they could not and did not see Jesus as a revelation of the unseen God. Unless we are "born of God," unless as children we have the spirit of sonship, or love, we cannot "see the kingdom of heaven," for we cannot recognize the king.

This being so, we can also understand how no such revelation of God as is given through miracle appealing to the bodily eye can be sufficient. Miracles might be wrought before each man, majestic visions, angels, and manifestations of surpassing glory might be seen, and sounds of unearthly melody might be heard in the sky; cities, nations, might crowd to see wonders and signs in heaven and earth, and yet no progress be made in educating man to find God. If by the spirit only he can be seen and found, if there is no other instrument possible than that of a spiritual eye higher than that of reason, because dealing with higher truths and seeing further into eternal realities, then anything which instead of this substitutes sight or the teaching of the lower understanding must retard the true education of the faculties which have to do now, and will have to do forever, with the unseen and eternal. Slow this education may be, but it alone is sure, while any other is false from the beginning.

But to preserve the right eye, we must keep the right conduct. The purity of the spiritual vision is immensely affected by the character of the life. The right seeing is affected by the right living. Nothing, for instance, so blinds the eye in seeking after God as an immoral life. The fleshly lusts war against the soul; they are what dust or mud are to the bodily eye. He that doeth evil cometh not to the light, and without light the eye is useless. It is one of the most fearful punishments of sin, that he who loves it and clings to it begins to hate God because he hates sin, and dislikes to seek after him, as he would dislike seeking after an enemy. The will that is bound to the flesh will not rise the spirit. The feet turn the eye in the wrong direction from that in which God is to be found. As men of science sacrifice time, and deny themselves in what would injure their physical and mental faculties, dim the eye, or disturb the calm which is essential to study and discovery, so must the man who would see God mortify whatever would distract his vision. Unholy passions, as a thick cloud, conceal the vision of God.—The Rev. Norman Macleod, D. D.

Modern Philosophers on the Probable Age of the World.

"It is impossible to deny that periods of vast duration must have elapsed while the changes took place of which we see the traces. If, for instance, we search below the sand on English shores we find perhaps a bed of earth with shells and bones; under that, a bed of peat; under that, one of blue silt; under that, a buried forest, with the trees upright and rooted; under that, another layer of blue silt full of roots and vegetable fibre; perhaps under that again, another old land surface with trees again growing in it; and under all, main bottom clay of the district. In any place where boulder clay crops out at the surface—in Cheshire or Lancashire, along Leith shore near Edinburgh, or along the coast of Scarborough—it will be found stuffed full of bits of different kinds of stone, the great majority of which have nothing to do with the rocks on which the clay happens to lie, but have come from places many miles away. On examining the pebbles, they will prove to be rounded, scratched, and grooved in such fashion as to show that at some period they have been subjected to a grinding force of immense violence. Among the pebbles in the clay, and on plains far away from mountains, are found great rocks of many tons in weight. They were carried on the backs of icebergs which at some time covered the now temperate regions of the earth, and were dropped by the melting ice either in the shape of pebbles as moraines of ancient glaciers, or as boulders stranded when the ice melted in the lowlands.

"Such evidence points to vast periods of more than Arctic winter, which must have endured for many thousand years. But in close juxtaposition with these glacial shells and pebbles the remains which tell of tropical climates that alternated with the dreary ages of ice. Fossil plants and the remains of animals prove that all northern Europe was once warmer than it is now; that England bore the flora and fauna of the torrid zones. Underneath London there lies four or five hundred feet of clay. It is not mere clay; it belongs to a later geological formation, and was in fact the delta of a great tropical river. The shells in this clay are tropical. Nautili, cones, fruits and seeds of nipa palm, now found only at Indian river mouths; anona seeds, acacia fruits. The bones, too, of crocodiles and turtles; of large mammals allied to the Indian tapir, and the wilder hog of the cape. All this shows that there was once, where London stands, a tropical climate, and a tropic river running into the sea. We find in it the remains of animals that existed before the ice age. The mammoth, or woolly elephant, the woolly rhinoceros, the cave lion, the cave bear, the reindeer, and the musk-ox inhabited Britain till the ice drove them south. When the climate became tolerable again the mammoth and rhinoceros, the bison and the lion, reoccupied our lowlands; and the hippopotamus from Africa and Spain wandered over the plains where now the English channel flows, and pastured side by side with animals which have long since retreated to Norway and Canada.

When the ages necessary for all these changes are allowed for, we have not even yet got beyond the latest period into which the history of the globe has been divided. Under the tertiary deposits lies the chalk, a thousand feet in thickness, which is composed of the shells of minute animals which must have been deposited age after age at the bottom of a deep and still ocean far out of reach of winds, tides, or currents. Recent dredgings in the ocean depths have proved beyond a doubt that the greater part of the Atlantic sea floor is now being covered by a similar deposit. It must have taken ages to form, and, if the geologists are right in their estimate of the slow rate of upheaval, many more ages to become elevated above the ocean bed where it lay. Not only once, but many times, the chalk was alternately above and beneath the waves. It is separated by comparatively thin and partial deposits of sand and clays; which shows that it has been at many different points a sea-shore cliff. The chalk is not so flat as it must have been at the sea-bottom, it is eaten out into holes by the erosion of the sea waves, and upon it lie flints, beds of shore shingle, beds of oysters lying as they grew, water-shell standing as they lived, and the remains of trees. Yet, again, there lie upon the chalk sands, such as those of Ahlershot and Farnham, containing in their lower strata remains of tropical life, which disappeared as the climate became gradually colder and colder and the age of ice once more set in. Every where about the sands have been plowed by the shore ice in the winter, as they lay awaste in the shallow sea, and over them is spread in many places a thin sheet of ice borne gravel. All this happened between the date of the boulder clay and that of the new red sand stone on which it rests.

We need not follow the geologist through the lower systems which overlie the metamorphic rock. The oolite contains plants and animals now extinct, the most remarkable being huge reptiles; the triassic has fossils like the oolite; and the Permian has remains like those of the coal on which it rests. Then follows the coal measures, the fossil remnants of tropical regeneration; the old red sandstone, with fossils principally of fishes and shells; the silurian, in which are found the earliest forms of life; and, lastly, the hard, crystalline rocks, devoid of fossils, which are supposed to be the earliest constituent mass of our planet.—London Quarterly Review for July.

Wanted, an Appetite.

A "family doctor" contributes an excellent article under this caption to Cassell's Family Magazine, and summarizes his advice, especially for the guidance of those who are confined for long hours in close rooms, in towns or cities, in the following few simple rules:

1. Rise early—not later than seven in summer and half past in winter.

2. On no account neglect the daily matutinal bath, either tepid or cold, souping the whole body, and finishing off with a rough towel; then take time to dress.

3. If weakly, don't go out on an empty stomach, but give yourself time after breakfast for a good long walk in the open air.

4. Eat what you have a mind to for breakfast, but it is just as well to remember that eggs are more digestible lightly boiled, and chops underdone. If your digestion is weak the tea ought to be so too, but plenty of milk won't hurt.

5. Always eat leisurely and masticate the food well. Aerated or stale (two-day-old) bread is better than new.

6. If engaged all day, it is much better to have luncheon, and defer dining until work is over.

7. I pray you avoid alcoholic stimulants.

8. A cup of pure good coffee is an excellent appetizer before dinner, but is positively injurious after.

9. One's dinner should be slowly partaken of, and so abundant as to cause one to feel afterward on good terms with himself and all the world. "Unquiet meals make bad digestions."

10. Avoid taking medicine as a rule, unless under dire necessity.

11. Good rest at night is indispensable if you would have a good appetite and live long. Narcotics are medicated death. Earn your night's rest by plenty of exercise in the open air, by the magic of the matutinal tub, and by moderation and temperance in all things.

WHY SHE PLANTED ROSES.—A blacksmith had in his possession, but under mortgage, a house and a piece of land. Like many others, he was at one time fond of the social glass, but was happily induced by a friend to join the temperance society. About three months after he observed his wife one morning busily engaged in planting rose bushes and fruit trees. "Mary," said he, "I have owned this lot for five years, and yet I have never known you to care to improve it in this manner." "Indeed," replied the smiling wife; "I had no heart to do it until you gave up drink. I had often thought of it before, but I was persuaded that should I do it some stranger would pluck the roses and eat the fruit. Now, with God's blessing, this rot will be ours, and we and our children may expect to enjoy the produce. We shall pluck the roses and eat the fruit." And they did. Their cottage was known as the prettiest in the neighborhood.—National Grange.

The phrenologist lifted his hand from the boy's head and said: "Your son has extraordinary developments, sir; he will be a great man." The father dropped his chin upon his breast and mournfully added, "Then he can never be President."—Brooklyn Argus.

Religious Intelligence.

—The largest Sunday school in the world is at Stockport, England, which has in one room 424 teachers and 3,614 scholars.

—Rev. G. N. Morton writes from Brazil: "I believe there is no city or town in which a missionary, who could speak the language of the people, has labored a year without being able to organize a church." Since 1859, fifteen churches have been established in Brazil and vicinity, several of which number two hundred members.

—A Baptist paper reports a meeting of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Association, of Indian Territory, held in the Nun-ny-chaha church, whose pastor's name is not given, but whose clerk is Hopakintubby. The meetings were held in a grove, as the church was too small. It is reported that the women in attendance generally wore clean clothing and that the men had ribbons or feathers in their hats. During the session a wedding ceremony was performed, opening with six verses of the Choctaw version of "Oh! for a closer walk with God!" and ending with the hymn "Show pity, Lord, O Lord, forgive!"

—At the late session of the Wesleyan Conference an incident was related by the Rev. Joseph Dare that may well make Christians blush: "I was taking tea," said Mr. Dare, "with the Wesleyan Missionary in the lone Island of Kandavu, in the midst of ten thousand of these Fijians. As we were at tea the bell rang. The missionary: 'That is the signal for family worship. Now listen; you will hear the drums beat,' and immediately they began to echo to each other round the shores of that southern sea. 'There are ten thousand people on this island,' said he, 'and I do not know of a single house where there will not now be a family prayer.'"

—The caravan of pilgrims from Paris to Lourdes has been favored with three miracles within twenty-four hours. One man, Constant Gaudemant, of Levallois, near Paris, had suffered for ten months from a disease of the heart and another of the intestines, so that he could not walk and was reduced to the last stage of feebleness. He was completely cured while gazing on an image of Our Lady of Lourdes. One Victorine Fourdin, of Lille, had a disease of the pericardium, said to be very dangerous. After taking the holy communion from an English archbishop at Lourdes, she heard a sudden snapping in her chest, and found herself cured. At the rate of three a day, miracles ought to be abundant enough for medical investigation.

—The little Presbyterian church at San Fernando, near Cadiz, has come to be quite prominently connected with public affairs in Spain. The public, having thrown every obstacle possible in the way of the opening of the edifice, was finally, on the accession of King Alfonso, emboldened to forbid worship in it altogether. The English embassador took the matter up, Count Bismarck make the reopening of this church one of the conditions on which the new monarchy should be recognized, and Castelar signalized the occasion by one of his strongest speeches in the Cortez on religious liberty. So the little church at San Fernando made a test case for all Spain, now receives its hearers on every Sabbath, without let or hinderance.

—Evangelistic efforts on behalf of remote and scattered villages and hamlets in Bedfordshire, Buckinghamshire, and Oxfordshire, England, have been made during the present summer according to a plan that is worth notice. A light four-wheel chaise, carrying a good supply of wholesome literature, is brought into requisition. When a village is entered, every house is visited; tracts and books are distributed; religious conversation is carried on; and, when suitable opportunities occur, open-air services are held. Those who have been engaged in this good work have been much cheered by the reception which they have met, and by the results they have witnessed among a population often ignorant of the gospel. The enterprise has been supported by one or two private individuals.

—The Lake Nyanza expedition of the Church Missionary Society has reached Zanzibar and is lodged in the house which Dr. Livingstone occupied before starting on his last journey into the interior. It is not yet certain whether the rivers Wami and Kingani are navigable for any distance from the coast. In case they are, the steam-launch "Daisy" will carry the missionaries far into Eastern Africa. In case they are not, the party will be obliged to make the dangerous overland journey which Stanley has twice ventured upon and in the course of which Dr. Livingstone suffered all the hardships of the way. Zanzibar is at the present time much excited on account of the Seyid's emancipation measures. In losing the slave trade the merchants foresee the loss of their chief gains, and are making vigorous objection. The Seyid, however, supported by the English consul, Dr. Kirk, and a British man-of-war, will probably be able to weather the storm.

—MISSION STATISTICS.—According to a recent report in the Journal of Evangelical Missions there are in the world about 4,559 stations and 2,132 missionaries. England leads with over 1,000 workers. Germany and Switzerland with 500, America with 460, Holland with 41, France 22, and the Scandinavian North with 55. England spends the most money in the cause, America comes next, then Germany, Holland, France, etc. According to this report there are in Asia 419,170 converts, over 20,000 in China, and 25,014 in Turkey and Egypt. Africa counts a large number of converts on account of the great numbers now to be found in Madagascar, where there are 283,201, according to the statistics. South Africa numbers over 121,000, while there are about 65,000 in West Africa. In America the West Indian missions are given at about 308,200 converts, while 43,723 are put down for North America.

Our Young People.

"LET'S PLAY."

Oh, the blessed and wise little children,
What sensible things they say,
When they can't have the things they wish for
They take others and cry: "Let's play."

"Let's play" that the chairs are big coaches,
And the sofa a railroad car,
And that we're all taking journeys,
And travelling ever so far.

"Let's play" that this broken old china
Is a dinner-set rare and fine,
And our tin-cups filled with water
Are goblets of milk and wine.

"Let's play" every one of our dollies
Is alive and can go to walk,
And keep up long conversations
With us if we want to talk.

"Let's play" that we live in a palace,
And that we are the queens and kings;
"Let's play" we are birds in a free sky,
And can fly about on wings.

"Let's play" that we are school-keepers,
And grown people come to our school;
And then punish them all most soundly
If they break but a single rule.

Oh, the blessed and wise little children!
What sensible things they say!
And we might be happy as they are,
If we would be happy their way.

What odds 'twixt not having and having,
When we've lived out our day?
Let us borrow the children's watchword—
The magical watchword, "Let's play!"

The Lucky Loaf.

One evening a poor man and his son, a little boy, sat by the wayside near the gate of an old town in Germany. The father took out a loaf of bread which he had bought in the town, and broke it, and gave half to his boy. "Not so, father," said the boy; "I shall not eat until after you. You have been working hard all day, for small wages, to support me; and you must be very hungry; I shall wait till you are done." "You speak kindly, my son," replied the pleased father; "your love to me does me more good than my food; and those eyes of yours remind me of your dear mother, who has left us, and who told you to love me as she used to do; and, indeed, my boy, you have been a great strength and comfort to me; but now that I have eaten the first morsel to please you it is your turn to eat."

"Thank you, father; but break this piece in two, and take you a little more, for you see the loaf is not large, and you require much more than I do." "I shall divide the loaf for you, my boy; but eat it, I shall not. I have abundance; and let us thank God for his great goodness in giving us food, and in giving us what is better still—cheerful and contented hearts. He who gave us the living bread from heaven to nourish our immortal souls, how shall he not give us all other food that is necessary to support our mortal bodies?"

The father and son thanked God, and then began to cut the loaf in pieces, to begin their frugal meal. But as they cut one portion of the loaf there fell out several large pieces of gold of great value. The little boy gave a shout of joy, and was springing forward to grasp the unexpected treasure when he was pulled back by his father. "My son, my son!" he cried, "do not touch that money; it is not ours." "But who-e is it, father, if it is not ours?" "I know not as yet to whom it belongs; but probably it was put there by the baker through some mistake. We must inquire. Ran!" "But, father," interrupted the boy, "you are poor and needy, and you have bought the loaf, and the baker may tell a lie, and—"

"I will not listen to you, my boy. I bought the loaf, but I did not buy the gold in it; if the baker sold it to me in ignorance I shall not be so dishonest as to take advantage of him; remember him who told us to do to others as we would have others do to us. The baker may possibly cheat us. I am poor, indeed, but that is no sin. If we share the poverty of Jesus, God's own Son, oh! let us share also his goodness and his trust in God. We may never be rich, but we may always be honest. We may die of starvation, but God's will be done, should we die in doing it! Yes, my boy, trust God, and walk in his ways, and you shall never be put to shame. Now run to the baker and bring him here; and I shall watch the gold until he comes."

So the boy ran for the baker.

"Good workman," said the old man, "you have made some error, and almost lost your money;" and he then showed the baker the gold, and told him how it had been found.

"Is it mine?" asked the father; "if it is, take it away."

"My father, baker, is very poor, and—"

"Silence, my child; put me not to shame by thy complaints. I am glad we have saved this loan from losing his money."

The baker had been gazing alternately upon the honest father and the eager boy, and upon the gold which lay glittering upon the green turf. "Thou art, indeed, an honest fellow," said the baker; "and my neighbor, David, the flax dresser, told me the truth when he said that I met the honestest man in our town. Now I shall tell thee about the gold: A stranger came to my shop a few days ago and gave me that loaf, and told me to sell it cheaply, or give it away to the honestest poor man whom I knew in the city. I told David to send ther to me as a customer this morning; as thou wouldst not have the loaf for nothing, I sold it to thee as thou knowest, for the last penee in thy purse; and the loaf with all its treasure is thine, and God grant thee a blessing with it." The poor father bent his head to the ground, while the tears fell from his eyes. His boy ran and put his hands about his neck, and said: "I shall always, like you, my father, trust God and do what is right; for I am sure it will never put us to shame."—Little Lessons with Great Meanings.

Picking out the Plums.

"Little Jack Horner
Sat in a corner
And picked all the plums out of a pudding,
And cried: 'What a great boy am I!'"

It was little Jack Horner who did that, as you all know. But I want to tell you of a child who acted very much like him.

It was a little girl who was visiting another not long ago. She was standing before a well-filled bookcase handling the books, and, as I must say, pushing them all out of place, as if they were not of much consequence.

"I wonder," said she, "if these books are the same that we have in the Sunday-school library. I never can find a good book in the library now."

Dear me! One would have thought, being in another room as I was, where the speaker was out of view—that it was some sage, gray-headed person who had time to read a great deal; or else that the library spoken of must be a very small one, indeed.

But no; the fact was about the library, that it contained some two hundred and fifty books, which had been carefully culled over not long before, the torn and worthless ones taken out, and many new ones added.

And the speaker was a child of some nine or ten years perhaps, who could not have had many years' experience in reading. I feel quite certain that she had never read one-half the books in the library, small as she seemed to consider it.

What did she mean by "a good book?"

Ah, there is the secret! This little girl, like many other Sunday-school scholars whom I have seen, had doubtless picked out most of the attractive-looking stories, and books with plenty of pictures, and now she fancied that she had read all the books that were worth reading.

Isn't that just like little Jack Horner and other babies?

Have you not often seen a little child do just so with a piece of cake—pick out all the plums and eat them, and then waste and crumble the cake, sweet and light though it may be, and much better for the little child than the plums?

The child of whom I am telling you was like Jack Horner in another point:

"See what a great boy am I!"

For, from the tone of her voice, she evidently thought it was something very fine to have read through all that was good for anything in the Sunday-school library.

What do you think about it, young friends? Is it not rather babyish to pick out the "plum" books, and pass over those which, as your teachers and friends will assure you, are really good, instructive, and interesting, too, to any sensible child?

I think so. And I think it is rather ungrateful, too, when the friends of a Sunday school have taken pains to select a set of books that will benefit you to turn them over in that ungracious way.

Do our little Sunday scholars always remember to be grateful to their kind teachers and friends?

And one more question: What would you say to a baby who picked out all the plums in his cake, and then asked for more?—The Churchman.

Hanging a Bear.

But, as the tree-top became smaller, the bear found it impossible to climb higher, and, stopping just beneath the boy, vented her disappointment in growling. Bears can climb best when the tree-trunk is about twelve inches in diameter, and very small trees they cannot ascend at all.

Well, there they were—David trembling and Bruin roaring, and no telling where dames and the cubs in their mutual fright had gone. But David Grey was not the boy to let a bear pull him to pieces if it could be prevented. At first he yelled repeatedly at her: "Go away! Go and find your cubs." But she did not relish his advice, and only roared defiance.

Then he thought to take off his coat and drop it down to her, hoping she would be satisfied by tearing it up, and go away. But, as he began to take it off, a new thought was suggested by the coil of rope around him.

He took one end of it and tied it firmly about the tree, just above the branch his feet were upon. With the other end he made what is called a slip-noose, an operation familiar to all boys who know how to use ropes.

Then he tiffed the coil from around his body, and, arranging it as best he could, tried to drop the noose over Madame Bear's head.

Two or three times he failed, the rope striking the animal in the face, and making her more furious than ever.

But at length he succeeded.

Plump over her head and around her neck went the noose, and David gave it some careful twitches, until it began to choke her. Enraged at his impudence, she roared and shook her head and twisted her neck, but it would not come off. Then with one fore paw she tried to scratch it off; this was also a failure.

All this time David was pulling as hard as he could to keep the noose tight.

Finding one paw would not do, the bear went at it with both.

But this proved her destruction, for she instantly lost her balance and fell toward the earth.

The rope was, however, too short to reach the ground, and there she hung in mid air, like a murderer, and the boy was a "real hangman!"—Rev. I. L. Brman, in Wide Awake.

The religion of the gospel calls us both out of the world and into the world; out of it, as to its principles and maxims and temper; into it, as a field of labor and a sphere of usefulness where we are to be diligent in business, to relieve the distressed, to teach the ignorant, to reclaim the vicious, and to do good to all as Christ did.—Jay.

It would not be worth while to live if we were to die entirely. That which alleviates labor and sanctifies all is to have before us the vision of a better world through the darkness of this life. That world is to be more real than the phantom which we live in, and which we call life. It is the supreme certainty of my reason. It is the supreme consolation of my soul.

Itinerary.

The new Robert E. Lee is certainly a floating palace. Her cost was only $190,000, and her daily running expense averages about $800. The water cooler, made of nickel and plated with silver, is a wonder to us who have not been to the Centennial. It cost $1,600, and the stand $100 more. It is, of course, richly ornate with chasings, flutings, columns, and devices of various sorts, and surmounted by a winged statue bearing aloft a goblet, and seeming to proclaim the prophetical message: "Ho! every one that thirsteth." The capacity of this unique cooler is nearly a barrel, and the water pours into silver cups from the mouths of silver dragons. The spacious saloon is nearly three hundred feet long, high, and richly and elaborately embellished with gilding and carving, and hung with large and elegant chandeliers. The state-rooms are furnished with bedsteads and spring mattresses, bureaus, and the floors are handsomely carpeted. The furniture is of rosewood, and of the most elegant description.

On such a craft, and with our old friend, Capt. Campbell, in command, we journeyed to Grand Gulf, reaching the landing on Thursday morning. Thence, seven miles to Port Gibson, we travel by rail, in company with a son of the revered Dr. B. M. Drake, E. S. Drake, Esq., who resides at Port Gibson, and who was returning from the funeral of his brother, whose death has been recorded recently. We reached the church about midday, and found the Vicksburg District Conference in session, and progressing with the business; the presiding elder, Rev. F. M. Featherstun, in the chair, and doing everything just as well as a Bishop. The Conference actually took a recess to shake hands with the editor. We were very glad indeed to meet the brethren, and it was a special gratification to find the venerable patriarch and historian of Mississippi Methodism, Rev. J. G. Jones, here at home, and in the enjoyment of excellent health. We hope measures will be taken—effectual measures—by the approaching Conference for the publishing of that history. It is done—four stout volumes, a perfect treasury and storehouse of valuable and entertaining information—and awaiting the printer and binder.

We visited the Port-Gibson Collegiate Academy, now under the presidency of Rev. John A. B. Jones, assisted by a competent corps of teachers. Sister Jones is one of the most accomplished and capable women to be found anywhere, and under her oversight the boarding department could not well be improved. The buildings and grounds are exceedingly well located, pleasant, and attractive. This institution is forty years old, the property of the Mississippi Conference, and has at times been one of the most prosperous and influential schools in the South. Since the war it has suffered along with the country, and has felt seriously the general impoverishment and embarrassment. The present fall session has opened with encouraging prospects, and we trust that the former prosperity may soon return. It is a good school, and our people in Louisiana residing in the river country opposite will find it convenient for their daughters, and economical.

We had a free and full talk with the Conference on ADVOCATE affairs, and the brethren, both lay and clerical, promised to do their best. Here are their resolutions concerning the academy and the ADVOCATE:

Resolved, That we rejoice in the existence in our midst of the Port-Gibson Collegiate Academy; that we highly appreciate and approve the present management of this institution under President Jones and his estimable wife; that we heartily commend it to the patronage of all our people, and that we recommend the continuation of Rev. J. A. B. Jones as president of the same.

W. H. WATKINS.
W. L. C. HUNNICUTT.

Resolved, That it gives us pleasure to know that the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is sustaining its deservedly high reputation as a religious journal; that in its mechanical execution Bro. Harp is providing us with a paper equal to any in the church; and that as a medium of communication among our people, as a great helper in spreading scriptural holiness through these lands, the ADVOCATE holds a position of so much importance that we repeat our urgent recommendation that it shall be placed in all our families; that we welcome Dr. Parker, the editor of the ADVOCATE, to our District Conference, and recognize him as a man eminently fitted to the work to which the church has called him.

W. H. WATKINS.
W. L. C. HUNNICUTT.

Port Gibson, mauger the dust, is a pleasant town. It has felt the decadence of the last ten years, and many of its beautiful homes are out of repair, but there is much of beauty and sweetness left. On Saturday morning (the Conference not yet adjourned,) we left our temporary home—Mr. John Burnett's—for Natchez. Thanks to our kind friends, Mr. and Mrs. Burnett, and their children, for their generous hospitality. The ride to Fayette, twenty-two miles, was most delightful in an elegant open carriage, a span of spirited sorrels, and Bro. Hunnicutt and a lay delegate from Natchez, Bro. G. J. Bahin, for company. The country seemed to rest under the yellow, hazy sunshine of Indian summer, the forest was tinted with the touch of early frost, and the air was such as our Octobers alone can furnish. Then such a profusion of autumn flowers, of blue and gold and purple and russet! What a treat to be at large with open eyes, and the balm and exullaration of this world of brightness and beauty pouring in upon us! At Fayette we were welcomed to the hospitable home of Dr. Richardson, where an excellent dinner and pleasant social converse occupied our company until three o'clock, when we took a platform car on a brand new narrow-gauge railroad for Natchez, twenty-six miles distant. By sundown we reach Natchez, and are thoroughly and most comfortably at home with Bro. Bahin and his family.

On Sunday we had a word with the Sunday school to begin with, and then something more than a word with the congregations at morning and night services. Sunday-school and public worship are in the basement of the church, but the audience-room up stairs is now plastered and ready for pulpit and seats. These are likely to be in place in time for Conference. The Sunday school is a model for quietness and good behavior—the best behaved, most orderly and quiet Sunday school we have ever been in, and in other respects and every not excelled by any we know of. The church edifice is a marvel of faith and works—of brick substantially and handsomely built, spacious basement, with library room and pastor's office, up stairs plastered, ceiling tastefully molded and bordered with blue, two double-done reflectors in ceiling worth $100 a piece, sixteen high-arched windows of achromatic stained glass, an end gallery and room in the clear say 90 by 47 feet. During Dr. Watkins' pastorate the house was built, covered, and basement occupied. During Bro. Hunnicutt's pastorate, and chiefly during the last two years, the work of finishing has been going on. To date the church has cost $22,000, and there is no debt. To finish the building, including the plastering of the basement, stuccoing the outside, and the completion of the vestibule steps, etc., will cost about $5,000 more. The seats and pulpit are ordered, and the money in hand to pay for them. A most extraordinary work is this church for these times of straitness and trouble. The ladies have done much toward it, the pastor much, and we believe all the members have done their part.

When finished, this church will scarcely be excelled by any among the Methodists of Mississippi or Louisiana. The edifice has no tower or spire, but it has a fine porch, with massive pillars in front, and, when finished, the exterior will be impressive and pleasing.

Natchez is still a handsome city, and the abode of a refined and intelligent people, although much of its wealth has been swept away. Many of its once elegant mansions are going to decay, and some of its once splendid suburban villas are neglected or in ruins. But much is left, and there is hope that the waste places will after awhile be restored. The bluffs, with the incomparable view which they afford, are there still. It is worth a trip from New Orleans to Natchez just to stand upon these high places, with the river two hundred feet or more beneath, and a vast expanse opening across and up and down the grandest of water courses. One sunset here is worth a thousand in ordinary localities. The Pargoud, only inferior to the Lee, and a boat that leavee the passenger nothing to wish for in fare and accommodations, brings us home.

Among the Clouds.

Soft dawn mists closed round the pearly dome of the distant Capitol, as from over the blue Potomac we saw it first rising like a dream-temple above the world, grand and serene as a thought.

We seemed entering an Arabian Nights' city so silently and softly the great marble and granite piles rose into the misty air, domed and pinnacled, while the golden light transfigured tower and fountain into fairy-land, as one looked down the magnificent avenues fit for the triumphal march of emperors.

It seemed an unworthy and unseemly thought to revert to breakfast, but poor human nature would turn longingly toward hot rolls and coffee, as wayworn and weary after a night in that pandemonium—a sleeping-car—we made our way to a representative Washington hotel—representatively bad, as Washington hotels have the name of being.

It was not long before we were en route for the Capitol. Approached on the east front, one sees the grand, united thought of the architects, to whom the glory of this great Temple of Liberty is due, expressed in its completeness.

Fronting the whole, majestic as a Jupiter Tonans, sits Greenough's Washington, one hand uplifted toward heaven, the other holding a drawn sword; on each side of the pedestal is carved a sentence of that immortal eulogy: "First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of his countrymen." Nothing could be more striking or more appropriate than this figure, at once a reminder and a warning, standing sentinel over the perfect symbol of his own mighty thought.

Upon these east steps the Presidents of the United States are inaugurated. On each side magnificent pieces of sculpture, representing appropriate symbolic figures, stand out in colossal size and impressiveness. Within, the rotunda, spacious and vast, sweeps its splendid circuit, and rises into the distant dome, while far above we see climbing pigmies making their laborious way to the utmost hight (180 feet) from terra firma.

The multitude of marble and gilded and carved and frescoed apartments cannot be noted in our limits; but worthy of special mention is the old Hall of Representatives, now devoted to the arts, and adorned with many admirable pieces of statuary. Herein stands the recently-completed statue of Ethan Allen, colossal and instinct with soul, presented by his own State. In a corridor, rising calmly and alone, as did its original, is the serene and stately figure of Franklin, with an uplifted look of thought and earnestness, as of one who talked with things unseen, and taming the untamable by sheer power of mind.

Up fearful hights and toilsome steps, 300 of them and more, we ascend to mid-air—the region of the clouds, as it seemed. Once safely landed, we look down upon the lovely landscape below, the winding river, the city, spread softly and quietly around, all sounds hushed, all roughness smoothed and transfigured by our upper ether. So, we thought, are those who live thus near to heaven. Earth is no longer "full of dreary noises," its torn bosom no longer scarred and wounded, as those grounds just turned by the plowshare and ditchers, but all softened and harmonized by such proximity to the heavenly hights.

Beautiful city! Typical city of what this nation should be. Large and grand and generous, fit dwelling for great souls and noble statesmen, and wise law-givers and incorruptible rulers. Desecrated city! Her robes trailing in the dust, her honor tarnished, the by-word of the scorner. Alas! for Washington, in all its magnificence and all its degradation—the poisoned fountain from which flow the deadly streams which spread desolation through the land we love.

After a glimpse at the hitherto mythical White House, and other objects of interest on every hand, we sped on to that Mecca of many imaginings and of unnumbered multitudes, Philadelphia. It is needless to follow so well known a path as that which has led the vast army of correspondents over the Centennial grounds. Those at home know about as well as the much-enduring traveler what sights and wonders the Centennial furnishes.

Every unlucky tourist will remember with surpassing accuracy, and, first among his garnered souvenirs of the great Exhibition, his experience in that most thoroughly democratic institution, the street cars, where, smothered and crushed by the great populus, he made his toilsome way to and from the Centennial grounds, morning and night.

A disinterested non-participant might smile to see the ardent traveler (his name being legion) painfully "doing" the Centennial. With worn and weary visage, and oftimes a long-repressed yawn escaping, he goes through that marvelous and bewildering Main Building, pursues Agricultural Hall, and that wonder of the age, Machinery Hall, as well as the many others, vainly striving to crowd a ten years' work of sight-seeing and remembering into as many days. Most people fall by the way, and are either physically sick or mentally incapacitated for more exertion of the same kind after a few days of this style of accomplishing the Exhibition.

This wonderful Centennial is an epitome of the age, a worthy bloom of the great century plant, as well as a magnificent emblem of this indomitable Yankee nation. What eastern tale can recount greater wonders than are here displayed, called into being by the genii of invention and enterprise? Books have been and will be written descriptive of it all; therefore I may cease, only wondering if the coming age will take as mighty strides forward as this astonishing century has done. Who'll be there to see? NICIE.

Praying for the Country.

A prominent layman, whose piety and patriotism are well known, writes, suggesting that Friday, the third day of November next, be observed as a day of fasting and prayer, in view of the momentous issues involved in the election. We are willing for one to adopt the suggestion, and we have no doubt that thousands of our readers will join in special prayer to God that our country may have deliverance from wicked and unreasonable men, and that "we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty." The gravity of the political situation was never more alarming than now, when the liberties of the people are trampled under foot by the soldiery, and when the safeguards of the Constitution and the decrees of the Supreme Court are set at defiance by the national administration. It is always a Christian duty to pray for the country, but this is a time which may well call for special intercessions and supplications. Amid all the excitement and noisy demonstrations the Christian will wait on God and pour out his soul in prayer that the passions of men, the ignorance and prejudice, the ambition and greed, and all unrighteous sectional tyranny may be rebuked by the divine Providence. Yes, let us pray for the country, if not in concert as to time, yet daily and in our closets let us ask Heaven's blessing upon the land. And, while we pray, let every citizen do his duty as a citizen in casting his vote, and using his lawful influence to direct the suffrage of others.

Death of William C. Currie.

Rev. J. G. Jones has furnished us an obituary of William C. Currie, who died at his residence in Carroll parish, La., on the second of October. The obituary will appear next week. Bro. Currie was a member of the church at Pecan Grove in 1850. This was the first year of our experience as a traveling preacher, and Bro. Currie was one of the stewards, to whom we were indebted for many kindnesses. Nearly twenty years ago he presented the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE with a new engine. The cost, we believe, was about $500; and it has run our press from the time it was received until the present hour. As we write the sound of it can be heard, as the ADVOCATE is passing through the press. This is the most considerable, and, we believe, the only gift which has ever been bestowed upon the paper. Bro. Currie was a most exemplary Christian, giving generously to charitable and religious objects, and a liberal and considerate friend and supporter of the preachers. He died in great peace, in the sixty-seventh year of his age. His death is a great loss to the community and church, and most afflictive to his family. We share in the sorrow of the bereaved, and also in their consolation—the assurance that a good and useful man has gone to his reward.

Tribute to Dr. Myers.

The Christian Advocate of New York publishes the following from the Commissioners of the M. E. Church:

The Commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church, having heard with profound sorrow of the death of Rev. E. H. Myers, D. D., Chairman of the Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, by yellow fever, in Savannah, on Tuesday, September 26, deem it due to the memory of the honored dead to record this brief tribute of affection.

He was until recently personally a stranger to all the members of the Commission. We of course knew him by reputation. He had been in public life a whole generation, during which time, as a pastor, an educator, editor, and author, he had been uniformly successful. We knew, too, that he enjoyed the full confidence of his brethren, and had the indorsement of the authorities of his church by his position on this important Commission. But, after several days' intercourse with him and his colleagues in the work of the Joint Commission, discussing the important objects contemplated in our appointment, and which so intensely interested us, occupying most of the hours of every day, and often extending far into the night, it was impossible that we should remain strangers.

While this intimate association promoted friendship among all the members of the Commission, it is not invidious to say that our departed brother is remembered with especial affection and admiration. The solemn earnestness with which he entered upon his work; the frank, transparent manner in which he opened his heart to his brethren on the subjects which engaged our attention; his intense, burning desire for fraternal relations between the two chief branches of our great Methodist family; the deep religious feeling he constantly evinced; his tenderness, forbearance, and love, all moved and won our hearts. Fraternity was the almost constant theme of his conversation; it occupied his thoughts perpetually; it was with him a passion.

We think we cannot be mistaken, and that we do no injustice to any member of either Commission, when we declare that to Dr. Myers, more than to any other one of our number, is due the unanimity of our conclusions. We know that he regarded his appointment the greatest honor, and his share in our success the greatest achievement of his life.

After the adjournment of the Joint Commission he came, at our invitation, with several of his colleagues, to this city, designing to remain several weeks. But, after the privilege of his society for a single week, which those of us resident here remember with delight—the more because his own enjoyment seemed so great—he received intelligence that the yellow fever was ravaging Savannah, the city where he was a stationed pastor. He at once said: "I must go home to my flock." Nor could he be dissuaded from this course, though he knew full well the peril incurred. Once before the fearful scourge had visited the community in which he lived, and the memories of that frightful and distressing experience filled him with sad forebodings, which he could not dissipate. He, however, immediately prepared to return home, leaving the city on Friday evening, September 1.

In answer to an urgent invitation to come North again during the fall and winter, he responded: "God only knows what I am going to, whether life or death. If I live, I hope to see you again. If I die, we shall meet above. Good-bye."

He arrived in Savannah safely on Monday, September 4. A letter written by him on that day and another ten days later describe some of the harrowing scenes of sickness, poverty, wretchedness, and death which taxed his sympathy and strength to the utmost. But, in the spirit of the Master, he was constant and untiring in carrying the consolations of the gospel, and in administering material relief, to the diseased and dying.

Thus this good man bravely died at his post. We will cherish his memory and emulate his example, and pray for a full preparation to meet him in our Father's house above.

The University.

[From the Oxford Falcon.]

The papers of the State interested in the success of the University would greatly aid that institution by publishing the following article from the Canton Mail, which we are informed by Rev. Dr. Wheat was written by the Rev. W. E. M. Lintleld of Canton, after having gone through the buildings and informed himself generally of the character of the institution. Mr. Lintleld was for some time President of the University of Louisiana, and is a distinguished Methodist minister:

OXFORD UNIVERSITY.

Few Mississippi youths would be sent out of the State for collegiate instructions, if the people of Mississippi knew the character and condition of their own University.

The trustees have issued an address, which particularizes with sober truthfulness the great wealth in the way of educational aids possessed by this institution. The eminent positions occupied now by former members of the University faculty indicate both their high standing and capacity. These gentlemen used their large experience and mature judgment with ample means placed at their disposal to secure for the University the best and largest collection of models, instruments, specimens, and other modern aids to facilitate and perfect instruction possessed by any institution in the South. No such collection of Mississippi soils, minerals, geographical and typographical data are to be found outside of this college, the collection and preparation of which [illegible] own family. For a Mississippian the advantages offered him in the school surpass, in their general and local value, any others that can be offered him.

The rooms for college-life duties, recreations, and societies are so spacious and ample as to inspire the belief that they are capable of accommodating a large proportion of the educable young men of the State. The buildings are numerous, conveniently arranged, and of substantial structure.

The observatory, in particular, is a model of beauty and convenience, and superbly rich in its collections.

The present faculty is altogether satisfactory as experts in their profession, and, above all, as decided Christian gentlemen, sufficiently strong in numbers to command as well as to teach, and so well harmonized as to insure an entirely satisfactory administration. There are [illegible] theological faculties as strong in clerical and lay character and proficiency as the Oxford faculty. Whatever there is in Christian profession and ability to inspire confidence—this faculty certainly shares it with the best in our country.

When cost is a consideration in education to a Mississippian, Oxford claims the first consideration. The tuition and other fees are merely nominal, and the price of board can be regulated almost at will. A young man with slender means but strong ambition may take his chances at Oxford with better hope of success than at any institution we know of. And widows, with sons to educate, will find in the preparatory, as well as collegiate departments, and in the University conceesions of lessons, etc., far better opportunities than they ever hoped for. It may be said that the State now offers to her sons advantages for collegiate education inferior in no respect to those offered by any State or denominational institution. Depend upon it, it is reliable and wise counsel which insists upon educating Mississippi boys at Oxford.

Our Pastor at Vicksburg.

The Vicksburg Herald contains a discriminating and complimentary notice of Rev. Dr. Watkins and his ministry. Every word is richly deserved. We quote the concluding paragraph:

Such talents, character, and sermons would draw the fullest house in any city north of Mason and Dixon's line, and thousands would deem it the highest privilege to listen to such a spiritual guide. And yet hundreds of heads of families, with sons to rear and daughters to educate, take no more pains to place themselves and their children under the refining influence of such a ministry than if such a thing did not exist. Hundreds of young men, whose moral natures would be sustained, whose intellects would be expanded, and who under such leadership could not fail to make life a grand success, waste the Lord's Day in guilty trivialities and total indifference to such opportunities of manly improvement and Christian culture. One might naturally suppose that hundreds of men whose fields of toil and daily study are necessarily repetitions, tasteless and wearisome, would seek the ministry of such broad, original, clear, fresh thinkers, to diversify the range of reason, provoke suggestion, quicken the latent energies, and recuperate the languishing susceptibilities of our unquickened, impoverished, and needy natures. There are other attractive pulpits in the city, and diverse styles of utterance of which we may speak anon. But we pause. We congratulate the devout worshipers of the Methodist Episcopal Church on possessing a teacher so able to strengthen and encourage them, and the backslidden formalists on having a friend too tenderly in earnest to rock the cradle and lay a thin vail of chloroform nostrums over the vital but sleeping powers, hushing them to deeper slumber. We give joy to the young who have a wise, tender, obliging friend, full of sympathy, free from austerity, who remembers, alas! long ago, that he was once a boy himself. Such a man is a blessing in any community. Citizens cannot too highly prize the presence, the labors, the ministry of such a man.

The tried, the worried, the afflicted and bereaved, when the "hand of God maketh sore and bindeth up the wounded and his hands make whole," realize the blessedness of having a sympathizing friend who can soothe and bless and heal and cheer and console. May many useful years be added to his laborious and beneficent life.

HOW TO WRITE.—In the first place, be short. In the next place, be sure of a good and sufficient reason for writing at all—that it is for the good and edification of our readers. And always write on good paper—clean, white, clearly-ruled writing paper, with pen, and with the blackest of ink. Some of our good friends send long communications written with pencil, on very common printing paper. This is an unmerciful and cruel thing to the editor, who has to examine the copy, and to the compositor, who has to set it up. We still occasionally receive long obituaries of infants, sometimes as much as four or five pages. Please read our rules and advice standing at the head of the obituary department of the ADVOCATE. They are reasonable and necessary if we give insertion promptly. A word to the wise and the considerate.

Rev. J. T. Sawyer, pastor of Moreau-Street church, of this city informs us that his protracted meeting closed with good results, October 13, and wound up with an excellent love-feast.

New Southern Methodist Church in Baltimore.

Through the energetic efforts of Rev. E. N. S. Blogg, superintendent of the German Mission of the M. E. Church South, in the Baltimore and Virginia Conferences, says the Baltimore Episcopal Methodist of Oct. 7, a valuable addition has just been made to our church edifices in Baltimore.

The large, and comparatively new structure on the corner of George street and Clinton Avenue, known formerly as the St. Jacobus' German Lutheran Church, which was erected about five and a half years since at a cost of $12,000, has been purchased upon accommodating terms at the moderate price of $5,000.

The lot fronts 50 feet on George street running back on Clinton avenue 70 feet. The church is built of brick, with ornamented front, 36 feet wide, and faces Perkins' Square, which has lately been greatly improved and beautified.

The main audience room is 55 by 70 feet, and is reached by two flights of stairs from a spacious vestibule on the first floor. Pendant from the centre of the ceiling is a handsome chandelier; the pews are solid walnut and neatly finished; four large windows on each side afford ample light and ventilation; the pulpit is commodious, and with the chancel and aisles, neatly carpeted. On the first floor, to the right and left of the main entrance, are two good sized rooms for infant classes, or experience rooms. Beyond them, and separated by a passage 5 feet wide, is the school room 33 by 30 feet.

The carpet and furniture of the audience room have been purchased by the active efforts of Bro. Blogg and his efficient corps of lady workers, and through the liberality of the enterprise.

The location is in all respects a most admirable one, and we congratulate Bro. Blogg in securing so fine a building at so moderate a cost. It will give character and stability to our German work in this city, and open the way, we trust for great prosperity. The first payment has already been made, and we appeal to the friends of the church to give Bro. Blogg a helping hand in providing for the balance due.

The dedicating services will be held on next Sabbath week, at 3 o'clock P. M. Dr. Duncan is expected to officiate on the occasion. Let there be a general rallying of our people to encourage this new and hopeful enterprise.

Kentucky Conference.

Bishop Keener writing to the Nashville Christian Advocate, September 31, says:

The Conference is so crowded with men, that in the getting in of the first stones of the itinerant arch there almost needs be some one pressed. After much pains and true sympathy inadequate appointments will inevitably fall to some, for our system is but an approach to perfection.

The Conference was held in a most beautiful part of the State, and the attendance indicated the warm interest which our people felt in their pastors and their churches. The reports of general collections were meager; though a few circuits and stations reported "full," that is, had paid up all their assessments. The report of the ministry is very creditable—many works being supplied with parsonages, and the average of salaries was better than that of a conferences generally.

In one important direction the Conference took a new departure. The missionary anniversary was by means expressive of the general character of Kentucky Methodism: on the following Monday the Conference took up personal pledges to support a missionary from Kentucky to China to the amount of $1,000. Subsequently a resolution was passed appointing a day of fasting and prayer to God to raise up from among them a man fit for this important work. I doubt not the Lord will hear a prayer which goes from hearts giving such, practical proof of sincere desire to glorify His name and enlarge his kingdom.

The increase of membership was one hundred. The next Conference is to be held at Winchester. The action of our Commissioners was heartily approved, and is, so far as I have heard, all over our territory. This is a sufficient symptom of the strength and wide reconstruction of the Southern States, whatever interested politicians may say to the country.

TUSKEGEE FEMALE COLLEGE.—We are gratified to learn that this old and once prosperous institution has opened this fall with flattering prospects. The following constitute the faculty: John Massey, A. M., President; Miss Mary A. Barker, Principal; Mrs. E. F. Massey, Mrs. E. L. Loveless, Prof. C. J. Ruff, Miss E. R. Watkins, Mrs. F. Massey, matron; Mrs. V. C. Brown, housekeeper. President Massey, writing October 16, says:

"We are getting on finely in the college. We have a better opening than we have had for years. We have matriculated about seventy pupils, nearly all of whom are in the collegiate department. We have in the college boarding department about thirty pupils, besides the teachers."

The venerable David Ayers, in writing from Ocean Springs, Miss., Galveston, did us the honor to call at our office. He is looking much improved since we saw him in the winter, and seems to be gaining strength slowly. His friends will address him at Galveston till further notice.

DELEGATES FROM VICKSBURG DISTRICT.—The delegates to the Annual Conference, elected by the District Conference at Port Gibson, are: Rev. C. K. Marshall, D. D., T. L. Mellen, E. S. Drake, William J. Lum. Alternates—G. W. Humphrys, Thos. Reed, J. G. Gulce, T. R. Holloman.

According to the Columbia (S. C.) correspondent of the New York Herald, there are 40 000 stand of arms in the hands of the negro mob of that State.

Periodicals.

—Southern Review, October, 1876, has the following articles: 1. Christian Theology, 2. Mind and Matter, 3 Caroline Herschel, 4. The Theistic Conception of the World, 5. Robert Emmet, 6. Capital Punishment, 7. Louisa, Queen of Prussia, 8. The Heart of the Continent, 9. The Teachings of Our Lord in regard to a Future Life, 10. Notices of Books, 11. Miscellany. The first and longest article is "Christian Theology," written unmistakably by Dr. Bledsoe, and in his usual trenchant and powerful manner. The two great Moguls, Drs. Summers and Whedon, are somewhat severely handled, the Wesley of 1756 is clearly distinguished from the Wesley of 1788, and the errors and inconsistencies of the British Wesleyan theology are pointed out. The notions of necessary sin and necessary holiness are combated, and we have the promise of a subsequent and thorough treatment of original sin and original righteousness. We must say that we greatly relish Dr. Bledsoe's independence and conscientious devotion to the truth, and we wait with deep interest for the conclusion of this theological discussion.

"Mind and Matter," continued from the last number, is a very able and popular exhibition and statement of the argument of design in nature, and is forcibly directed against atheistic and materialistic errors.

"Caroline Herschel" will interest and inform all who can appreciate good writing upon a noble subject.

"The Theistic Conception of the World" is a short review of Dr. Cocker's work, in which the author is commended for much, but in which his support of the old scholastic view of a creatio continua is kindly but sharply opposed.

The sad and tragical story of Robert Emmet is recalled in the article bearing his name, his character is fairly drawn, and the circumstances of his early and untimely death, and the cause to which he fell a martyr are narrated with freshness and vigor.

"Capital Punishment" was written by Dr. Bledsoe and published in the Methodist Quarterly Review for July, 1846. Its republication at this time is opportune. The lapse of nearly a generation has added nothing to the arguments of those who oppose, while it has rather confirmed the views of those who favor the death penalty. For us the reasoning of Dr. Bledsoe is sufficiently conclusive.

"Louisa, Queen of Prussia," is a bright and beautiful delineation of the character of the beautiful, virtuous, and gifted queen. As we read it we think also of Caroline Herschel, equally great and admirable in her sphere, and contrast and compare these two noble lives.

Thus far we have read, "The Heart of the Continent," and "The Teachings of Our Lord in regard to a Future Life" have been so far sampled as to inspire the desire to peruse them carefully.

Among the Book Notices is a brief reference to Bishop McTyeire's decision in the Chouteau-Avenue case. Dr. Bledsoe says the decision will not hold water, and promises to discuss it thoroughly in the January number of the Review.

The editor makes one more appeal to delinquent subscribers. We know how to sympathize with publishers on this subject, for we have felt the same. He says most truly: "Golden opinions are, no doubt, better than greenbacks; but they do not 'make the pot boil.'"

—Our Sunday-School periodicals for November are on our table. A most excellent trio: Magazine, Visitor, Little People. We hope all our schools and families are supplied with them. Nothing better in their line, that we know of—and they are our own publications of the M. E. Church South.

—Lippincott's Magazine for November has an unusual array of beautiful illustrations, and its table of contents is select and attractive.

—Scribner's Monthly for November has the following: The Charter-Oak City, Illustrated; The Beginning of Life, Illustrated; A Scottish Loaf Factory; Pictures from Rome, Illustrated; College Expenses, and other articles.

—St. Nicholas for November is as charmingly illustrated as ever, and brimful of pleasant and instructive reading for the young people.

One of the illusions is that the present hour is not a critical, decisive hour. Write it on your heart that every day is the best day in the year. No man has learned anything rightly until he knows that every day is doomsday.—Emerson.

It is not so much our faith apprehending, as Christ himself, and God's mercy apprehended in Christ, that is the cause why God performeth the promise of his covenant unto us.—Rollock.

MARRIED.

WE CALL the attention of our readers to the fact that a nice lunch can be procured at 56 Gravier street, at a very moderate price. This place is very convenient for business men, who have to remain down town all day."

UPPER-CITY DRY-GOODS HOUSE. Mr. E. H. Adams, at 506 Magazine street, has all the latest and best articles in the Dry-Goods line. Give him a call and examine his stock.

WE DESIRE to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of John C. Green, dealer in Dry Goods at 275 Eighth Avenue, New York. Mr. Green will send samples of goods to parties requesting it, and will fill orders by express, C. O. D., to any part of the country. Any one needing articles of dry goods, shawls, etc., would do well to write to him at the above address and get his prices and samples before purchasing elsewhere.

WE understand that on October 24 Mrs. F. R. Hardon opened her new stock of Fall Goods at 27 and 29 Chartres street. All the latest styles of French bonnets and hats can be found at this establishment. Our lady readers will do well to note this fact.

CHINA AND GLASSWARE.—Mr. E. Offner has reopened at his old stand a fine stock of the above articles, to which he invites the attention of purchasers.

MESSRS. LEVY BROS. pay particular attention to country orders, and send samples of their goods when requested.

ONE of the most attractive of the Canal-street stores is M. L. Navra's China and glassware establishment.

CLOTHING & FURNISHING GOODS
FOR MEN AND BOYS.

We invite visitors from the country to look at our stock. We Keep good Goods, sell at one price, and mark it in plain figures. Clergymen's trade solicited, and a liberal deduction made to them.

THE GRAND HOTEL, which is the finest and most elegant marble building on Broadway, was erected by E. S. Higgins, Esq., one of the wealthiest and most successful of the New York merchant princes. The cost of the building was over half a million, and its elaborate furnishing near two hundred thousand dollars. Under the management of Mr. Henry Millard Smith, the proprietor, the Grand has attained an immense popularity, and is now at the height of favor and success. The best families and the wealthier and refined classes of the travelling public choose the Grand as the favorite hotel of the city.

A CORRESPONDENT says: "For real excellence of accommodations, convenience to places of interest, and in fact to all parts of the city, I commend the old and well-known American House of Boston. This hotel is one of the largest and perhaps best known of New England hotels, and its extensive patronage from business men, tourists, families, and parties making excursions through Boston allows that others besides myself appreciate its advantages."

"I SUFFERED for a long time with colitis, cake or swelled liver, indigestion, and general bad health, and after trying many other remedies nothing did me so much good, as Simmons' Liver Regulator. It cured me and now I have not to take any medicine, for I am well; but I shall always keep it in the house to cure any one else of the family who have anything the matter. It is good for nearly everything. M. J. WILTA, Clinton, Ga."

WHAT NEXT? Consumptive Cured. When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of Indian Hemp, which cured his only child of consumption. He now gives the recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRAGGS & Co., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

MEDICAL.

A STRING OF PEARLS!

Extract of a letter from Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, dated March 8, 1874:

I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active remedies.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens has greatly improved in health of late.—The State Line Press, West Point, Ga.

Testimony of the Chief Justice of Georgia.

I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it.—Hiram Warner, Chief Justice of Georgia.

Opinion of the Clergy.

Simmons' Liver Regulator is certainly a specific for that class of complaints which it claims to cure. If any of our fellow-beings are suffering from hepatic disorders, and have doubts in relation to the efficacy of this popular preparation, we can only offer them the simple and candid argument of Philip to Nathaniel: "Come and see." Try the proposed remedy, and then you can judge for yourselves.—Rev. David Wills Pastor of Presbyterian Church, Macon, Ga.

Always Keep It On Hand.

I have used Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator myself, and in my family for years and pronounce it one of the most satisfactory medicines that can be used. Nothing would induce me to be without it, and I recommend all my friends, if they want to secure a cure, to always keep it on hand.—R. L. Mott, Columbus, Ga. (Congressman.)

CAUTION!

Buy no Powders or Prepared Simmons' Liver Regulator unless in our engraved wrapper, with trade mark, stamp and signature unbroken. None other is genuine.

FOLEY'S

Celebrated Gold Pens

AND PENCILS.

THE FINEST AND BEST.

CIRCULAR.—To those engaged in mercantile pursuits, any invention that will facilitate their labor is highly worthy of notice, as well as of extensive patronage. One of the most important inventions of the present age is that of a pen that possesses the necessary qualities of firmness in mark and durability in use. Pre-eminently such are those of JOHN FOLEY, manufacturer of Fine GOLD PENS AND PENCILS, No. 2 Astor House. Their superior value is tested by the long time he has been engaged in our city in their manufacture. We, the subscribers, who know the value of FOLEY'S PENS from constant use of them for a number of years, cheerfully recommend them to those who wish for the best and most perfect Gold Pen ever made.

The Peach Crop.

THE GROWERS DRYING THE FRUIT.

The peach growers in the counties of Delaware and Maryland, in view of the low price brought by the fruit shipped to this and other markets, are in many instances resorting to drying with the hope of realizing a better profit. A number of patent peach-drying establishments have been erected, and thousands of baskets are disposed of daily in this way. In the vicinity of Dover some five or six dryers have been erected, and between four and five hundred persons are employed in preparing and drying the fruit. The drying is done in wooden tunnels, generally about five by five feet square, and twenty or thirty feet high. At the top and bottom of the tunnel are two wheels, on opposite sides, joined by an axle, resembling an ordinary car wheel, only much lighter. The wheels are grooved, and are operated by an endless chain, to which are attached narrow iron shelves, passing over the wheels on both sides of the tunnel. The shelves, on which are placed the trays containing the fruit to be dried are hung in the middle, on a pivot on the chain, in such a way that they extend on each side of the chain, and constantly remain upright. They are raised and lowered by a crank, and as they reach the top they swing over the axle, and down on the other side, sustaining their perpendicular all the time. The fruit is pared, and cut in half by women and girls, and laid upon a tray made of iron wire, and as soon as one tray is filled it is carried away and put into a dryer, through an aperture in the side, and then raised to make room for more.

The dryers are of different sizes, some of them containing enough trays to present eleven thousand feet of surface, and dry fifty or a hundred baskets per day. The establishments generally have two or more dryers. The heat which is used is generated from an ordinary house furnace beneath the dryer, and is composed of hot air, mixed with cold air, which passes up through the peaches, which are only laid one deep, and out the top of the tunnel. The temperature is ordinarily about two hundred and sixty degrees.

The drying process occupies from three to six hours, and when the fruit is turned out it is dried in a much more thorough manner than by sun drying. Peaches thus dried will bring about thirty-five cents per pound. One peculiarity of the artificial drying process is that it improves the quality of the fruit, and the ordinary qualities after artificial drying are often equal to much better qualities dried by the old-fashioned method.—Georgian.

Gathering Honey and Pollen.

The honey is taken from the flowers by the bees, and on their way home it is passing through a churning process, and churned. The body of the bee is put together in three sections or bands, and underneath the two front bands, on each side, there is an outlet or small hole, where the butter oozes out after being churned. This butter is pure white wax. It is received by other bees, and placed in the comb or cell, and by the mouth of the bee it is pressed out in its proper thickness, and the balance remaining, which, to carry out our simile, we may call buttermilk, is thrown up by the bees into the cells, and the longer it remains there the sweeter it gets, as it extracts the sweetness or the virtue from the comb bringing back the body of the sweets which is contained in its first gathering from the flowers. One pound in the comb three years old has as much medical virtue as three pounds one year old.

Besides the honey there is the pollen, which is of more benefit to the bees than the honey. After it is deposited in the comb it is called bee bread, as it is their principal living in the winter, and their young feed on it altogether, until they are ready to work.

The pollen is gathered in this wise: The back of the bee is covered with a fine wool or hair, and on entering the flowers the pollen sticks to it, and when necessary to release it, it is combed out. The bee has six legs, three on each side, and the middle one on either side has a comb in the under side, from the fore to the first joint. As this can reach only half way across the back, it is combed from both sides, and the pollen is taken from the comb by the two fore feet. It is then flattened by the two fore feet, and caught between the toes, and passed by to the thighs of the hind legs, each one receiving the same weight as nearly as possible. The pollen is taken from the end of the petals of such flowers as the bees cannot enter while on the wing; the front feet being used for this purpose. The pollen is removed by putting the leg in the cell, when it is pushed off with the forked toe, and, stepping to one side, the other is cleaned in the same manner.—American Bee Journal.

AUSTRALIAN APPLES.—The Germantown Telegraph, in noticing the contributions of Australian apples at the Centennial, says they are distinguished for the remarkable want of color. While the fine collection from Michigan, as many visitors observed, was remarkable for the brilliant coloring, not one of the Australian fruits, including one hundred sorts, had even a blush equal to that often seen on a Rhode-Island Greening. Northern Spy was only bronzed. The prevailing tint in these specimens was a deep orange. It has often happened in the United States that apples grown in the higher latitudes have been more highly colored than those a few degrees further south. These fruits, were two months on the way, were packed in cotton, and came in excellent condition.

SALT FOR CABBAGE.—A New Jersey gardener considers salt necessary to the development of cabbage, especially in places far from the coast. He finds them more crisp, of better flavor, and to keep better when salt is used, than without. He uses it as follows: A few days after setting out the plants, and when they are damp, either after a rain, or when the dew is on, I take a small dish of fine salt, and, walking among the rows, sprinkle a little pinch of salt on the center of each plant. When the leaves begin to grow I repeat the salting, and when the center of the leaves begin to form the head I apply salt again, scattering it over the leaves. After this I look them over occasionally, and if I find plants that do not head well or appear diseased, I sprinkle the salt over freely. This will save all such plants. A quart of salt is sufficient for five hundred plants in a season, although more can be used with safely.

LET YOUR FOWLS ROOST OUT.—Those who are so situated that they can, will find it most beneficial to their fowls to shut them out of the poultry house, and make them roost in the trees. They are hardier, healthier, and more growthy for it, and far less liable to be infected with lice. Young stock, especially, as soon as left by the hen, should be encouraged to roost in the trees. They may be allowed to remain out until ice begins to form in the cool weather of October. It is very rare that fowls thus raised are troubled with roup or snuffles, or get their comb and wattles frozen.—Iowa Live Stock Gazette.

COCOANUT PIE.—Cut off the brown part of the nut, grate the white part, mix it with milk, and set it on the fire to boil slowly, for five minutes. To one pound of grated nut, allow one quart of milk, eight eggs, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, a glass of wine, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, and one-half a nutmeg. The eggs and sugar are first beaten to a froth, and the wine stirred in; put this into the milk and cocoanut, which should first get cold. Bake as soon as put into the pans. These receipts have been used in our family for a long time. M. H. K.'s fruit and delicate cake was delicious.

TOMATO CATSUP.—Half a bushel ripe tomatoes, not peeled, one quart vinegar, one pound black pepper, twelve pods red pepper, quarter pound allspice, one pound cloves, three boxes good mustard, a little garlic, if you have it, six onions, two pounds brown sugar, one handful peach leaves. Boil until the right consistency, being careful not to let it burn; then strain through a wire sieve when cool enough. The ingredients are all put in together and thoroughly cooked. When done it will be pretty thick.

RICE CROQUETTES.—One pint of rice boiled in a little water; add some new milk and boil until soft; let it cool; add three beaten eggs, with sugar and lemon extract to your taste. Make them into oval balls; dip in beaten egg, and roll in fine bread or cracker crumbs, and fry in butter. When done, sprinkle sugar over them. Excellent.

STRAWBERRIES.—Clean the beds in October, loosen the soil, and top-dress liberally with rotted manure; see that the alleys, between the rows or narrow beds, carry off the water, and not hold it in pools, to the detriment of the plants, and be sure to set out a new bed at once, unless you are sure you have enough already for a full supply next summer of this delicious fruit.

HOMINY MUFFINS.—Take two cups of fine hominy, boiled and cold; beat it smooth; stir in three cups of sour milk, half a cup of melted butter, two teaspoonfuls of salt, and two tablespoonfuls of white sugar; then add three eggs well beaten, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water, and one large cup of flour; bake quickly.

LEMON CUSTARD PIE.—Take the juice and grated rind of one lemon, one cupful of white sugar, the yelks of four eggs, three tablespoonfuls of flour, and milk to fill the plate. Bake with an under-crust till nearly done; take from the oven and pour over the top the beaten whites of the eggs, with four tablespoonfuls of sugar; then set it back in the oven to brown.

The parsnip has many valuable qualities which commend it to both farmer and gardener. Hogs and bullocks are fattened upon it in a very short space of time, and the flesh is considered of superior flavor, while in cows it produces an extraordinary yield of milk, having a rich color and affording butter of excellent quality. Schenck's Gardener's Text Book.

TO BOIL RICE.—Take a cupful of rice, well washed, and put it into about three quarts of salted water, when the water is boiling furiously. Let it cook ten minutes, boiling hard all the time, then turn into a colander, drain, and serve. It will be soft, and every grain distinct. This is enough for five persons.

CRISP BREAKFAST MUFFINS.—One quart of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter (melted,) one egg, a little salt, flour to make a thinnish batter, two teaspoonfuls of Cleveland's Saleratus, stirred into the flour dry. Fill well-greased gem pans about two-thirds full; and bake in a hot oven.

TO COOK SALSIFY.—Boil the salsify soft, mash it up, and mix about one third salsify with two-thirds good flour batter, such as would make good fritters or pancakes, and fry it in little dabs about the size of an oyster, enveloped in the same manner.

GERMAN TOAST.—To one egg, beaten well, add one cup of sweet milk or cream; season with a little salt and pepper. Cut in slices and fry in butter on a griddle. This is a nice dish for breakfast.

A wag, noted for his brevity, writes to a friend to be careful in the selection of his diet. He says "Don't eat Q-cumbers; they'll W-up."

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE JELESO WATER,

NO. 20 CORTLANDT ST., NEW YORK.

WARREN & CO., PROPRIETORS.

URAL MOUNTAIN

is a concentration of all the curative qualities of the most celebrated Mineral Springs in the world. Each bottle contains eighty doses and is equal to over one hundred bottles of the Natural Spring Water.

As a tonic it is unsurpassed, having had most remarkable success in curing some of the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Nervousness, and General Debility. It is simple, harmless, and pleasant to take. If used as a gargle in its pure state, on the first appearance of diphtheria and all other throat diseases it works like magic. It arrests the progress of and cures such complaints in less than twenty-four hours. It will greatly alleviate or entirely cure the worst cases of Rheumatism, Eczema and all other diseases of the skin. Prickly Heat, Poisoning by Ivy, Sumac, or Oak are quickly cured by the use of Jeleso Water. We will forward three bottles of the medicine to any part of the United States, free of expressage, on receipt of $1 per bottle. Send for Circular, containing testimonials and directions.

Appended are a few of the many certificates sent us;

As a family medicine and tonic it is simply invaluable. In my own case it has cured Dyspepsia of long standing.

JOHN F. MINES,
Managing Editor N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

Permit me to add my testimony to the efficiency of your "Jeleso" in cases of Dyspepsia of long standing. I have used two bottles of it, and I am now thoroughly cured. I shall most cheerfully recommend its use to all my friends; and I consider it an indispensable medicine in every family.

I am, most truly yours,
J. D. BARTON,
Supt. Flushing, North Shore, and Central R. R., of Long Island.

Notice to Dealers and Merchants Buying and Selling Iron Cotton Ties.

Whereas, sundry unscrupulous persons are offering for sale in this city and other parts of the country, cotton ties having Arrow buckles on, not licensed for sale by us, and some having so-called second-hand Arrow buckles, we caution the public, for their protection, not to purchase any Arrow or Open-Slot Ties whatever from any but our authorized agents, or sold through them. Either new or pieced bands, using only Arrow and Open-Slot buckles in combination therewith, infringed by us, violate our patent rights.

As an additional protection to the public and ourselves, for several years we have stamped our buckles: "Licensed for one use only."

DUCONGE'S PECTORAL BALSAMIC SIRUP.

NEARLY half a century has elapsed since the discovery of this wonderful compound. Its well established virtue and its high reputation in diseases of the Chest, Lungs, Breast and Bowels are well known, and has been tested for so many years by such extensive patronage, that it would be superfluous, at this late day, to dwell at any length on its efficacy in Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Inflammation of the Throat, Stomach or Bowels, Spitting of Blood and Whooping Cough.

It has been found highly beneficial in all inflammatory disorders, such as Rheumatism, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus and Infantum, Summer Complaint, and especially in those cases of Cholerine which, for want of proper care, so often degenerate into confirmed Consumption.

In all affections of the Lungs, verging on Consumption, it has been found most efficacious in curing that most awful scourge whenever taken in time.

Besides its acknowledged certainty of cure, this extraordinary medicine has, over most compounds of the same nature, the decided advantage of owing to its agreeable flavor, it can be administered without the least difficulty to children, and requires no particular diet. It is also the cheapest, as only because the bottles contain more sirup than any other, but owing to its peculiar composition this sirup will keep for years without fermenting, and it can be used in families whenever required, by simply keeping the bottle well corked.

Directions for Taking the Sirup.—Grown persons may take a tea spoonful to a tablespoonful in the course of the day, either pure or diluted in a little water, at regular quantity at intervals of three or four hours.

Persons when troubled during the night may take two tablespoonfuls of the Sirup on going to bed, which will stop the cough and procure a good night's rest.

Children from three to five years old may take from one to two teaspoonfuls during the day, in proportionate quantities, at intervals of three to four hours. For Sale by

THE ONLY TRUE AND PERFECT HAIR-COLORER!

THE MYSTERY, Or Tucker's Hair Tint!

HARMLESS! BEAUTIFUL! PERMANENT!

This preparation has received the indorsement of the scientific world, and wherever introduced has superseded all other preparations of the kind, rendering any preparation of the hair unnecessary.

It is free from all Deleterious Ingredients, containing no Lead, Sulphur or other compounds which are injurious to the Hair or Poisonous by Absorption.

This tint saves both time and labor, as a few drops applied with a comb, once a month or so, to the hair or Whiskers, answers the purpose; the color being so perfectly assumed as to defy detection. Its great recommendation is in its application of tint, producing any desired shade, from brown to the deepest black and entirely free of that dry and burned appearance produced by other Hair Dyes. The Mystery can be used on a single hair or spots that have changed color, and restored to their original shade without applying all over the head, as is necessary when using other Hair Dyes.

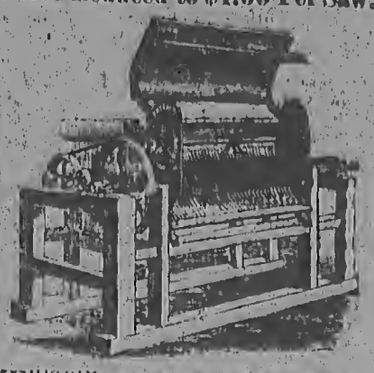
DANIEL PRATT'S IMPROVED "Revolving Head" Cotton Gin.

PATENTED JULY 18, 1871.

Price Reduced to $4.50 Per Saw.



THIS GIN has been in use for the past three seasons, and several recent improvements have been added. It obviates all friction at the ends of the cotton box, prevents the roll from breaking, and gives a Larger Yield of Lint from the Same Amount of Seed than any other Gin in use. The Revolving Head lightens the draft and causes the Gin to run faster with less driving power, thus doing a great deal more work within the same time, while economizing steam or animal power than any other Gin. The seed being ginned very close, the length of the staple is increased, producing cotton on this account of a greater market value. This improved value, given by length of staple, with extra production of lint, added to increased amount of work done, more than covers the cost of the Gin in every 100 bales ginned. Testimonials sent by mail on application.

New Orleans Markets.

ADVOCATE OFFICE, }
New Orleans, Tuesday, Oct. 24, 1876. }

MONETARY.

Sales of produce are not yielding the desired relief so long hoped for by wholesale as well as retail merchants. The cause is found in the fact that cotton factors are sending large amounts of currency to the interior for investment, and so long as the balance of trade is against us we may expect a close money market. However, good names are placed easily at 8@10 ₰ cent., second class, 15@18 ₰ cent., mortgage paper quiet, quotations nominal. The daily movement in stocks very light, while holders are firm. Some activity appears in New State consols, which are now held at 60½. Premium bonds have advanced to 33¼ cents, Gold, 110@110½. New York sight exchange, ¼ ₰ cent. discount. Sterling exchange currency, 524½@525½. Gold, 4.80@4.82.

GENERAL MARKET.

Provision dealers all complain of dullness. Orders are small for meats of all descriptions. Stock offering not large.

Breadstuffs are quiet. Market very firm. Not much speculative feeling manifested by purchasers, although sellers seem determined to force the market upward, on account of light stocks and small shipments from the West on the way.

Grocers are doing a fair business, but sales fall short of what has been anticipated, owing to the low price of country products, which affects all classes of trade.

Jobbers in general merchandise are doing probably better than the most of the other merchants, but the demand is for staple goods.

COTTON.

The movement during the week has been steady, and factors meeting the demand with well-arranged offerings, so that returning buyers are filling orders quite freely. The Protestant Episcopal Church in Mexico.

Recently at the Diocesan Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Western New York, Rev. Dr. Riley, Bishop elect of that denomination in Mexico, gave some interesting details of the progress of religious work among the Mexicans. He said that fourteen years ago a large number of Spanish Bibles were sent from England to Mexico. A former Roman-Catholic priest, a man of great piety, circulated them among the people, and preached the gospel. The President of the republic expressed deep sympathy with the work, but, nevertheless, cruel persecutions arose. In 1869 the speaker went to Mexico, and was welcomed not only by the faithful Christians, but by the government, which placed at his disposal a fine stone church building. This aroused a bitter feeling, and he was threatened with assassination. He published a pamphlet which was widely circulated, and a copy of it fell into the hands of a celebrated Domluican friar, who had been for six years a preacher in the Roman-Catholic Cathedral, and was regarded as Rome's most eloquent champion. This man read the speaker's pamphlet, and it led him, as never before, to the foot of the cross. On the day when the church before mentioned was opened this former Domluican friar was by the speaker's side in the chancel and preached a sermon with good power. Persecutions were soon again set on foot, and efforts made to impoverish all who were connected with the Protestant movement. But the little church in Mexico had advanced, notwithstanding all the drawbacks, and when Bishop Lee visited the country the speaker had the pleasure of presenting seven persons to him for ordination. The value of the Episcopal Church property in Mexico is now estimated at $1 000,000. In concluding, Dr. Riley asked for the church in the neighboring republic the earnest sympathy, prayers, and generosity of his hearers.—New York Christian Advocate.

At Pachuca, Mexico, says the Methodist, Sunday, September 3, seventy-three were received on probation into our church, and after the public services were closed the people would not retire, so hungry were they for the Word; so that the preacher, the Rev. J. W. Butler, had to continue exhorting, singing, and praying for another half hour, and might, if his strength had allowed, have continued for an hour and a half.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

CHEYENNE, Oct. 24.—Gen. Crook being satisfied that Red Cloud and bands of Sioux were about to depart with the view of joining hostiles in the North, they having refused to comply with orders and come into the agency to receive rations—stubbornly remaining in camp on Spadron Creek, from whence it is positively known they were in communication with Northern Indians, and receiving into their camp such as came in—he, without awaiting the arrival of Gen. Merritt's troops, determined upon disarming them, and at daylight on the morning of the 23d inst., Gen. McKenzie, with eight companies of the fourth cavalry, one battalion of which was commanded by Major Lemon and another by Capt. Mauk, successfully surrounded these two bands, consisting of three hundred lodges, and captured bucks, squaws, and ponies without firing a shot, and marched them into the agency. After having been disarmed and dismounted, Spotted Tail, who has evidenced unswerving loyalty to the whites, was made head chief and Red Cloud deposed. Spotted Tail and Little Wound have promised to furnish Gen. Crook with all the warriors he may need to co-operate with him in the coming campaign, which will be inaugurated at once.

Gen. Crook feels that a great object has been attained in this last movement, and that we shall now know our enemies from our friends.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—After the 10th exhibitors who wish can withdraw stock, but will be allowed time to dispose of articles. Some time will be occupied in closing out establishments, during which visitors will be admitted.

Gov. Hayes arrived at the Centennial depot, opposite the grounds, at 1.15 o'clock this afternoon.

He was accompanied by Mrs. Hayes, Webb C. Hayes, Esq., Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Noyes, of Cincinnati, and several members of the gubernatorial staff. The Governor has a reception to-morrow at the Ohio State building.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 25.—The Secretary of State to-day authorizes the following as the result of the recent election: The highest vote cast was for Treasurer of the State—Democratic 212,019 Republican 208,518, Independent 16,082; total 431,619. The average plurality for Democratic State ticket is 581[illegible]; that for Williams over Harrison, for Governor, being 5133.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The President has issued a proclamation appointing November 30 as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—Gov. Hayes had an enthusiastic reception. He made a short speech congratulatory of the success of the exhibition and laudatory of Ohio.

Admissions to day, 100,000.

Merchants' day called some 2000 business men to the city. The proceedings were characterized by brief speeches. Gov. Hayes, of Ohio, and Gov. Hartranft addressed the merchants.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 27.—News has just been received here of the murder of two aged widows, named Goodlack and Stoddard, residing alone on Lawrence county. An ax was the instrument used in the murder.

Sixty Northern merchants, resident and doing business here, held a meeting to-night and adopted an address to the people of the United States, declaring Gov. Chamberlain's proclamation unwarranted by the condition of the State, and fully indorsing the recent statement issued by the clergy and bankers of Charleston.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 28.—A special to the Globe Democrat, from Little Rock, says: Three Methodist ministers, riding circuit in Pope county, were shot by Hughes and Hale, in ambush. They are likely assassins and supposed the preachers were revenue officers coming to arrest them. One of the ministers died in two hours, the others are dangerously, if not fatally wounded. There is a large number of illicit distillers in that section, seven of whom were convicted this week.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 30.—Total interments to-day five, of which one was from yellow fever.

FOREIGN.

CITY OF MEXICO, VIA HAVANA, Oct. 24.—No decision has yet been reached in Congress on the principal questions before that body, but a vote on motion to postpone the consideration of the bill giving the President ample facilities until after the new election, has been taken, which shows Senor Lerdo's strength. The motion was defeated by 120 to 31.

The military situation remains unchanged. Revolutionary bands are roaming about and robbing the people. The situation of suspense is very favorable to the Government, which is gaining strength, morally and materially. The revolutionists are stronger in Oaxaca, but are hemmed in, and dare not come out of the State.

BELGRADE, Oct. 26.—General Novikoff has asked for reinforcements for the Servian army of the Ibar, and Col. Becker has been ordered there with fresh troops.

An official bulletin states that the Turks, Tuesday, made a desperate attempt to break Gen. Novoseloff's lines, but were repulsed with great slaughter.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Alert and Discovery left Port Foulke July 29, 1875, and entered the ice off Cape Gable. After a severe and continuous struggle they reached the north side of Lady Franklin Bay, where the Discovery was left in winter quarters. The Alert pushed on and reached the limit of navigation on the shore of the Polar Sea. The ice varied in thickness, being in some places 150 feet deep. President Land does not exist. The Alert wintered in latitude 82° 27'. At this point the sun was invisible one hundred and forty-two days, and the temperature the lowest ever experienced. A detachment with sledges was dispatched northward. It was absent seventy days, and reached latitude 83° 20'. Another party rounded Cape Columbia, the northmost point of America, and traced 220 miles westward from Greenland, and also explored far to eastward. These sledge parties met with no game and suffered from scurvy.

Hans Peterson died from frost-bite. John Porter, of the Alert, and James Hans and Charles Paul, of the Discovery, died on the sledging expeditions. No Esquimaux were seen, nor were any icebergs met with beyond Cape Simon. The expedition encountered great difficulties in returning. The Alert's rudder bolt was damaged. The vessel left Smiths' Sound Sept 9.

They signaled the Pandora October 15; all well. The Alert parted from the discovery in a gale, October 19. The Alert will shift her rudder at Valentia and proceed to Queenstown to coal. The Admiralty at Queenstown telegraphs that the Discovery is expected to arrive hourly.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Standard's Ragusa dispatch says: The complete failure of Dervish Pasha's recent attack on the southern frontier of Montenegro ends a year's campaign, as the winter has now set in.

Mukhtar Pacha will shortly withdraw to Trebinge. Dervish Pasha's army is entirely demoralized.

The Catholic Albanians who joined the Turkish standard have gone home.

A Reuter dispatch from Paris says the Porte has accepted Ignatieff's six weeks armistice.

ROME, Oct. 27.—The Russian ironclad fleet will winter in Indian waters, in order to be ready to proceed east in case they are needed.

BELGRADE, Oct. 30.—A battle was fought yesterday, in which the Turks drove the Servians from Djunis, after a crushing defeat.

Tchernayeff's army is cut in two and completely demoralized. Hervatovich's command has retired on Kruchematz. A great panic prevails at Belgrade.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 30.—The difference between Turkey and Russia is: Turkey wishes prolongation of the armistice termin, if peace is not concluded; Russia only considers the possibility of prolongation. It is stated, however, that the Sultan has accepted the armistice without conditions.

Gen. Ignatieff, the Russian ambassador, had an interview with the Sultan on Saturday, and with the Grand Vizier yesterday. Subsequently the embassadors of six powers had a conference. To-day the Turkish ministers held a council. The prevalent impression regarding the situation is pacific.

Address on the Condition of South Carolina.

The following address from the leading ministers and citizens of Charleston is a sufficient refutation of the base calumnies and slanders which the Northern press, and especially the official organs of the Northern Methodist Church, have most unsparingly circulated. Of course such malignant and reckless defamers as Hatfield, Haven, and Edwards will be believed rather than the gentlemen whose names are subscribed to the address, who may be supposed to know whereof they affirm, and whose characters for intelligence and truth are above suspicion.

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES.

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 25. The President of the Chamber of Commerce has united with the Methodist, Catholic, and Episcopal Bishops, and leading Presbyterian, Lutheran, Baptist, and Jewish ministers, and presidents of all the national and other banks in Charleston, in the following address on the condition of South Carolina:

To the People of the United States:

Well-founded apprehensions that the civilization of our State is in danger of being utterly overthrown, and an overruling sense of duty to ourselves and posterity and the country at large impel us to make an authentic statement of our actual condition to the people in the hope that it will induce them to extend us their sympathy and aid in this distressing exigency of our affairs. There is so much at stake we cannot afford to be silent, or to withhold any effort that may possibly be of avail. For too long weary years the white people of South Carolina have endured a condition of things which any Northern State would have been tempted to throw off in two days at the point of the bayonet, if it could have been done in no other way. They bore and forbore, in the hope that some returning sense of justice or happy stroke of fortune would bring relief; but no such sense of justice or happy stroke came to their relief, and hope sickened and died away in their hearts. At last they determined, as by a common impulse and a natural and uncontrollable instinct of freedom, to make one supreme effort for their redemption, but to make it under and within the law. Those who hold authority here having, through party affiliation, access to the highest organ of political power in the country, and to the equally powerful organs of the partisan newspaper press, have subjected this people to the vilest misrepresentations and the most cruel slanders. Some of these we desire to correct. It is not true that the white people of South Carolina are disloyal or disaffected toward the United States Government. On the contrary, they are loyal and well affected toward it. They obey it at home, and would defend it promptly from foreign aggression. It is not true that South Carolina or any of its counties, are in a state of insurrection or domestic violence against the Government of the State, or that law and process cannot be duly enforced within her territorial limits, or that there is any lawful cause or occasion whatever for the Federal Government to interfere for the protection of the State Government against the violence of her citizens.

It is not true that the white people of the State are hostile to the colored people, or have any design or disposition to abridge or infringe their political or civil rights. On the contrary, in their conventions and in the speeches of their candidates for six years or more the most public and solemn pledges have been given that all the rights of the colored people shall be respected and protected. The colored people should know that these pledges will be faithfully kept.

It is not true that the few rifle clubs in the State are combinations of men against the law, or that they are engaged in murdering some peaceable citizens and intimidating others, or that they cannot be controlled or suppressed by the ordinary course of justice. The President has been deceived. These clubs existed with the knowledge and recognition of the Governor. Not one of them ever acted in defiance of law or against the Government or constituted authorities. The hostility to them of Gov. Chamberlain and his confidants is recent. It is political, and designed to affect the coming election. It is not true that in the recent race collisions the white people have been the aggressors. Their forbearance, as in the Charleston riot, the unprovoked Cainhoy massacre, and the still more recent assassination of a white citizen in Edgefield, has been wonderful. The truth is, that the leaders of the colored people, fearing that the day of their power is drawing to a close, have excited their ignorant dupes; have supplied them with arms; have aroused their fears for the loss of their liberty and have thus encouraged them to commit deeds of violence. We may also affirm some things which are true: It is true that there is in the State a most active, earnest, and excited canvass to overthrow corrupt rule and re-establish an honest State Government. This is a legitimate and lawful object, which should command the sympathy and support of every lover of his country.

It is not treason to defeat Chamberlain, nor is it insurrection or domestic violence to elect Hampton.

It is true that while the white rifle clubs are ordered by the Governor and the President to disband and disperse, the colored military of the State are allowed to remain in organization and in possession of their arms, and to attend political meetings in military order with rifles and other arms. The object of this discrimination is as obvious as is the comparatively defenseless condition in which it places the white population. We simply ask, what would the people of New York or Massachusetts think or do upon a like application of the bayonet policy to them, under such circumstances? Fellow-countrymen, we have sought to place before you briefly and in true colors the condition of South Carolina, the wrongs of her people, their patient forbearance, and their new-born hopes. Not long ago Gov. Chamberlain, in a transport of truthful and genuine enthusiasm, proclaimed to the people of the country the startling fact that the civilization of the Puritan and the Cavalier, of the Roundhead and Huguenot, is in peril in South Carolina. He spoke these words under the inspiration of his better angel, for truer words he never spoke, and they are as true now as then.

The peril is greater now than then, for when the worst and most degraded elements of society enter into or control a government, is there not much reason to apprehend some catastrophe which we hardly dare to contemplate?

Signed: S. Y. Tupper, President Charleston Chamber of Commerce; William Wightman, Bishop Methodist Episcopal Church South; W. B. W. Howe, D. D., Bishop of the Diocese of South Carolina; P. N. Lynch, D. D., Bishop of Charleston; John Forrest, D. D., Pastor First Presbyterian Church; G. R. Brackett, Pastor Second Presbyterian Church; J. L. Girardeau, D. From the Work.

PEARLINGTON CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We can say that the power of the Holy Spirit has been poured out upon us in this circuit this year. The good work has progressed steadily from the beginning of the year. All the quarterly meeting occasions have been seasons of special refreshment, and each one has been attended with a gracious revival, when souls were converted, the church edified, and many added thereto.

We always began to herald in these meetings, several weeks beforehand, with earnest prayers by the church, for the baptism of the Holy Spirit at that time. God did not disappoint us once.

We have just closed our last meeting last Sunday night, which lasted nine days, resulting in ten additions and a number of conversions. Our love-feast, on Sunday night, was a solemn and impressive time.

The real estate of the circuit has been increased in value about $700. Another appointment will probably be added another year, and the friends and brethren there think of building a nice little church, and giving it to the Lord. The salaries of the preachers have been paid in full, and the collections all raised with a surplus. Eighty-six have been added to the church during the year. Many of our Sunday-school scholars have taken their places in the church. Nearly nine-tenths of the people in this town are now trying to serve God in the church. The church has worked manfully. This people have done their part by their liberality, love, prayers, and strict adherence to duty. The church has worked, and God has blessed it.

W. W. HOPPER.

PEARLINGTON, Miss., October 21, 1876.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT CONFERENCE, LOUISIANA ANNUAL CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: On the twelfth instant our District Conference convened at Lake Charles, Calcasieu parish, La. The village presents an aspect of freshness and newness not common in southwestern Louisiana, and derives its name from the lake upon which it stands, whose waters wash probably eight or ten miles of shore.

The preacher in charge has just completed a church building, very neat and tasteful in design and execution, painted inside and out, and having no outstanding debt upon it.

Rev. James C. Cobb, our presiding elder, was with us. His parish is the whole of southwestern Louisiana, comprising probably one-fifth of the area of the State, and circumscribed by Calcasieu, Red, and Atchafalaya rivers, with the Mexican gulf on the south.

We had nine clerical and eight lay delegates present. Nearly one-half of our preachers were absent. No committees were appointed. The preachers made verbal reports, and the various topics enumerated in the Discipline were discussed and ventilated. The spiritual state of our church is not satisfactory. Several of the brethren, however, have had revivals of religion in their charges, and other charges were thought to be spiritually on the upward grade.

Under this head the following resolution was passed, viz: That we pledge ourselves to another honest and faithful effort to organize our societies into classes, as provided in Chapter 5, Section 4, of the Discipline, and to endeavor to provide suitable persons to conduct them.

Under the second head, that of missions, it was resolved that we do earnestly request the board of missions of the Louisiana Annual Conference to co-operate with us in our efforts to introduce a French-speaking missionary into the Attakapas country, and, on our behalf, petition the Nashville Board of Foreign Missions to give the matter special attention, and assist us in procuring a suitable missionary, and make a sufficient appropriation to push forward the enterprise.

Under the head of Sunday schools, it was resolved that we, the ministers and laymen of the Opelousas district, feel deeply the importance of pushing forward the Sunday-school interest, notwithstanding the difficulties that obstruct the way. That we will strive to stimulate our teachers to prepare their lessons diligently during the previous week, that they may the better entertain, instruct, and benefit their scholars. And that we will urge upon them the necessity of making conversions the great object and end of all their teaching.

Touching the financial question, Mr. Editor, the Opelousas District Conference did not solve the problem. They told us not how we were to raise money, but how we were not to raise it, all complied in the following resolution: That this Conference disapproves of all the tricals, charades, tableaux, or any entertainments that may enfeeble the spirituality or prove detrimental to the church of Christ.

The following named persons were elected delegates to the ensuing Annual Conference, viz: Rev. William Warner, Dr. S. P. Ward, Dr. H. P. Chevis, and A. H. Moss. William Shepard and O. M. Marsh were elected alternates.

Plaquemine Brulee was chosen as the seat of the next District Conference.

Upon the whole, we had a delightful and profitable session. We were all benefited. Prominence was given to religious services. There were a number of conversions, and probably eighteen or twenty accessions.

An appropriate card of thanks was offered to the people who so kindly entertained us, and we separated, feeling a deeper interest than ever in the welfare of each other.

Yours fraternally,

S. H. SCHROEDER, Sec.

BROOKHAVEN, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: I could almost wish that Brookhaven had not paid more than two-thirds of her assessment for ministerial support, because I would not seem to weaken the force of Bro. Enoch's stirring appeal, by naming another exception in our district to the general rule of unpaid preachers and delinquent stewards.

It has been suggested to me, however, that, as district steward from this charge, I ought to set Brookhaven right on the record. Our assessment was: for pastor, $800; for presiding elder, $128. Of this we have paid to pastor, $510 50; to presiding elder, $87 50; in all, $628; more than two thirds. Besides this, we have raised about $200 for repairs on church and parsonage, and that too without recourse to fairs, suppers, or charades. Will Bro. Enoch's make a note?

R. S. RICKETTS.

MR EDITOR: We have just closed our camp meeting this morning. Truly, it was a time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. The brethren who preached for us seemed to be full of the Holy Spirit. Forty-five souls were converted, and thirty-six were added to the church. The last sermon was preached last night to about four hundred persons. This increases our list of accessions to ninety-six for the year, nearly all of whom were converted.

Yours truly,

D. P. BRADFORD.

PARLOUS, Miss., October 5, 1876.

BRYNDIDGE, ALA.—A brother, writing September 1, says that a protracted meeting of nineteen days was held at Brundidge, Ala., by the pastor, Rev. P. H. Moss, resulting in thirty-six accessions to the church.

Rev. J. W. McCann, writing from Greensboro, September 28, says:

"Since my last communication, I have had a good meeting at Jones's Bluff, and five accessions; at Wesley Chapel, eleven accessions; at Brewersville, fifteen accessions—all on Belmont circuit, Alabama Conference."

Rev Lorenzo Lea, of the North Mississippi Conference, died Oct. 7. The Western Methodist says of him:

"We record with deep pain the death of the Rev. Lorenzo Lea, long a member of the Memphis Conference, but of late connected with the North Mississippi Conference, and supernumerary at the time of his death. He was well known and highly esteemed, not only as a preacher of the gospel, but as a Christian educator, and for a series of years as the President of the Memphis Conference Female Institute at Jackson, and subsequently of other schools. A fine scholar, a true gentleman, an earnest Christian, and concentrated to his work, he lived and died in the faith of the gospel.

Another Thought for Those sending Their Children to Schools or Colleges away from Home.

You desire that your sons and daughters shall have all the moral and spiritual influence and power that can be given by the Sunday school and church, while they are in the schools. But do you wish this at the expense of others? It is a moderate cost to keep up a Sunday school, at from fifty cents to $1 per scholar per year. If your children have the benefits of the Sunday school, ought they not to pay something for it? Have they pocket-money enough for this? Have you instructed them to help support the Sunday school? If not, please write them at once to do so. Send them something to help in it. They will feel better by so doing. So will you. Well, they hear a good preacher every Sunday. You like that. Well, is anything paid for your son or daughter to assist in the support of that minister? Or do you think the community and church are favored enough by your son or daughter being there? Send some money to assist in the support of the minister who preaches to your children every Sunday. You can direct the president of the college to see that so much is paid for the minister from your child. You and the son or daughter would feel that you were appreciating the privilege of the gospel. The gospel would do your child more good, if you pursue this course. Please to try it.

H. H. MONTGOMERY.

History of Methodism in Mississippi.

MR. EDITOR: I was gratified by your recent reference to our venerable Bro. John G. Jones's "History of Methodism in Mississippi," and hope with you that the approaching Conference will take "effectual measures" for its publication. The last Conference made a move in the right direction, by the members individually pledging themselves each to raise ten dollars for the publication of the first volume. Let the members, lay and clerical, fulfill their pledge, and each bring or send the $10 to the coming session of Conference, and the first volume will soon be published, and in the hands of the subscribers. The members of the Mississippi Conference are bound, by the most solemn obligations, to have this work accomplished as speedily as possible. They urged Bro. Jones to the task of compiling and writing this history, assuring him of its publication. He has done his part faithfully. Let the Conference do its part in like good faith, and, by aiding Bro. Jones in the way agreed, raise for him "a monument more enduring than brass," and fairer than the famous Parian marble.

Respectfully, etc., LAYMAN.

In Memoriam.

A committee appointed by the Waterproof Sunday school to prepare a tribute of respect to the memory of and an expression of our great bereavement in the loss of our dear friend and Sunday-school superintendent, Mr. H. W. Drake, who departed this life on the sixth of October, 1876, beg leave to submit the following resolutions:

Whereas, We can only recognize the hand of our Heavenly Father, who has thus severed from us, in the midst of greatest usefulness and loving favor, our kind friend and superintendent,

Resolved, That we will endeavor ever to cherish a fond recollection of his many virtues, and ever heed the many precepts and admonitions which have been given us by him.

Resolved, That while we experience our loss in him, we have a bright hope that our loss is his eternal gain.

Resolved, That we do most heartily sympathize with his bereaved and stricken family in their loss of a dearest husband and a most loving and gentle father.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family, and one to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

E. W. WAILES, Chairman.
MRS. M. M. CHEEVE,

HEALTH OF NEW ORLEANS.—The Board of Health, at its meeting, October 26, announces that no case of yellow fever has occurred since October 13, and that the city is entirely free from the disease. There is no healthier city in the United States than New Orleans.

LUTHER'S PSALM.

Carlyle, whose translation this is, pronounced it the greatest production of the kind in modern times.

A safe stronghold our God is still,
A trusty shield and weapon;
He'll help us clear from all the ill
That hath us now o'ertaken.
The ancient Prince of Hell,
Hath risen with purpose fell.
Strong mail of Craft and Power
He weareth in this hour,
On earth is not his fellow.

With force of arms we nothing can,
Full soon we were down-ridden;
But for us fights the proper Man,
Whom God Himself hath bidden.
Ask ye who is this same?
The Lord Zebaoth's Name;
He, and no other one,
Shall conquer in the battle.

And were this world all devils o'er,
And waiting to devour us,
We lay it not to heart so sore,
Not can they overpower us.
And let the Prince of Ill
Look grim as e'er he will,
He harms us not a whit;
For why? His doom is writ—
A word shall quickly slay him.

God's word, for all their craft and force,
One moment will not linger,
But, spite of Hell, shall have its course,
'Tis written by his finger.
And though they take our life,
Goods, honor, children, wife,
Yet is their profit small,
These things shall vanish all,
The city of God remaineth.

Texas Misrepresented.

MR. EDITOR: The letter in your paper of September 28, signed R. H. Adair, Fairfield, Texas, requires some notice. It has given pain to his friends in the State, and offense to many. The undersigned ventures to point out some of the grounds of complaint against the letter because not yet a nine-year-old Texan. Were they presented by an "old Texan," it might be attributed to unconquerable bias; if by a novice, to ignorance of facts.

He says: "No man can give satisfactory and intelligent information about Texas except the portion he chances to be in." In the face of this sensible statement, he proceeds at once to give the social, agricultural, sanitary, and religious status of the entire State.

He says: "It is not unusual in plowing a hundred yards" (italics ours) "to cross six or eight different soils." He should at once moderate this intemperate presentation of an exceptional fact. The actual fact in the case is that such cases may occur, but are very unusual.

"Lumber," he says, "is from $3 to $7 per hundred." No man should undertake such statements unless prepared by accurate information, and moved by a spirit of absolute fairness. Lumber, at the point from which I write (175 miles from the pineries) is $2 per hundred; at the pineries it is $1.

He says: "There are no fences worthy of the name, nor any timber to repair or rebuild when they are gone." To this sweeping declaration in reference to all "Texas," let me submit a Texan's definition of a lawful fence as given in a court trial in Washington county. Said the counsel: "You speak of the fence being a 'lawful fence,' what do you mean by that?" The witness promptly replied: "A lawful Texas fence is bull strong, mule high, and pig tight." Ah! but there are no fences in Texas worthy the name, Bro. A. says: "It rains very curiously here. One county is deluged with rain, and another adjoining is parched to death. It rains sometimes by bucketfuls on a few acres, while all around is drouthy." Now exactly this statement can be made of any portion of the United States covering the same area as Texas, then why present it as a marvelous anomaly peculiar to this State? He can, without much searching, find portions of Texas with as uniform seasons as the lower portions of Louisiana. He can with ease find portions as drouthy as the hill country of the Carolinas.

His sanitary analysis is as faulty as any of the foregoing quotations. His opinion is adverse, decidedly adverse; to the healthfulness of Texas. This is the first time we have seen such an opinion expressed. The truth is that Texas has no more disease nor less than the same area in any other portion of the Union. Nor has it any diseases more peculiar to its climate than have any of the Atlantic or Gulf States. This the official statistics have long ago established. The diseases of its seaboard, of its river bottoms, of its hill country, are quite identical with the parallel regions of the Union. The climate of West Texas, however, is now found to be equal to southern California for pulmonary complaints, and hundreds now resort thither, coming from the extremes of the Union.

In this connection he makes this assertion: "The railroads are the foundation of Texas' prosperity." Perhaps no assertion that could be made about this commonwealth is further from accuracy.

He says: "All the old towns have been broken up, and new ones built upon their ruins." That is a very astonishing statement. San Antonio, Galveston, Houston, Dallas, Palestine, etc., are as old as any other towns in Texas, and were never so flourishing. Several villages in Texas, as in the old States, have succumbed to railroad towns. But why such a general, unqualified, and incorrect declaration?

He adds: "The church is greatly interested in Texas." Bro. A. must explain this remark. As it stands, it is totally incomprehensible.

Mr. Editor, the above allusions to Bro. A.'s letter are not designed as a defense of the soil, climate, or commerce of Texas. It is not needed; but to show that Bro. A. is a careless and even a rash correspondent, and to prepare the minds of your readers to receive with material modification his reckless assault upon the character and integrity of more than a million of people, including hundreds of Methodist preachers, and thousands of very worthy members of the Methodist Church South.

He says: "To be a faithful Methodist preacher in Texas" (quotation marks ours) "is the next thing to being a martyr. 'Texas' surpasses any country in the world for breaking down the influence of such men. Else they are a most abandoned and graceless set, for the like of slander upon their good name we have never heard." Now, many of the good people who have seen this dreadful statement from Bro. A. are asking: "What has he been doing? Who has he been associating with? What portions of 'Texas' has he visited?"

Mr. Editor, your correspondent, I do not hesitate to say, must recall that statement, or cease to hope to be acceptable and useful in any community in "Texas." It is a libel he cannot establish. He is without the necessary facts to make the proof. He has not been over "Texas," not to say over the "world."

Mark the words: "To be a faithful Methodist preacher" is either to hazard martyrdom or to be proven "graceless and abandoned."

What means this man, a stranger to Texas, thus assaulting the character of an entire commonwealth? Shades of Ruter and Fowler and Kinney and Richardson and Burks, defend us! You descended to your graves honored and loved, and with spotless reputations, but it must have been, says Bro. A., because you were unfaithful. Lives of Alexander and McKenzie and DeVilbiss and Whipple and Fisher and Thrall and Bellamy and Sanford, and your hundreds of associates, speak! Why is it that you have neither hazarded martyrdom nor been pronounced a "graceless and abandoned set?" How is it that you have lived in Texas, and are still believed to be good men and true? Says Bro. A.: "It is because you have not been faithful." Go sit at his feet and learn your duty and study your State!

He says: "We are looking forward to the visit of Bishop Doggett with great interest." We naturally feel curious to know the ground of this interest. Is it the hazards of martyrdom or the probabilities of unfaithfulness?

Mr. Editor, in the face of his alarming statements, he invites you to visit Texas. If one-tenth of his statement is strictly accurate, the undersigned advises you to stay away. Yours fraternally,

F. A. MOOD.

Church Members Classified.

The church of Christ was organized in the days of the apostles, and is composed of persons who believe, or profess to believe, in Jesus, and are striving to secure the blessings of the gospel, and to diffuse them in the world. They are God's witnesses—witnesses of the truth and power of our holy Christianity. But "they are not all Israel who are of Israel." In this article we shall endeavor to analyze the church, and point out the various classes of which she is composed.

The first class we shall notice is those who follow Christ for worldly gain. When the church is popular, and possessed of much wealth and patronage, they unite with her for the sake of gain, that they may secure patronage in business, or accomplish some other worldly advantage. When Jesus was on earth there were those who followed him, not for the benefit of his teachings, but that they might share in the loaves and fishes. We find that class among his professed followers to the present day.

Another class is composed of such as, being convinced that they were sinners, have joined the church without the new birth, and are making a savior of the church. They are resting in a mere nominal connection with her, while they have never known what constitutes vital piety. They are conformed to the world—to its fashions, its pleasures, its glories—while they neglect inward piety, and all the duties which the gospel requires. They know nothing of experimental piety, of a divine change of heart, of scriptural holiness, forgetting the emphatic declaration of Christ: "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God."

Again, we have those who have once been truly converted, but have backslidden, and lost their first love, and turned aside from the narrow way, and gone back to the world. They have no evidence of present acceptance with God. They are presuming on past experience for salvation. They know the very time when they experienced a change of heart, and received the clear evidence of pardon, but now they are without hope and without God, they are no longer walking in the narrow way, but in the broad road that leads to death. No doctrine is more clearly taught in the Bible than the dangerous possibility of total and final apostasy. We are told that "the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day." And Adam fell from his state of holiness. Paul (than whom no man ever had a clearer evidence of conversion) says of himself: "But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection, lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway." And Peter declares: "For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein and overcome, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning. But it is happened unto them according to the true proverb. The dog is turned to his own vomit again, and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire." This, we doubt not, is a very numerous class in the church of Christ.

There is a class who are trusting in their own good works to recommend them to the favor of God. Now it is a great Scripture truth that good works are pleasing to God when springing from proper motives, and there is no genuine saving faith without good works, yet when made to take the place of Christ, and relied on in themselves, they will never secure justification. Christ is the only rock upon which the sinner can rest for acceptance with God. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Paul said to the jailer who asked: "What must I do to be saved?" "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." In his epistle to the Romans he says: "Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." This faith is not a mere assent to truth, but "with the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Philip said to the inquirer in his chariot: "If thou believest with all thine heart thou mayest." Paul says: "And though I give all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing." This clearly teaches that good works in themselves are not sufficient to save, unless they spring from that living faith that works by love and purifies the heart. Let none, therefore, trust in their good works for salvation, but let all at the same time remember that "faith without works is dead, being alone." "Show me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works."

The last class we shall mention is composed of such as have been convinced of sin, and have sincerely repented and turned to Christ, believing and trusting in him as their great propitiatory sacrifice, and receiving him, in all his offices, as their Prophet, to teach them, their Priest, to atone and intercede for them, and their King, to reign in and rule over them. They have renounced their own righteousness as filthy rags, and have forsaken every other plea and every other trust but Jesus died for me. This class are living Christians. They walk by faith and not by sight. They conform their lives to the precepts of the gospel, and walk in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord. They do not rest in the principles of the gospel, but go on to perfection, as instructed by Paul. They are growing, fruitful Christians, zealous, devout, spiritual minded. They are not like lifeless, fruitless trees, but alive, and bringing forth fruit. They are "living epistles, known and read of all men." Burning and shining lights, living to the glory of God, growing in grace. "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, they press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Oh! that the church of Christ was filled with such a membership. What an influence would be exerted upon the world around them! And how soon would the strong holds of the enemy be overturned, and the kingdoms of this world become kingdoms of our Lord Jesus Christ! May the Lord abundantly sanctify his church and ministry. Amen. S.

COLUMBUS, Miss., Sept. 30, 1876.

Little by Little.

It was morn—a balmy, Southern summer morn. The gentle zephyr played a while among the blushing flowers, and then took its leave. Then came the south wind laden with perfumes from Tallatralian flowers, and soft as the first blush on womanhood's cheek. In cloudless majesty sat the sun upon the throne of the east, swaying his scepter of golden light over wood and field. The notes of the lark and mock-bird fell in strains of varying melody upon my ears. Visions of Eden came fleeting through my mind. Nature was glad as when

"The morn of creation broke,
And the world at the smile of God awoke."

But away in the chambers of the south a small golden cloud arose. It could scarcely be seen above the horizon. But as it moved on in its northering course it gathered kindred fleeces; and thus it continued, until the loveliness of that morning was wrapped in its pall. It became the magazine of heaven, whence issued the appalling thunders and vivid lightnings.

This is a picture of human life. In my hours of solitude there passes before my mind a face wreathed about with the sweetness and innocence of adolescence. I see it approach the meridian of life spotless as the little cloud that rose to my sight on that morn. As it nears the years of manhood it gathers the vices of the age. Innocence and virtue are obscured by the clouds of guilt and vice. Reader, profit by this simple allegory. D.

Popular Preachers as Editors.

The Methodist under this head says:

The retirement of Dr. Talmage from the Christian at Work, his new engagement upon The Advance, and the employment of Dr. W. M. Taylor as editor of the Christian at Work, provoke a comment upon the effort to float religious papers into success upon the names of popular preachers. The obvious fact is, that it is a failure. The less-known fact is, that it is a sham. The great popular preacher does not edit the paper; that is done by some able man, usually kept out of sight, and deprived of his well-earned meed of praise. The popular preacher writes more or less for his paper—usually less. His sermons are printed in it, and would be printed in other papers if they were regarded as pre-eminently excellent. Editorial success has always followed the law of other success—the man must have natural fitness for the work, and must do that work so faithfully as to exclude him from great success elsewhere. In this city the great religious editors are: Bond, Stevens, Curry, Crooks, Fields, Prime, and Bright.

Other conspicuous American names are, E. O. Haven, Gilbert Haven, Olmstead, Mumford, and Peirce. They could all preach good sermons; but they have edited newspapers as an exclusive vocation. No doubt the people like to hear from the popular preachers, and such preachers often write well; but the people cannot be deluded in the belief that a paper is actually edited by men who preach two great sermons every Sunday, and are pastors of large churches. The actual function of these excellent men is that of contributors.

Another important fact is, the greater tendency of a paper so edited to become a personal organ. Men are asked to contribute to maintain a paper because its maintenance is said to be necessary to the nominal editor's success. In such papers, what the editor says anywhere is always given precedence over the words of other men. His sermons always displace other sermons—half the paper is merely an addition to his church. No man's opinions and work can be of enough consequence to deserve such an exclusive attention and homage. For, it is not editorial work proper; it is not the fruit of patient attention to the motions of religious life, or a record of thoughts and opinions derived from study of the world around us; it is a collection of clips from a preacher's workshop—good in their place, but no substitute for editorial work. We highly esteem the men whose names we use in the first lines of this article; but their pastoral work is and will be their real vocation. The attempt to take editorial honors (which must be actually filched from able subordinates) is unwise; and, if we rightly read the signs of the times, it is certain to fail. We are glad to see that Mr. H. M. Bright's name now appears at the head of the Christian at Work; Dr. Taylor's first step is in the right direction.

WRITING.—"When you report your protracted meeting, do not devote three-fourths of your article to writing up the ministerial brother that aided you. Leave something to be said about him when his obituary is to be written."

"So says a Southern paper. But suppose the ministerial brother that aided you is very urgent that you send an account of the meetings to the paper, and hints rather broadly, that he ought to be in the foreground of your word-painting, how can you help your eulogy trenching on the obituary style?"

"So says the Baptist Weekly, and well. We are sometimes constrained to omit notices of revivals because the object of the writer seems to be to glorify the chief speaker, rather than Him to whom the glory of every genuine revival is alone due."

So says the New York Observer, and the remarks will apply to a longitude west of New York.

OBITUARIES.

Correspondents, please write names and dates very distinctly. We follow copy on proper names.

Obituary notices should be forwarded promptly and immediately. Give only points of general interest; such as will help the living. Details of funeral services, and such phrases as "mourn their loss," etc., are not edifying. Verses, either original or select, not admissible in this department. Give the locality distinctly and in full. In the case of infants only a simple announcement of the death, with names and dates, will be published.

☞ All obituaries received are published as soon as convenient. If, after a reasonable time, any such communication fail to appear, let a duplicate be sent instead of a complaint.

DIED, at the residence of her grandfather, Hon. A. W. Faulkner, in the town of Columbia, Caldwell parish, La., on Friday morning, the eighteenth instant, EUGENIA L., only child of W. B. and Pauline Clark, of New Orleans. Though a little innocent, less than two years old, Eugenia had, by her winsome ways and infantine loveliness of person, closely entwined herself around the hearts of all who knew her. She was suddenly stricken down with a convulsion, writhed in agony for a time, passed into unconsciousness, and in less than forty hours breathed her last. Ere the sorrows of life had cast a single shadow across her infant heart, in the guileless purity of sinless innocence, her spirit has returned to God who gave it.

May God, who doeth all things well, sanctify this sad bereavement to the hearts of her surviving parents and friends, and cause them meekly and acquiescently to bow to the will of him who said: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven," is the devout prayer of

A FRIEND.

REV. JOHN EDWARD SURRATT was born October 2, 1843, in Harrison county, Texas; professed religion when quite a boy, just as he was leaving home for the war. His good Christian mother had concluded her advice, and committed him to the care of God, her Savior. He started on his way, but turned aside to pray, and there he found peace with God. As soon as he arrived at the camps he joined the Presbyterian Church. He was a faithful Christian, working for Christ, and demonstrating the truth and exhibiting the beauty of the religion of Jesus.

Soon after coming home, not being satisfied with the doctrines and government of the Presbyterian Church, he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and was licensed to preach, and in December, 1874, was ordained deacon by Bishop Keener.

Bro. Surratt was a faithful Christian, working his religion into all his business. He was uniformly happy, having a cheerful word for every one, and a great favorite with children. They all knew him, and gave him pleasant greetings at every corner of the street. With children and grown people he always found a place to speak for Jesus. In the prayer meetings and Sunday school, he was an honest, earnest laborer, making appointments to preach, and filling them the best he could. He was never prosperous in business, and the result was after anxiety, discouragements, etc., but he always committed all to God, and moved pleasantly on. I think he never had an enemy, nor one to accuse him of dishonesty. He was a man of much prayer at home. His last illness kept him in his bed for seventeen days, painful from the beginning, and continuing so until a few days before his death. He grew worse all the time, and his death was not a surprise. He was informed each day of his condition. He conversed freely of his spiritual state, and the day before his death the writer prayed with him, after which he assured him that all was right. He said: "I know. I'll meet you in heaven; I love Jesus, and Jesus loves me." The next morning death came upon him, and he realized it. He called his wife, and explained more minutely his business, as it would make for her comfort, assuring her that all was well spiritually. He then called up his little girl, and presented her with a Bible, exhorting her to follow its teachings, with the assurance that it would lead her to heaven, her papa, and little brother—a child of seventeen months, who died a week before. He then said he wished everybody could be present, and see how a Christian could die. He gave the farewell to all, and sung the two last verses of the old hymn, beginning: "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand," with the chorus: "Oh come, angel bands, come bear me away," etc. Then said: "I am on the old ship of Zion. She has landed many thousands, and can land as many more. Victory, victory;" (clapping his hands) "glory to God, glory, glory," and his voice dropped to a whisper; and then he was silent in death.

Thus at Elysianfields, Texas, on the twenty-first day of September, 1876, passed away our beloved brother. The facts in his death speak louder than comments, and I give them to you as they occurred. May the life and death of our dear brother be a blessing to all who saw and all who read.

WILLIAM C. CURRIE, late of Carroll parish, La., was born June 17, 1810, and died October 2, 1876, in his sixty-seventh year. The great fact of his life was that from his early manhood he was a consistent Methodist Christian. When he resolved on a life of piety, he would not be satisfied with anything short of an assurance that his sins were all forgiven, and that he was an adopted child of God. Having obtained this blessed assurance, he ever after retained it through all the toils, trials, and bereavements of a long and eventful pilgrimage. Religion with him was a happy reality. He felt that it was his privilege to walk in the light of God's countenance, and enjoy his approving smiles, and would be satisfied with nothing else. The writer has known him about forty years as a deeply pious, uniform, faithful, and liberal member of the church. He was twice married. His first wife was a daughter of Abram Whitaker, who was the writer's class-leader fifty-five years ago. His second is the daughter of the venerable George Selser, late of Carroll parish, La., long known as a holy and useful layman in our church, and but lately, at the age of eighty, gone to his reward in heaven. As might have been expected, as the sequel of such a life, Bro. Currie died full of peace, comfort, and heavenly hope. He was violently attacked with swamp fever, S[ep]tember 23, and, after much suffering f[or] nine days, died in great peace. He retained the use of his mental faculties to the la[st] believed that the time of his departure h[ad] come; talked composedly to his family a[nd] friends about his assured hope of heaven had his four grandchildren placed on [the] side of his bed, that he might put his ha[nd] on each of their heads and give them h[is] parting blessing, saying a recollection of [this] fact might exert a good influence on the[m] in after life. He said to his wife, if an obi[t]uary should be written, the writer of th[is] was the person to do it, as he had know[n] him as well as any one else. Yes, we esteem it a privilege to notice the very exemplar[y] life and calm and confiding death of such a life-long Christian as William C. Curr[ie]. May his family ever follow him as he follow[ed] Christ.

J. G. JONES.

DR. WILLIAM A. WRIGHT was born January 16, 1836, and died at his re[si]dence in Greenville, Ala., September [14], 1876. He was educated at Summerfield under Dr. Mitchell. He received impressions while at school, for good, that lasted throughout life. He always had the highest esteem and respect for Dr. Mitchell. He graduated in medicine in Nashville, in 1856. His pious and devoted wife died in 1872, leaving a s[on] and daughter to the care of the father. He was a devoted father, and gave much of his time to the moral and intellectual training of his children; in this respect his life was a complete success. He consecrated himself to God, while young. He was devoted to the doctrines and principles of the Methodist Church, and although he wandered far [off] by neglecting the means of grace. This is profoundly regretted in his last illness, and fully gave himself back to God. We hope he made the port in peace and safety. His children have lost a devoted and one of the best of fathers, the community one of its most respected and best citizens. He has left a large circle of relatives and friends. The large congregation assembled at the Methodist church, to pay the last tribute of respect, illustrated how much he was esteemed by the people among whom he had lived from a youth. May the Lord take care of his children.

S. P. RICHARDSON.

DIED, August 22, 1876, in Johnson's station, Pike county, Miss., J. CARROTH, in the twenty-seventh year of his age. He was married, by the writer, to Miss Almeda L. Seal, of Rankin county, April 14, 1873.

Bro. Carroth was raised by Presbyterian parents, and, although he was not religious until about four years ago, he was always a model man. He was converted at a happy revival at Summit, Miss., the joint Methodist Episcopal Church South, has ever since in the enjoyment of a consistent life. His death was a grand display of the truths of the Christian religion. By words of exhortations, prayers, singing of hymns in his last illness, he left the evidence that he did not fear to pass through "the valley of the shadow of death." Bro. Carroth has an aged mother, brothers, and sisters, with a lovely wife and one little boy, to mourn their sad loss, but not without hope. They expect to meet again just across the river.

IN MEMORIAM.

JAMES DURHAM was born in Mobile, Ala., October 5, 1866, and died September 6, 1876, aged nine years eleven months and one day; son of George H. Durham. Little James was a member of Paul Methodist Episcopal Sunday School South, and was loved by all who knew him to be a good boy and a child of God.

And we now do, in the name of our Father and our God, as members of St. Paul Methodist Episcopal Sunday school, extend our sympathy to the poor bereaved parents. What words can express our sympathy? Our thoughts are too deep for utterance. We can only bow ourselves before thee, oh, almighty Father, and pray thee to teach us submissively an Fresignation to say, thy will be done. He gave and he taketh away.

WILLIAM PIELE,
GEORGE D. ELSWORTH,
GEORGE W. VENSCHILL,
Committee.

MR. LOUIS GREGGS died in peaceful triumph on the fourth day of September, 1876. He was born in 1806, in Anson county, N. C., and moved to Lowndes county, Ala., in 1828, and thence to Butler county, in 1838, and thence to Jackson parish, La., in 1859, where he spent his remaining days. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1830, and lived a faithful member, trusting in the blessed Savior to the time of his death.

Bro. Greggs leaves his aged companion and his youngest son with her. The other children having married, leave the mother and son lonely and bereaved. The whole family and kindred and friends and church and community will feel his loss, but best of all is, while he is absent from our friends and kindred, he is present with the Lord.

WILLIAM LEVI TWINER, son of W. M. and H. A. Twiner, was born December 15, 1862, and was killed by a fall from horse, October 2, 1876. Thus suddenly was this young and promising one called to final account. He was on his way to church in company with his brother and sister when the terrible accident occurred which terminated his short earthly career. May the good Lord comfort the afflicted parents and brothers and sisters. "Be ye ready also, for ye know neither the day nor the hour when your Lord doth come," is the lesson of this event.

H. D. NORSWORTHY.

ROBERT DUDLY, son of Robert and Anna Eliza Sims, was born in Texas January 9, 1861. He had lived nearly all his life with his grandfather, J. W. Sims, Rapides parish, La., where he died on the sixteenth of June, 1876. Robert was a good boy, manly in all his conduct, loved by his family, and respected by every one who knew him. His death was greatly lamented in the community, and his family are not consoled, except by the assurance of meeting him in the better world.

THREESCORE AND TEN.

Threescore and ten. How the tide rolls on,
Nearing the limitless sea;
Bearing the voyager over life's flood,
To soundless eternity;
On, through childhood's sunny hours;
On, through manhood's ripened powers;
On, through youth, with its golden dowers
Till age appears,
With its crown of years;
And the time-worn mariner, sighing for rest,
Anchors at last in the port of the blest.

Threescore and ten! How the rolling years
Are checkered with sunshine and shade!
The calm chased away by the pitiless storm,
Earth's joy into sorrow must fade;
Spring with its bloom and perfume sped,
Fruit-laden summer quickly fled,
Autumn come with weary tread,
Bent with the load
Of treasured food;
And then stern winter, with frosty breath,
Grows over the fields the pall of death.

Threescore and ten! And if we shall reach
The bound that to life is here set,
How few of the comrades of early years
Around us will linger yet!
Father and mother, their journey is o'er;
Brothers and sisters, we greet them no more;
Our loved ones stand thronging the further shore;
They beckon us on,
They point to the crown,
And with longing hearts they wait
To lead us through the pearly gate.

Threescore and ten! And the snows of years
Are resting upon the brow;
But as backward we glance o'er the way we have trod,
Before God, our Father, we bow;
And joyous we bring him our songs of praise;
His mercies have cheered us through all our days;
And we fervently pray that life's setting rays,
Through dove divine
May cloudless shine—
Telling away in the purer light
That illumines the land which knows no night.

Threescore and ten! Stand firm in thy lot,
Faithful and true to the end;
Bending thine ear to catch every word
Of the message the Master doth send.
Wakeful thine eye, for far spent is the night;
Burnished thine armor, good soldier of light;
Ready to march, for the day-star is bright;
Hold on the fight
For truth and right;
Thou a conqueror shalt stand,
With the exulting blood-bought band.

Threescore and ten! And what shall we add
To measure the earthly strife?
How many sands are left in the glass,
Numbering the years of life?
One by one they silently fall;
One by one, till have fallen all;
One by one, till thy God shall call:
"Thy race is run;
Servant, well done;
Faithful to thy Lord's employ,
Enter now into his joy!"

Literary Night-Workers.

Moderate night-work, by the express testimony of experiment and experience, does no hurt to bodily or mental health; but rather the contrary. Mr. E. S. Dallas somewhere takes note how well and to what old age nocturnal toilers and watchers retain their strength and faculties. How vigorous-minded and strong-framed have eminent astronomers been. Copernicus lived to be seventy. Galileo seventy-eight, Flamsteed seventy-three, (in spite of a disordered body, and of his persistence by night and by day in toil harder, as he said, than a corn-thresher's.) Then, again, we are referred to Bradley, who did much night-watching, and yet ran out the allotted period of threscore and ten years; and Maskelyne, his successor as astronomer royal, who told threscore all but one year; and "old Herschel," whose daily and night-watching lasted on and were performed so well that it may be said to have done the work of three lives, and he reached the good age of eighty-four. His son, Sir John, renewed the tale of years and of toil. The practical advice offered to whosoever wishes to rob the night to the best advantage is for the robber to sleep two or three hours, then get up and work for two hours, and then sleep out the balance of the night; during which, he is promised that he shall not feel the loss of the sleep he has surrendered. But constitutions and capacities vary, and some intending robbers may find the plan laid down for them a mockery and a delusion, if not a snare.

Served him right may be the verdict of all staunch denouncers of night study, when told of Brutus seeing a ghost while so occupied—the ghost of Cæsar. For Brutus continued his studious habits amid all disquietudes, and limited his time of sleep to a period confessedly too small for the requirements of health and strength.

Pliny the Elder began his studies in summer as soon as it was light; in winter, generally at one in the morning, but often at midnight, and never later than two. "No man ever spent less time in bed; and sometimes he would, without retiring from his table, indulge in a short sleep, and then resume his studies." Sleep he counted one of the infirmities of nature: profecto enim vita vigil est. Seneca has his sneer at the Emperor Claudius, to the midst of the important labors of his great office, employing, or "affecting to employ the hours of the night in the diligent study of the Sciences and the composition of the styled discourses," which latter the "unlettered soldier" would afterward pronounce to the assembly of a numerous and applauding audience." In subsequent volumes the historian records how Justinian, to the astonishment of his chamberlains, "after the repose of a single hour," would study till morning light. "His nights whole nights indeed," testifies a serious author elected by Procopius, "debating with reverend graybeards, and running over the pages of ecclesiastical volumes."

How could Richelieu find time, amid the multitudinous cares of state, to write his memoirs and his miscellanies? Only by night-work. He slept scarcely at all, and his sleepless nights were given up to composition and study.

Archbishop Williams, England's great clerical chancellor, required from his youth to old age, his biographer (Hacket) tells us, but three hours' sleep in twenty-four to keep him in good health. "This we all knew and lived in his family. It would be quickly believed, but that a world of witnesses will avouch it; that it was ordinary with him to begin studies at six of the clock and continue them till three in the morning, and be ready again by seven to walk the circle of his indefatigable labors." What the lord keeper got brought, first and last, in the way of calling must have been a sight for sore eyes. It even makes the eyes ache to think on.

It was not until his severe application brought on a nearly fatal illness that Salmasius gave up his cherished habit of devoting the whole of every third night entirely to study.

Pareja, the painter, slave, and color-grinder of Velasquez, would spend whole nights in drawing, and all but denied himself sleep altogether in presumed emulation of his great master.

John Selden is pleasantly pictured by Mr Dallas in his little chamber in the Temple, poring over piles of black letter, adding another and another to his host of precedents, and muttering a sneer against ecclesiastics and their tithes, while the faggot on his hearth has burnt itself out and the white ashes are blown by the night wind about his cell and settle on his papers and fill the dim air with motes. Fontenelle describes his philosophic friend, Varignon, at the time of their lodging in the same house and pursuing the same researches, as the most laborious of students, glad to go on with what he was doing at two in the morning, under the pretext of its not being worth while to go to bed, because he usually rose at four. Dr. Hooke, the Gresham professor and associate of Wallis and Boyle, seldom went to bed till three in the morning, and frequently pursued his studies all the night through. Mr. Pepys took credit to himself, as well he might, in his reports to the admiralty, that in his official labors in that department, involving much work, as well as penwork, toilsome and severe, he made no distinction of hours between day and night, being less acquainted, during the whole war, with the closing his day's work before midnight than after it.—At Nightfall and Midnight.

Choosing a Pope.

When the bell of the Capitol announces the death of the Sovereign Pontiff, the Cardinal Camerlingo goes to inspect the body of the Pope, and to take the fisherman's ring from his finger, while the Dean of the Sacred College sends out the summonses for the Conclave. The Conclave does not begin till the obsequies of the late Pope are over—ten days after his decease—previously to which time, however, the Cardinals meet in congregation and swear to observe the Pontifical institutions. On the tenth day after the decease of the Pope the Cardinals hear high mass at St. Peter's, and then go in procession to enter the conclave, singing the Veni Creator. They pass on their way through two lines of Roman people, who give them advice, or jokes, or threats, or prayers, according to the humor of the day. On the first day the Cardinals have liberty to return home to dine, if they will; but at one o'clock the bell of the Conclave is rung, by the orders of the Dean, for all visitors to depart; at two o'clock the second signal is given, and at three the great door is shut, not to be opened again till the Conclave is over, except that a Cardinal who has not entered the Conclave may do so at any time.

BALLOTING FOR A POPE.

There are three methods of election—election by compromise, by adoration, and by ballot. In the election by compromise the Cardinals, if unable to agree, nominate one or more members of their body to designate the new Pope. Election by adoration or acclamation takes place when a number of the Cardinals, amounting to two-thirds, at least, acclaim the Pope without preliminary ballot. The ballot, however, is the method now regularly adopted, and the method of taking it has been fixed by Gregory the Fifteenth and Urban the Eighth. Two-thirds of the votes of the Cardinals present are, as we have said, necessary for election, and the vote is secret. The act of voting is performed in the Capella Paolina, and the votes are taken twice a day. Each Cardinal writes on a little table in the corner of the chapel the name of the Pope he would elect in a feigned hand in the center of the voting ticket. The voting tickets are of an oblong form, prepared according to the directions of the Bull of Gregory the Fifteenth. In the center of it are the printed words, "Eligo in summum Pontificem Rm D. nomine D. Cardin.," after which the voter inscribes the name of the Pope he would elect. The ticket is so made that the ends above and below these words can be folded down and sealed, leaving the inscription visible. In the center fold the writer signs his name, and then seals down the fold with a small seal which each voter has expressly made for this purpose, and which he prevents others from seeing. Within the lower fold he writes a motto in Latin from the Bible and a number, and then he seals up likewise. The Cardinal then folds the ticket in two without again seeing it, and approaches the altar, on which is placed a chalice covered with a paten. At the foot of the altar the voter lifts up his hand, and exhibits the ticket between his thumb and finger. He then kneels and prays for a moment, after which he takes oath that he is about to elect him who, according to God, he thinks ought to be elected; he then puts the ticket on the paten, and slips it from thence into the chalice, which he covers up. Then he makes a new reverence before the altar, and returns to his place. If the Cardinal is ill or old and cannot walk, one of the scrutators goes to his place to receive the ticket on the paten, after the Cardinal has taken the prescribed oath. If he is sick in his cell, three Cardinals, appointed for the purpose, go to his cell with a closed box—like a money box—to receive his vote and bring it to the chapel.

HOW A POPE IS MADE.

"If any Cardinal has received two-thirds of the votes of those present in conclave, he is Pope. Papa factus est. If no one unites this number they pass immediately to the ballot of the per accessum, to the second turn of the ballot. In the ballot per accessum each Cardinal has the faculty of voting anew for a new candidate from the one for whom he voted the first time, and for this purpose, by the aid of the number and his motto from the Bible, the scrutator examines his first ticket in order to see that he does not vote twice for the same Cardinal. If in this second turn of the ballot any Cardinal gets a number of votes which are sufficient, when added to the number he obtained in the first round to make up two-thirds, he is a Pope; and generally the Popes are elected in the second round. After each ineffectual scrutiny the voting papers are burnt, and the populace of Rome have sometimes divined that the election of the Pope has been completed by the non-appearance of the smoke from the chimney of the Conclave, which they watch every day at the appointed hour of voting in the morning. But at last the Sacred College has decided. The Pope has been chosen. Papam habemus; Papa factus est. There he sits still among the Cardinals, pale with emotion; those who are near him retire to a distance; all fall upon their knees, they arise and encircle him. The Dean and the senior Cardinal priest approach him and ask if he accepts the dignity, and what name he will take. The Pope elect consents, and gives out the name under which he will be known as Pope. He is led behind the altar, where Pontifical robes of white are in readiness, and the slippers embroidered with the cross of gold. He is placed in the chair of St. Peter. The Cardinal and Dean kneel and kiss his foot and his right hand; the Pope lifts them up and kisses them on both cheeks (osculum pacis.) The other Cardinals follow, and chant" "Ecce sacerdos magnus." This is the ceremony of the first adoration.

WORSE THAN BEING ON A JURY.

The Conclave of Gregory the Tenth lasted two years, during which time the Church of Rome was without an infallible head. Clement the Fourth, predecessor of Gregory, died at Viterbo, and the Cardinals, not being able to agree upon a choice of a successor, were preparing to leave the town, when St. Buonaventura, the disciple of St. Francis of Assisi, persuaded the inhabitants to shut their gates, and not let the Cardinals go till a Pope was made. The people took the saint's advice, and not only shut the gates of the town, but set a guard over the Cardinals at the doors of the palace in which they met, and informed them that they could not even leave the palace until they had elected a Pope. However, even then the Cardinals could not come to an agreement; they went on from month to month and month to month, still voting without producing the requisite majority, till one day the Cardinal del Porto exclaimed that the Holy Ghost could never come down and inspire their choice as long as they had a roof over their heads. The people of Viterbo took this profane joke seriously, and unroofed the palace. This measure again was ineffectual, and the Cardinals, it seemed, would never have arrived at any determination had the device not been hit upon of diminishing the supplies of their tables. This measure succeeded. Hunger effected more than rain and wind had done, and Gregory the Tenth was elected. Gregory the Tenth, on his election, issued the Bull that all future Popes should be elected in conclave—that is, by an assembly of Cardinals locked up together, and subject to specified restrictions as to diet and attendance until the election was over.—Cornhill Magazine.

The Northern politicians and preachers have used South Carolina, says the Richmond Christian Advocate, as the scientist does a dog, for experiments. The Washington Radical tried the effect of Congoes from the rice swamps, as statesmen. The State is in convulsion, from the poison.

New England Methodism orders a "mixed church," but not having bribes or bayonets to gag the people for the dose there is a signal failure in finding out the power of the potion.

Even the Yankee in South Carolina is just as averse to social equality with the freedman as his brother in Boston.

The Rev. Dr. Fuller, the editor of the Atlanta Methodist, (Northern) tells the story:
